Britain Expecting Quick Nazi Try To Invade Cyprus

Military Sources Also Believe Nazi Demands Will be Made On Turkey to Join Axis Or Permit Passage of Troops

PAPERS MAKE DEMAND

London, June 2 (AP)—Belief was voiced in London tonight that Britain is prepared to take swift action in Syria, both to block any substantial German foothold and to bolster Turkey's stand.

Authoritative quarters expressed confidence that Turkey would never yield either to Axis threats or blandishments—she is Britain's ally—but it was acknowledged that Britain is determined to get a head start in any showdown in Syria.

This, it was said, would help to stiffen Turkey's attitude. Bordered on the European side by German-occupied Greece and Bulgaria, Turkey is a pathway to the oil fields of Iraq and the Suez Canal.

As Britain counted the cost of her 11-day defense of Crete, other reports were heard that the Germans may attempt to invade Britain's mandated Mediterranean island, Cyprus.—

Slightly more than 15,000 Empire forces were declared officially Sunday to have withdrawn from the Greek Island of Crete to Egypt to fight again in the steadily-unfolding battle for the Suez Canal.

British casualties on Crete were estimated at more than 30,000. The Nazis claimed to have captured 10,000, principally Australians.

The War Office acknowledged "severe" losses.

In addition, the fight to stem the air-borne invading, is admitted —against higher Axis claims —to have cost Britain three cruisers, four destroyers, and a number of lesser battleships and several other warships.

On her side of the ledger, Britain marked down victory in Al-ghol Iraq, under an armistice effective yesterday morning one day less than a month after rebel Premier Rashid Ali Al Gailani called upon the Nazis for aid against the British.

Fierce Fighting Near Tripoli

The end of fighting in the Al-ghol Iraq oil fields and Euphrates was expected to clear the way for quick dispatch of additional British troops through Iraq for possible duty along the Syrian frontier to block any threat of German thrust in that direction.

A newspaper campaign demanding British occupation of the British-mandated island followed momentum with the Daily Telegraph asking: "As Vichy France now is the partner of Germany, is there any reason why we should not take Syria?"

It was pointed out that Syria was vital to Germany as a back door drive toward Suez from the east. Syria, too, would be a useful airbase base for a Nazi invasion to take heavily-fortified Cyprus, 60 miles off the coast of the Syrian territory.

The British island is more than 250 miles northeast of the nearest Axis base in Rhodes and 350 from Crete, while it is within 140 miles of strong British air bases in Palestine.

IRAQ AT PEACE WITH REGENT ILAH AT HEAD OF GOV'T

Iraq Rebels Laid Down Their Arms Under Armistice Effective Sunday

NO NEWS OF KING

Cairo, June 2 (AP)—Iraq, the land of oil, was at peace today under the British gun.

Regent Emir Abdul was back at the head of the government from which he was ousted by Rashid Ali Al Gailani in a military coup that led to a month of war with Britain.

The Arab forces of Rashid Ali, who fled last week from Baghdad, laid down their arms under an armistice effective at 8 a. m. Sunday.

There still were conflicting reports of the whereabouts of Rashid Ali himself. First, it was believed "reported carried off to neighboring Iran (Persia) by Rashid Ali Later it was said he was still in the Iraq capital.

A British radio report heard last night declared, however, that "at present Rashid Ali and his principal associates have no news of the whereabouts of the boy king" although he had been "presumed" to be safe at Baghdad.)

Formal For Troop Passage

British dispatches said it was understood that the new Iraq government would permit unrestricted transit of British troops. Rashid Ali's refusal to grant such permission after he seized power April 4 led to the outbreak of fighting May 2.

Under the terms of the armistice Britain pledged to "abstain from any interference in Iraq's internal affairs, to afford his Royal Highness, the Regent, every assistance in re-establishing a legal government, and to assist the Iraq nation to resume a normal and prosperous existence."

Old Line Cut Off

London, June 2 (CP)—An authoritative source said today that the northern oil pipeline from the northern Iraq fields to the British base at Haifa in Syria is cut off and remains a belief some German forces remain in the country awaiting a signal around Kirkuk.

Before long rebel forces laid down their arms in an armistice. Yesterday, a month to the day after Britain, it was said there had been "a lot" of Germans in the Mosul area. Reliable reports stated that these probably had moved on to Kirkuk, 100 miles southeast.

A Berlin propaganda broadcast heard here said the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, who attempted to flee to Moscow, was leading Arab Britain during the struggle with Iraq. He had arrived at Mosul to "reorganize Iraq resistance to the British."

PASSED OBJECTIVE

Ottawa, June 2—(CP)—The Turner Valley area in Alberta claimed today the title to the first honor pennant in Canada for between the Royal Canadian Air Corps in the $600,000,000 Victory Loan Campaign which opened today. Western Canada as a whole passed objective at opening time.

Dominion Gov't to Pay An Extra Cent a Pound On Cheese for Britain

Ottawa, June 2.—(CP)—Canada's "Food for Britain" program received a fillip today with announcement an additional supplementary payment of a cent a pound on all Cheddar cheese exported to the United Kingdom by Boxes will be paid by the Dominion Government.

The original price agreed upon with the United Kingdom was 14.4 cents a pound at Montreal and now, with Federal payments and those of the Quebec and Ontario Governments added, high grade export cheese at Montreal is worth 30 cents a pound.

Today's announcement was one of a series made recently to speed production of cheese and make sure Britain receives at least 112,000,000 pounds before March 31, 1943.

The Dominion is attempting to see that the original contract quantity is delivered by that date because Britain is prepared to purchase more if shipping space is available.

Announcement of the price increase by Agriculture Minister Gardiner said "that in view of the fact that recently the Dairy Products Board ordered that all cheese produced in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, on and after May 26, be graded, the Government agreed to grant Britain an additional supplementary bonus of one cent a pound on all Cheddar cheese made on and after May 26, and exported through the Dairy Products Board to the British Ministry of Food will be paid by the Dominion Government.

This new grant makes a total of 1 6-10 cents a pound paid by the Dominion on cheese for export, as a payment of 6-10 cents a pound on export cheese went into effect April 1, when the agreement with the United Kingdom became effective.

In addition, the Agriculture Department pays two cents a pound on all cheese scoring 94 points or over out of a possible 100 and one cent a pound on all 92-to-94 cheese.

The Province of Ontario pays a bonus of two cents a pound on all Cheddar cheese produced and a similar Quebec bonus applies on high-grade cheese also.

The government decision to pay an additional cent a pound for export cheese came at a time when production figures were causing a considerable concern.

Agriculture Department officials reported June 1 deliveries during the week ended May 31 were up 44.7 per cent over the same week last year at 36,251 boxes, for the major producing provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

If this increase is maintained, officials said there is little doubt that Britain's cheese requirements could be filled. During April, the first month of the present agreement, cheese production was 1,317,000 pounds compared with the year before, but in every week except one in May the total production showed substantial gains over 1940.

Twelve Thousand Acclaim Pre-opening Day Ceremonies Of Victory Loan Campaign

Tactical Manoeuvres by Anti-Tank Battery, Colorful Military Parade, Fine Bands and Inspiring Addresses Feature Function at Fair Grounds — Military, Civic, Political Dignitaries Present — Thousands Throng Grounds in Ideal Weather

"Canada, to be worthy of her forefathers, must be prepared to fight with everything she has; with the last ounce of her strength. Participation in the Victory Loan required before Prussian barbarism is crushed and rendered impotent," Colonel C. E. Reynolds, M.C., D.C. M., Commandant of the Canadian Corps Association declared in a ringing address before twelve thousand fans at Monday's pre-opening day ceremonies in Belleville.

Colonel Reynolds' address featured the inaugural ceremonies of the National Victory Loan campaign here which got under way today. Distinguished military, civil, political and political people were in attendance. The actual ceremonies were preceded by one of the most colorful military parades ever held in Belleville and which was featured by tactical manoeuvres of the Anti-Tank Battery from Petawawa under the command of Lieut. Colonel F. Y. Wills, formerly of this city.

Many Attachments Present

Adding brilliant color to the parade in which were detachments of the Royal Canadian Air Force under Squadron Leader Denton Massey, the Stadlings and Prince Edward Light Horse, the Light Infantry (Tank), the Army and Navy Veterans, the Salvation Army, the Belleville Branch 201, and the Cadet Corps of Albert College, Belleville Institute was the stirring music of several bands. Under the general direction of Bandmaster Hewitt, the band of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Corporal Hancock conducting, the Argyll Pipers' Band, Bandmaster Arrey Band under Jack Green, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Band under Fletcher Hosier and the Australian Soldier Like Ulysses Has Odyssey of Strange Adventures

Cairo, Egypt, June 2 (AP)—An Australian who survived four war wounds told today of a flight which crossed the path of legendary Ulysses and was marked by adventures almost as fantastic.

His odyssey began within sight of Mount Olympus, where his battalion was ordered back in the withdrawal from Greece. On the slopes of Mount Parnassus he suffered a head wound. A slight leg injury from a bomb fragment in a German air attack.

But he encountered two other Australians on the shore. They found a rowboat, cut a sapling for a mast and, with a blanket for a sail, they pointed their little craft for Crete.

"They had no compass and none of them ever before had navigated a boat, but they got the hang of it," he said, and presently were sighting islets of the snow-capped peaks of the Mediterranean Island.

A strong wind came up, however, and blew them northward and the three peaks gradually faded away as they pulled their oars vainly against the current.

Their boat was blown up on another little island and by great toush took them in and fed them. Resting there overnight, they set out once more and this time they reached Crete. Their compass was gone but had halted there and rejoined it.

Fighting again against the elements, he encountered a whirlpool, cut several batches of parachutists, and again he was fired on by Nazi aerial fire, and one machine-gun bullet grazed one of his ears and another ripped through his shoulder.

A Cretan peasant woman nursed his wounds, and he resumed his journey after a trek over the mountains to the south coast. He suffered his fourth wound when a bomb exploded on the ship bringing him to Egypt, but this, too, proved slight.

POPE UPHOLDS MEN'S RIGHT TO FULL FREEDOM

Cautions Against State Interference in Rights of Individuals

REFERS TO LABOR

Vatican City, June 2 (AP).—Pope Pius, outlining his views Sunday on how the "tragic conflict" of the social and economic life should be solved, declared that "peace in the world expects and hopes" will emerge from the "unsurpassed courage and guarding of the rights of the individual."

In a radio broadcast commemorating the 50th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's social encyclical, "Rerum Novarum," the Pontiff said he wished to give some further "substantive moral principles" on the three fundamental values: the use of material goods, labor and family.

OBSERVERS THINK TRAFFIC TO MOVE BY WAY OF CAPE

Associated Press Quotes Qualified Observers on Developments in Mediterranean

OBSERVERS SPECULATE

London, June 2 (CP)—The Associated Press quotes "qualified observers" as saying war developments of the past week, notably the fall of Crete, indicate Premier Darlan's alignment of France with the Axis, have virtually eliminated the Mediterranean as a link between Britain and the Middle East.

Britain, they added, counting on United States help, must transport vast tonnage in munitions to the Middle East to bolster the defences of the Suez Canal. Suez is the "key to victory," they said.

MANCHESTER GETS HEAVY POUNDING; MANY CASUALTIES

One Hospital Suffers Direct Hit Also Several Shelters

FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Manchester, June 2—(CP)—German planes poured thousands of incendiaries and high - explosive bombs on this manufacturing city early today.

Rescue crews were handicapped by a heavy pall of smoke as they dug for victims buried under the wreckage, but although several fires were started by the bombs none got out of control.

A number of nurses were feared to have been buried in the wreckage of a nurses' home which received a direct high-explosive hit. Two hospitals were damaged in other areas and three churches and several shelters were hit, in addition to numerous homes.

Three hotels and a movie theatre also were hit.

In one district, a man, his wife and their 10-year-old daughter were hurrying to a shelter when a bomb dropped. The man's body was found dead across the child who was found dead across a sign supported by the broken stony of a pub and there was no trace of the child.

A physician took miners' lamps and crawled into the wreckage of the nurses' home to amputate the leg of a nurse who was pinned by fallen beams. The nurse was too great, however. She died.

Among the other casualties were five waitresses, a patient and a young curate on shelter duty outside a church. They had taken refuge in shelter in the church crypt except with slight injury.

London, June 2 (CP). — German bombers attacked Manchester in force during the night, dropping many thousands of fire bombs and tons of high explosives on the industrial city.

Rescue crews still digging this morning for victims buried under the wreckage, were handicapped by a pall of smoke which added to the district's traditionally murky atmosphere.

An undisclosed number of nurses have been entombed in the rubble of a nurses' home which received a direct hit; two hospitals were struck and other shelters were smashed in the working class district.

Fires were started and considerable damage done to business property during the two-hour attack, worst the city has experienced in months.

London had a brief alert, the first in three weeks, but there was little activity over the city.

Victory Loan Canvassers Start Out In Quest Of $600,000,000

Ottawa, June 2 (CP)—From Halifax to Victoria, from the international boundary to the Far North, canvassers set out today in Canada and said as the spokesman for French Canada that "we are on the job — we must work, fight, win or perish together."

This statement issued a few hours before the three leaders spoke to the nation-wide network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, for the purpose of "arousing the waning degree of interest among the population at large" for the loan, preparation and installation, has certainly do not appear to be lagging. In recognition of the fact that the loan is a sound investment as well as a patriotic opportunity to serve the nation's wartime need," they said.

He appealed to Canadian householders to welcome loan canvassers for they were on an important national mission, "vital to this country's task in war."

Mr. Churchill said it must seem strange to the men and large numbers that Canada, communities of millies away and without any comprehension of modern warfare, to step into the van of battle against the Axis. "But that is the case."

Development And Navigation Resources Included

Enactment of Bill Would Approve Agreement Between Canada and U. S.

HEARING STARTS JUNE 16

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Legislation authorizing development of the power and navigation resources of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes basin was introduced in the United States House of Representatives today by Chairman Lea (D-Calif) Manfield (Dem.-Texas) of the Rivers and Harbors Committee.

Enactment of the bill would constitute Congressional approval of the agreement negotiated between Canada and the United States for development of the big power and navigation project.

The measure allocated for construction by the United States under said agreement shall be undertaken immediately under the direction of the Secretary of War and the supervision of the chief of engineers," the measure specified.

Under the legislation, the President would be authorized to negotiate with the New York State Power Authority for transfer of facilities in the Robert Moses-Sixth Street and Pavonia Avenue.

Several Hundred Cattle Burn

Several hundred head of cattle were burned to death Sunday and an eight storey grain elevator and engine house, a two-storey cattle pen and hay loft of the Corn City Stock Yards Company, a large milk distributing plant and 16 freight cars and two automobiles.

In addition, the fire caused extensive damage to a 400-by-200 foot warehouse operated by the Midtown Realty Company, an ivy filling of the Erie Railroad and a covered railroad spur.

Complete inventory of the contents of the warehouse is lacking, but a preliminary checkup showed it was holding 10,000 cases of rubber, oil, bales of paper, tool steel, alcohol, Scotch whisky and chemicals.

It was the second large dockyard fire within a week in the New York port area. Pre-plan and equipment owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad at Greenville, New Jersey, burned Tuesday at a Jersey City pier, causing undetermined merchandise loss.

$25,000,000 FIRE AT JERSEY CITY

Sabotage Discounted by Fire Chief and F.B.I. Chief

Jersey City, N.J., June 2 (AP)—Blackened rubble and heat-twisted steelwork held the secret today of the cause of a 36-hour fire that ravaged eight blocks along the Jersey waterfront, but police, Coast Guard, and Federal Bureau of Investigation expressed belief it definitely was not sabotage.

Fire Chief Frank Erile, who estimated damage at $25,000,000, told newsmen to "put any sabotage ideas out of your mind," adding that the fire could have started from a carelessly-tossed cigarette.

J. Edgar Hoover, F.B.I. chief, who also discounted the sabotage possibility, said in Omaha, Neb., that there were no National Defence materials destroyed.

The fire broke out Saturday in a stock yard and was not extinguished until Sunday. Several hundred cattle burned, spectacularly through the Hudson County section, at Sixth Street and Pavonia Avenue.

Campbellford Man Dies After Brief Illness

Campbellford Ont., June 2 (CP)—Charles L. Horsman, 70, well known throughout Northumberland County died at his home here Sunday after a brief illness. A native of Leeds, England, he came to Campbellford about 40 years ago and was head of the firm, Horsman and Son, soda water manufacturers. Surviving are his widow a son Wesley of Campbellford and a daughter, Mrs. Chas. Moran of Trenton, Ont.

Gen. Weygand Confers With Petain at Vichy

Vichy, June 2 (AP). — General Maxime Weygand arrived here unexpectedly today by airplane from his command in North Africa and conferred with Marshal Petain.

The French military commander in North Africa arrived at the French Vichy airport to Petain's headquarters at the Pare Hotel.

After a stay of only a few minutes in an anteroom, he was greeted by Gen. Laure, the marshal's chief personal aide, and ushered at once into Petain's private office.

Follows Darlan's Visit

Weygand's trip to see Petain followed closely on Vice-Premier Jean Darlan's anti-British statement Thursday glorifying one of British attacks on Syria and Tunisia.

Two weeks ago, it was revealed, the Vichy information office issued a communique declaring that "the time now has come" to relake colonies which have joined Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Free French movement.

An information office report, meanwhile said that an Italian synod book was removed from last week of the Tunisian port of Sfax. Evacuation and installation, however, certainly do not appear to be lagging. In recognition of the fact that the loan is a sound investment as well as a patriotic opportunity to serve the nation's wartime need," they said.

ARGYLL CHAPTER PROVIDES MEAL

Following yesterdays Victory Loan Campaign parade in Belleville the officers and members of the 49th Anti-Aircraft Battery from Petawawa Camp, under Lieut.-Col. T. V. Wills, were provided with a substantial meal at the local armouries. The officers and members of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. provided the repast, which was appreciated by the soldier boys of the 49th Anti-Aircraft Battery.

The unit travelled by motorized convoy from their home base to Port-hope on Saturday and bivouacked in that village Saturday night. A large crowd of interested citizens saw the 49th Anti-Aircraft Battery band and men at the Market Square Sunday night at midnight, the unit returning to their bivouac at Port-hope for a night's rest. They will continue to Petawawa on Monday.

ARCHBISHOP SPEAKS AT CHRIST CHURCH

The Most Rev. M. S. Harding, Archbishop of Rupert's Land Diocese of the Anglican Church in Canada, was the celebrant and preacher at the Whitsunday morning service at Christ Church on Sunday.

Archbishop Harding spoke on "Thy duty towards thy neighbor". At the evening service Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, dedicated a special communion sanctuary for the use and education of the children of the parish.

'Y' JUNIORS ENJOY SCAVENGER HUNT

The second event in the 'Y' spring outdoor programme for boys and juniors was held Saturday morning in the nature of a "scavenger hunt", which provided keen competition for all participants.

Prior to the "hunt", the boys met at the Y.M.C.A. where the following list of articles which they were to gather included the following—piece of brown shoe lace, a frog, dairy milk bottle top, reddish stone, hair from white horse's tail, wad of tin foil, piece of blue string, a yellow twig, a brass button, a four leaf clover, a road map and a dew worm.

Two teams made the complete collection, but the winner was decided through the medium of the worm collected—the winning team having a dew worm while the loser only collected a common garden worm to cut out. -

Following a swim in the filtered pool, prizes of large size chocolate bars were given to all the winning team, Bill McIntosh, Tom Leslie, Ben Lucas, Harry Abbott, Jim Mc-Intosh, Keith Jackson, and Reg Fulton, and a bar for breaking up among them consoled the second place team.

IMPORTANT MATTERS FOR JUNE SESSION OF COUNTY COUNCIL

By far the most important session of the Lennox and Addington County Council will convene in Shire Hall for its annual summer session on Tuesday, June 10th. During this sitting a number of assessments for the year 1942 will be fixed; tax rates struck and estimated expenditures for roads, schools patriotic fund and other special business considered.

HIGHWAY REPAIRS TO START THIS WEEK

Highways leading out of Belleville which were badly damaged by effects of the action of winter frosts this spring will be patched and repaired in the near future or just as soon as the machinery of the Law Construction Company, the firm which took the contract for repairing the roads, is put on the job.

The superintendent of the construction company stated the local employment office on Saturday with the view of obtaining say labor to assist in the patching operations. It was not known, however, as to when the operations would begin, but it was expected to be some time this week.

Obituary

MRS. ELDA (ROBERTSON) HUME

As the result of an acute heart ailment, Mrs. Elda Hume, widow of Major John Hume, died at the residence of her father, Mr. Wm. Robertson, Pinnacle Street, on Sunday afternoon, June 1st. Her many friends her sudden passing has brought sincere regret and sympathy is extended to Mr. Robertson and the members of his family in their bereavement.

The late Mrs. Hume was born in Kingston, but practically all her life was passed in Belleville. She attended the city schools and later was a student at Queen's University. Upon her marriage to Major John Hume, who was a partner in the United States Army, she resided at Fort Wayne, N.Y., for a time. Since the death of her husband a number of years ago, she made her home in Belleville. In religion she was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving her are her father, Dr. J. J. Robertson; one sister, Mrs. Donald Ross, Whitby, and one brother, Mr. John Robertson, Prince Edward County. Her mother died some years ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MISS M. C. ST. GEORGE

Miss Mary Clare St. George Yarwood, M.A., a former resident of Belleville, died in Toronto on Saturday, May 31st.

The late Miss Yarwood was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clare St. George Yarwood, and for many years resided in this city some years ago. She was born in Belleville. The early years of her life were passed in Belleville and later she was engaged as a teacher in Brockville and Toronto. In the latter place she made her home for some years. Old friends here will regret to learn of her death.

Surviving her is one sister, Mrs. F. Wills, Queen Street, Belleville, and the funeral took place from her residence on this Monday afternoon. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Canon Deal A. Beauchamp Payne, Rector of the Church of St. Thomas.

MRS. JAMES O. CARNEY (Roslin)

Mrs. James O. Carney, residence, Roslin, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday May 31st. Her illness was of a five months' duration and she was a patient in the hospital since May 11th.

The late Mrs. Carney, who was in her 77th. year, was born in Roslin, and resided in that district all her life. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Margaret Jane Dale, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dale. In religion she was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Roslin and was held in high regard by many friends.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. James O. Carney, Roslin; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Grills, Thomasburg, and Mrs. Wilfred Clapp, Plainfield; one son, Mr. Clare Carney, Roslin; three grandchildren, Marjorie and Verna Grills and Helen Carney.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Memorial Home, Campbell Street, until Tuesday noon. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. IDA M. CLAPP

Mrs. Ida M. Clapp, widow of Charles S. Clapp, died at her residence, 26 Victoria Avenue, on Saturday evening, May 31st. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Clapp was born in Prince Edward County, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hubbs. The greater part of her life was passed in Belleville. She was well known and in the regard of many friends she held a high place. Mrs. Clapp possessed many fine traits of character and in her vocation of late years, as a practical nurse, she was a friend in many times of sickness and trouble. For a time she was a member of Bridge Street United Church and for some years when in the city was a member of the Sunday School work. The City Mission Band, Belleville, also received her active support some years ago.

Surviving her are one son, Mr. Victor Clapp, Belleville; one brother, Mr. Henry Sisser, Baldwin Park, California and one sister, Mrs. Theresa Blagden, Picton.

The funeral took place this Monday afternoon from the late Thomas Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street. The service in the chapel was conducted by the Rev. C. H. James Semple and the Rev. W. D. Harrison.

Interment was made in Belleville Cemetery.

LATE ALBERT FREDERICK SHARLAND

The funeral of Albert Frederick Sharland, residence 24 Alma Street, took place Saturday afternoon, May 31st, from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street to Christ Church where the Burial Service was held. The committal was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. G. O. Wright, who also said the committal prayers at the graveside in Belleville cemetery.

Many friends were present at the church.

The late Mr. Sharland was a member of Moira Lodge, No. 11, A. F. & A. M. and the last rites of the Order was conducted at the graveside by Wor. Master Charles Brown, Wor. Bro. John Hall, Wor. Bro. John Noakes and Bro. Rev. G. C. Wright.

LATE SALEM A. HOARD (Campbellford)

On Wednesday morning last Salem Augustus Hoard, well known life resident of Shelburne, was suddenly called by death at his home, Alma street. He had been in good health, and his death came as a complete shock to his many friends.

He was born 64 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Manassah Hoard. At the age of 9 years a railway man, and was until five years ago a familiar figure in the section. He was stationed at Hoards, Godolphin and Campbellford. Forty-nine years ago he married his surviving widow, who was formerly Miss Nellie Anderson. They were married on Anderson's Island, near Brighton.

The deceased was a member of St. John's United Church, and was known and respected by all as a man of highest integrity and most admirable personal qualities.

Surviving besides Mrs. Hoard are two sons, Percy, who is following his father's footsteps in railroading, of Campbellford, and Claude, of Hastings, and one daughter, Mrs. George Hubble, of Rochester, N.Y. two sisters, Sam Hatch, Stirling, and Mrs. Walter Roberts, Toronto, and two brothers, Jesse and Walter, of Manitoba.

The funeral service was conducted at the family residence, Alma Street, at 3 o'clock, D.S.T., on Friday afternoon, when Rev. T. C. S. Reddick and Rev. J. E. Glover, of Bethel, conducted the service in the presence of a large circle of friends.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Harry Smith, of Belleville; Harry Keller, Stirling; Major J. M. Bygott, Thos. McCook, Ernest McKeel and Chas. Godden. The flower bearers were Messrs. Ray and Stuart Hoard, Ed. Rutherford and Gerald Hoard.

Interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Chancellor Brown Of Victoria College Preaches at Baccalaureate Service Of Albert College

Choosing a phrase from the 8th chapter and 15th verse of the Book of Zechariah, "Ye prezeners of hope", for the text of his sermon, Chancellor Walter Brown, of Victoria College, Toronto, delivered an inspiring address to the graduating students of Albert College when speaking at the Baccalaureate service held in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening. He urged that first, "Hope be placed in God", because God is the health of the countenance, and secondly to have "Faith in mankind".

Claiming that attitude's or motives in life cannot be explained without the admission of there being a Divine Invisible, Chancellor Brown stated that belief in the invisible had been handed down from a doctrine taught in ancient Palestine that God was invisible and that would permit no Idols to be worshipped. "This is the very heritage attained from the Jewish people", claimed the speaker.

"Palestine has often been called the Religion of the World because its people have many times been engaged in a war not of its own choosing or its own making. The attitude of the people of Palestine, ever since, has remained one over-run the country, was that these foes were not invincible. The people still kept faith in their invisible God".

Freedom in Great Causes

Mr. Brown, speaking directly to the graduates, stated that they had reached the age in which youth excels in freedom, but right and to follow your own desires and will wish to shape your own future, but remember the paradox of life—that only person who is free is the person who is bound in a great cause. To boast of freedom is to confess that life is nothing.

Referring to the present international situation Chancellor Brown warned that in the day of complacency is gone. We will be asked, "Why should we aim to be free?" but, warned the speaker, "The freedom of the spirit alone will be defeated by the dictator; if it cannot be shown the freedom of democracy is greater than that of Totalitarianism.

Hope and Fear Dominating Influences

Hope and fear are the two great dominating influences of mankind according to Chancellor Brown. "Fear," he said, "contracts, and inhibits the energy of man, while hope inspires and expands, despite the harshness of life." It is present in every constructive effort of man. Many pessimists, due to world conditions which are now at a chaotic stage can see no hope for the future generations, but there will always triumphed over might, assured the speaker, who whatever the difficulties which lay ahead said, "I pray you to still be "Prisoners of Hope." It is faith and confidence in the Eternal God that strengthening students to go out into the world and play their part as men and women.

In a few closing remarks Chancellor Brown urged his listeners to have faith in mankind, describing the last 300 years the United Church has

The service was in charge of Dr. J. Semple, minister of United Church, who extended a cordial welcome to the faculty, Board of Governors and students, and who introduced Chancellor Brown. Dr. Semple also offered special intercessional prayers for "Their Majesties, the Country and the Empire". Principal Forrest, Dean Howard, Principal of Albert College, took active part, in the service and read the Scripture reading. Special music for the service was rendered by the church choir, led by Miss Leona Biggs, and by Mr. Alec Gordon organist.

FIREMEN RAISE $77.31 FOR FUND

Splendid Amateur Program Given by Local Artists at McCarthy Theatre

While materially assisting the British War Relief Fund, the capacity audience enhanced the pleasure of the entertainment at the Monday night performance in response to community singing at the McCarthy Theatre last night. In his customary and inimitable manner, Jimmy Ruggles acted as master of ceremonies and interspersed the fine program of vocal and instrumental talent with the singing of popular numbers by the audience, which added much zest to the night's entertainment. The Trio Belleville Firemen provided splendid musical accompaniment to the fine programme.

The program was under the auspices of the Belleville Firemen's Patriotic local firemen assisting in the supervision of the theatre, which was donated gratis for the use for most worthy cause. At regular intervals each Monday evening programs have been presented at the McCarthy Theatre with all proceeds going towards the supplement of the British War Relief Fund. Last night the goodly sum of $77.31 was realized. Ushers for the evening taken by the members of the Belleville Fire Department.

The program was as follows: Bruce Wood, vocal; Bob Stebbins, euphonium solo; Earl Wannamaker, Joy Mumby, tap dance; George Gullivan, accordion; Miss Ruth Percival; Barbara Hanna, vocal; Thorne and Wood, vocal duet; Johnny Johnny Lloyd, banjo solo; Lloyd Blakey, vocal; Miss Betty Cronk, accordion; Ross Sweet, Western songs; Barbara and Mary Ann Donovan, tap dance; James Cornell, piano selections, and George Gullivan, accordion; Miss Ruth Percival.

One of the highlights of the program was a vocal solo by six-year-old Verna Reynolds, accompanied by Mr. Vince Freeman, manager of the McCarthy Theatre. Little Verna was "Playmates" as a request number.

Local Canvassers Start Work Early

Eighteen canvassers for the City of Belleville started out with the opening of the Victory Bond Loan campaign at nine o'clock today. The workers were addressed briefly by Charles A. Dolan prior to their leaving for their districts and they went immediately into action.

Mr. Percy McGuire established an early record when in the first twenty minutes he sold two bonds of one thousand dollar denomination, one of $150 and two of fifty dollars.

Synonymous with the start of the local campaign in many other parts of the county "took off" with appropriate forms to inaugurate the campaign.

Today in the main centres of the county campaign opening ceremonies will take place when the newly organized machinery will be broken out. In Madoc, the Rev. W. J. Walker, minister of the Madoc United Presbyterian Church will give an address at the ceremony. Publication of the Madoc address similar gatherings.

Mr. William Stevens will address the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon in the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday. On Wednesday Mr. Morrison will address a gathering in Bancroft while on Friday the canvassers will intersperse the program.

The R.C.A.F. Band will journey to Madoc, with Al Plunkett, well known Belleville singer, who is now an aircraftman at the Trenton airport. Jack Deacon will also sing at this meeting.

POLICE BLOTTER

Trying out a pedlock that secures the gasoline pumps at a service station, Clifford Ellis, 19, was caught at the intersection of Coleman and West Moira Sts., Tuesday night of gallons of gasoline from Mr. Elliott's tanks early Sunday morning.

The robbery was discovered by Mr. Elliott when he attempted to open his place of business early Sunday. The locks were quite distinguishable and found nearby was an empty can of the same type shot box, which Mr. Elliott assured police was not on the premises when he closed late Saturday night.

Gas Pumps Tampered With

Frank Domenico, proprietor of the Belleville Fruit Company, Albion St., told police that his private gasoline pumps had been tampered with over the week-end also. Mr. Domenico was unable to state just how much gasoline had been taken, however. As in the previous incident the lock was broken off the Fruit Company private gas pumps also.

David Birrell, 182 Charles St., complained to police that some person had stolen his radio aerial cap off his parked car. "The cap was quite firmly and it would take a necessitated a pipe wrench to loosen it," revealed Mr. Birrell.

Police were asked to investigate the reported shooting of birds in the neighbourhood of Pinto and Bleecker Ave. Mischievous boys with air guns are reported to be shooting birds in that sector.

Bicycle Accidents

Belleville police apprehended a 14-year-old lad who had escaped from the Bowmanville Boys' Training School over the week-end. The lad, who was committed to the institution from a local juvenile court, was returned to Bowmanville by Inspector T. D. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society today.

Four infractions of the limited 100 freely of intoxicants over the week-end, were arrested.

POLICE COURT

Charles Stapley, Belleville, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler on Monday's local police court charged that he did unlawfully assault a young girl. Stapley was not asked to plead, his case being remanded for one week, owing to the absence from the city of Crown Attorney J. C. Thompson, who is also being preferred under the Canada Criminal Code.

Stapley was arrested on Yeomans street early Saturday evening after complaint had been received that a man had approached a young girl inside of Pinto Street Agricultural Park. No statements were given out by police following the girl's arrest and he is being held in custody pending the court's enlargement of the case.

Refused to Secure Another

Carl Woods, Belleville, appeared charged with the failure to produce his National Registration card and entered a plea of guilty. Further remanded for one week in order to secure another.

"This young lad says he lost his card about three months ago, but has definitely refused to procure another", Chief Ponton told the court.

As Belleville police continue to apprehend motorists who violate city traffic bylaws, three such decisions were handed out in court. A speedster contributed five dollars, James Hall was assessed $5.00 and costs for careless driving and Root, Belford contributed one dollar and costs for driving a motor vehicle with only one headlight displayed after sundown.

"Let this be a warning to all motorists. We cannot tolerate vehicles being driven along the streets and highways with only one headlight, it is a menace to the travelling public and a dangerous practice," warned His Worship.

Pleaded Guilty

Five inebriates appeared and all pleaded guilty, two paying the conventional L.C.A. fines. A third, who was a man 74 years of age and who stated he had never been in trouble before was given three days to date from the time of his arrest last Friday. He walked from the court a free man. Two others went to jail in default of the payment of the fine.

"Grit" Up the Tools"

"That rugged British Lion, Winston Churchill, calls from his world battled lair "Give us the tools," Col. Reynolds said. "It is a cry which we must heed, we must and it because on that depends the safety of this Canada we love, EKE the salvation of our self-respect.

"Canada to be worthy of her nationhood must be proud enough to fight with everything she has; with the last ounce of her strength. Believe me, everything we have, will be required to crush the Prussian barbarian is crushed and world-freedom restored.

Tanks, the weapon invented by the British, the speaker declared, were important and must not only be used as a major factor in the battle for freedom but from the time ago the first Canadian tank to be manufactured was turned off the assembly line in Montreal."

Must Have Preponderance

Canada, said Col. Chas. Reynolds told the gathering, that this year Loan Committee has requested Mr. James Thomson to act as head salesman for Marmora Village and Township and the latter has consented.

"Our enemy has the initiative; they while more men trained and ready for overseas service have always been a preponderance of munitions they would be obtained in the shortest possible way" he continued. "Our organization through national service, every man and woman's contribution through national service, every man and woman's attendance.

"But for men and tools", he continued, "money is essential. Not readily-give pennies and give twice. What does it matter if we have the tools, the war is won, if we is achieved. We still have our natural resources from the vast wealth of any country, and what is more important, we still have our liberty".

Fight With Wheat, Bacon, Machines

"Give us the tools, and within months, he said, has thought the war, it will be over. It is necessary one to be fought with wheat, bacon and machines. Wheat is the fuel of meaning men, guns, tanks, ships and aeroplanes. Machines are the hard-gathering are eloquently expressed by Col. Rev. Dr. James Semple.

On the flag-bedecked speakers' platform in front of the east end of the grandstand were the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Alma College; Mayor Harry Cory and Mrs. Cory of Toronto; Mayor G. B. Thompson, Belleville; George H. Stokes, M. P., Hastings South; Col. Roscoe Vanderwater; Joe Shortt, secretary of the general campaign committee; Dr. J. W. and Mrs. Kinnear; Major the Rev. A. Beaucamp Payne; the Rev. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, chairman and publicity for the County of Hastings, and the district organizers, Messrs. Clark Kimmerly, Donald R. Lee and E. Dunlop Goulding.

Judge C. A. Cameron

Judge Charles Cameron, chairman of the general committee for Hastings County and chairman of the rally officially lendered the appreciation of the city and district to the officers and men of the R.C.A.F., the 4th Anti-Tank Battery of Belleville, the other forces units the Belleville Collegiate Cadet Corps and the Veterans, for their part in making the day the success it proved to be.

"Our hearts swelled," he said, "as the troops marched past for they, many of them are our own kith and kin, who gave up their civilian tasks of life at the call of King and Country. God bless them all."

Judge Cameron paid special tribute to the officers and men of the 4th Anti-Tank Battery, who came from Belleville and made such a splendid demonstration.

Hastings Greets Its Lost Ego

Turning to the Victory Loan, the chairman stressed the point that of the two billions now being sought by the nation, Hastings County was requested to raise its quota. "In order to deal with justifiable pride, the fact that this county raised nearly three millions in 1918-19 at the end of the last war, and is now facing a national emergency then, as we are now," he said.

"Now," he said, "we must provide the tools, munitions, supplies, food, tanks, planes, etc. in ever-increasing numbers."

"We should take pride in the fact," he said, "that in the past we have runs the blood of those heroes of the United Empire Loyalists, who came to Canada because they wanted to live beneath the British flag and enjoy its liberties and freedom. I wonder sometimes if we were worthy of that heritage. For my answer today when I saw the fine men of the army, navy and air force on parade. They, like the U.E.L.'s, are men of valor, courage and determination."

"But," he continued, "I wonder if we as civilians have the same courage and willingness for sacrifice."

"I want to say in all sincerity that we cannot win this war with a half-hearted effort. It can be won only by all out determination on the part of everyone."

"Let us provide the tools. Let us give them what they need unstintingly." A great many new words had been coined since the war, he said, words such as Quislings, Fifth Columnists, Gestapo and others. "But Britain's secret weapon is her unconquerable spirit, one that will conquer. That must be our spirit too," he concluded.

"I Was Young Then"

By GENEVIEVE FOURNIA

The Fine Art Of Hospitality

Hospitality has always seemed to me to be an expression of our interest in our fellow men, and it has many forms.

When I was young, I knew a woman of whom it was said, that no one loved to have her front door swinging wider than she. Her table, home tea, wagon was the most used article of furniture. Visiting celebrities, as well as friends, all returning to their native town for a few days, house guests of her acquaintances, were all reason for this woman to extend hospitality. Her parlor was famous, her Sunday night supper a tradition in the town. Her home was elaborate, nor beautifully furnished. There was never money enough left over from her entertaining for things like that. But she herself had the personality, the desire to serve, was unique and delicious; and the people with whom she associated liked it most interesting. She was, in fact, another Dick Swiveller, on a smaller scale.

Another woman in the same town didn't care about her front door swinging, but loved to have friends knock. Anyone could, at any time, at door, or click her back garden gate. She made them just as welcome. You were no sooner seated in a comfortable rocker by a sunny window in her bright kitchen than you found yourself with a cup of superb coffee and a piece of delicious cake, or some other of her specialties; in your hand. After the talk was easy and delightful. For this woman also had personality. Her garden was large and sunny with fine old trees at one end, and flower beds filled with bloom. She loved to put you in a comfortable lawn chair with pillows behind you, and a footstool at your feet, and let you relax, with drinks and the beauty of the garden with a long cool drink on a table at your elbow. She had as many visitors as the first woman, but they came, not in crowds, but singly, or in small groups. The Christmas presents she received were often marvellous fruit cakes, home made candies, or delicacies of the season shared with a dozen friends.

I knew a lonely woman who was the centre of neighborhood hospitality.

Everyone called her "Aunt Martha", and all itinerant salesmen, peddlers, book-sellers, beggars, anyone seeking a meal or a night's lodging, were sent to her. She welcomed them all, and when down on a farm table that groaned with good things, and charged them nothing if they had little, and little if they had a great deal. She never let her know or was far away from her preserving kettles or her oven, but she was always glad to see the way of life.

Hospitality is, perhaps, something we never fully appreciate until we experience the lack of it. I heard a prominent furniture dealer deplore the lack of it in a certain district of prosperous farmers. One bitter January day, when the mercury dipp with snow, he had furniture to deliver to three homes in this neighborhood. He started with a team and sleigh at the first appointment. The trip was ten miles, but because of the drifts, it was between twelve and half-past when he stopped at the three homes. In each, the smell of delicious food, aggravated his already keen appetite. But in each he was told that the hospitality of that neighborhood sadly shaken. He "Aunt Martha" resided there.

It seems to me the people of the "next" have a pleasant hospitable custom that it would be safe to imitate. When they hear a knock at the door, they put the kettle on the front of the stove, before they answer the knock. Then they can soon be ready with a "fragrant cup" for you, or a chance at all to extend hospitality.

Britain's Royal Air Force also has a navy—a navy of its own. It is made up of speedy motor boats, each 63 feet long and able to make 28 knots, manned by "sailors" who actually are in the air force. Their main job is to rescue pilots who have been forced to abandon their aircraft at sea, and many an airman—friend or foe—tossing in a rubber raft owes his life to this rescue navy. These pictures show the work in progress. TOP LEFT —One of the fast launches roars up to the water on a rescue mission; at RIGHT, the life raft from a crippled plane can be seen approaching the boat. LOWER LEFT—Another raft and launch hauling one of the stranded fliers aboard; while at RIGHT, rescued but exhausted pilots are revived on the launch's deck.

HELPING CANADA AND THE EMPIRE

In every part of Canada the call is heard to support the Victory Loan and so demonstrate overwhelmingly the people's cooperation with the Government's effort to carry on and win the war which the British Empire with her Allies is waging for the freedom and security of humanity.

No home wants to be overlooked in this great financial drive of the home front in Canada. No home is so poor or so small that it does not want to co-operate to the fullest. Cottage and mansion will strive to place at the service of our country the utmost they can.

It is a duty to buy Victory bonds. It is also a privilege to buy them. Thousands upon thousands have been waiting for this day when the campaign starts for they know that the sinews of war are in a large measure money and financial resources.

Canada is a nation with means, a land of vast resources which herald vast developments to come when the Hitler legions have been destroyed. Canada is a land of homes and bank accounts of substantial savings. These savings will help to win the war and at the same time they will be earning interest and creating more and more security.

People save money in order to guarantee the future of themselves and their families. Investment in Victory Loan is that security. The ultimate investment in a material sense and in a national sense is of course one's own country's security. All we have of peace of mind and aspiration of soul and of the sense of world co-operation in making humanity better rests on the stability of our country. Hitler, the enemy of democracy, has started out with the purpose of enslaving the races of the world and looting the resources of the peoples. Canadian money will provide the guns, planes and warships that will help Britain to maintain security and to destroy the Nazi dragon.

These bonds now offered are the financial armament necessary for Canada in time of war. Soldiers must have weapons and the economic wealth of the country behind them to wage war successfully. So the people must put on their financial armor, they must loan money to their country by buying bonds. They must gird the Government with ample financial support.

To have lived under democracy in Canada has been a joy to Canadians. They know security. They fortunately have not had the trials of facing raiders such as the heroic and gallant people of Britain have had to face, steadfast against every threat of the enemy who smashes at historic culture and civilization in the false hope of crushing British morale. In Canada the land is free from the enemy, the air is free and the waters are free, while overseas the British, carrying without a murmur or desire for praise on their noble broad shoulders the burdens of the human race of today and ages yet unborn, are bleeding a load for Canada. They are the reason why no Hun has yet crossed the Atlantic to ravish and ravage.

Today Canadians' money has an importance that it has not had in other days. Today it serves the individual of course but it can be made to serve the Empire and British civilization and to make it endure. How fortunate are Canadians that in this hour they have the means not only to increase their security but to guarantee security for their Empire and Dominion and for the unfortunate peoples of Europe whose acres and bodies the brutality of the Hun rides or flies, and to help lift the Hitler curse from off them and restore their fair lands from which the pollution of Hitlerism will be washed away.

The money that will buy $600,000,000 and over of Victory Bonds will buy materials, keep war factories going and will equip and expand the navy and air force against the vandal and the Hun. It will strengthen the hands of our warriors, exalt their spirit. It will satisfy the natural desire of every loyal Canadian to do the supremely essential and big thing as far as he or she can by supporting the Victory Loan.

The people will subscribe in fullest measure. Forthey like the democratic way and will gladly come forward with their treasure to loan it and to make it serve a material and spiritual service in the cause of the Empire and humanity.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY Observer

Perhaps never before in the history of this city has such wholehearted support of any function been given as that yesterday to the Victory Loan Rally held in the Fair Grounds.

Perhaps it was the lovely summer weather which cleared up magically after a sullen-sked morning. Perhaps the weather-gods are subscribing to the Victory Loan. Quien 'Sabe? Anyway it turned out to be a glorious day and everyone enjoyed themselves.

Bands, the rollicking tempo of martial music, the tramp of marching feet and the swing of the pipes, have a wondrous effect on John Public. Give him a parade and he will turn out to see his mother-in-law buried. But underneath the inordinate curiosity of John Public yesterday was a deeper feeling. The parade and rally had a purpose. And the public knew it. It could, as well as not, as soon as it had its curiosity regarding the tactical manoeuvres of the 4th Anti-Tank Battery and the marching of the other units completed, been satisfied, left for home.

There were no restrictions; no Gestapo to order them to remain and give a hated salute. They were there of their own free will and they remained until the echoes of the National Anthem had died away beneath the brilliant rays of a typical June sun.

The rally, which inaugurated the Victory Loan Campaign here was a decided success. But it involved a lot of work, and the various chairmen and committees in charge of operations are to be commended. The members of the Belleville Kinsmen Club did yeoman service in looking after the parking problems, and believe us, brother, that chore was no picnic yesterday. There were the city police, and traffic officers. The laddies in khaki and blue did a swell job, and are also to be commended on their services. They directed traffic in a manner that was a distinct credit to them and the job done yesterday was a feather in their cap. And while on that subject, R.C.M.P. Constable Gillis shouldn't be omitted from any credit lines. Nor should Inspector Frank Ferrier and his provincial police ladies; Sergeant Hunter and his motor-bike buckaroos and the rest of the lads of the law.

Perhaps the boy who had the reddest face during the march and the rally, was that member of the R.C.A.F. band who was marching in the rear rank and inadvertently dropped his music enroute. The marches, waltzes and overtures spread themselves liberally over the pavement and the lad grabbed frantically for music sheets before the next flight caught up. At that he snatched the first few bars of "Sword and Lance" from beneath the toes of a squadron-leader, as that officer turned slightly aside to save the boy further embarrassment.

The boys of the reserve force units made a creditable showing. One of the companies of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment arrived in trucks. But the civvy soldiers did themselves proud and showed signs of intense training. Especially good was the company from Wellington in command of Major William Davern. Trenton and Madoc companies likewise showed up well as did the allbrass band of the Norah Augusta. Nor should the "Kollegiate Kids" be omitted. They marched like veterans, and if given decent uniforms would make as good a showing as the average civilian soldier. More power to yith, m'lads.

This is love, and nothing less,
Loss and hurt and ache,
Thinking nothing done in vain
If through
In another's happiness,
Sad in sorrow, too.

This is love, and nothing less,
Loss and hurt and ache,
Thinking nothing done in vain
For the loved one's sake.

This is love, so wrapt to be

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—Just odds and ends news observations:

The boys in the bureau of public information are getting a chuckle out of the prospect of a new Minister of National War Services . . . Hell be their fourth in about a year. . . They started under Labor Minister Mackenzie, then Munitions General . . . were moved to State Secretary Gladstone's jurisdiction . . . then to the new War Services branch set up under Hon. J. G. Gardiner . . . now Mr. Gardiner is to concentrate on his agriculture portfolio. . . .

Maybe not this time, but when Mr. McCarthy was asked to calculate rank in January, 1939, it was less than 40 months from the time Prime Minister Mackenzie King asked: "McCarty, how would you like to be rainmaster General?" until they returned from the swearing-in at Rideau Hall and the appointment was announced in the House.

Some Liberal members have been receiving anonymous summonses to "see the Prime Minister's Secretary immediately"....now they look for a practical joker in the Commons.

Princess Juliana of The Netherlands is something of a window shopper, by her own admission. Her "yes", she says, "I like to shop"... "and in the shops of Ottawa you find I don't spend much money."

Mayor Stanley Lewis was born Feb. 30, 1892—he's had only 12 birthdays, one each leap year. . . . He was born in Leap Year himself when he reached the minimum age of 21. . . .

Most Military

Many a night has been burn in Defence Minister Ralston's Centre Block office for hours after the House adjourned at 11 p.m.... It's a good bet he's closeted with Air Minister Power and Major-General Macdonald on some phase of the Air effort.

Commoners who went to Petawawa camp for the annual defence demonstration ran into W. H. Tom Moore, Liberal member for Cornwall. Bruce riding. He's a lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Artillery militia unit.

Men in four uniforms gathered in the House of Commons entrance to hear President Roosevelt's address. They were a Canadian Air Force and Army men on temporary guard duty, Royal Canadian Mounted Police commissionaire on duty, and the uniformed senate guard.

Unanimity in the army: Four men of the Lake Superior Regiment were on sentry duty on the Parliament Hill . . . Two pretty girls went by . . . one at a time and they let out a sport—all four sentries winked.

Mrs. Dan Sutherland, wife Fort William) had breakfast with the Superiors before they left Ottawa, headed eastward. . . . A telegram arrived from his constituency and he taught many of the women in Sunday school. . . . Said he: "I had to have the help of a lead with them before they left."

Among The Commoners.

Conservative House Leader Hanbury Manning Hanbury Manion (Con. Yukon) at a dinner as the only member of the Canadian Club belongs to Lowell Thomas' "Tall Stories Club". . . . Capt. Black told some members but they couldn't believe it.

Co-host with Mr. Hanson was Conservative Leader Hanbury Manningland's, one of parliament's eligible bachelors and likely candidate to contender for the "most handsome member" honors bestowed on Denton Massey . . . . Mr. Manion's fellowwood by Agnes Macphail when she was a member of the House.

A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) leaned one of his famous needlers at Minister Howe. . . . It wasn't returned immediately . . . so Mr. Neill asked for a formal question in the House: "When is he going to return my rifle" . . . . It was. Mr. Howe got a grin: "I'll try to clear Ryzell of this accusation of larceny and see the file is returned."

John Blackmore, New Democratic leader, disagrees on taxation of budget tax changes: "Now I'll ask any honorable member to say conscientiously whether that statement is true or false." . . . Hon. Leslie Frost (P.C., Toronto-Danforth), jovially: "Is this a quiz contest?"

Perhaps none too sure of his ability to step in just the right spot one of the senior block elevator men had a cartoon hanging in his car. . . . He showed a man prostrate in a newspaper, stepping into mid-air from an elevator a foot above floor level.

A little-known fact, from Trade Minister Euler's department: Canada annually between 600,000,000 and 700,000,000 bushels of wheat a year" . . . . that's far more than Canada's record.

Electors Journey To The Polls

Edmonton, June 2 (CP)—The battle for the Edmonton East seat in the provincial legislature entered the final stages at 8 a.m., M.S.T., 11 a.m., E.S.T., today when voters of the constituency began casting their ballots in the election essentiative to fill the vacancy caused by the death of F. C. Casselman, Liberal editor, in the April general election.

Electors have a choice between three candidates who completed three weeks of intensive campaigning last week. The three are: Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, widow of the former member and Liberal standard-bearer; Orvis Kennedy, new Democracy-Social Credit candidate who was defeated by Mr. Casselman in the 1940 election, and A. A. MacLeod of Toronto, "People's Campaign" candidate.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Mr. Eden's Speech

If the English - speaking people lose this war, it will be because their leaders have failed to understand the revolutionary nature of the struggle. It will be because they failed to discern and direct the main currents of the times; it will be because their leaders insist on thinking that we live in 1918 instead of 1941, and that with minor modifications the world of 1918 can again be restored.

Mr. Eden's speech recognizes that revolutionary currents exist, but gives no evidence that he really understands them. Echoing the President's words, We do not accept the Nazi shape of things to come," he projected things to come that are distinguished chiefly by their shapelessness.

This is peculiarly disheartening at this moment of history, for Hitler's projected world is not merely but shapeless; it is a form of propitious power, filled with terror.

But it is the current against that anarchy and shapelessness that has falsely claimed to be freedom, that constitutes Hitler's greatest asset, for it keeps people from willing to accept almost any discipline and almost any form, if only it promises to end chaos.

Mr. Eden seems completely to have forgotten that the peoples of Europe—a continental union of governments — and especially the people of England, will not be prepared, not against Germany, but against Nazism. In doing so they went to war against the concept of domination imposed by force and terror. But they did not go to war for the preservation of that divided Europe, in which nations and powers of all sizes and shapes were forced against powers for the benefit of the "Big-powers."

That idea was dead in the minds of the people long before the war, and the failure of their leaders to realize it led directly to this war.

Hence, the avowed intention again to protect Europe against Germany, by the old concept of rival of the old doctrine of German's expansion—is utterly without resonance.

All Europe and all western civilization must find a system of mutual protection against Nazism. The current civil wars that occur in the heart of our world, from what ever source.

The question arises, however, that the shape of things to come is to include another attempt to secure guarantees of security by industrial strength and work capacity of the German people, or to attempt to keep her weak on all fronts because she is a formidable competitor, then no "moral" order can be claimed.

The problem of Europe is not so primitive as that. The problem is one of integrating it anew in such a manner that the strength and virtue of each nation is a strength and virtue of all, and in particular, so that Germany's formidable energies are put to the service of the whole of western civilization. And that is the issue to face. The attempt to cut off Germany at the pass will be the same effect that it did before —it will lead him to pull down the pillars of the temple.

The true issue, comprehended by the last man in the street in Europe, has never adequately faced by democratic governments, is between co-operation and domination, between federation and monopoly. It is the twentieth century's struggle for a new relationship of the European and American concepts of freedom and equality — these, together with order.

No half-way solution will work. It must be radical.

Mr. Eden's suggestion of "a peaceful betterment of nations with due liberty to each to develop its own balanced economic life and its characteristic culture" is too vague, and so is the concept of "transitionary period." Nations cannot each develop a balanced economic life on their own. Hitler knows that. The problem is the development of an integrated economic life, a more perfect and equal union, which will promote the general welfare and secure liberty and justice for all.

The attempt of the post - war states of Europe, each to develop a balanced economic life led to prosperity for some and misery for others, Balkanized Europe, and played directly into the hands of Hitler.

Similarly the attempt to call the Arab tribes to revolt on the side of Britain will fail. In the Arabian world Great Britain was pursuing a completely unwise policy. Her worst mistakes have been her consistent appeasement of Arab terrorists, particularly in respect to the Jewish homeland in Palestine. Britain should have supported the Jewish homeland and armed it, and made it clear to the Arabs that she intended what she said. Or she should never have given the Jewish people who are now conspiring with the Germans and Italians against her in Arabia and elsewhere as Arabs are terrorist minorities within themselves.

She has refused to arm the Jewish settlers although they would have raised an army of every Palestinian Jew to fight for Britain.

These Palestinian Jews are men who left professions, remade their own bodies, made the desert bloom, reclaimed deserts, paid and paid heavily for every scrap of land, and have not made strife their own hands to defend. The British attitude has been to play fast and loose with her anyhow and therefore it was necessary to placate the Arabs. Some of whom incidentally has lost anything from the Palestinian experiment. For it was the total abolition of the Jews that first awoke the conscience of the world against Hitler.

In Britain's situation today, it is difficult, perhaps impossible, to lay down anything like a blueprint for action. But certain principles ought to be kept clear. Unless they are, the whole revolution will be lost. And if it is lost, the war is lost.

BABYLON AND BAGHDAD

The Preacher in the Bible said: "Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child."

The ritual of war-torn Iraq is a child of six.

He ascended the throne of Iraq at the age of four after his father, King Ghazi, was killed in an automobile accident in 1939.

Iraq is the modern name of the region lying in the valleys of the Euphrates and Tigres rivers.

To the ancients it was known as Babylonia, Mesopotamia and Assyria.

It was the scene of the Garden of Eden, the Tower of Babel, the early life of Abraham, and Babylon, capital of the empire of Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar.

There Nebuchadnezzar built the famed Hanging Gardens of Babylon to gratify the whim of his Median wife Amytis.

Nothing but a few ruins now exist on the site of the once proud city of Babylon, which perished as the Hebrew prophets said it would.

The modern illie on the Euphrates stands only a short distance from ancient Babylon.

In 762 A. D. the Mohammedans built a new city on the Tigres, not far from the site of Babylon and called it Baghdad.

Baghdad became a centre of Arabic culture and learning and of Arabic art and science. Arabian Nights fame reached a population of 2,000,000.

Today, as the capital of the kingdom of Iraq, Baghdad has a population of about 250,000.

According to tradition, the Arabs of Baghdad used bricks and other materials from the ruins of Babylon to build Baghdad and in that sense Babylon is the ancestor of the ancient Assyrian city.

On the eastside, Hebrews the Euphrates was "the Great River."

One of the unrealized dreams of the first German Reich was a railroad from Berlin to Baghdad.

In Oriental trade a raw lambskin is called a Baghdad.

The narrow strip of territory between the Euphrates and its tributary the Tigris, in Mesopotamia, has witnessed the rise and fall of many civilizations in 6,000 years of recorded history—Babylonian, Assyrian, Chaldean, Persian, Greek, Roman, Arabic and Ottoman.

Supper And Concert Mark Re-opening Foxboro S. S. Rooms

Foxboro—A supper and concert to mark the re-opening of the S.S. Rooms, which have been closed for renovation, were held in the United Church on Wednesday, May 28. Supper was served at 6.30 when about one hundred and fifty were accommodated. After supper the minister of the church, Rev. E. M. Cook, B.Th., called the meeting to order and recounted what had been involved in making ready for this reopening occasion and thanked the many who had given so generously of their labour. All then joined in singing the doxology. In the program that followed Miss Marion Daniels gave two readings in her usual capable manner, her last number being "The Veteran's Song." Equally appreciated from local talent were two songs by Mr. Frank Tummon, "God Bless the King" and "A Little Gift of Roses." The local Y.P.U. gave a one act play, "The Pink Geranium" under the direction of the president, Miss Muriel Milligan.

The Rev. S. A. R. Delve, B.A., B. D. of Ivanhoe gave two numbers in pleasing and easy style with his concertina and was heartily encored each time. Mr. Palmer of Ivanhoe was enthusiastically received as he sang two numbers and accompanied himself with his guitar. The Misses Marlyn Eggleton and Arleen Tummon from Stirling, two junior girls, captivated everyone as they sang two numbers in a very modest and beautiful style. The address of the evening was given by Rev. A. Marshal Laverty, B.A., B.D., of Stirling and in earnest and forceful, yet clear reasoning, he set forth the issues with which we are confronted today in the struggle between Nazism and Democracy. "It is we or they." Mr. Clayton Tummon sang the timely but old song "The British Navy." Miss Margaret Atkinson, music instructress in the public school, sang Finlandia and to close the program an appropriate number "Thanks be to God." The treasurer, Mr. J. Daniels stated the proceeds of the evening amounted to $50. The stewards collected $106 and the W.A. contributed $100. The total cost is estimated at $300.

The W.M.S. held their monthly meeting on Thursday at Mrs. W. Christie's with an attendance of over fifty. The President, Mrs. Helliwell was in charge and after quiet music the call to worship was given by the leader and a lovely paper on "Meditation" was given by Miss Amelia Clarke. Mrs. J. Gowsell was in charge of the worship service and read the scripture and told the story. Quiet meditation was well given by Miss Mary Helliwell and a hymn was sung and after each verse short prayers were given by Mrs. Gowsell, Mrs. Hodgen and Rev. Cook respectively. A temperance reading was given by Mrs. W. C. Reynolds and Mrs. J. G. Sills then gave an interesting talk on W. M. S. work in Newfoundland and gave the life story of Oliver Jackson. "Let us be a friend to every one", a pleasing duet was given by the Misses Marjorie Tummon and Edythe Cook, and Mrs. Simmons, a returned missionary from China was introduced as the guest speaker and she gave a most interesting account of some of their work in China. After the singing of a hymn and the benediction a ten cent tea was served.

ALL CANADA is United in this Single Purpose

"Give us the tools and we will finish the job"

THERE IS NOT A HOME IN ALL CANADA, not a fireside or family gathering that does not quicken into rapt attention when the voice of Churchill, the articulate voice of the Empire, comes rumbling over the air waves.

To Canadians his great inspiring messages ring with pride, confidence and persuasion. Pride in what this country is doing and plans to do; confidence in the ultimate outcome of Freedom's struggle; appeal for the "tools".

Every savings account in the Dominion is a "kit of tools" for war service. Every bond you buy represents your personal share in a ship, a tank, a fighting plane to stave off the oppressor and put weapons in the hands of our fighting men.

All those valiant spirits who, day and night, are struggling to keep the skies clear, the sea lanes open, and our firesides free from peril, unite in this single-minded national trumpet call "Lend us thine aid".

HOW TO BUY—Give your order to the canvasser who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank, or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters. Bonds may be bought in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger. Canvasser, bank, trust company or your local Victory Loan Headquarters will be glad to give you every assistance in making out your order form.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Open Season for Falling in Love with "Dear Teacher"

This used to be the time of the year when certain young people discovered that vacation did not mean perfect bliss because they would no longer see "Dear Teacher" every day.

This year's graduating crop seems to be more interested in each other, and their hard thinking is devoted mainly to how little they can get by on if they take the matrimonial plunge.

The adoration of "Dear Teacher" is no laughing matter to the love-lorn pupil while it lasts. We all had it in our school; we broke out with romance just as we did with mumps or measles. The object of our unrequited love was a sad-looking gentleman in his late thirties who taught Latin.

We didn't know whether "Dear Teacher" was married or not. Some of us cooked up a beautiful romance of a domineering wife; others felt it must have been a sweetheart who died in early youth. Impartially we poured out our pity upon him. As you will remember, we have been warned on excellent authority that "pity is akin to love."

But the gentleman was not interested in us or our pity. He just taught us Latin and told us practically there was no use in trying to teach girls the magnificent of a language, but that did not deter us. We sat up nights and labored over Caesar's Commentaries.

Now this case is unusual — none of us was older than 15 had the effect of wasting so much hard for good marks. Otherwise, I believe our interest in Caesar and his battles would have been nil. The pinch of Latin we acquired through this misguided romance did him no good of us, and of course we all fell in love with someone more conveniently poraneous the minute we had a graduation.

In time "Gloomy Gus", as we later called him, seemed a bit pathetic, not to say humorous to us all. Boys and girls of 15 and 16 are given to looking about for a prop on which to hang their dawning affections and "Dear Teacher" is so conveniently at hand.

In a certain woman's college so many girls have been married to professors, assistant professors and instructors that the college has been popularly referred to as a "Brides' School."

Contagious, not often do boy pupils marry "Dear Teacher", and in the cases that have come under my observation the results have been disastrous. In many known of cases in which boys have had semi-romantic notions about "Dear Teacher" and honestly really knew what it was all about. Half in love with these ladies, sometimes as old as their mothers, this influence has been all to the good.

One brilliant district attorney, was interested to take up law by "Dear Teacher." He had had many consultations with this wise woman who knew that his interest in her was unconsciously calf love. He asked if he should take up medicine, and she said, "No, you've never got over shivering in your biology class. You'd be a wretched doctor, but you would be a good lawyer." His family were all for putting him to Annapolis, but they went in for law and became a successful district attorney.

I said and once, I suppose it's just as well or even better for youngsters to cut their romantic teeth in this fashion. It's a pretty chilly business when the real fall for a long distance romance with some movie star or actress. They write him or her letters, even drop into poverty. The postman seldom brings a reply, and when he does, it's written by a secretary. I suppose we've all got to begin learning how to fall in love, and it might as well be "Dear Teacher" as anyone else.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to give a dinner at a hotel for about twenty members of our immediate family to celebrate our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. I am turning to you for help. Will you please help me?

1. First, how should we invite our guests? Would a written note be all right?

2. Are corsages for the ladies and single flowers for the gentlemen necessary? What should they be presented and should they be sent to their homes or to the dining-room?

3. What advice am I to expect from the hotel management when I make the engagement for the occasion? I really don't know the first thing about such things, and I do want to do the right thing.

Reader

1. Since your guests are to be members of your immediate family, the most suitable and convenient way for you to invite them is by word of mouth or by telephone. If some of them live too far away for this, notes of invitation would be suitable.

2. It isn't necessary to have corsages for the women guests and boutonnieres for the men guests, but these give a delightful and regala touch to your party. The best thing to do is to have your florist take them to the hotel. Just before the dinner have them placed at the places they add fun to the festive appearance of the table-decorations.

To add another festive note to the table you might have cards which would have place cards. As symbolic of the twenty-fifth anniversary, you might be able to find some white cards with silver edging, and then write the name of the guests in silver ink. If you make a delightful display of the table decorations, you should go to the hotel dining-room before the party and place the place card and the favors and boutonnieres at the proper places.

3. I'm glad that you asked me this question, for if you do your party-planning and arrangements carefully and definitely beforehand, you will have a much more relaxed and happier time during your dinner. When you go to the hotel, ask for the person in charge of the dinner arrangements. Tell him the number of guests, discuss with him his menu-suggestions, the number of waiters you want for your table, and the centerpiece. they planned.

These attendants are so accustomed to making party arrangements that they will suggest or ask you about any other details that need discussing.

Introducing Speakers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am Program Chairman for the Parent-Teachers Association. We are having speakers at these meetings, and I never know how to introduce the speaker. I have never done this before, so I wonder if you could give me an idea how to go about it.

Should I ask the speaker before the meeting what his topic for the evening is? Or should I, as chairman, a teacher we all know. Should I introduce this teacher in the same way all do, or introduce the speaker in a later meeting? The speaker will be a stranger to everyone.

G.

When we introduce a speaker we usually say many good things we can say, unless we have a special gift for this sort of thing. We should make an effort to say what we do say in a gracious, welcoming manner. In fact, there is a very special pleasure . . . the pleasure of introducing a man who has attained great distinction in his field of work; a man whose name is familiar to all of us. I have the honor to introduce our fellow citizen, Mr. Anybody." Then tell more in detail about this speaker's achievements and his career. Before the meeting be sure that you know exactly how to pronounce his name. If you have heard serious mistakes in the pronunciation of a name, nothing much to the embarrassment of everyone present. Find out exactly the title of his speech, write it down so that you can refer to it when you make your announcement of the title.

When you present the first speaker of the series of lectures, you might say something like this: "It's always a pleasure to introduce such a group as these meetings, but it is a greater pleasure when the occasion is necessary, when one can just say, "Tonight we have with us a friend, a great and beloved friend of all of us. Mr. Waters".

Red Cross Display Attracts Admiring Attention from Citizens

Examples of the work that is being done by those associated with Red Cross and some of the special projects undertaken by the organization, form an interesting window display at Joy Nichols' Book Store, 48 Bridge Street East. The window devoted to articles of use shows the type of knitting needed for the army, navy, the air force, the women's territorial service and refugees. Specially interesting is the jacket of leather from discarded articles, such as gloves, purses, etc., for the men on mine sweepers. Old leather is greatly needed to carry on this vital work. Appropriate posters add to the effectiveness of the display.

A box of food typical of the ten thousand boxes which are shipped each week to the soldiers of war in Germany from Canada is included in the display. These packets are received and acknowledged by Do ors to whom they are sent, a postcard being included in the parcel for their use.

The interesting window gives some idea of the scope of the Red Cross work in addition in this district and should be an inspiration to those who are active workers to continue their activities and an incentive to others to have not already associated themselves with Red Cross.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in the nurses' Residence with Mrs. J. H. Forrester, president in the chair. Mrs. George Graham very graciously offered her home for the Auxiliary's annual meeting on June 4th. The entertainment committee was appointed to take charge of the tea.

The clause in the constitution regarding the day of meeting was changed to read "That the regular monthly meeting be held on the third Tuesday in month at three o'clock unless the day falls on a public holiday when the day of meeting may be changed at the previous meeting.

At the close of business, Miss Thompson served tea.

WESLEY W. A.

The Wesley W. A. held their May meeting at the parsonage on Thursday. Mrs. Moore, the president opened the meeting by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers". Then the Lord's prayer was repeated in unison. Mrs. George Bunn led the devotional period. Readings were given by Mrs. Gay and Mrs. C. Wilson.

The meeting was then discussed.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

ADOLF AND DUCE MEET AT BRENNER PASS FOR TALKS

Each Meeting Generally Signals the Beginning of Phase of Conflict

COMPLETE AGREEMENT

Berlin, June 2 (AP)—Hitler and Mussolini met at the Brenner Pass today and conferred for several hours on the political situation, it was announced here.

The announcement of the meeting said Foreign Ministers Ribbentrop and Ciano attended and that the deliberations ended in "complete agreement on points of view".

This marked the sixth time Hitler and Mussolini have met since the war began. Each has signalled the beginning of a stage in the course of the conflict.

Their most recent meeting, at an undisclosed place, took place last Jan. 20, when southern Europe was in turmoil over the impending drive of German attack on Yugoslavia and Greece.

They got together for the first of the great wartime parleys March 18, 1940 in Mussolini's private railroad car at Brenner Pass, just before the German drive on Scandinavia.

When they met again, exactly three months later, the fall of France had ended. Another Brenner Pass meeting ended Oct. 4, following quickly by the meeting Oct. 28 in Florence. That was the day Italian forces launched their offensive on Greece.

The first phase of most observers regarded today's meeting was that Hitler and Mussolini exchanged views on the course of the Mediterranean following conclusion of the Balkan campaign, with Crete next on the agenda.

No word of the conference was issued in advance and the only reports on the deliberations were the statements of the German News Agency, and a parallel Italian communique. D.N.B. announced:

"The Fuehrer and the Duce met today at Brenner Pass for a conversation of several hours after the political situation in the presence of German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Ciano.

"The conversation was carried out in a spirit of complete confidence and showed complete agreement of the views of the ruling heads of the two allied nations."

Participating in the five-hour conference were Field Marshall Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of the German High Command, and Gen. Vittorio Ambrosio, Chief of the Italian general staff.

Thus, the new military situation could have been discussed with expert opinion close at hand.

Rome, June 2.—(AP)—Pascist spokesmen said today that the meeting any move by the United States Government in the next year or so and the conversations between Hitler and Mussolini at the Brenner Pass today.

Observers said the Axis leaders probably were concerned with the prospect of further action by the United States, and with President Roosevelt's program to defend the Western Hemisphere with the navy, with French West Africa, the Azores and other Atlantic islands.

The Fascist spokesmen predicted that Italian troops would use Crete as a springboard for new attacks by air on the British island in the triangle formed by the island of Cyprus, the Egyptian port of Alexandria and the Palestinian port of Haifa.

In both they said greater questions must have brought the two war leaders together and that even the United States policy, such major islands that dot the sea in the Atlantic Ocean as the Azores and Atlantic Islands.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

SERVICE STATION ENTERED BY NIGHT

Groceries and tobacco valued at over $400 were stolen from a service station operated by Donald Freeman, on Highway No. 2, between Ameliasburg and Belleville early Thursday morning. The robbers broke a panel from out the door of the front entrance and stole cigarettes, tobacco, candy, canned goods and groceries valued at at least $400.00.

Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson investigated the case, and after it was discovered by Mr. Freeman as he was about to open his place of business early Thursday. Constable Patterson viewed the robbery and was quite satisfied the persons responsible had full knowledge of the inside layout of the premises. Tire tracks of a motor vehicle found outside provided evidence that the marauders had hauled their loot away by motor.

POLICE SUSPECT JUVENILES OF BREAKIN

Robbers broke and entered the Canadian Legion Memorial Chapel, plant Station Street, sometime early Saturday morning, after first ransacking the office left without stealing anything of value, city police were told.

The breakin was discovered by Armour Chaplin, secretary-manager of the company, early Sunday. Entrance was gained through the boiler room window. Once inside the robbers ransacked the office and broke a door leading into the office where they opened all office drawers and scattered their contents on the floor. No attempt was made to open the combination safe and the Belleville police to be of the opinion that the breakin was the work of juveniles seeking petty cash.

The breakin was reported to police by Mr. Hunter, general manager of the local branch of the Swift Canadian Company.

BUILDING PERMITS DECLINE IN MAY

Building activity in Belleville during the month of May fell off considerably from that of the previous month which saw all records in the numbers of permits issued in this city surpassed. Only eight permits with a total building value of $10,200 were issued in the city hall during the past four weeks. Of this total amount $5,000 is for the construction of a new residence, with seven for alterations to present residences and apartments.

The one permit issued for dwelling was to Mr. E. Dodd for a residence on Foster Avenue, while the one other new construction was a permit for $2,000 for a new dry cleaning plant on Coleman Street for Messrs. Bonners.

FINDS TWO YOUTHS ASLEEP IN CAR

Toronto, June 2 (CP).—Near the zoo in High Park early today, Sergeant Charles Brown found a stolen car in which two men were sleeping. They appeared to Mr. Brown to be in varied assortment of allegedly stolen articles in the automobile. These were a rifle, cigarets and tobacco, golf clubs and clubs, jewelry, watches and silverware.

The pair, Roy L. Weaver, 20, of Guelph, and Ross Hall, 20, also of Guelph, were booked on charges of theft of the car. The car was stolen Friday. In the interval it had been driven 800 miles.

HEAVY TRAFFIC SEEN IN DISTRICT

Motorcycle Patrol Officers policing the Belleville district this week-end reported a heavy influx of motor traffic into the district as a result of the Memorial Day holiday on Monday. Police officials stated there was not a single serious accident throughout the entire holiday period.

The number of American tourists travelling our highways was surprisingly high for this time of year. Along Highway No. 7 and north as far as Lindsay there was a steady flow of motor cars bearing United States license plates, while thousands of Canadians took to the open highway to enjoy the three week end sunshine weather," stated Sergeant Sid Hunter, in charge of the district motorcycle patrol, to-day.

Not a single serious motor crash occurred in Belleville even on Sunday, when thousands of motor cars were seen locally in connection with the sports day opening of the Victory Loan Campaign.

$200,000 in Bonds Is Purchased By Deloro Smelters

The Hastings County Victory Loan Campaign received a delightful start today when Judge Chas. A. Cameron, General Chairman announced that the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company of Deloro had purchased $200,000 Bonds to the amount of $200,000. The cheque for the amount was handed to officials this afternoon.

The Deloro Smelting and Refining Company will prove a splendid impetus to the success of the Victory Loan Campaign, said in expressing his appreciation.

June Full Moon Will See Heavy Night Raids

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, June 2.—(AP)—The June new moon is already showing its sharp sickle in the sky for those bodings of a new rain of terror from the skies.

The last fury of sustained Nazi night bombing came in the early days of the May moon. After it waned in mid-skies there was a definite lull in German air attack.

The new moon, now in its first quarter, will be full on Monday, about June 9. Given clear skies, there will be ushered in a spectacular night from dark to daylight. There will be no twilight zone that might see a renewal of the furious attacks by the Nazis to blot out fresh British night-fighter skill and the courage and dogged will to hit back at the enemy.

For a week or more on either side of the full moon, nowhere above British ports or industrial centres will be shed a moonlight or any little protection darkness affords from air bombing.

It was the grim dread of the June moon, Britons can hark back to the last the days of May, that highlighted a sustained and furious Nazi night-by-night attack and illuminated the fiercest and largest scale British bombing offensive ever launched over Germany. That heralded a definite step forward in British efforts.

Hard in defeat, it was.

There must be as much dread of the June moon now in the eyes of those blasted German cities as Hamburg, Bremen and Berlin, as there is in London, the Midlands and in Belfast, where the most furious and heavier British counter blows are to be expected in June than were in May.

Slowly but surely the gap in air power between Britain and Germany for is closing. President Roosevelt's purchase program, now speeded up, for United Sale aid for Britain could and would be forthcoming increasingly would mean that part was being reserve planes to meet or counter German attacks.

Some British observers have recently been heard to express fear of units from west to east to participate in the daily fighting leaves nothing to do with the lull in the air attack on Britain from mid-May on. Whether there is any real foundation for that conclusion was not indicated, although observers in British air scouting across the Channel probably would reveal the fact of such a movement if it was of any considerable size.

Can Learn of Transfers.

Air contacts with Nazi planes over British territory, as opposed to those raids or in connection with daylight German sweeps over England, also give the British authorities knowledge of any transfers or absence of particular types of planes in Nazi raiding or scouting groups could be significant.

Nor is it likely that Nazi air units shuttled between the Balkan theatre and the June moon cycle is propitious, there is every reason for the Germans to press the air attacks to the limit of Nazi resources. There are not so many full moons remaining in the year when there will be three closes in anne to afford protection of bad weather and darkness to Britain at home and at sea.

BRITISH BOMBERS DROP SUPPLIES TO TROOPS ON CRETE

Isolated Bodies Being Fed And Ships Removing Troops Protected From Air

AIRDROMES ATTACKED

Cairo, June 2 (AP)—British bombers have been dropping medical supplies and food to isolated bodies of troops left on Crete after the major withdrawal, the Royal Air Force announced today.

The communique gave no further details on the troops remaining on the Greek island, now abandoned to Axis conquest.

Other operations of the R.A.F. as well as the South African Air Force, were directed against shipping in the Mediterranean in protection of His Majesty's navy and merchantmen vessels" removing troops from Crete, the communique said.

"Enemy aircraft were repeatedly attacked when they were air attacked," he added.

On similar patrols Saturday, according to the R.A.F., nine Axis planes were shot down.

Saturday night heavy bombers of the R.A.F. again attacked airdromes at Maleme and Canea, two of the original points of the German invasion, and fuel dumps, several fires and destroying four grounded planes at Maleme, the communique said.

"In addition to these protective operations considerable attacks are taken place throughout the whole length of the Mediterranean," he said. "a number of our bombers have been employed in dropping food supplies and food to isolated bodies of our troops in Crete."

Other R.A.F. planes raided Aleppo Airdrome in Syria, destroying a Vichy-regime aircraft and heavily damaging several others.

The R.A.F. heavy bombing air fields in the French mandate since the armistice was signed unless them as way stations en route to Iraq to aid anti-British native forces. Damascus and Aleppo was air tacked yesterday.

Kingston to Honor Anniversary of Death Of Sir J. A. MacDonald

Ottawa, June 3 — (CP)—Four five-minute speeches broadcast over the National network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation from Kingston, Ont., will commemorate the 50th anniversary of the death of Sir John Macdonald, Canada's first Prime Minister. The ceremony will start at 3 p.m. E.D.S.T. Monday.

Dr. H. A. Stewart, Mayor of Kingston, the City Sir John represented in Parliament for many a greater part of his political career, will be master of ceremonies and the speakers will be Prime Minister King, Hon. Norman McLeod Rogers, House Leader Hanson, Justice Minister Lapointe and Senator Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Opposition in Senate.

Other men who are members of parliament sat in the House of Commons while Sir John was Prime Minister have been invited to seats on the platform.

Sir William Mulock who as a Liberal represented North York, Hon. Frederick Gisborne, Chief Under Secretary of State, that he was Postmaster General in the days of Montreal, a supporter of Sir John, and Senator Donald Kerr, who was written he will be unable to attend. The other two survivors of Sir John's cabinet are Hon. Charles Colborn, Conservatives, Judge Emerson Coatsworth who sat for Toronto East and Senator Rufus Pope Compton, Que., have not yet replied.

Three newspapermen who were in the parliamentary press gallery while Sir John was Prime Ministers are living. They are Hon. Senator P. D. Ross, publisher of the Ottawa Journal, and Robert M. Jaffray, long formerly Reuters representative in Canada and now retired, and Fred Cook, one-time correspondent of The London Times and several Canadian dailies but now retired.

The ceremonies are to be held behind the Macdonald monument in front of the city hall, looking the harbor of Kingston. Sir John died 50 years ago Friday but it was decided to hold the ceremony on Sunday to better meet the convenience of persons who wish to attend.

Another Macdonald now a member for Kingston, Hon. Angus L. Naval Minister, who will take part in the ceremonies.

Says Clothing Ration In Australia May Come Later on

Sydney, Australia, June 2 (CP).—Senator Phillip McBride, Minister of Supply and Munitions, declared today that a clothing ration similar to that just imposed in Britain "is possible later on" for Australia. Even now shoppers cannot buy wool blankets in many stores. About 90 per cent of the woollen goods production is going to the armed forces.

Victory Loan Flag Hoisted to Top Of City Hall Pole

Fluttering in the breeze as the strains of the National Anthem sounded and others sang, last attention on the Market Square, the Belleville Victory Loan campaign flag was raised to the top of the city flagstaff at the City Hall in solemn ceremony shortly after high noon on Monday.

The Belleville Collegiate cadet corps, headed by Lieut. Lester Shiels, the school band, military dignitaries, civic officials, Belleville Rotarians and citizens heard a stirring message from Rotarian J. B. Boyce urging every Canadian to realize the need of Canada's current loan campaign and to support it to the utmost.

The invocation service was conducted by Rev. Jas. Semple of Bridge St. Church, while Lieut.-Col. A. B. Gribble, of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank); Lieut.-Col. D. B. Chisholm, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, His Worship Mayor Ponton, Rotarians and members of the Rotary Club assisted in the ceremony.

Flag to be Reminder

The Victory Loan flag now flying before the City Hall, symbolic to Canadians of their heritage, is a large 10 by 20 foot flag with the Union Jack placed in the upper left-hand corner, a red field with a white field in the lower right-hand corner, the lighted torch being the symbol of liberty, and the words "Victory Loan campaign. As the flag was raised the R.C.A.F. Band played the National Anthem. Reports were received that the band played Onward Christian Soldiers, as the multitude joined in song, the singing of O Canada.

Symbolic of Determination

"This ceremony," Mr. Boyce said in his opening remarks, "and the Victory Flag is, I believe, symbolic of our determination to remain free. Of our determination to do our part to insure that the forces of liberty and freedom shall be made strong enough to prevail — strong enough to withstand the forces of destruction and tyranny that have overwhelmed and sought to crush human rights—to make them subservient to brutal force.

Free men and women will always fight if their rights are in jeopardy, Mr. Boyce declared and Down through the ages men have fought and died for the right to worship, no matter what creed or denomination, for the right to live in his own home without fear of molestation. Men have fought for their minds freely and for the right to meet as men and women of every group without having to obtain permission. We have inherited these rights.

These rights have been crushed out of peoples with ruthlessness and brutality. Britain has had the courage, faith and tenacity of the British peoples and the might of the British navy, the same conditions might prevail here.

Stopped in the Fighting Forces

"We can't conceive of such atrocities here in Canada," he continued. "What would be our feelings if we suddenly found our homes empty; if our loved ones disappeared; if our friends were driven away to concentration camps for no reason? These aren't figments of imagination. These things do prevent them happening here."

Appealing to the gathering to support the Victory Loan Campaign, Mr. Boyce stated "If we can't with our bodies, let us fight with our dollars—and fight it to the last. Let those of us unfit for military service provide funds to help with the planes, tanks, guns, shells and ships to sweep the mass murderers from the seas.

"You aren't asked to give your money yet. You are asked to lend it through the purchase of Victory Loan Bonds. Never since the security or the return in interest. This is no time for quibbling."

"Canada expects that every man will do his duty and humanity has faith that we will not fail."

Mobile Shower Bath Unit Welcomed By Homeless Bomb Victims

Toronto, Ontario, June 2.—Listeners last night to the B.B.C. broadcast heard the leader of an interesting variation on wartime "acts of mercy".

Description of the operation of a mobile shower bath unit in the bombed area in Plymouth, which constituted the comment.

This is the first London emergency bath unit giving free hot showers to men, women and children has been welcomed by victims of bomb victims that plans are being made to extend the service to additional scope utilizing some twenty-five units.

Armed Norwegian Merchant Ship Reaches Toronto

Toronto, June 3 (CP).—The Norwegian armed merchant ship the pafjell, a bullet scarred veteran of the battle of the Atlantic, arrived into the Toronto harbor today. Among those greeting her were a number of sailors who had survived war.

The ship is visiting Canadian ports where money raised from public subscriptions is donated to the Red Cross Bomb Victims Fund.

NONE OF EMBASSY HURT

Chungking, China, June 3 (AP)—Six bombs crashed into the compound of the British embassy today damaging buildings, when 27 Japanese planes attacked the capital for the second time in two days.

Three bombs made craters around the residence of the Counsellor of Embassy, Sir Arthur Blackburn, and considerable damage was done to the interior.

None of the Embassy Staff were hurt in the shelters.

Obituary

MRS. (REV.) CHARLES W. BISHOP

To many friends in Belleville the announcement of the death of Mrs. Bishop, wife of the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Bishop, former principal of Albert College, which occurred at Penetanguishene, on Saturday, May 31st., will bring sincere feelings of regret. Although not in good health for some time, her passing came suddenly.

The late Mrs. Bishop, prior to her marriage was Miss Margaret Frances Rodger. During her residence in Belleville, Mrs. Bishop made many friends and she was active in the work in connection with Bridge Street Church, United and in the activities of the Y.M.C.A. She was a woman of very fine character, quiet and friendly manner and pleasing personality and endeared and held many close friendships. It was about five years ago when she left Belleville with her husband, the Rev. Dr. Charles Bishop, to reside in Toronto, where Dr. Bishop is the minister of the United Church.

To Dr. Bishop and the members of his family much sympathy will be extended by their friends.

The funeral took place this Monday afternoon at Fergus and Bombay and the body is buried there, the body was conveyed to the funeral home at 1214 Queen Street, 30 St Clair Avenue West, Toronto, where service will be held on Tuesday afternoon, June 3rd., at 4 o'clock. Interment will be made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The Rev. Dr. Bert Howard and Dr. Archibald Jury, both of Albert College at the service in Toronto.

Surviving Mrs. Bishop, besides her husband, are one daughter, Miss Dorothy Bishop, Ottawa and two sons, Charles and Rodger.

More Women Try Suicide Than Men; Men More Successful

New York, June 2.—(AP)—Suicide isn't a man's game, seemingly, although women try it more often than men, males are successful three times as successful in killing themselves.

These conclusions were reached today by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in a survey which showed that more than 18,000 persons take their own lives in States take their own lives and 100,000 more try to.

The survey also showed that the younger the person attempting it, the more likely he is to hold the job.

For example, only one out of six men under 25 who attempt self-destruction succeeds, whereas at 50 and over the ratio is two out of three. Among women, the chances of success are one out of 23 at ages under 25 but are fifty-fifty at ages 50 and over.

Commencement Exercises Held At Tweed High School

Tweed (Special)—Tweed High School's Commencement Exercises, with presentation of medals, scholarships and diplomas, was held in the Community Hall on Friday night. The proceedings, which formerly had been to hold the Commencement in the High School, but owing to the facilities of an assembly hall with stage only a small number of parents and friends could attend. The splendid program given by the students of the Public and High School Board decided to make use of the new Hall for the occasion, using the Community Hall and the Assembly Room of the new Separate School in alternate years.

The hall was well filled when Mr. H. W. Wills, Chairman of the High School Board, called the meeting to order. He expressed appreciation of the fine attendance which indicated the interest of parents and citizens generally in the school. The Board was fortunate with the best in the province. The fine student body and capable staff were a credit to any community. Mr. Crosbie paid tribute to the Public School Inspector, Mr. Lloyd Schools for the excellence with which they conducted the High School are prepared. In closing, Mr. Wills thanked the retiring trustees this time of stress to give close attention to the affairs of the school. Special development in preparation for the uncertain years that lie ahead. Mr. Wills then called on Mr. Crosbie.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. J. E. Crosbie, B.A.Sc., whose name has been suggested as Chairman of the Ontario Board of Examiners for Land and Forests Department of Commercial and Industrial Affairs. Mr. McDougall who is Superintendent of Education, were secured by Mr. Crosbie, Chief Forester of Tweed District. In his fine address he urged the young graduates which he had taken himself, Mr. McDougall urged the development of Algonquin Park since the area was set aside as a park in the century through the efforts of Alexander Leslie Grant. The park was developed to preserve in their natural state the beauties of the province and as a playground for the people of Ontario and tourists from the United States, which valuable timber it cut each year within the park area (under government supervision).

Dr. W. J. F. Moffat B.A., principal of the High School, expressed the appreciation of the audience for the fine address.

Dr. W. A. Paul convener of the local Victory Loan Committee spoke briefly in connection with the campaign launched this week.

Valedictory Address Given by Earl Varty

The valedictory address was delivered by Earl Varty winner in 1940 of the Second Carter Scholarship. In his brief address Mr. Varty urged the graduates to choose a life objective in their school work, attain the standing of a leadership, and to bend every effort to attain their objective. The valedictorian was introduced by Mr. Thos. J. Calnan B.A., member of the staff of the University of Toronto. He will remain on the staff of Western Ucollat. Toronto, to which he has been attached.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Cordy and daughters Ruby and Ruth left last week for Valleyfield, Quebec, where Mr. Cordy was recently appointed manager of the new Nicholl Chemical Co. plant.

Mr. J. C. Thompson has recently completed his course at Shaw's Business College, Toronto. He is employed at Bill Delline's Tye Shop.

Greatest Tourist Invasion of War Treks Home After Fine Holiday

By the Canadian Press

American tourists streamed back to their homes in the thousands from Canada today as the last big normal week-end in Canada in the tourist season began with the beginning of the war.

From border points across the Dominion came reports of tourist traffic far in excess of last year, the beginning of vacation time with record-breaking proportions at some points.

Customs and immigration men at the Niagara Falls bridge saw 23,000 American automobiles were handled as they poured into Canada by 2 p.m. Thursday until 8 p.m. yesterday.

Forty per cent were said to be going to interior points, many of Toronto and Ottawa, and the bulging in Ontario lakes and streams. Others turned west to join the large American summer colonies on the shore of Lake Erie.

A conservative estimate placed the number of tourists entering at 50,000. When the traffic was at its peak ten lanes were in use on the Peace Bridge, each line of automobiles being about half a mile long.

Five Traffic Lines Used

For the first time in a year five traffic lanes were in use last night for some-bound tourists on the Ambassador Bridge at Windsor, where it is estimated 25,000 automobiles carrying 150,000 persons entered Canada. At the Detroit tunnel and the Walkerville ferry to Windsor virtually all the day's heaviest tourist week-end since the war started were handled and gas and sex merchants reported a record-breaking day. Most of the cars will spend money in Canada and a desire to assist in the Dominion's war effort.

Brockville reported a 30 per cent increase in the number of extra passengers entering by way of ferry. Overnight 42,000 tourist automobiles were registered with Canadian customs and immigration authorities.

Niagara Falls hotels and restaurants did a brisk business as Americans flocked to the city in large numbers.

Victoria, B.C. reported an all-time record in visiting U.S. cars for Memorial Day.

VICTORY LOAN WELL RECEIVED

Premier Hepburn First Purchaser for His Three Children

Ottawa, June 2 (CP).—Reports from major centres across Canada show a tremendous response from individuals to Canada's $100,000,000 Victory Loan, the loan publicity committee said in a statement today as more than 20,000 cheques swung into action.

"In Toronto, Premier Hepburn was the first purchaser, buying three $500 bonds for his children," said the statement.

"An Ottawa family, Frank H. Ellis, a veteran of the first Great War and his wife, with five sons in the active services, were purchasers of a bond—the first in the capital."

The nation, as whole, to reach its objective in the allotted time, will require to subscribe an average of $13,000,000 daily until the anticipated closing on June 21.

The statement said month-end payrolls were converted in substantial fashion into Victory loan bonds

"Early demands for copies of the official prospectus depleted supplies in banks, trust company offices and other official agencies," said the committee. "Emergency depots were busy this morning covering week-end orders.

"In one small office more than 60 sales were made shortly after the opening of business."

Music Program

Other numbers on the program were: piano solo, June Whalen, Group of French, Canadian Folk Songs, Grade IX girls, Parade of Wooden Soldiers Grade X, English Country Dance, Grade IX girls, Accordion solo, Susie Murphy, Boys' chorus (1) The King is Still in London, (2) There'll Always be an England, Jockey dance, Grade IX Girls, Piano solo, Hazel Luffman, Chorus, "For All Thy Care," Grade IX girls.

White Sox Needs Good Fielding To Stay on Top of The League; Dodgers Take Over from Cards

Jimmy Dykes Leads Bunch of Misfits Into Top Position of the Loop

INDIANS TRIMMED

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Mike Secretary, when you get finished figuring out how the top of both big leagues got scrambled during the week-end, please take a letter to Mr. James Joseph Dykes, care of Chicago White Sox, First Place, American Baseball League:

"Dear Jimmy: We see by the papers you're right up there at the head of the parade today. Nice going, Pal. But you better give those old lips of yours a shot in the arm and come back to work. That is, if you and that scrambled-egg pompadour, you'd better come off that retired list and try to put a cork in your jug.

"You split with the Senators yesterday, blowing the first 3-2 and taking the nightcap 4-3 in 11 innings. Hoped you'd see some special stuff by those fancy Dans in your infield, you might have won both ends to take a real tee hold on first place, instead of barely getting a grip on it with one-percent-point edge.

"Win 15 Out of 21 Games"

"Just look back over the recent goings-on. You've won 15 of 21, but if it wasn't with mirrors then how was it? Your boys made four errors in the first game yesterday and blew it—and the fumbles were directly responsible for the only three the day before and had to go all out to win. They made two more Wednesday and one slipped, and three the day before that and dropped another.

"It looks like anybody's 'bingo' in your league this year and you can do it as well as the next guy. So get those guns of yours to hold you and blow

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was drinking a 3rd cup of coffee at breakfast after wondering whether he ought to take a 2nd cut, ma said, when I went I was goin to be eater special careful today, I had the most awesome dream about you last night, and although I know dreams are only meaningless figgiments of the night in your opinion, it's the history of the world proves that peoples opinions have usually been wrong. So I want you to be super guard all day and just not take any chances, she said.

I'll start right now, I'll put an extee lump of sugar in this cup of coffee so as not to take any chances of it's not being sweet enough, pop said, and he took a extee big swaza a street I'll look both ways first and then go around the block, and I'll look to the right and into anybody elt's pocket because you never know when these people are going to stick mouse traps, and I wont borrow any money without having a bank teller examine it first, and I wont lend any under any circumstances. What the dooce did you dream about me for said, and ma said, It was gassy, I dreamed there was a mervellious wonderful picture at the Narcissa called Love and Onions with Rita Baiboa and Viola Latour and Pierre Dindree and Thelma Lawlerr and just practically everybody in it, and I begged and begged you to take me and finely you agreed, and just as we were leaving the house you got your coat caught in the front door in some unaccountable manner and it seemed as if the kingdom horses couldn't get it free again although huge mobs of people were trying to help, so I missed the picture after all. I woke up in a terrible state, she said.

Yes gods I'd call that a terrible dream about yourself, you're the one that ought to be careful for Pete sake, pop said, Well perhaps . . . dont think I'll pick out the material for my printed dress today, I may go wrong, she said.

Being the end of the subject.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSE — In sad and loving memory of our dear son and brother Roy Rose, who lost his life, June 2nd, 1933.
It's only a grave but it still needs care,
For the one we loved is lying there.
Some may forget Roy, now he is gone,
But we'll never forget him no matter how long.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Father and Sister. J2

Sir Patrick Duff Arrives at Ottawa

Ottawa, June 2.—(CP)—Sir Patrick Duff, recently-appointed Deputy British High Commissioner to Canada, Lady Duff, and Miss Sheila MacDonald, sister of Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner, arrived last night from England.

Sir Patrick, veteran civil servant of Britain, was appointed to the newly-created post of Deputy High Commissioner at the end of March. He was, for years, in the Ministry of Works, since 1932 and previously had long experience in the Board of Trade.

Miss MacDonald is the youngest sister of the New High Commissioner.

ETHIOPIANS HARASS ITALIANS

London, June 2 (CP)—Ethiopian patriots have cut the road between Debra Tabor and Gondar, one of the last Italian strongholds in Northern Ethiopia, and are harassing Italian forces around Chilga, about 30 miles, authoritative sources reported today.

In the lake country south of Addis Ababa, British troops were making progress northwest from Sodda.

A BIT OF CAN ADIAN LORE

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Very Rapid Heart Beat—Paroxysmal Tachycardia

When an individual is sitting quietly and his heart suddenly begins to beat very rapidly—twice as fast as normal—he is naturally going to become worried. Just as suddenly as the rapidity started up it stops, and the heart beats rapidly. It is called tachycardia—"tachy" meaning fast, and "cardia" the heart. When the rapid beat occurs suddenly, lasts for minutes or hours, and stops suddenly, it is called paroxysmal tachycardia.

Although paroxysmal tachycardia does not endanger life unless certain types of heart disease are present, nevertheless it causes the individual to fear that the pounding of the heart may cause it to become weakened or perhaps "wears out." During the attack, the heart rate may increase up to 200 or even more a minute.

While the cause of paroxysmal tachycardia is said to be unknown, the cause in some cases is believed to be nervousness, disappointment, worry or some other depressing emotion. I have one case in mind of a teacher who had worked and planned for two years to take a certain trip and at the last moment circumstances prevented his trip. From that time he began to have attacks of paroxysmal tachycardia which were controlled by the drug quinidine sulphate, now in general use for three attacks. Others state that three attacks occur when they have to do some special work or duty which is unfamiliar or distasteful to them.

The treatment of this common type of rapid heart beat is to assure the patient that there is no danger to life. This assurance is often all that is necessary to prevent further attacks. These attacks can sometimes be stopped by coughing on the nerves of the neck running along the "cord" which runs from back of ear to breast bone.

However, in some forms of tachycardia where there is also some disturbance of regularity (rhythm) of the heart beat, rest in bed is absolutely necessary, in addition to the quinidine sulphate.

The thought then is when the heart suddenly begins to beat rapidly, is not to become frightened, but to send for your physician. If it is the common type, he can prescribe the quinidine sulphate which can be carried in the pocket and used whenever an attack occurs.

Sir Hugh Walpole Buried Wednesday

Keswick, Cumberland, England, June 2 (CP)—Sir Hugh Walpole, 57, author of a novel a year since he was 35, died of a heart attack Sunday.

Services will be held Wednesday at Keswick, in the Cumberland Mountains. An obituary notice said there would be "no mourning, by his request".

Up to his last illness Sir Hugh's home at Keswick was writing which he said came as naturally as breathing. His recent work consisted mostly of contributions to a London newspaper book review section. His 1940 novel was "Roman Fountain", in which he recalled an occasion when Hitler wept.

Sir Hugh said that was in 1924, after Hitler's release from prison. The novelist wrote: "I remember he cried, and that I felt his pardon for Germans so sincere it seemed to burn through his ugly boots into the ground. . . ."

Gay and beautiful Ilona Massey and Nelson Eddy in a scene from the thrilling musical romance, "Balalaika," at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Peter Lorre and Rochelle Hudson in "Island of Doomed Men."

I couldn't stand greasy dishwashing

I TRIED RINSO—grease just disappeared!

TO look at greasy dishwater made me feel quite ill. And—those nasty greasy rings round the dishpan, the way grease clung to my hands, to the dishcloth, and smeared the dishes as I took them out. Then joy! I discovered Rinso for my dishes. I was enthralled! Rinso suds absorb grease—it simply disappears! Dishes come out clean and shining, dry so easily. Use Rinso for your dishes. Begin today! For extra economy ask for the GIANT package.

RINSO ABSORBS GREASE

AT WHITE HOUSE AFTER F.D.R.'S SPEECH

British ambassador Lord Halifax, LEFT, and J. M. Keynes, whose economic theories are getting some attention from the British government shown as they left the White House after calling on President Roosevelt to congratulate him on his "national emergency" speech. Lord Halifax also admitted that their chat included national and international affairs — probably best to translate into quick action the president's declarations.

HUGE ARMS DUMP LEFT FOR EMPIRE VICTORS

In African Somaliland, formerly "Italian" now "re-liberated"—British Empire soldiers check over a huge small arms and light field gun ammunition dump. A lot of banging was left static here when the British forces chased out the Italians and moved in. Some indication of the demoralization of the fleeing Italians can be gathered from the size of this abandoned dump—and the knowledge that a retreating army usually destroys what it can't carry along with it.

GERMAN PANZER TROOPS CAPTURED IN AFRICA

From this fighting front somewhere in Africa comes this picture of the first Nazi panzer troops captured by the British in Africa. The Germans are some of those who were rushed to Libya to stiffen Il Duce's forces. The dejected captives are guarded by an Australian soldier.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday afternoon my cousin Artie came around with money for the movies to see if I could get some fun and to him not doubling it on account of pop thinking too many movies gets me to be not amusing. I'd been to enough lately, and Artie said, Well go and see him anyways, he can't help you arrested for asking him, where is he?

He's taking his Saturday nap on the sofa in the living room so how can I even ask him? I said, and Artie said, Easy if he's asleep that's all the better. Just keep on asking him but not loud enough to wake him up, till he gets hipnotized and then says I go in his sleep, and then when he wakes up he can't say he promised you. Didn't you ever hear of people being hipnotized while they were asleep? he said.

Sure, O let's go up and try it right now, I said.

Wich we did, and pop was snoring under his breath to himself and I got right down close to his ear saying Can I go to the movies, pop? Say can I go to the movies, say Yes, pop, can I go to the movies, say Yes, and I got down close to his other ear, saying, Can Benny go to the movies, the diaries are good for him, they're very instructive, say Yes, Uncle Will can Benny go to the movies, say Yes.

Pop not saying anything, but he stopped snoring like somebody starting to feel hipnotized, and I quick said, Can I, pop, can I, say Yes.

And we both started to say—Say Yes, say Yes, say Yes, at the same time to make it stronger, and all of a sudden pop waved his hands in front of his face and sat up straight saying, Yes, for gods I listened I was being chased by a million bees, what do you I want, what the dooce are you up to?

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 2 (CP)—Prices showed little change in afternoon trading on the stock exchange today. Trading was quiet, with only 54,000 shares changing hands.

Walkers Common, Canadian Dredge and Steel Products each mildly soft in spots in Industrials while Loblaw and Moore Corporation were firm.

In Golds, moderate gains for Wright-Hargreaves, Lake Shore and Fields, MacLeod-Cockshutt, East Malartic and Chesterville were offset by balanced losses for Upper Canada Central Districts, Aunor and Pickle Crow which recorded a minor set-back and other Base Metals were steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, June 2 — (AP)—Depressing war news sent stock market many holders of stocks in today's market and, here and there, leading issues were bid up moderately.

Stocks attracting occasional support included N.Y. Shipbuilding, U. S. Steel, Cerro De Pasco, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Consolidated Aircraft and Montgomery Ward.

Consolidated Edison dipped to a new low for the year. Backward also were Standard Oil of Ind., Texas Corp. and Southern Pacific.

International Nickel, up 1-8, was the only issue among Canadian stocks to show any change. In the bond market Canada 4s were unquoted.

5,400,000 Dozen Eggs Under Order For Great Britain

Ottawa, June 2 —(CP)— A new British order for 5,400,000 dozen eggs from Canada, announced during the week-end by the Special Products Board, is for 4,500,000 dozen eggs, it was learned today.

The Special Products Board said it will be filled for all shipments. The new order supplements that received from the British Food Ministry more than a month ago for shipment during May of 5,400,000 dozen eggs.

Because of the large amount of the order the Board may find it necessary to exercise its authority to requisition eggs in store, officials said.

In the meantime, persons or firms having a surplus of eggs in carload quantities may communicate with the Board at Ottawa or dispose of their eggs through exporters who have accepted allotments from the Board under the contract with Britain, officials said.

ROOSEVELT SPEEDS ARMS PRODUCTION

Imposes Mandatory Priorities on American Industry

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Hyde Park, N.Y., June 2 (AP)— President Roosevelt obtained today power to speed the production of arms for Britain and the United States by imposing on American industry mandatory priorities of wartime scope.

Mr. Roosevelt has signed a bill under which mandatory priorities may be assigned in an order or contract of any foreign government brought within the terms of the Lease-Lend Act, and in some cases to orders of any government department or of private industry.

Heretofore, only contracts placed by the army and navy could be given mandatory priorities by the office of production management, and before even army contracts has delegated his authority over priorities.

Again to bolster the armament program he has signed into law a bill to keep iron ore feeding into steel plants. It will permit Canadian vessels to carry ore between United States ports on the Great Lakes during the 1941 navigation season. The bill suspends for a year a law requiring coastwise trade to American ships.

Except for army and navy orders the O.P.M. has utilized a system of voluntary preference certificates. A manufacturer could refuse to honor them or run the risk of a damage suit from a private customer if he did honor them.

The bill authorizing him also gives the extension of mandatory priorities to orders placed by Britain or any other foreign country brought under the Lease-Lend Act. Orders of foreign governments are other than the army and navy and the United States Maritime Commission of vital importance to defence, also may be assigned mandatory priorities.

Former Famous Dancer Takes Life in Hollywood

Hollywood, June 2 (AP)—Jenny Ryan, 37, one-time famous Dolly dancing sisters, committed suicide in the Hollywood apartment yesterday, police said.

Miss Ryan hanged herself in a brightly-colored gash attached to a curtain rod, police added. Miss Dolly Sisters committed suicide in 1941.

Her twin sister, Rozsika, with whom Jenny rose to world fame, was in Paris when Jenny died. Another sister, Irene Ryan, is married to Bert Lahr.

Jenny was born to Hungarian parents in Budapest, Oct. 25, 1892.

Tobruk Garrison Renews Activities

Cairo, Egypt, June 2 (AP)—Renewed activity by British forces in the Libyan-Egyptian frontier area was reported today by the Middle East Command.

The daily communique indicated also that British troops, besieged at Tobruk, inside Libya, since April 9, had made another sally on the flank of the Italian-German line.

"At Tobruk and in the Salum area (Egypt) our troops again have been active," said the communique.

At the same time mop-up operations continued in Ethiopia while in Iraq, it was said, "the Baghdad situation is gradually returning to normal and at Basra all is calm."

VICTORY LOAN

Churchill Confident

But there was a deep current of loyalty and tradition flowing between the nations of the British Commonwealth. The British people were aware that their fathers thought and action should have taken root there, and to most of the Dominion.

Canadians also had the tradition of France, a tradition of valor and faith which they keep alive in their own days and which we are confident will, in the end, bring back again to the French people.

He was confident Victory Loan, 1941, would be successful. "Some of us doubt," he said, "that together with the whole empire together with the old world and the new world together—no one doubts that we can or that we shall see it through.

"And that when, at length, we march again back into the light of happier and easier days, Canada will play her full part in the laying of the foundation of a wider and better system.

Mr. King said that "as Canadians we are one in our love of liberty."

Speaking of Canada, loyalty to the cause of Britain, loyalty to the cause of humanity, these to us have become one and the same," he said.

"Our armed forces like yours, are the defenders of freedom, like yours, they are equally defenders of the faith."

Aids War Endeavour

The Dominion was making war munitions for Britain as well as for herself. She would send all the food for Britain which ships to carry it could be found.

"But we will not stop there," Mr. King said. "We contemplate tremendous financial burden you are facing. That, too, we will aid; we are ready to continue to share such burdens together. The hour now being launched is to aid our great endeavor."

Mr. Mackenzie appealed to Canadians for internal spiritual unity, "that unity which is the glory of Dominion's effort.

"Let us appeal to the enemy a united national soul," he urged. "Let there be no division of section or race, no division of nationality or religion."

"Fellow Canadians," he said "The British Commonwealth of Nations now stands in the front line of the common struggle of free men against the greatest menace to civilization recorded history.

"It's cause is the cause of all humanity. Let us be equal to our task. Together, let us keep marching up and a smile on our lips; and take my word for it, our country will come through with flying colors flying and the band playing."

Berlin Communique

Berlin, June 2.—(AP)—The German High Command today declared the battle for Crete is "ended" and declared they have taken 13,000 prisoners of war.

"This estimate would seem to be fairly accurate," the communique's report added.

The communique asserted that when German forces occupied the harbor of Sphakion, on the south coast around the northwestern end of island.

To reach Sphakion, it said, Nazi mountain forces had to subdue Australian British Empire troops in mountains north of the city and 2,000 prisoners were taken there.

Then the Germans drove to about 10,000 Britons and Greeks claimed yesterday by the High Command as captured in the fierce 12-day campaign.

Britain's Aircraft Production With Half United States' Output Exceeds That of Nazi Factories

Louisville, Ky., June 2 (CP)— Germany stopped aircraft production in many plants to retool for new models and at the present time Britain's production, with half the United States', exceeds that of Germany, Rt. Hon. John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery before the annual convention of the National Automobile Association, Jouett said that when he made the same statement a month ago it was questioned by persons who believed that Germany is producing at a much more rapid rate. United States authorities since have received additional information that confirms our information", he said.

"I might add that the German machines in several categories have been running behind those of Britain and the United States in point of performance, he continued.

"It is not to be expected, however, that the preponderance of our American production will not ultimately have a decisive influence in this conflict. If our aircraft production continues to rise without interruption, American planes will arm the democracies to the extent of assuring victory."

Fire at Warkworth Destroys 2 Business Blocks With Loss Estimated Up To $15,000

Damage estimated at between ten and fifteen thousand dollars resulted from a fire which early this morning destroyed two business blocks in the village of Warkworth early Sunday morning, totalling destroying two business buildings and damaging several others. The fire was got under control after many hours' strenuous fighting by volunteer firemen and civilians. No one was injured.

The fire, said to have originated in a garage owned by Mr. Stanley H. Hart, and owned by the Hart Estate, was by 4 o'clock completely gutted as was an adjoining undertaking establishment owned and operated by Benjamin Buchanan and ago last February.

Aim Is 80,000 Planes.

The immediate aim of the United States industry is an output of 60,000 planes, he said.

"To attain that one of the objectives is production of 500 long-range fourengined bombers monthly, "besides a tremendous increase in heavy bombers. Postal forecast thousands of long-range bombers in the air.

"Our increased production of fourengine long-range bombers can help to solve the Battle of the Atlantic on any ocean," he said. "Sent out from bases on this side of the Atlantic, departing on something like twenty-hour-on-the-hour schedules they can easily reinforce Britain with many large ships.

"After arrival on the other side, these same long-range bombers can be used to strike at the enemy where it will hurt most—blasting away his munitions and the morale of his civil population, and at the same time destroying his air force bases, his troop concentrations and even his whole system of supply."

Apart from his assurance of steadily increasing production of long-range bombers. He said the industry now has a backlog of 18,000-plane production rate scheduled for the future. Of this total 8,000 is under the program first was laid out last fall.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The cry of the British veterans of Norway, Flanders and Greece—"Where was the Royal Air Force over the Hun"—has been taken up by the New Zealanders and their comrades in arms landing in Egypt from the Battle of Crete.

Prime Minister Churchill declared the big factor in their defeat was the severity of the German air attack, the two weeks of continual bombing and machine-gunning from above.

"If we had had a few squadrons of fighters there," he said, "it would have been all quite different," said one soldier. "We hardly saw a British plane in the whole affair."

This soldierly reaction to the meagreness of the air support afforded the ground forces found no echo today in the British press where the conduct of the campaign was the subject of much debate.

It was recalled that Crete had been in British possession for seven months, since last November when Italy sought to invade Greece and Britain went to the assistance of the Greeks.

Then the German attack on Crete began two weeks ago, the island was defended, at most, at the end of the campaign by 40,000 troops with only the occasional support of R.A.F. fighters based in Egypt, Palestine and to a lesser extent in Turkey. Britain might have had the help of Air Commodore Collithwa's bombers of the western desert.

Times Says Mistake Made.

The correspondent of the Sunday Times wrote that "a mistake appears to have been made in allowing the enemy to gain possession of an aerodrome on which transport planes could operate. That airdrome should have been blasted, obstructed and defended. Its loss, if inevitable, would have been able to land on it."

"Very large" individual losses were one that had been told and reported by Britain's new super-bombs in May" "The German record of the effort the war brought home to them in Egypt, Baghdad and Whitehall, was the announcement said. "There is no concealing the heavy damage and from these centres of development rumors run their course throughout the world.

"Reports from within Germany describe the effect of the attack on Crete. It is said that there scarcely is a building left on the island—and largest in German—which has not suffered."

VIOLENT DEATHS DURING WEEKEND NUMBER EIGHT

Fires Claim Largest Number of Victims With Car Accidents Claiming Two

CAUGHT BY SHAFT

(By The Canadian Press)

The week-end in Ontario saw violent death claim eight lives, fire claiming the largest number of victims—four children—and car accidents claiming two more. One man was killed when caught in a rock crusher and another died from injuries received at a summer beach.

A member of the Toronto Fire Marshal's staff left Toronto last night to investigate a fire at Haliburbury, of unknown origin, which early Saturday claimed the lives four children as they slept alone in an upstairs room of their farm house.

The four children, whose ages ranged from two to seventeen years were Louise, Coba, Rose and Oliver Van Tent. The father, Harry Van Tent, had left the farm Wednesday to go to Nobel in search of work.

W. J. Zeigler, 50, of Nobel was killed when struck by a car, driven by provincial police officer Thomas Sherman on the outskirts of Oshawa, Sunday. Runciman said Ealy walked into the path of the car, the driver leaving his own car parked on the roadside.

John River of Hamilton, died Sunday from injuries sustained Saturday when he was struck by a car driven by George Velichko, 19, in an accident similar to that in which Ealy was killed.

When his clothing caught on a large revolving shaft on a rock crusher and pulled him into the machine, John Whitney Tuck, 41, Sudbury, was so terribly mangled that he died in the hospital several a short time after the accident.

Fire, which took the greatest toll and other injuries suffered in an accident at Wasaga Beach, on Nottawasaga Bay, on the south shore of Georgian Bay, when a large revolving shaft on a large revolving shaft on a rock crusher and pulled him into the machine, John Whitney Tuck, 41, Sudbury, was so terribly mangled that he died in the hospital several a short time after the accident.

Two raiders were shot down during the night, while three others were destroyed in Saturday night's attacks.

The Air Ministry News Service, meanwhile, announced that aerial graphic reconnaissance Aer Hangley Page's flying boats, with a second largest city, had shown 36 Nazi ships had been damaged, demolished or damaged seriously by Britain's new super-bombs in May" "The German record of the effort the war brought home to them in Egypt, Baghdad and Whitehall, was the announcement said. Turkey's Position Grave

British sources expressed the view that Turkey is in the position Yugoslavia was when the Nazis began their blitzkrieg. Hitler has been partly encircled, finds herself within quick striking range of the Dardanelles.

Turkey's position is doubtful upon to sign with Rome and Berlin or let the Nazis through to the middle grounds to the southeast.

Lack of adequate air support was given by the war office as a basic reason for the British defeat in Crete.

"It became clear," the war office statement said, "that the air forces and military forces could not be adequately supported immediately in and near Crete without more air support than could be provided from our air bases in Africa."

A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared in a broadcast last night that "off Crete the Navy has been fighting one of the greatest battles of its history against continuous attack from the air. . . . I cannot one thought that we could not let the army down."

Throughout the week-end the R.A.F. played in the fight, smashing at Nazi plane factories and airfields, captured airdromes of Crete and battling with German and Italian bombers along the south coast of the Island.

Dispatches from Cairo credited British fliers with downing five German bombers and four Nazi and Italian bombers Saturday in raging battles over the island.

Britain, meanwhile, put Acting Air Marshal Arthur Tedder in charge as Commander-in-Chief of the R.A.F. Middle East Command, succeeding his immediate superior, Air Chief Marshal Arthur Longmore, who returned to the Inspector-in General.

The Air Ministry reported yesterday that 260 Axis planes had been destroyed in the week's air operations during May to 62 R.A.F. losses, and that 134 German and Italian planes had been destroyed in the Middle East since the first operations of the war.

Communiques on British reverses in Crete during the past week had prepared the public for the blow of the fall of the island.

"It has been apparent for some days that the odds against us in Crete were heavy," the Daily Telegraph said, "and that no hope remained of holding the island. . . . Undoubtedly there will be some questions of the control of this brief miniature campaign."

Take Dour View.

The press generally took a dour view of the Cretan defeat.

The Evening Standard said: "A grievous miscalculation" had been made and a new Nazi victory gained and said the "brutal truth is we were driven out of Crete by a well-planned and determined attack on a scale unknown before and with an old dwelling on methods of the last war, inadequately prepared.

"We were ignorant of the obvious. The improbable happened. We were not ready for the raid and the lack of foresight brought defeat."

The Standard asked: "Why were the Germans able to use bases in Greece which we had in occupation a month earlier?" And added:

"Why was there not, prior to spring, says a military spokesman, together with a more ruthless German labor policy.

"The second part of the military spokesman's statement is that we failed hardly excusable. The first part is intolerable.

"Did we know before we swore to defend Crete that the navy and army would have to operate without the air force? Or did we believe during the winter that successful help against German attack? OBSERVERS THINK

British ships in the Eastern Mediterranean.

To reach Suez now, they went on, British shipping, to the virtual exclusion of all other commerce, must go around South Africa's Cape of Good Hope. Such a route has been used more and more in recent times as the battle in the Mediterranean developed.

Fear Further Setbacks

Even fast warships, the observers here said, must be used for the transit of the 1,900-mile length of island sea hazardous. There are Italian submarines based in the middle.

Both of these danger zones, the 200-mile wide stretch between Crete and Libya and the 1,900-mile expanse between Sicily and Tunisia, the observers said, are under constant bombers from the German dive bombers.

Britain retains control of the entrance and exit to the eastern Mediterranean, with the island's limited output of Malta in the middle.

There was some speculation that Malta itself might be the target of the same type of aerial attack that caused the fall of Crete.

The observers here expressed the opinion that Axis occupation of Crete and all the Greek Aegean islands closes the sea route to the Dardanelles, gateway of the Black Sea, for the moment at least to all except those who play the Axis Balkan game.

See West End of Turkey Exposed

They said the western end of Turkey now is exposed to the Germans and that if Hitler decided to invade Turkey, he would be able to help this ally except by air from Crete, Rhodes, Dodecanese and Asia or permit the passage of Nazi troops through Turkey. In addition, so were heard that Hitler might follow up his Crete conquest with an all-out assault on Britain's eastern Mediterranean island of Cyprus.

Around-Africa Route Longer

The route around Africa linking Britain and the whole Middle East and Far East, is thousands of miles longer than the Mediterranean route. Furthermore the Germans claim a portion of the coast of northwest Africa and Spain has been made available for submarine hunting grounds for their surface craft.

Darland's declarations brought sharply to the fore the possibility that Dakar would become a converted base for German air, surface and underseas raiders. Informed quarters agreed such a development would increase tremendously Britain's task of escorting North and South Atlantic shipping as well as supplies now rounding Africa for the Middle East.

Fire at Kingston Mines

Kingston, June 2 (CP)—Fire, which broke out in the Kingston Mines, Limited, property at Cloyne, 30 miles west of Kingston, early today destroyed the mine's hoist house and damaged the headframe, Provincial Police reported.

Police said the fire was discovered by a watchman at 2.30 a.m. and that the loss was estimated at $10,000.

VANCOUVER GETS 1,000 MORE EVACUEES

Vancouver, June 2 (CP)—Another 1,000 evacuees from Britain arrived here today aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford, bringing to 2,000 the number of children who have arrived in Canada under the British evacuation scheme.

Most of the children are from London and other cities in the south of England.

Accompanying the children are 200 mothers and teachers.

KING IS WILLING TO COMPROMISE ON TAX ARGUMENT

Dominion Will Restore 15 P.C. Tax to Former Level if Ontario Will Relinquish Income Tax Field

NOW UP TO HEPBURN

Ottawa, June 3—(CP)—The next move in the Dominion-Ontario controversy over increased Federal taxation of interest on Provincial securities payable to non-residents of Canada today was up to Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario.

Last night another of a series of telegrams between Mr. Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King left Ottawa. In it Mr. King offered to restore the 15-per-cent tax on such interest payments to its pre-budget level of five per cent if Ontario gives prompt assurance of its willingness to withdraw from the income tax field.

It seemed unlikely there would be an immediate reply. When advised authoritatively of communications the Prime Minister was on the way, Mr. Hepburn said in Toronto that when I receive his telegram I will refer the whole matter to cabinet council which has been responsible for my and all decisions in these problems.

"Now the cat is out of the bag," he said, "we are not going to bargain on that basis."

Mr. King's 450-word telegram began with a reference to one sent him May 26 by the Ontario Premier. The Prime Minister said he and his cabinet colleagues had learned with "keen regret of the attitude you continue to take" in regard to the increased interest tax, and that as a result of the new impost Ontario had no alternative but to reject the proposal in the April 29 Federal budget whereby the provinces would withdraw from the personal and corporation income tax and accept equivalent compensation from the Dominion treasury.

Calls Tax Reasonable.

The federal cabinet had reviewed the whole matter and was "as strongly as ever" of the opinion that:

The interest tax was "fair and reasonable";

It involves only an increase in a tax which had been in effect since 1939 without protest from Ontario;

The proposed tax rate was low compared with taxes imposed on and income earned in Canada and with similar taxes imposed by other countries;

It constituted no threat to the credit of Ontario or any other province;

It was validly imposed and could be enforced.

But, Mr. King said, it would be "most unfortunate were there to be any serious controversy between the Dominion and the largest, and the wealthiest province of Canada at a time when the major considerations of all Canadians should be the most effective and most united prosecution of the war."

If Ontario did not accept the proposal to withdraw from the income tax field, "the citizens of Ontario would be prevented from enjoying the double taxation of their incomes from making as large subscriptions to the victory loan to be offered on Monday next, as otherwise they would be able and willing to make".

"In view of these considerations I ask and in order as quickly as possible to clarify the situation," Mr. King said, "we would be willing to restore to its previous level the tax on provincial obligations held by foreign bondholders provided the government of Ontario on its part would be prepared to give the Dominion prompt assurance of its willingness to accept the offer made to the provinces in the Dominion budget."

Placed in Bargaining Position

A digest of the contents of the King telegram Mr. Hepburn said:

"The question of withdrawing from the field of income and corporations tax is quite a separate matter and should not be tied up with this latest belated proposition from Mr. King."

"We have already notified the banks of the opinion of our law officers that the tax on bond interest is 'illegal' and our decision to contest it in the courts," he added.

"The whole purpose of imposing the tax was to place the Dominion in a strong bargaining position in the matter of attempting to get Ontario to vacate other fields of taxation."

"This latest offer from Mr. King stirs up old fights. It is a move unworthy of Hitler, Mr. King is well aware that the tax is unfair and illegal."

"As a province we have a duty to our bondholders," he said, "and we do not intend to allow them to fall victim to such Hitler tactics as these."

Picton and District

Picton, May 31—Squadron Leader Denton Massey, R.C.A.F., stationed at Trenton, addressed a rally of Prince Edward County workers in connection with the Victory Loan. He pointed out that we cannot feel secure from attack. On this continent we still think that the oceans are protective barriers but modern mechanical marvels have made ponds out of the oceans and we live in a fortress only so long as Britannia rules the waves. We depend for our security on the British navy and air force and it is necessary that we make a proper job of Canada's war effort in order to give every possible strength to that navy and air force, said the speaker.

War is the most horrible of pursuits, and because we hate it so we must put everything we have into the struggle to smash the aggressor. Nazism is the opposite of everything that is decent, conceived in barbarism and hatched in hate. If we face the situation realistically, we must know that our bank deposits and the "nest eggs" that we have laid away may have no value in the event of a German victory. Why not then throw our cash reserves into Victory Bond investments. In addition to the investment, we are buying insurance to promote the day of victory for the United Nations.

The speaker stated that the men in training realize that their work is only possible through the support of investors. There should be no flag waving or sentimentality necessary in selling Victory Bonds. The task is to bring the people face to face with realities, said the speaker who though the recent speech of President Roosevelt had been a clear and concise statement of the perils facing North America.

I have no desire to have anything to do with those who carp in the name of petty politics at this time, and I would that all Canadians felt that way. Let us not hear criticism that are purely political. The country is at war and there is a job to be done. No matter what government is in power it should be supported in carrying on the country's affairs, said Mr. Massey.

Paying tribute to the Empire forces, Squadron Leader Massey expressed the belief that there would be no invasion of Britain. Tribute was paid to the heroic peoples of Britain, especially the women, and the speaker explained what a privilege and what a necessity to take our place in the struggle; never was the call clearer or the need greater.

Dr. S. H. Roblin, chairman of the County Committee, presided. Prof. Iva E. Mabee introduced the speaker who was thanked by James Reid, Bloomfield. A solo were given by Rev. J. B. Creegan and Miss Gwen Cavers led in community singing.

British War Casualties Reach 100,000-Mark for All Services

London, May 31 (CP)—British casualties have reached the 100,000 mark for all three fighting services in 31 months of war, it was disclosed today.

Almost half the total were said to be prisoners of war in Germany.

The figures, compiled from official casualty lists, show that the war so far has cost only a fraction of the 3,190,000 British men killed, wounded, missing or taken prisoner in the first Great War.

The Nazis were reported to have taken 2,000,000 French and 40,000 British prisoners in France and the Low Countries while British forces took 250,000 Italian prisoners in Africa.

British military and naval casualties so far number 101,056, of which 74,164 were from the army, 13,396 from the navy and 10,996 from the Air Force.

A breakdown of the figures showed:

Army—7,879 killed, 19,810 wounded, 763 missing, 8,482 died, 46,450 prisoners.

Navy—4,422 killed, 3,553 wounded, 7,323 missing, 81 died, 517 prisoners.

Air Force — 2,736 killed, 1,338 wounded, 1,879 missing, 1,043 died, 402 prisoners.

The army casualties were believed to include some of the British troops lost in Greece, but none in Crete. The navy casualties do not include the ship lost when the battle cruiser Hood was sunk a year ago by the German battleship Bismarck.

The air force totals include those killed and wounded in action on active service or in training or as the result of bombings.

CENSUS TAKING TO START JUNE 11

Postponed From June 2nd Due to Victory Loan Drive Being in Progress

Taking of the Hastings County census, originally scheduled to start June 2, has been postponed until June 11, except in the townships of Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga, Chief Enumerator, Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater announced today.

Postponement was announced due to the fact that the National Victory Loan Drive for this county would be in progress; except in cases where occupational work must be carried on without delay with least interference to manpower such as farmers harvesting hay. Thus the above-mentioned townships will start their census on the original dates.

Belleville and other centres of the county, however, will not until June 11th to take their census.

It was pointed out by Colonel Vanderwater that all information contained in census enumerations will be of a strictly confidential nature and will be for Dominion statistical purposes only, and not be available for municipal or other assessors or tax collectors.

While residents of the nation had to answer questionnaires during the National Registration cards, they will be given no such duty this time on the census returns. The farm schedule calls for replies to 167 questions.

Mrs. Joe Storey visited friends in Toronto over the week end.

PERHAPS BABY DOESN'T NEED SOUND SLEEPS

Science Finds Slumbers in Seven Stages and Only Three Hours Out of 24 for Heavy Dozing

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Don't worry if your newborn son or daughter does not seem to sleep soundly at all times. A recent study has shown that they actually sleep soundly only about three hours in 24.

These things have been announced by Dr. Isabelle Wagner, instructor in psychology and education at Simmons College.

According to Dr. Wagner, nature does not require that newborn babies should sleep most of the time, as some parents think. She says it is easy to believe they are sleeping nearly all the time, since they can give clear evidence of wakefulness only by screaming. Dr. Wagner's experiments are carried out in the psychology laboratory at University Hospital, Ohio State University, show that instead of merely two stages of crying and not crying, there are seven stages for newborn infants, from soundest sleep to complete waking.

Nearly 200 Studied

Nineteen 200 babies were studied. Dr. Wagner explains that the state of sleep was determined by the only signs discernable — that is, they wiggled toes, or how they responded to tiny pin pricks, touches with a camel's hair brush, or odors like lemon or violet.

Dr. Wagner found the seven stages as follows:

1. The baby is sound asleep. He is absolutely quiet and he breathes 30 to 40 times a minute.

2. The baby looks exactly as in stage one but his breathing is getting irregular.

3. He is still very quiet and his lips and eyelids are motionless but he begins to make slight body movements, such as a stir of his head.

4. He is now half way between deepest sleep and complete waking. He is either very quiet or else shows slight body movements as in stage three, and his eyelids now begin to move occasionally.

5. Mouth movements are now added to the eyelid movements and the slight body stirring.

6. The baby is generally active, though his eyes are still closed and he usually shows long arm and mouth movements.

7. He is now wide awake, for at last his eyes are open.

Dr. Wagner found that the newborn babies spend from one to one and one-half hours in each of the seven stages, with 10 hours at stage seven, wide awake.

Sleep Intervals Short

It was noticed that the baby does not sleep normally for long hours in succession, nor stay awake for hours at a stretch. In the hospital he is fed every three or four hours, and has to wake up long enough for this. But, Dr. Wagner adds, he does not fret between times, and may even go sound asleep two or three times between feedings. The longest period of unbroken sleep recorded lasts just 24 minutes.

Dr. Wagner says adults are more like infants in sleep habits than they realize. None can be proved to be wide awake every minute of the day. When adults go to sleep they stir at least once every ten minutes, she says.

Crofton

Crofton — Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Jones of Belleville were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy and Mrs. B. Jones and Noreen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Salisbury of Rochester arrived on Saturday night for a vacation with Mr. Salisbury's father, Mr. and Mrs. Steel Crook and Mrs. Chas. Haight of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munroe of Frankford were week end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Munroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Haight and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fuller of Belleville called on Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Crook on Wednesday evening.

The Red Cross meeting was held at the Hall on Thursday afternoon. A nice lot of work was accomplished.

Mrs. Martha Tompsett of Wellington spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Crook and Ronald and called on Mr. and Mrs. Angus Ryckman.

sends a special message to Canadians, in support of the Government Victory Loan

DOUGLAS REED well-known author of "Insanity Fair" etc., and recognized authority on world affairs.

"Once more Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen stand with the men of the other Dominions and of this beleaguered land in the forefront of the battle which has to be won. In my opinion it was won in 1940 when the enemy failed to invade us, but how long or short the path to actual victory will be, depends on our continued strength and on the men, the munitions and the money we put into the struggle. The people of this tight little island have performed prodigies of financial valour in subscribing to Victory Loan. May I appeal to Canadian readers (and in so doing thank many who have written to me) to support their own Canadian Government Victory Loan, by that means they can best help to shorten the way out of 'Insanity Fair' for us all."

AT THE BELLE

"Topper Returns"

Comedy, mystery and romance are blended in the swiftly paced story which unfolds in the new production, "Topper Returns" at the Belle tonight. The cast of "Topper Returns" is headed by such Hollywood funmakers as Joan Blondell, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Roland Young, Carole Landis, Dennis O'Keefe and Patsy Kelly.

Joe Louis-Baer Fight

A special extra attraction on the same program is the exhibition of the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer fight, that is the return at the box of sporting world. Was Baer hit after the bell? Was the referee wrong? The pictures tell the story. A funny Donald Duck cartoon and the Belle world news events complete the program.

"Rage in Heaven" Gripping

Robert Montgomery and Ingrid Bergman, fascinating new Swedish actress, are co-starred in one of James Hilton's most exciting novels, "Rage in Heaven," coming next to the Belle theatre for an engagement of two days.

Hilton's genius for brilliant characterizations revealed in "Goodbye Mr. Chips" and "Lost Horizon," reaches its peak in the psychological study of a wealthy, married to a beautiful girl, whose insane and unjustified jealousy of his best friend drives him to attempt the "perfect crime."

Fun, Thrills in New Film

A warm comedy-romance about a girl who found that an unpretentious life meant a happy one will have its first local showing as the companion feature attraction, when Warner Bros.' new film, "Here Comes Happiness" opens. The film stars Mildred Coles, Edward Norris and Richard Ainley. It is a laugh hit of fun, romance and thrills whose story will have a poignant meaning for everyone.

The Belle news of the day will be exhibited on the same program.

And Still Will Be

English monarchs have been crowned under the high vaulted roof of Westminster Abbey since 1274.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Lady From Cheyenne"

"The Lady From Cheyenne," the first picture produced and directed by Frank Lloyd for Universal opened last night at the Capitol Theatre and continues tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday. Loretta Young stars in the title role.

Miss Young heads an imposing cast that includes Robert Preston, Edward Arnold, Gladys George, Frank Craven and Ralph Bellamy in the role of crooked politicians led by Fields, Samuel S. Hinds, Willie Best and others.

The Lady From Cheyenne" is a comedy of modern tempo set in the background of frontier Wyoming of the 1870 period, and finds Miss Young as a naive but determined Eastern girl who comes out West to make her fortune. Her fight against the schemes of crooked politicians led by Preston and Preston provides one of the season's most novel and amusing screen stories.

It is a distinctly new kind of picture for Producer-Director Lloyd who is famous for creating such milestone dramas as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Cavalcade" and "If I Were King."

The same programme includes a sport novelty full of the thrills of stunt motorcycle riding; a colored cartoon, "Goofy Discoverer" and a delightful short subject, "Alice in Movieland" starring Anne Nagel. Toronto-born screen discovery, Joan Leslie, who first attracted attention in "High Sierra."

COOKING SCHOOL TO SHOW "PARADE OF FOODS"

At Belleville's School of Canadian cookery, a unique feature—"The Parade of Foods" will be seen. The many foods that the lecturer—Mrs. Madeine Day—prepares are placed on mirrored and illuminated platters which are carried down the aisle so all may see them from every angle. The Cooking School will be in session at the McCarthy Theatre June 8th, 9th, and 10th.

BRITAIN RALLIES FORCES FOR NEW STAND

NAZIS ADMIT HEAVY R.A.F. RAID ON GERMANY

Race Indicated For Positions on Middle East Front

Predicted London Soon Would Declare Syria an Enemy—Occupied Territory

NAZIS AT LATAKIA

London, June 3 (CP)—Qualified observers predicted today the War Cabinet soon would declare Syria an enemy-occupied territory, opening the French-mandated wedge between Turkey and Palestine for full-scale British attack.

Report from Turkey that the Nazis already had landed sea-borne infantry with motorized equipment at the Syrian port of Latakia, just east of Britain's island of Cyprus, were interpreted in some quarters as indicating the race for positions on a new front already is on.

There were indications that British official circles would not be surprised if the Vichy Government soon requested that "protection" of all French colonial possessions, including Syria and Lebanon in the Middle East.

The Brenner Pass meeting of Hitler and Mussolini—the first in a war-strategy session prompted almost unlimited speculation as to where the Axis would strike next.

Greece Involve Canal

Most guesses, however, involved the Suez Canal.

Many observers declared they were convinced the Axis leaders had decided on a drive across Syria to Iraq and Palestine in an effort to drive British Middle East forces before touching off the actual Libyan thrust toward the canal.

British forces also are known to be watching closely for a Nazi move into French North Africa in an effort to drive South Atlantic bases and to attack British and Free French African colonies.

May Push Through Spain

Some sources said such a drive probably would start with a push through Spain and Portugal and an attack on Gibraltar.

"If Hitler does occupy Syria," one source declared, "it is very doubtful whether he shall stop there. He is irresistible."

"And once the Nazis were firmly in control (in Syria) there would be no end to the influx of German material. Turkey then might grant a right of way. And how long after that could the Nazis possibly hold Iraq and her oil?"

With Axis troops in Grecian Thrace, on the Aegean Islands, Crete and the Dodecanese and reported in Northern Syria, Hitler already has Turkey partly cut off from British aid.

R.A.F. Training Plane Crashes Near Shannonville

Fatal Landing Made Because of Engine Failure —Pilot and Airman Slightly Injured

Catching fire when it dropped to a crash landing on the farm of R. Jackman, nine miles north of Shannonville at three-thirty Monday afternoon, a Royal Air Force training plane was totally destroyed. Two Fleet Air Arm ratings, Ted Dilke, pilot and Ronald Parrell, of a Kingston air port suffered slight injuries. Dilke was cut slightly in the arm as Parrell received a severe shaking up.

The plane was returning to Kingston when the engine suddenly stalled. Dilke brought the plane down but in ended up in a crash landing. The machine burst into flames and was burned to a shell before any assistance could arrive. The airmen were taken to the Clark farm nearby and treated hospitally by the residents. Later a Royal Canadian Air Force ambulance from Trenton removed the men.

It is believed the men were flying from Kingston to Picton, when engine trouble developed and they decided to return to Kingston.

Dorothy Thompson Broadcasts Tonight

Miss Dorothy Thompson, internationally known newspaper columnist, will make her second Toronto appearance in recent weeks when she speaks at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight under the auspices of the Toronto organization of the Victory Loan Committee. Her address again will be carried over a nation-wide hook-up by the CBC.

In addition to Miss Thompson the following will also address tonight's Victory Loan meeting: Senator Carline Wilson, Senator Ivan Mills, Miss Mitchell Hepburn and L. W. Brockington, K.C.

The meeting commences at 8 p.m.; Miss Thompson will speak shortly after 9 p.m.

Power Situation Well Provided for Says C. W. Kellogg

Buffalo, N.Y., June 3.—(AP)—With the electric power industry of the United States expanding to meet the challenges of defence production, "an allegation of power shortage is unwarranted," C. W. Kellogg, president of the Edison Electric Institute, said today.

Addressing the Institute's annual convention, he said the "power situation will be found to have been adequately provided for".

In addition to the unprecedented increases of seven and a half million kilowatts in generating capacity to be added in 1941 and 1942 a great basic reserve of enough in electric power situation is the simple measure of generating capacity that has been built up over past years', he said.

$58,551,250 OF VICTORY LOAN SUBSCRIBED FOR

Total Does Not Include Large Subscriptions By Business Corporations

FIRST DAY RETURNS

Ottawa, June 3 (CP)—Canadians subscribed $58,551,250 to Canada's $600,000,000 1941 War Loan, according to returns tabulated as of 7 p.m. Monday, Loan Headquarters announced today.

The announcement came from Dominion Headquarters of the Victory Loan Committee on authority of C. W. Spinney, chairman of the executive.

"These figures embody the totals supplied to headquarters last night from the various Provincial headquarters," the statement said.

"This total does not include certain substantial large subscriptions by business corporations and financial institutions, which, while promised verbally, cannot be announced until confirmed by signed applications."

Delays in Reporting

Mr. Spinney said that delays are inevitable when such a large army of non-professional canvassers and workers are engaged in the task of selling and reporting.

"With so vast a machine it is unavoidable that many canvassers will not make their final tradesmitted their reports in time to be included in the figures for the first 7 p.m. last night," said Mr. Spinney, "within the next few days it is expected that the organization will be in its stride and functioning more smoothly."

MRS. A. SIMONEAU FOUND STABBED

Her Soldier Husband Held by Police as Material Witness

Montreal, June 3. — (CP)—Mrs. Arthur Simoneau, 34, was found stabbed to death with a pair of scissors early today in a bloodsoaked bed in her east-end apartment.

Police Inspector Armand Brodeur said the slaying was discovered early this morning in the Laguchetiere Street flat by Mrs. Simoneau's husband, a soldier. He added that she had been stabbed several times.

Inspector Brodeur said Simoneau, who is in military custody, is a material witness for the Coroner's inquest to be held possibly tomorrow.

FEARS OF EPIDEMIC DISPELLED

Port Hope, Ont., June 3(CP)—Fears of a spinal meningitis epidemic in Port Hope were dispelled today by Dr. C. B. Kelly, M.O.H., who declared the town free of communicable disease.

Two cases have been removed to Toronto for observation, but blood and spinal fluid tests at the Port Hope hospital proved negative, Dr. Kelly stated.

Newsman Takes Part in a Form Of Naval Warfare That Britain Brings to New Pitch of Perfection

(A Reuters News Agency special correspondent with the Royal Navy was the first newspaperman to fly in a torpedo-bomber in naval operations. He describes his flight in the following story):

(By Special Press Correspondent)

With the Royal Navy, June 3 (CP Reuters)—Swooping through holes in the clouds, I took part in a form of naval warfare that British has brought to a new pitch of perfection.

"War Birds" of the Royal Navy—Albacore and Swordfish torpedo-bombers—delivered a dawn attack on largely immobile enemy battleships. As a passenger in one of the attacking planes I was the first journalist to witness from the air the method which proved so devastating to the Italians at Taranto and Cape Matapan and in the sinking of the giant German battleship Bismarck.

British experts have devoted special attention to torpedo-bombing, and the Royal Navy is, they say, the world's foremost exponents of it.

Other navies can be trained to sink or damage individual ships, or, in a seat battle, to slow down the enemy fleet. Then the British ships close in and bring their big guns to bear.

Escorted by Crack Squadron

This exercise was staged by a Fleet Air Arm squadron which has been practicing the difficult technique for months, until now they form one of the deadliest striking forces any warship could hope not to meet.

Pilots, observers, air gunners — and myself—were called at 3.30 a.m. and after a sandwich and a cup of tea in the air station wardroom, put on fur-lined jackets, Mae West (elaborate form of waterwings), parachute harness and helmets. Then, standing around a stove, we listened to the squadron commander's last hour of advice as to the hum of engines being warmed up.

Under a dark and angry sky, with a 40 m.p.h. wind, we climbed into our planes. The engines threw rose to a roar and were off.

Then we lay doped on, our wing tips nearly touching.

"Don't," said some my pilot's voice down the tube. "It's a matter of getting a loose pipe of stiffening, often from fly closer than this."

Frequently clouds blotted the sea, forcing us in a very few seconds to save for the planes of our flights and squadron. At the time the rest of the squadron were hidden.

BERLIN BLASTED FOR 46TH TIME BY RAF BOMBERS

Other Targets in the Industrial Ruhr Attacked And Many Fires Started

BERLIN ADMITS DAMAGE

London, June 3 (CP)—A bomb from one Royal Air Force plane alone started five big fires in Italy's night's 46th raid of the war on Berlin and other crews told of observing "a whole circle of fires" in the German capital, the Air Ministry said today.

Elaborating on an earlier communique, the ministry announced through its news service that a small number of planes attacked objectives in the centre of Berlin.

Other R.A.F. units attacked Dusseldorf were hampered by a ground haze, but there were enough breaks in the weather for the crews to aim a heavy load of fire bombs and high explosives at industrial sections of the town, this account added.

Attacks also were made, a communique said, on the cities of Duisseldorf, Duisburg-Ruhrort and other targets in the industrial Ruhr and on docks at Ostend and St. Nazaire.

Four aircraft were lost in these raids, and three in daylight attacks on Nazi objectives yesterday.

The raid on Berlin was the 46th since the war began.

(The Nazi said several apartment buildings in Berlin were damaged by bombs and that a number of civilians were killed or injured. Other Points in Northern and Western Germany also were attacked.)

German reports of aerial activity over England was described officially as on a small scale, although the government acknowledged there had been a number of casualties.

Bombs fell at points in north and northeast England and the Midlands.

Will Not Order New Trial for Peter Gold Case

Toronto, June 3.—(CP)—Attorney General D. G. Conant will not order another trial of Peter Gold who was charged with robbing the bank of Commerce branch on Broadview Ave., Toronto, Gold has been tried twice and the juries could not agree.

While I dislike the situation that has arisen, subsequent to the Attorney General for the Court in the final disposition of the case I realize that on the evidence in this case I could not, without assuming to be a waste of time and money to proceed further. I will therefore, direct that further proceedings be stayed", said Mr. Conant.

Command of Seas For U.S., Britain Demanded by Knox

U.S. Warship Building Industry Told War To be Won by Combination of Sea And Air Power

'MIRACLE' PRODUCTION

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Navy Secretary Knox demanded a production "miracle" of the nation's warship building industry today in order to assure the United States and Britain of command of the seas.

"There can no longer be any doubt," Knox said, "that this war will be determined by two things—by the successful combination of sea and air power."

Speaking to a conference of shipbuilders he told them he was up to them to see that the United States and Britain were equipped with the warship half of the combination necessary for victory.

Six Double Rums, A Shot of Morphia Anaesthetic Used

London, June 3.—(CP)—Six double rums and a shot of morphia proved a "good old-fashioned anaesthetic" for a British tank captain wounded in the withdrawal from Crete, a Reuters News Agency Correspondent said in a dispatch from Cairo quoted last night by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Wounded in the foot by a bomb splinter while directing six troops in the retreat of the main allied body, the captain told the correspondent he crawled to the beach and boarded a destroyer.

"Then," the correspondent added, "while dive-bombers attacked the transport, the captain was operated on under a good old-fashioned anaesthetic—six double rums and a shot of morphia."

The operation was successful.

100 WOMEN EMPLOYEES ASK STRIKE

Owen Sound, Ont., June 3 (CP)—One hundred women employees of Bruce Knitting Co. today signed a 21 men of the company staff in their strike for a 10 per cent increase in wages. The strike went out last Thursday.

Mediation efforts have failed to settle the strike at the McWuay Knitting Co. plant where 21 employees left work last Friday.

Britain May Form Powerful Air Bases At Chungking, China

Tokyo, June 3 (AP)—The Japanese newspaper Asahi asserted today that 36 British officials from posts in the Far East have been at Hong Kong since May 30 discussing establishment of power air bases at Chungking, China, for joint Royal British and American forces if necessary.

The officers also were said to be conferring on methods for strengthening the land route between Burma and Singapore as well as closer means of communication between Burma and Malaya."

The Asahi also editorially participating in the talks were from Singapore, Rangoon, Chungking, Shanghai, Tientsin, Vladivostok, Tokyo, Australia and the Philippine Islands.

Rashid Ali, who seized control of Iraq's government in April, fled Baghdad last week before British troops entered the city.

REPORT STEADY FLOW OF FOOD JAPAN TO NAZIS

1,500 Tons Daily From Japan and Japanese-Occupied China Said to Move Over Transiberian Railroad

EXPORTS TO JAPAN

Tokyo, June 3 (CP)—Foodstuffs from Japan and Japanese-occupied China have been flowing to Germany via the trans-Siberian Railroad at the rate of 1,500 tons daily in recent months, reliable sources declared today.

Stimulation of this traffic, designed to counteract the Allied blockade of Germany, has been among the chief objectives of Dr. Hiroshi Oshoiai, one of Hitler's economic experts who has been conferring here for some time with Japanese officials, these sources said.

Approximately 75,000 tons of Manchukuo's Soy bean crop—which has scores of uses in wartime Germany—already has been shipped, they asserted. Other commodities of which Japan has been able to make to Germany, it was said, include oil, cotton, wool and rice.

Freight Rates Up

Soviet Russia has not been averse to take advantage of the situation, informed sources said, declaring that rates on freight bound for Berlin via the Trans-Siberian had gone up appreciably since the war, recently.

"In return for the supplies she is obtaining from the Far East, Germany is reported to be exporting products of high value in small volume, such as chemicals, dyestuffs, scientific apparatus and precision instruments, which are needed badly in Japan since the United States clamped down on shipments.

Nazi Expert in Tokyo

Berlin, June 2 (AP)—German spokesmen said today that Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, economic expert, is in Tokyo negotiating a far-reaching extension of German-Japanese economic relations.

The spokesmen said that "on account of the vastness of projects under discussion," Wohlthat's negotiations will take time, but "there has been progressive and positive development."

HEPBURN URGES CANADIANS TO DO THEIR UTMOST

Says That Loan Should be Greatly Oversubscribed In View of Enormous Cost

TANKS, PLANES NEED

St. Thomas, Ont., June 3.—(CP)—Possibility of a British defeat in the Mediterranean with the release to Germany and her allies of troops from the oil fields of Iran and Iraq was suggested by Premier Hepburn of Ontario as the Victory Loan address here last night.

"The entry of Japan into the war as a matter, of weeks," Premier Hepburn told a Royal Association of North America, "is feared in the next few months. Such an occurrence would put a down in defence of the homeland from coming into the Australasia to defend Canada; that Canada should take stock of the activities of the Congress of Industrial Organizations in the Dominion and the United States.

Two Schools of Thought

Mr. Hepburn said there were two schools of thought respecting the war, one favoring "sugar-coated" facts and the other "telling the facts should be given to the public, regardless of the results. He stated "I belong to the latter class."

"Canada is the key feature of what could happen. Mr. Hepburn said that in the event of defeat could make an effective war effort by everyone of us as he put" and he urged Canadians to make every dollar available to the Federal government towards the financing of the war effort.

Tanks Imperative, Parties, Planes and Tanks

"There are two important factors in this war," he said, "airplanes and tanks."

20,000 Nazis Drowned When Ships Carrying Them Sunk by British Navy

(By Larry Allen)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Alexandria, June 3.—(AP)—Some of the British Navy Officers who directed the removal of more than 15,000 Imperial and Greek troops from Crete expressed the opinion today that the battle would have been different if we had air fighter protection.

When I went aboard the Perth, one of the cruisers that helped in the evacuation, I saw most of the evacuated troops on their arrival in Egypt. A steady stream of men poured into this country aboard cruisers and destroyers. One squadron landed 4,000 men another, including the Australian cruiser Perth brought nearly 4,000.

All the men told the same story: they said the battle would have been different if we had air fighter protection.

When I went aboard the Perth, she had just come from a night action in southern Crete the night of May 29, the captain told me about it.

"We moved in after nightfall and put three gunways down and got 500 aboard in the first three hours.

"These dead-tired soldiers, many of them wounded and bleeding, reached the embarkation point (Continued on Page Eleven, Col. 6)

COUNTY COURT OPENS SESSION; LIGHT DOCKET

The General Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings of the County Court for Hastings County opened at the Court House before His Honour Judge C. A. Cameron, this afternoon. The Jury was impanelled by Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn.

One criminal case, Rex versus Meraw, six applications for naturalization and two civil cases are listed for the court. The criminal case is a charge of attempted rape against a man named Meraw of Tweed.

INQUEST FURTHER ENLARGED TO JUNE 17

The adjourned inquest touching into the death of 18-year-old Mary Groves, who died in a Front Street apartment last month, was further enlarged until June 17th., Sergeant Arthur Harman announced today.

The preliminary inquest was held at the time of the death, at which time the Coroner ruled it unnecessary to hold a complete autopsy and the proceedings were enlarged until today. The further enlargement was announced this afternoon. Mrs. Groves sr., was employed at the O.S.D. and was en route to her home when fatally stricken in a Front Street apartment.

NO EXEMPTIONS TO ORDER OF-DAIRY BOARD TO BE ALLOWED

No exemptions are proposed in Order No. 22 of the Ontario Dairy Produce Board laid down some time ago and which says that all cheddar cheese made in Ontario on and after May 26th shall be white, unpainted, for export to the British Ministry of Foods, according to a communication received today from Chairman of the Board J. F. Singleton, by Chief Grader J. L. Irwin.

In other words proprietors of cheese factories will not be permitted to sell cheese to patrons or local stores unless it was made prior to May 26th.

The communication states that this order is not expected to remain long in effect but that the exemptions have been given nor are they intended at the present time. It stresses the point that factories desiring to cut cheese for patrons or for sale to local stores should retain cheese made prior to May 26th for this purpose.

CUSTOM RETURNS SHOW DECREASE

Custom returns at the Belleville Customs Office for the month of May showed a decrease in revenue for the same month in 1940 according to figures of the previous month released by customs officials this morning. During May, 1941, $170,633.16 was collected as compared to $215.18 was collected for the same period last year, showing a decrease of $7,317.99.

WOULD LIKE NAMES OF WAR PRISONERS

As another phase of its war work, a local Red Cross organization is contemplating preparing and sending a letter of cheer to members of the Empire's fighting services who are prisoners of war in enemy country, or occupied territory.

Officials of the organization request that anyone who has relatives or friends now in enemy prison camps, send the names of the boys immediately to the offices of the Ontario Intelligencer whence they will be forwarded to the organization.

Immediate response is necessary in order the organization can send comforts and necessities to the prisoners of war at the earliest possible moment.

CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS PRESENTS FURNITURE TO MESS

In conjunction with similar gestures to sergeant's messes in other airports of the Dominion, the Canadian Jewish Congress last night presented the Sergeant's Mess of the Royal Air Force station at Picton with several pieces of furniture. The gifts included occasional chairs, a chesterfield suite, card table and bridge lamps.

The presentation was made by Messrs. I. E. Shapiro and Ben Safe, Toronto representatives of the Congress at a simple ceremony held in the mess before a gathering of the sergeants of the station.

Group Captain C. Keith, Squadron Leader S. L. Avent, D.F.C. and Warrant Officer E. Nicklin received the gifts on behalf of the mess.

Mr. Shapiro, in a brief address, told the airmen that although the gift was small, the fact that similar gifts were being made to sergeant's messes numbering some 400 throughout the Dominion, the magnitude of the effort could be realized.

Group Captain Keith and W. O. Nicklin expressed the appreciation of the mess of the fine gesture of the Canadian Jewish Congress as exemplified in the handsome gift.

PAIR ARRESTED IN TORONTO WANTED HERE

Charges of Theft Are Laid Against Roy Weaver and Lloyd Cayer

MANY BREAK-INS

Belleville and Provincial Police believe two men arrested in Toronto yesterday may have been responsible for the numerous robberies and break-ins that were perpetrated in this district last week-end. Toronto police arrested Roy L. Weaver, 26, of this city, and Lloyd Cayer, 19, of Guelph, as they were found in a car, in an automobile parked in a Toronto zoo. In the motor car was found a varied assortment of goods including jewelery, silverware, groceries, a rifle and other articles.

Toronto police communicated the apprehension of Weaver and Cayer to local authorities for identification. Chief Constable Cecil Lloyd and Inspector Harman issued a warrant charging the pair with breaking and entering the home of H. J. C. Kennedy, 43 Holloway Street, and committing the following offence of theft.

Belleville police today revealed that a large quantity of jewelry and silverware was stolen from Mr. Kennedy's home some time in early Sunday morning. A valuable watch, a complete set of silver and wearing apparel was reported stolen from the home.

Will Be Brought Here

Belleville police also feel that Weaver and Cayer may have some knowledge of the theft of gasoline taken from the Bridge Street station, Coleman Street, the same night. Seven gas empty 25 gallon cartridge shell box was found abandoned on the ground. It is quite possible that this pair may know something of the break-in at the Coleman Street Plant also, suggested Sergeant Harman today.

Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson told the Ontario Intelligencer today that the organization was interested in questioning Weaver and Cayer regarding the breaking and entering of Freeman's service station three miles west of Trenton on Highway No. 2 the same night the Belleville break-ins were reported. From Freeman's service station groceries and tobaccos valued at over $100 were stolen. Weaver and Cayer will be brought to Belleville on warrants issued here today.

NEW IRAQ GOVT. FORMED

London, June 3 —(CP)— A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Baghdad said today that a new Iraq government has been formed with Jamal Al Midfai as premier.

The majority of the ministers, Reuters said, have served previously for their co-operation with Britain.

The situation in Baghdad was said to be well in hand, with the city quiet.

Street Carnival To Be Staged by Kinsmen Club

Plans for a street carnival, to be held in conjunction with the coming annual Kinsmen Club "Soap Box Derby" were announced by President Gerald Gardiner Duff at the last-night meeting of the Kinsmen Club held in the New Ontario Hotel on Monday. The revenue from the proposed street carnival will be directed entirely to the war work of the Kinsmen Club, while the events of the "Soap Box Derby" will be given into the club's eye candy, a sanitary child's chair, has been carried on by the Kinsmen of Belleville since their inception and through the medium of which numerous eye glasses have been provided the underprivileged children of the community.

With the fourth annual Kinsmen "Soap Box Derby" scheduled by The Ontario Intelligencer, just four weeks hence, Kin. Orliff Lloyd, chairman of the entry committee, announced last night that fifty-nine entries had been received to date, with the assurance of additional entries to be received shortly. Kin. Cleo Codling, business manager of the paper revealed the new features would be introduced at this year's derby, including a new handicap system through the medium of which the patrons will be asked to guess the names and numbers of each contestant in the event on "Derby Hill" in the race.

Kinsmen Pool Open

The Kinsmen Club voted to purchase crests for competitors in the city public and separate schools, three dozen such crests being provided each of the city's local primary schools. Crests for school championships, hockey, baseball and rifle teams will be given to the winning contestants as awarded in all intra-mural competitive sports in the schools. The Kinsmen Club have made such provisions for some years past and intended to carry on the practice this year as the students keenly appreciate the awarding of the crests which indicate their respective sport prowess.

The evening's entertainment was also provided for by the club and a prompty speeches with Jim Lafferty, Harry Rollins and Orliff Lloyd called upon for brief remarks. Kin. Phil Smallwood added to the entertainment with a piano selection.

Kins. Bruce Miller and Kin. Newt Wilbur were named as joint chairmen for the proposed street carnival, while Kin. Gord Robson acted as sergeant-at-arms and Kin. Newt Wilbur as song leader.

Ki-Y League

In a K-Y Midget series softball game played at the Queen Mary School ground last night, the Terriers over the Terriers by virtue of a two run rally which they staged in the second inning although prolific hitting on the part of the losers throughout the latter part of the game almost resulted in the score being tied at the final bell.

Terriers — Hope, Spafford, Semark, Young, Phillips, Vesterfelt, Fraser and Day.

Orioles — Brown, Ford, Nickel, J. Patterson, Turner, Welman, Williams, Hamilton and Moore.

Score by innings:

Orange Birds	061 113 2
Terriers	030 061 3

Umpire—Vesterfelt.

Over at Queen Alexandra School grounds the Bantam wrestlers had their day in the sun in subduing the Y-Preps of the same league when they laid on the mat four of the late innings to win going away by a lopsided 18-7 count.

Y-Preps: Mondwelli, Cameron, Dickson, Bodkin, Hamilton, Blackwick, Olmstead, Denike and Callaghan.

Wildcats: Ashley, Milligan, Stobbs, Parlement, Bone, Lewis, Stebings, Brown and Moore.

Wildcats	304 102 5

Umpire—McClelland.

POLICE BLOTTER

Eric Cappell, Herchimer Ave., reported the theft of his bicycle to the police on Monday. After giving a description of the bike to Sergeant Arthur Harman, the lad was instructed to proceed to the C.N.R. coal chutes, east of the city, where a bicycle of that description had been found abandoned.

Kingston police reported the theft of a 1937 model Chevrolet coach, bearing Ontario license plates number D-N-527, today, while B. Farrs, Trenton complained that a radio storage battery had been stolen out of his parked motor vehicle on East Metcalfe Street last night.

Sneak thieves stole a gallon of aluminum paint from the Canadian Industrial Alcohol warehouse at the Government Wharf during the week-end, Mr. R. Farquharson, plant supervisor reported to Belleville police today.

One complete and two transients shared the police station cell block last night.

JUTLAND'S STORY: HISTORIC BATTLE OF 25 YEARS AGO

German High Seas Fleet Came Out May 31, 1916, and Returned to Await Surrender After First Great War

By JACK TRACY

A British light cruiser, steaming to examine a suspicious merchantman, encountered a German warship and fired the first shots of history's greatest naval battle, the Battle of Jutland, 25 years ago today.

When day broke June 1 the last of the German enemy had proceeded into their own ports. Their losses were one battleship, one battle cruiser, four light cruisers and five destroyers.

The British lost three battle cruisers, three armored cruisers and eight destroyers. Although the British losses were heavier than those of the enemy, the German High Seas Fleet never again appeared at sea until it surrendered at Scapa Flow at the end of the war.

The British ship, the Galatea, was part of the screen of light cruisers in Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty's battle cruiser fleet which sailed out of Rosyth base for a rendezvous in the North Sea May 31 1916.

Beatty had orders to close within sight of the main body of the Grand Fleet under the commander-in-chief, Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, which had sailed from Scapa Flow. If no enemy were sighted they were to sweep southwards towards the Heligoland Bight. Both fleets had put to sea that day when the interception of German wireless directionals pointed to some exceptional undertaking.

The battle cruisers had reached the rendezvous when the Galatea sighted the enemy vessel, signalled to the command and opened fire. From then on the savage battle raged in and out of the swirling mists of the North Sea off the coast of Denmark. When the fight ended next morning, the British ships surveyed a sea that was empty save for the wreckage of British and German craft.

Results Indecisive

The battle was indecisive in that the squadrons of the Royal Navy failed to smash the German High Seas Fleet commanded by Vice-Admiral Reinhold Scheer. The commander-in-chief, and Vice-Admiral Sipper, and in that the Germans left British naval supremacy practically unchallenged.

But never before, or afterwards, had such masses of armament been marshalled against one another. Under the British command there were 151 ships, 37 of them battleships and battle cruisers. The Germans had 110 vessels, 27 of them capital ships. In addition, both fleets had their cruiser screens and destroyer flotillas.

The only great naval action since was that which resulted in a victory for the British Mediterranean fleet under Admiral Cunningham off Cape Matapan last April when the effectiveness of the Italian fleet was smashed, in this battle the Italians lost at least three heavy cruisers, one battleship and four destroyers.

But where planes and submarines played a prominent part in the naval actions against the Italians, neither aircraft nor undersea craft had any actual role in the Battle of Jutland. The 1916 battle was probably the last great sea fight in history where the test was solely one of gunnery and seamanship.

Naval Strategy

Until the eve of Jutland the German naval strategy had been to postpone a decisive naval action until the British fleet had been weakened by mines and submarines. British strategy had been to avoid any action over the Heligoland Bight. So on May 30 the Royal Navy was still awaiting a favorable chance to meet the enemy.

They had not long to wait. On May 30 Scheer decided to send Hipper with an advanced force of battle cruisers and light cruisers off the Norwegian coast when he heard that the British fleet had been divided to prevent coastal raids.

Hipper's idea was to follow astern of Scheer with the main body of the High Seas Fleet. He hoped there would be enough British ships silhouetted against the western sky the British craft were good targets and a shell from Hipper's flagship burst in the Lion carrying Beatty's flag. Closing of the magazine doors saved the Lion from destruction.

Almost at the same time the Indefatigable sank after receiving a salvo from the Von der Tann. A few minutes later the Queen Mary blew up and sank.

Then a light cruiser squadron under W. E. Goodenough, steaming ahead of the Lion, sighted battleships. Goodenough held his course boldly until they were identified as the main body of the High Seas Fleet under Scheer, steaming to Hipper's aid. Beatty also held his course until he sighted Scheer's ships. Then he turned north towards Jellicoe.

DEFIES ROOSEVELT

The strike leader, Harry Hook, business agent for the C.I.O. Machinists' Union, took this stand when summoned before the Defence Mediation Committee investigating defence where he is shown testifying.

Scheer's Absent Turn

By that time both the great fleets were steaming towards each other. When Scheer sighted Jellicoe's ships, he made an emergency manoeuvre and slipped out of range. Before disappearing his ships had sunk the battle cruiser Invincible at the cost of their own light cruiser Wiesbaden.

Twice more before darkness fell the two great fleets came in touch again. After dark, Jellicoe rejected the idea of a night battle. It would have been too difficult to distinguish friend from foe. His strategy then was to bar the homeward course of the enemy and reengage them at dawn.

With this plan in mind, the British fleet turned south in divisions, the destroyers taking stations astern. During the night there was fighting between Beatty's light craft and the enemy and just before dawn the 13th destroyer flotilla sank the German battleship Pommern.

BRITISH RAILMEN DIE "THUMBS UP" BUT CARRYING ON

Trainmen and Signalmen Keep Things Moving Through Bombing, Fires and Other Adverse Conditions

London (CP)—The "puff-puff" of a locomotive mounting an incline breaks the ghostly silence over London during a lull in an air raid indicating life and work continue in the world's greatest city.

In spite of bombs, fires and adverse weather conditions the railways have maintained communications from coast to coast since the collapse of France. Many passengers pay little attention to the men who always get them through. They only know transport is still running ready to take them where they want to go.

The full story of how railways are carrying on has yet to be told, but daily deeds of bravery by the workers have been recorded. Here are a few stories, picked at random, showing the odds against which railwaymen are working.

Charles Garrett intends to stick to his motto—and the railways—of "carry on." One night while flagging trains because signals had been disabled, a bomb fell him 20 yards. Two nights later, standing in the same spot, still flagging trains, more bombs fell. The blast from this salvo hurled Garrett 50 yards. His words, as he lay in hospital, are "the doctors tell me I'll be fit enough to go back in a couple of months."

Engineer "Bucky" Goldsack and his running mate Fireman Jack Robbins, although forced to leave their cab several times on a journey to London from the south, safely brought the train to a standstill at the terminus only 90 minutes late.

Once they fought an oil bomb fire in the coal tender. Few passengers, as they hurriedly left the carriages at London, noticed the bulge in the side of the tender—evidence of the conditions through which they had passed for most of the 70-mile run. "You've got more guts than I have," an R.A.F. officer who examined a piece of the bomb, told Goldsack and Robbins.

Signalman John Holmes, described by his mates as a man of few words, always would stick up his two thumbs and grin. One night he was knocked unconscious by blast from a bomb and taken to hospital. The stationmaster visited him a few days later and asked Holmes if he was feeling better. The reply was "thumbs up and a grin,"—then, as though the effort had been too much for him Holmes fell back—dead.

With incendiaries and high explosives falling all around him, 19-year-old signal-lad Ronnie Harris climbed to the top of a crow's nest signal box to extinguish a fire. He was 70 feet above the ground and fought the blaze for 45 minutes. Two nights later he was on duty again.

Yardmaster Harold Savage, by acting promptly, saved a train load of ammunition from being blown up when set afire by incendiary incendiaries. At one time he lay between a blazing wagon to deal with a fire bomb effectively.

Signalman Arthur Bullwell, 52, piloted a breakdown train over a time-bomb and its crater to the wreckage of a tunnel further along the line. Then he went back to his signal box near the bomb and operated the points for the breakdown train.

"Well, aren't we here to keep the trains running?" is the dry comment you get from these dishards of the "iron-road."

Two Box Cars Land In Front Yard

Campbellford, Ont., June 3 (CP)—Nelson Hardy and his family got something of a start Saturday when two pulp-laden Canadian National Railways box cars landed plump into their front yard within a couple of feet of a house. It happened in shunting operations on a nearby spur track. Apparently somebody missed a signal and the cars were, backed over the end of the spur.

Tall Fishing Story On "Winking Bass" Wins Nassau Trip

Montreal, June 2 (CP)—Charles Hall of Montreal was announced today by the Quebec Anglers' Association as winner of the Association's "fish story" contest from among 6,000 entrants with his yarn about the "winking bass."

Hall, who wins a plane trip to Nassau, Bahamas, wrote that while fishing last season he dropped his pearl-handled knife into the water. Moments later he caught a female bass, put it on a stringer and hung it over the side of the boat.

Suddenly, Hall's story goes, the water churned and he saw a large male bass "sawing away at the stringer with the pearl-handled knife I had just lost overboard." And as Hall reached into the water to grope for the stringer he felt something nudged into his hand. It was the knife—returned by the bass.

"As the fish disappeared," Hall says, "I saw him give me a wink of thanks. It was the first winking bass that I ever saw."

CHINA'S STRONG ARMY

Canberra (CP)—Recently a visitor in Australia, T. Z. Koo of the World Christian Student movement said the Chungking Chinese government now has an army of 3,200,000 men, of which only 200,000 were Communists under General Chou-en-lai.

Fair Way to Raise Army is by Compulsion Says Yukon Member

Ottawa, June 3—(CP)—An argument for conscription, suggestions about the proposed Alaska highway and a general discussion of Yukon territorial affairs were rolled into one speech delivered in the House of Commons last night by George Black, (Cok. Yukon).

He spoke on an estimate for the annual grant to the Yukon Territorial Council which, on motion of Minister Crerar, was passed was reduced from $50,000 to $47,500 and approved. Mr. Crerar gave no reason for the change from the amount inserted in the estimates as first presented to the House.

Mr. Black said he was glad to co-operate in the recruiting campaign but it was hard to answer a fit young man who, when asked to enlist, said he was willing to do so if others enlisted, as he did not want another man to take his job while he went to fight.

Wed is Tabee in Country

"The word conscription is taboo in this country," he said, "because the leaders of the two parties at the last election, for political reasons and nothing else, pledged their parties against conscription.

"I did not agree with that. I have always thought the only fair and just way to raise an army is by compulsion."

Capital was not asked to volunteer. It would be just a reasonable to say that only those who wished to do so need pay income tax as to carry on a voluntary system of recruiting. All fit young men owed a duty to render military service to their country.

Old Kentucky CIGARETTES

Views on Objectors

Mr. Black was glad conscientious objectors were to be placed in labor camps but said he would go further. They should be disfranchised, federally, provincially and municipally, and at the proper time their property should be taken by the government at a fair price and they should be shipped out of the country.

"It is their cold feet that are bothering them, not their conscience," he said.

BATTLE OF CRETE

While the Cretan war was being staged, the rebellion of the Iraqi rebel, Rashid Ali, who offered Germany a ready-made air base in Iraq in order to gain German entry and to strengthen his own position, broke and Rashid Ali has fled. Now there will be the loyalist Iraqi troops who are pro-British to face the Nazis if the latter try to come. The twelve days of Crete provided time for this new development.

The taking of Crete has been extremely costly to the Germans. British withdrawal was seen to be inevitable and this accomplishment will rank with the famous withdrawals from Dunkirk and Greece. The British troops, and the New Zealanders have written a page of heroism against odds and they did not fight in vain. The Greek-British struggle for Crete has been one of the greatest in history and will be looked back upon with honor in the days yet to come. While the British losses are admittedly serious, some fifteen thousand troops, including Greeks, have been evacuated. Lack of adequate air protection is given as cause of the turn of events in Crete.

VOICES OF THE POETS

Leaders of the democratic nations are showing the people of the English-speaking world new riches in the poets of the British lales and of the United States. Some time ago President Roosevelt quoted the famous lines by Longfellow, "Sail on O ship of State" in a message to Mr. Winston Churchill. Mr. Churchill's reply in a broadcast was to quote Arthur Hugh Clough, an English poet. Then on Sunday evening Prime Minister King quoted one of the great poets of England, Thomas Gray, author of the famous "Elegy." Now Gray was a classical scholar and the title of one of his poems was in Latin "Luna Habitabilis" (The Habitable Moon). Mr. King quoted the poet's lines to express his confidence in the outcome of the present war. The lines read were:

"England, so long the mistress of the sea,
Where winds and waves confess the sovereign sway,
Her ancient trident yet on high shall bear,
And reign, the sovereign of the conquered air."

It is hard to realize that Gray, writing nearly two hundred years ago, should in his inspiration have used the words, only now bearing a far greater implication than the poet could have intended, when he spoke of England, "sovereign of the conquered air."

Poets of the English-speaking race have done noble service for democracy. They have touched intimately the soul life of the British peoples from whom they were sprung. Burns, Scots, Irish and Welsh poetry bears the marks of the nobility of the lives of the poets and of the peoples among whom they lived and whom they interpreted to the world of their day. They have spoken with great wisdom and often with the prophetic voice. Lord Tennyson for instance foresaw the days of aerial navies.

And all these poets have seen the exalted destiny of Britain, flourishing in the world, because the British spirit is essentially moral and being moral, has a message for every heart.

To the English-speaking realize that they owe a debt to their leaders of today who have pointed out how these poets have spoken to today in the language of song.

COMPOSER HONORED

A bust of Stephen Collins Foster has been unveiled in the Hall of Fame, New York. While the world was waiting for the Hall of Fame to admit the first composer, there have been busts, statues, memorials and museums in a number of states in honor of his memory.

But his songs did not have to wait for recognition. They have touched a world sympathy. Ninety years ago "Old Folks at Home" was composed and two years later "My Old Kentucky Home." They possess something which sets the universal heart in rhythm with the emotions of these songs. Seventy after all plays a great part for it is a primal motive in life.

Stephen Collins Foster who is said to have possessed no formal training in music composed more than one hundred and seventy five songs, usually writing both words and music.

There is something of the folk song about his songs, springing from a universal desire for recording in rhythm the broad human sentiments and motives.

OURSELVES AND THERS...

BY Geoffrey

"JUNE"

Green are the fields, the forest is young,
Light hearts are happy, sweet voices hum,
Melodies float from the earth to the sky
And the soft shades of summer are soft where I lie.

Far from the world, its toil, and its care
I lie here asleep; and the warm summer air,
Alive with the scents of the foliage and flower,
Compels me to stay in this beautiful bower.

I open my eyes, look down on the road,
The farmer goes by with his cart and his load.
I don't envy him with his acres to keep While I can repose in the soft shade and sleep.

—Thomas E. Hyland, Belleville.

WHY CANADIANS FIGHT TO KEEP THE NAZIS AWAY

ALL trade unions in Canada would be dissolved under Nazi domination.

COLLECTIVE bargaining, which workers have secured after years of struggle, would be wiped out over-night.

CANADIAN parents would be deprived of the right to decide what their children should be taught.

CHRISTIANITY would be censored and teachers instructed by Nazi authorities as to what they should and should not teach.

ALL Canadian business would come under the thumb of Germany.

WORKERS would no longer be able to choose their own trade, nor would they be allowed to select a living place of their own fancy.

THERE would be butterless days for all citizens if butter were needed for export to Germany.

OLD age pensions would be a thing of the past.

WIDOWS' and Mothers' allowances would be stopped.

DEVELOPED sections of the country would be cleared of Canadians to make room for German immigrants.

THERE would be no more minimum wage act.

CANADIANS would step from the sidewalk to the roadway to allow German officers to pass. Canadian citizens would be forced to give the Nazi salute or court imprisonment.

CANADIAN newspapers would no longer express the opinion of Canadians and would submit all news items and editorials to the Nazi censor.

RADIO programs would be produced to suit the purpose of the aggressor.

PUBLIC meetings, when allowed, would be watched by the Gestapo.

TAXATION to provide indemnities to Germany would be heavier than Canada's present taxation.

MASONIC lodges and all fraternal orders and organizations would be dissolved.

THEATRES would be jammed with Nazi propaganda material and moving pictures would be subject to rigid Nazi censorship.

BOOKS which would fail to meet the pleasure of the Nazi authorities would be burned or banned.

PRIVATE telephones, if permitted, would be subject to "tapping" by Nazi agents.

TRAVEL from one section of the country to another, if only for a visit, would be subject to permission from the Nazis.

JUNK—In an age becoming known for its brevity, a great number of Nazi Junkers are being reduced to a single syllable by British anti-aircraft fire. Toronto Star.

HOW TO FE EL BETTER

Want to feel better? I'll give you the way;
That you've neglected, get at it today!
That letter unwritten, that visit unpaid,
That failure to keep to a promise you made;
Get at them this minute and clear off your mind
And very much better you'll feel you will find.

Want to feel better? I'll tell you just how
You can sit back in comfort a few hours from now
And glow with contentment and genuine pride,

Get rid of those duties which you've shoved aside.
Just clear off the desk of your mind once again
And you'll walk with the step of all healthy men.

Want to feel better? Go out of your way
To some one who's lonely, and do it today!
Forget the troubles so easy to find,
Get your heart lighter and clear off your mind.
Get free from regret which a death might reveal
And you'll be surprised how much better you'll feel.

Army Officers In the Making

The British Army's hardest training schools are the Octus (Officer Cadet Training Units), which were set up at the beginning of the war to meet the new demand for young officers. Many were established to supply armored units, infantry, artillery, signals, engineers and supply services as the land forces expended with unparalleled speed.

New methods of warfare, demanding a higher grade of independent action and quick decision, have placed a heavier increased responsibility on junior commanders; and the task of producing them, command and leads on the picked staffs of the Octus.

A cadet's training lasted three years in peace-time. Now it lasts, on an average, six months; but nothing of the practical side of an officer's duties can be cut from the curriculum, and what long ail he was expected to know with unlimited time for training, and in the light of new experience, more besides.

It will be seen, then, that a cadet course is something upon which he must concentrate if he is to succeed must embark with the most serious intent. It is a long and arduous test of ability, which not a few fail to survive.

At the outbreak of war a good many commissions were granted to men either from the universities with O.T.C. qualifications. Today, almost without exception, the Octus are the men from the ranks.

Of those with whom I did my training, for instance, were professional soldiers, with five, ten, and in two cases, more than 15, years' service as privates. N.C.O.'s and fully warranted officers. Most of them were in action last Spring. The rest were university professional and business men who either volunteered or were called to the Colors and had served more than six months in the ranks.

We lived exactly as we did in the ranks—guards, piquets, fatigues, barrack-room life and a communal mess to which one took one's own knife, fork, spoon and mug.

But the discipline was harder, training more intense. As a ranker living in barracks, I always had sheets and three or four blankets; as a cadet I slept between blankets, two in Summer, four in Winter.

We were responsible for the cleanliness of our barrack-rooms (and they had to be clean), our equipment and our bedding, and recruit training all over again, but the spirit and thoroughness with which a man tackled these jobs had as important a bearing on his final reports as his tactics or military law. I shall never forget the horrendous look on the face of one of our former W.O.'s when, on the first day he found himself detailed as "Orrah Jo'nies." Now he is a full lieutenant.

Such domestic diversions were, however, only a very small part of the general training plan, and coupled one's spare time. For the rest, we graduated from initial lectures and drill through three separate technical courses of one month each to the final tactical training and manoeuvres.

Almost every fortnight we sat for an examination of one sort or another, and the days following each were spent awaiting for the next. After the first six weeks, seven of our number, irrespective of education or social rank, were told that they had failed and were being returned to unit. The same fate met three others after the next days before we were gazetted.

A cadet is paid according to his rank before entering an Octu; but, should he have been an N.C.O. or warrant officer, he must relinquish all authority for the period of his training. He has no special kit to buy, the only additions to his uniform being a white band around his cap, or white tapes on the shoulder straps of his battle dress. When gazetted he receives a £20 uniform allowance.

The cadet's life is no bed of roses, but it is an enriching experience, and when he finally passes out he is more than well equipped for the harder test to come.—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

WHY SAILORS CALLED GOBS

Navy officers don't like to hear sailors called gobs.

Back in 1928 Admiral Henry A. Wiley, then commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, sent all ships under his command a letter in which he pointed out the use of "gob" be discontinued in U.S. Navy publications.

The word as a popular name for American sailors, declared Admiral Wiley, is undignified, unworthy and unnaval.

But "gob" is one of those odd nicknames that people go on using irrespective of the frowns of the purists.

Just how sailors got stuck with "gob" in the first place is something of a mystery.

It is often said that the word originated along the Chinese coast about 1912 when the American fleet was in the Far East.

One writer says it is derived from a Chinese word having a similar sound and signifying sailor or man.

But many old-timers in the Navy are sure that "gob" was applied to sailors before 1912.

Some think it may have been a term invented by Commodore Perry after opening the ports of Japan to foreign commerce.

A number of years ago this writer asked the U.S. Navy Department how the term originated. Undoubtedly," replied the Office of Naval Intelligence, "it was brought back from the Asiatic station and is derived from the Japanese word meaning a fighting farmer."

But there is another interesting angle to this question. Long before its application to American sailors "gob" was known in England to coastguards and those in the revenue service engaged in suppressing smugglers.

There is an old word "gob," probably of Celtic origin, meaning mouth or snout, a lump or mass of something, or the point of an anchor.

As a verb "gob" means to gab, gobble or to fill up with gobs of something.

It has been suggested that the members of the British coastguard and revenue were originally called gobs or gobbies because they were notorious for their gobbling—either gabbing or spitting; or that they were compared in derision to gobs of spit or something else.

In the Bible we are told that the Israelites and Philistines fought two battles at a place named Gob.

Bay Of Quinte W. I. Sponsors Tea For Red Cross

Mrs. Casey Ketcheson opened her home to her friends and neighbors on Friday afternoon to a Red Cross tea held under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Institute.

Mrs. C. Ketcheson, District President and Mrs. Fred Wilson, Brandt President, received the guests. Mrs. R. Ketcheson invited the guests to the dining room. Mrs. Fred Aikens, 1st Vice President and Mrs. P. Boulton, second vice president poured tea for the first hour. Mrs. G. Meyers, Mrs. W. Jones, Miss Grace Jeffery, Miss Flossie Bonisteel assisted in the serving. The second hour Mrs. Lewis Wilson, Mrs. Fred Rose poured tea. Mrs. T. A. Tucker, Mrs. McEwen, Mrs. C. Sickle, Mrs. G. Frost assisted in serving. Mrs. J. Westfall, Mrs. J. Jeffery, Mrs. J. Sanderock, Mrs. G. Clapp replenished the trays for the tea table. Mrs. F. Carr treasurer, looked after the tea money, Mrs. F. Denyes took in the money and tickets for the quilt. Mrs. Frank Sanderock holding the lucky ticket which won the quilt.

Mrs. B. Bonisteel, Mrs. Wm. Yateman and Mrs. H. Rutler were in charge of the home cooking table. Mrs. Bruce Hogle with an apron of many pockets had her pockets picked so many times that she had to call on her reserved supply to refill. Many friends from Trenton and Belleville were in attendance and enjoyed the afternoon.

The spacious home was beautifully decorated with spring flowers for the occasion. The tea table was centered with a large basket of red peonies, thistle and double narcissus. When the proceeds were announced to be around $42.00 everyone felt they had done their bit to help in this much needed work.

R.A.F. AIRCREWS FINE THEMSELVES

London (CP)—Pilots at a Royal Air Force station in the south of England have a system of fines by which they raise money for treats or provide loans to airmen whose homes have been damaged in air raids. A pilot who starts to grow a moustache is fined 36 cents and if it has not reached full growth at the end of a month he is fined 50 cents.

A flier who receives a decoration or is mentioned in dispatches is fined $2.50. Mention of his name in a newspaper costs him 60 cents. If his photograph appears he is fined $1.25.

"THIS IS WHY I AM BUYING VICTORY BONDS"

WHEN I WAS A BOY I learned that, "Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also."

Today, as never before, I know my greatest treasure in all the world and where it lies. It's right within the circle of my own family.

And tomorrow I would go out into the fields or woods, armed with a shotgun and willingly fight and die for my family's sake.

But I am not asked for that, yet. Instead, I am urged to buy Victory Bonds to defend my home — Bonds to guarantee the safety of wives and families and children.

How little to ask of me when others are doing so much. Every uniform, every war headline, every news broadcast from Europe, reminds me of what I should do.

Yes! I'll buy until I can buy no more. I may not be in the front line myself, but my dollars are certainly going to be.

HOW TO BUY—Give your order to the canvasser who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank, or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters. Bonds may be bought in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger. Canvasser, bank, trust company or your local Victory Loan Headquarters will be glad to give you every assistance in making out your order form.

Sgt. Pilot Slack, A.H., Vancouver, B.C., left today for Halifax, N.S., after spending his leave with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Huffman of Picton.

Miss Merle Robb Stratford, Ont., has returned home after spending the week-end with Ella city the guest of Mrs. J. Bray and other friends.

A delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower was held last evening in honor of Miss Dorothy Elliott, bride-to-be, when Mrs. W. Bray, 15 Bracky Street, entertained at her home. The hostess was assisted Mrs. A. Smith, Detroit, and Mrs. Harold Cowain, Campbellcroft. The party was a complete surprise to the guest of honor. The many gifts were presented in a basket decorated in pink and white, the same dainty color scheme prevailing in the decoration of the rooms. Bingo was enjoyed by the guests during the evening and refreshments were served.

A joint meeting of the Senior W.A., and the Evening Branch W.A., of Christ Church was held in the Parish Hall on night when members had the pleasure of hearing a most interesting report of the diocesan annual meeting in Trinity Church, Brockville, from Miss Grace Gillard, the delegate. Miss Gillard's address presented a stimulating picture of the highlights of the meeting, the achievements of the past years and plans for future work. Mrs. William Hughes, the diocesan junior secretary-treasurer, gave a thought-provoking talk on 'Leadership'. Following the addresses the members were served refreshments.

Weddings

FENTON—EDWARDS

A quiet wedding took place in Oshawa, on Friday evening, May 30th, when Edith May Edwards, youngest daughter of Mrs. Ada Edwards and the late William Edwards of Belleville, became the bride of Stanley Fenton, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs Fenton of Oshawa. The Rose of St. Simon's Church officiating. They will reside in Oshawa.

HARRIS—RODWAY

Picton, June 3— (Special)—Rev. J. B. Creggan officiated at the marriage, this afternoon, of Marion Matilda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rodway, Picton, to Cory Clare, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, Wellington, at Picton United Church parsonage.

The bride was gowned in a jacket dress of cedar blue, with matching turban and white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Rodway, who wore floral sheer with white hat and accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Garrett Harris was his brother's groomsman. For travelling the bride chose a military blue ensemble with matching hat, white accessories and a blue grey coat. After a trip to Algonquin park and points north they will reside in Wellington.

POTTER—DODDS

Picton, June 3.—(Special)—A wedding of wide interest was solemnized in St. Paul's church, Milford, at high noon, when Ada Muriel, daughter of Mrs. S. Pi Dodds, Cherry Valley and the late Mr. Dodds, became the bride of Rev. Ernest J. Potter, B.C.A.F., Winnipeg, formerly of Trenton R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Potter of Ottawa and Vancouver. The church was beautifully decorated in honor of the bride and given by the Guild of the church, and Rev. J. Cantrell officiated. The wedding music was played by the groom's father and Rev. F. E. Rice sang during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her eldest brother, S. P. Dodds, the bride wore a finely pleated dress of air force blue with white hat and white accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart rosebuds and fern. She was attended by her sister, Miss Josephine M. Dodds, wearing a dress of white crepe with navy and white hat and navy accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. Philip F. Dodds, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Dodds wearing grey sheer with matching hat and accessories and a corsage of sweetpeas and rosebuds. Mrs. Potter, mother of the groom, was in pale blue sheer with matching hat and corsage of sweet peas and rosebuds. The guests were assisted by little Miss Arlene Dodds wearing a pink party frock with large bow in her hair. The bride's table was centred with the wedding cake with tall tapers in crystal candlesticks on either side. From a model piane above, red, white and blue streamers ran to the cake. Red tulips, iris and lilies of the valley decorated the table. The assisting hostesses were Mrs. Leonard Carman, Green Point, Miss Gwen Clapp, Scotts Bay, Mrs. Willard Metcalfe, Mrs. Nellie Miller, Picton.

Later Sgt. and Mrs. Potter left by motor for Ottawa and points east the bride travelling in a white suit with white accessories and a pale pink Scotch tweed coat. They will leave next week for Winnipeg to reside, the groom being stationed there following a year spent at Trenton air station.

ALLORE—GABOURIE

At St. Edmund's Church, Bloco, Monday morning, at nine o'clock a pretty wedding took place when Rita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gabourie, Bloco, became the bride of Francis Alicre son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Allore, Bloco, Rev. V. Meagher officiating.

The bride, LECTURER in marriage by her father, was charming in a floor length gown of white net with sweetheart neckline and tulle veil. She carried a prayer-book from which streamers were caught with flowers. Miss Mary Gabourie, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of blue net similar to that of the bride, with matching shirred net hat. She carried a prayer-book, caught with streamers of flowers. Mr. Eddie Allore, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

Wedding music was played by Miss Olga Mulrooney, organist of the church, and Miss John Fahey, Peterborough, was soloist singing "Ave Maria Blen."

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gabourie in flowered sheer with black accessories and a shirt waist, instead of shirring at the neckline.

To Demonstrate Cooking Can Be Fun

MRS. DAY COOKING SCHOOL LECTURER

A Cooking School, yes—but as different! Recipes that have been developed and tested in a model kitchen will be demonstrated to the housewives of Belleville in a real home kitchen on June 4, 5 and 6. Crisp, colorful curtains frame the windows, a plant blooms on the sill. Over the door the kitchen clock ticks away, and the tea kettle hums merrily.

Mrs. Day, the lecturer, believes that cooking can be fun. She practices what she preaches in this model kitchen on the stage, so that you can actually see what makes the kitchen efficient around the round. She has a genius for shortcuts. She has a knack for humming up new ideas in food. She will show you why quality, rather than quantity in buying is more economical in the run.

Last year, housewives attended her thirty-eight cooking schools. At each session of her Schools the Auditorium was crammed to the doors as hundreds of old and young, experienced and inexperienced cooks came for the refresher course.

The Cooking School sessions in Belleville will take place three afternoons beginning Wednesday, at the McCarthy Theatre.

By ANNE ADAMS

Here's the answer to your three summer whites—a dress that's feminine . . . softly becoming . . . and full of fashion news. A really enchanting design by Anne Adams, Pattern 4778 will look lovely in a soft, filmy lace, or in a crepe print. One of its 'smartest features is that smooth, low-pointing front skirt yoke, Yokes of the shoulders give trim lines there too. The dresser version of this frock shows wonderful softness in shirring below the wide, pointed yoke and in smart gathering through the double front skirt panels. Doesn't a corsage look pert tucked into the belt? If you want a more tailored style, omit the gathers in the skirt and use them instead of shirring at the neckline.

Pattern 4778 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. The 16 dress with skirt gathers, takes 3 1-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

For Tuesday, June 3

A DAY suitable for the renewed life and activity in old crystallized or static conditions, which may respond to new techniques, modernized methods or plans and push and hurl aside. Elders and superiors as well as long-established institutions may respond to such a fresh start, or assist in relation to stagnation or inactivity of societies. But there is need of sagacity, astuteness, as well as suspicion as both business and private affairs are in danger from intrigue, snares and treachery.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of definite progress in resurrecting old static and congested conditions by infusing new methods, sound systems, keen insight as to values and by dogged determination and industry as well as by the sturdy help of old institutions, employers or elders. However, in all associations there should be watchful eye toward intrigues, trickery or duplicity. Under the beneficent sway there should be enhanced values in property and solid investments. Health and merit should attain proper rewards. A child born on this day should be persistent, steady, responsible and have a love of sound views and system. It may however suffer fraud or deception from sources least expected.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wants to Wait Until He Finishes School

Dear Miss Fairfax:

He's 21 and I'm 18, and we're very much in love. His name has been called into service, but only we can be married.

It was my idea that we better not have an engagement during his absence. He agreed and said we could be married before he leaves. I love him enough to wait a year, but not longer. If he can remain true to me while at camp. Please answer me as soon as you possibly can.

M.

It would certainly be much more sensible if you defer your marriage until after he has served his time in the army. At that time he will be better able to support a wife. Also, it would be a good way to find out if you are actually in love with each other, or if it's only a case of infatuation.

Family Divided Over Nine-Year Old Dear Miss Fairfax:

My brother is nine years old and in third grade. He is very much behind in his schoolwork, and mother is anxious to help him with his reading. Because my brother always wants to go out to play, mother won't let him listen to his favorite radio program. This happened to him at awful crying spell, which makes my father angry, and he has words with mother.

Father thinks the boy should not be deprived of his radio program, and mother says it's wrong to keep him from it when he hasn't practised his reading. Will you please tell us what to do?

As the mother of grown sons, now happily past the age of worry, I'm afraid your family will over similar problems to yours, please let me say that no two children in the same family have like dispositions or require the same handling.

Perhaps child psychiatrists would not agree with me, but if I had a youngster like your nine-year-old brother to deal with, I'd let him listen to his favorite radio program only as a reward for working over his reading lesson and doing well with them.

Hesitates to Marry Man With Little Education

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm very much in love with a young man who is 27 years of age; I am 26. He is also in love with me and has asked me to marry him. However, I wonder if it would work out. I've had a high school education while he has only gone through eight grades. He doesn't even have a special trade or training of any sort, but is a success at anything he undertakes.

My parents and some of my friends tell me that I'd be taking a risk in marrying him, as an education is absolutely necessary today, and that I would be ashamed when people found out these things about him. Please advise me what to do.

Worried.

While it is astounding to note the number of people who lack education, it is even more surprising that they do not take advantage of the opportunities offered them to correct this humiliating disadvantage.

Almost every city, town and village in this country offers free night school classes in rudimentary subjects. Why not this young man enroll in some such class? And why don't you help him? I wish both of you luck, and I know he will make good.

House Wedding Can Be Charming

Many brides prefer to be married in their homes, and whether there is a large house or a cottage, or a large or small apartment, it can be made a charming setting for the wedding. Loving hearts and hands can plan a simple and beautiful background that will give the wedding an intimate charm and dignity.

In a house wedding it is wisest to keep all the wedding plans in one setting should, as much as possible, be retained. If the house is small, and the number of guests rather large, some of the heavier pieces of furniture may have to be removed. However, several chairs should remain for the comfort of older guests may sit, if they wish.

For the wedding party, choose the most effective and adaptable place in the room; perhaps before a mantel or between two windows. This may be made a perfect bank of ground, with flowering plants, trees branches, trailing vines, greenery or flowers. On the ends of the improvised altar it is effective to have two tall candle sticks or flower or floor candlesticks containing candelabrai candles, or tall vases filled with ivy or smilax, or tall vases of white flowers.

Sometimes an aisle is formed by white satin ribbons or flower-decorated posts. If the service required is there is a prayer bench, covered with one long white satin cushion or two small ones.

The music of a house wedding if there is any, must be perfectly played or sung. The wedding march may be sung, or a phonograph record or grain music may be used. As is very often done now, a small organ may be rented and an organist engaged.

Because of the limitations of space at the usual house wedding, the number invited has fewer attendants than at a church wedding of it is similar nature, but the ceremonies are no shorter.

The bride's mother stands at the door of the room in which the ceremony is to be performed, receiving the guests. The bridegroom, his best man and the clergyman enter the room and take his place at the improvised altar. Then the ushers bring the guests to their seats and meet ushers, taking their places on the other side of the ceremony-place; the bride stands at the left of the ceremony-place; at the right stand the relatives and friends of the groom. As the ceremony is about to begin, the bride's father takes the girl to the improvised altar and leaves her at the left of the improvised altar.

At the first notes of the wedding march, or at some other signal, the clergyman enters the room and takes his place at the improvised altar. Then the ushers bring the groom and best man enter, taking their places at the left through another door. If this can be arranged, it is wise to have the groom (if any) walking in pairs. Next, the maid of honor walking alone, the bride, on her father's right arm, (if there is only one entrance to the room, the clergyman, before the groom and best man, enters first, and is followed by them, at the bridal procession.)

When the bride and her father reach the ceremony-place, the groom steps forward to meet them, and the bride stands at his left, and the bride's father steps back a pace or two to the right of the bride, where he waits until the place in the ceremony which he gives the bride in marriage. The maid of honor stands at the left of the bride with her flowers during the sing part of the cergmony. The best man stands at the right of the groom, to give him the ring at the proper time.

After the benediction is pronounced, the groom kisses the bride, the clergyman, offers his "best wishes" to the bride and the "congratulations" to the groom. Then the bride and groom turn to receive the greetings of their relatives and friends. In a house wedding there is no recessional.

The wedding repast is usually served in the dining-room (there is no room) may not be a bride's table in another room), and the menu may be as simple or elaborate as desired.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Why Eating Tough Food, 4th With Fingers, is Good for the Teeth

It will be observed often that both parents and their children have an unusually fine set of teeth. Since that bad teeth are inheritable. It more likely is the result of all members of the family having the same eating habits. For tooth decay is largely a matter of decay. The thing to do for decay is to prevent it, and the best way to prevent it is th eat the proper foods, correctly prepared. Even keeping the teeth and mouth clean is secondary to this.

Parents who would endow their children with good teeth must begin the task before birth, and so give them the following practical suggestions are offered.

The first thing is to avoid allowing refined foods to makeup the bulk of the diet. It used to be that refined white flour was one of the worst offenders, but the millers are beginning to put back into it the needed minerals, vitamins and oils that are removed when the flour is ground. The nowadays flour is this new "fortified" flour or bread made from it, is not half bad. But it is unnecessary as well advised to keep a supply of whole grain flour around for home cooking. It can be wheat or rye flour, but can also be used in making delicious bread, delicious pies, cakes and cookies.

Another thing to demonstrate is the use of natural or raw sugars as much as possible. Modern, refined white sugar, we know is a factor in tooth decay. Corn syrup is a good substitute, so are maple sugar, maple syrup and raw sugar, brown sugar or Demerara sugar, as it is often called. Scientists who have made exhaustive studies say that these sugars do not injure your child pick things up in his hand to, they have tried them on remote tribes with perfect teeth. A similar test, on white sugar did. I suggest too, that we employ feeding methods that will tend to develop the jaws of the child through more exercise than many get from modern diets. A breast fed baby usually gets adequate exercise in this jaws. If the baby is bottle fed, then short nipples ought to be used, for the child must exert more endeavor from the standpoint of the exercise needed for proper development of the jaws.

When a child is given solid food to eat, it is advisable to choose rather tough foods so the jaws will get plenty of exercise. Crusty bread too, whenever practical, to let the and eat them instead of cutting them up into small pieces.

In making salads, don't shred the carrots and the lettuce. Leave them in large pieces requiring plenty of chewing. Eat celery by the stalk. In this develoing the jaws and keeps teeth healthy.

A doctor I know who had made a study of the effects of eating techniques on teeth, advocated and practised— eating everything from his hand, whether it was roast beef, salad or potatoes. Undoubtedly, this method of eating does the most good for the jaws and the teeth, and if most of us did this way then it will be good etiquette.

Work Needn't Spoil Hands

Lupe Velez has beautiful well groomed hands.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Mrs. Useless doesn't do a lick of housework, so she has no hand troubles. But Mrs. Busy, who hustles pots and pans and washes the baby clothes, not to mention cleaning the gas range and digging dust out of radiators, has plenty of griefs. Her nails get brittle, hands get rough and, maybe, while she is still a young woman they will look old and worn. She must not court beauty wreckage. She must look ahead, take Time by the cowlick and protect her poor little mitts. Strong, useful, willing hands appeal to the heart, but not to the eye if they look dowdy and shabby.

Use Good Cleaners

She must find good cleaning mediums for her household duties, avoid strong ones that eat into the skin. She must avoid water that is very hot or very cold; one chaps the skin, the other causes the flesh to swell and take on wrinkles.

When doing messy work, like washing windows, she must wear rubber gloves. Not a silly one. Dusting, too, is hard on the hands. Gloves can be used.

Lotions keep the flesh smooth, but lubricating is necessary to take the place of the natural oil that it constantly being washed away. Lanolin is a good medium because it disappears quickly. After washing the hands in soft lime, supply it freely.

Massage will help keep the fingers from getting knotty and swollen. Thumb in the lanoline, starting at the wrist, working upward in each finger tip. Friction the finger nail beginning at the base where the new fabric is forming.

If the knuckles look dingy after house cleaning, add a little yellow cornmeal to the soap and grind it into the flesh. It will not only act as a perfect cleansing agent, but the minerals in the grains will prove soothing.

Mr. Ross Woodward was in Toronto most of last week and had his tonsils removed he returned home on Thursday night.

Miss Fern Reid celebrated her 31th birthday on Sunday and entertained a number of her little friends to dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hagerman and Harold of Amzon, and Mr. Henry Hagerman of Edmonton, Alta., were Sunday guests at Mr. and Mrs. R. Stapley's.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow had dinner Thursday evening with friends in Belleville.

Quite a number from here attended the sale at Mr. George Hamilton's of Sidney on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward Sr., of Lindsay are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Woodward.

Friends and neighbors gathered on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wannamaker to spend a social evening and do honor to their son Pte. James Wannamaker.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart was chairman for the occasion. A number of patriotic songs were sung. Then Mrs. Marjorie Parks and Miss Marion McMullen each sang a solo which was greatly enjoyed by all. Mr. Stewart gave a short talk. Following this James was asked to take a chair in the living room. An address was read by Mrs. Bert Reid, and James was presented with a wrist watch along with all good wishes from his friends.

James expressed his thanks for the gift. Then all joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The National Anthem was sung, and then lunch was served and a social hour was enjoyed.

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Melrose W. I. met for their regular May meeting at the home of Mrs. J. G. Milligan on Thursday afternoon, May 29th.

With the president in charge, the meeting opened in the usual way. The district annual, held at Roslin, June 4th was announced and program were given the delegates.

The coogrative program was discussed and a decision made as to how it would be dealt with this year. A motion carried by which the Melrose Institute will use all their time and funds for war work. With seven quilt tops on hand plans were made to hold a quilting, open to the whole community, in the church hall.

The balance of Red Cross funds from last year $25.00 will be handed in to the Belleville Red Cross.

The President of the Ivanhoe W. I., Mrs. Thos. Fleming, was a guest at this meeting and was called on for a few remarks. She spoke on the aims of their Institute and the practice they were carrying out this year of making a study of Canadian writers and their works. Several of the poems of Edna Jacques were given. A flower in bandiap was given Mrs. Fleming following her short address.

The program convener, Mrs. Fred Jeffrey, now took charge and the Birdie's program held over from the April meeting followed:

Mrs. Mastrey gave a humorous reading taken from the "Ourselves and Others" section of the paper.

"Two Sides" by Edgar Guest was given by Mrs. Bruce Sherman.

A short reading sent in by Mrs. Robertson was given by Mrs. Jeffrey. Mrs. C. Haight read "A Mother Hubbard Sermon," after which Mrs. B. Sherman sang a solo "I love you truly," accompaniment played by Mrs. Lorne Wess.

Miss Frances Macfarlane gave the paper prepared by Mrs. Chas. Young entitled "Building a home in Canada."

Mrs. Jeffrey now gave the topic paper "Dos and Don'ts for newly weds" in which she stressed the "Do's" remarking that if this were done in practice the "Don'ts would take care of themselves.

Collection received $3.75. Nineteen tea, were paid.

Red Cross articles were handed in to the conveners and arrangements made for additional supplies.

The hostess and ladies of the fourth line served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Attendance at, including 8 visitors. Thanks were extended the hostess and program committee for their efforts in making the meeting a success.

WALLBRIDGE W. I.

The May meeting of Wallbridge Women's Institute was held May 28th at the home of Mrs. Frank Shorey, 4th Concession Sidney. Owing to a busy season there were only 14 members present and one visitor.

The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Sam Nicolson with Mrs. Lane as pianist, "Were let the old flag fall" was the opening number. The Institute Ode and the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Roll call was answered with Wise sayings of mother or grandmother. Treasurer's report was given.

Last month the "Help-win-the-war" effort of collecting salvage was discussed. Mrs. A. Erickhson and Mr. J. Henderick collected the salvage and it was sold to the Belleville Waste and Metal Co., swelling the treasury by $43.85. The Institute gave the men a donation in appreciation of their service. All are asked to continue to save everything that is discarded around the home, and to save all bones, even fish bones. Members are to receive 40¢ a pound for green bones and 25¢ a cwt. for dry bones and they are to be collected each week. It was decided to cancel all co-operative programs for the duration of the war.

There is Red Cross work waiting for any one who can do it. It was suggested it all about the Institute's portion of the Red Cross money donated by the County Council for Sidney township. A donation was given Mr. Pair, Agricultural Representative at Stirling toward carrying on the School Fair. It was moved that Mrs. H. Ketchum, Mrs. Wilson, and Mrs. Holmes act as delegates to the district convention held by Chairman W. I. at Sidney Baptist Church.

Mrs. Wickson convener for May took charge of the meeting. The topic was "Mother's Day." A song was sung and Mrs. Nicolson gave a very interesting paper.

The second display for May is set aside as "Mother's Day", a day when we can show her affection and give her blossoms. It is a good day to start new appreciation of mothers, but everyday should be mother's day.

Current events was prepared by Mrs. Rose Fisher.

The meeting was closed with National Anthem. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Shorey for her kind hospitality in opening her home for the meeting. The convener and her hostesses served pie-la-mode in place of serving a lunch.

Mrs. Casselman First Liberal Woman Member

Edmonton, June 3 (CP)—The first Liberal woman member of the House of Commons is Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, an easy winner over two opponents in the Edmonton East by-election yesterday.

Nominated as a candidate after the death of her husband, F. C. Casselman, successful Liberal candidate in the 1940 general election, Mrs. Casselman defeated Orvis Kennedy, New Democracy-Social Credit, and A. A. MacLeod, "People's Campaign."

Mrs. Casselman, a native of Tara, Ont., and a teacher in the Kingston, Ont., Collegiate Institute before coming to Edmonton 22 years ago, is the second woman member of the present Parliament. The other is Mrs. Dorise Nielsen, Unity Member for North Battleford and the leading speaker in support of Mr. MacLeod in the Edmonton East campaign.

Increased Lead Steadily

From the start of the count Mrs. Casselman had a comfortable margin and she increased her lead steadily. The complete, unofficial count for the 48 polls was Mrs. Casselman, 7,511; Kennedy, 4,151; MacLeod 2,733. Mr. MacLeod, editor of the Canadian Tribune at Toronto, lost his $200 deposit for failing to get half the total vote for the winning candidate.

The election of Mrs. Casselman, who asserted in the campaign that the only issue was the war war effort and that the record of the Government of Prime Minister Mackenzie King merited a liberal victory, was conceded 50 minutes after the poll closed at 9 p.m. E.D.T.

The result made the standing in the House of Commons—Liberal 177; Liberal-Progressive 3; Independent Liberal 3; Conservative 40; Independent Conservative 1; New Democracy 10; Co-operative Commonwealth Federation 8; Independent 1; Unity 1; Vacant 1. Total—345.

Too Active Child Poses A Problem

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Some mothers succeed at controlling the little child, in hand, cases, by wearing the youngster down. But the trouble is they also wear themselves down. This letter

"Dear Dr. Myers: I have two children, one seven months, the other three years of age. The baby is wonderful but my little boy has been terribly hard to manage over. "He will not take a nap. He climbs right out of his crib, and I get exhausted lifting him back. Above all, he will not go to bed at night before 10 o'clock at the earliest. As fast as we put him in bed he climbs right out. He does this fifteen and twenty times a night, sometimes more.

"This makes it awfully hard for me as I have no much washing, etc., to do after he finally goes to sleep (from exhaustion) that I don't retire myself before two, and he is up again at 6:45 or before. He is over-active during the day, but certainly has plenty of energy left at night.

"Practically every night his father plays a game with him to see who will go to sleep first. His father, does, and he ends up. Some nights his father spanks him but this has no effect.

A Solution

I do admire your patience but wish you would not be so "fashionable" in your methods with this youngster. He has two problems: to train him to obey, and to help relieve his tension.

There is no good in Dad spanking this child unnecessarily. You both should work out a consistent plan. Say something like this: Put him in bed—pick him up and carry him there—about seven. Tell him he must not get up. The moment he does, spank him. Do it every time he does till he gives up. Expect him to hold out a long while the first night and for several nights. Be always in the hall till the habit is corrected.

During the day, read to him for a few minutes occasionally. Hear his talk, and show appreciation. Admire his crudest creations. Cuddle him now and then. Have Dad read to him on arriving home and make things with him. Never compare him unfavorably with Baby.

During the day, pick out a few things he must never touch. Spank him when he disobeys. Do nothing about other things till he learns permanently to avoid the few. As soon as he will stay where you assign him for punishment to sit in a chair several minutes—say for exactly twenty minutes. And good luck.

Fashion Flashes

The lovely camelia has become a favorite flower for hat trimming. Small hats with lace caressing the brim and big hats trimmed with one huge camelia have been seen around town lately, and right smart too!

Inspiration for print designs never seems to cease. From the American scene, one designer thought up a print to glorify the country auction. The design, done in one piece in red, white and blue, includes lamps eagle door-knockers and blue willow china plates.

The Spanish dancer has contributed the ruffled frock, a perfect favorite everywhere. A new model has a tiered bodice of dotted Swiss organdy and a wide skirt made entirely of ruffled net piped in dark red. A wide ruffle edges the rounded neckline.

Just the thing for daytime and informal after-dark occasions is the black dress and jacket costume. A good model is in black silk crepe with a top of Black point d'esprit. A wide ruffly collar goes over the collarless jacket, which has jeweled buttons.

Meant for success is the blazer coat both in the short and the new long versions. A full-length blazer that is pleasing everyone is in navy blue tweed bound with white flannel.

FBI STUDIES WRECKAGE OF BRITISH PLANE

Four Aviation Experts Are Killed When Big Bomber Sideslips Into San Diego Bay

SABOTAGE SUSPECTED

San Diego, Calif., June 3 (AP) — The unexplained performance of a $250,000 British Liberator Bomber, that sideslipped into San Diego Bay and killed four aviation experts aroused suspicion today of sabotage.

F.B.I. and company agents, investigating the crash, awaited salvaging of additional pieces of the wreckage for examination.

Failure of the controls apparently caused the crash yesterday of the great camouflaged ship, of the type used by the British to bomb Berlin.

Observers said the bomber took off from Lindbergh Field easily enough and climbed swiftly. Then it suddenly slipped sideways into the bay. The left wing struck. The plane was shattered and sank.

A crash boat rescued Lewis M. McCandless, 35, of Woodstock, Ill., one of the five men aboard. Seriously injured, he was taken to the Naval Air Station Sick Bay.

The body of Mechanic William H. Risser, 30, of Wheatley, Ark., was recovered.

Still unfound were the bodies of Consolidated Aircraft's chief test pilot, William Wheatley, 38, Gardner, N.Y., one of the country's most able airmen; Cyril T. Austen, 39, Kansas City, Mo., assistant test pilot, and Bruce Craig, 21, Chicago, aviation student.

A spokesman for the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation said "evidences of sabotage" had been discovered, but would not say what F.B.I. men would discuss the matter further.

WEYGAND MEETS VICHY MINISTERS

North African Commander and Expert on Syria to Confer on Darlan

Vichy, June 3.—(AP)—A council of Ministers was held today with Gen. Maxime Weygand — North African commander and expert on Syrian defense, attending.

Vice-Premier Jean Darlan arrived half an hour late at the Cabinet meeting. He was expected to confer today with Weygand. The tremendous North African commander conferred yesterday with Marshal Petain.

After the two-hour Cabinet session, a communique was issued saying merely that the minister had met. No details were given.

An authoritative source said the commander of the only formidable French army left after the Armistice reported to Petain "on the situation in Africa", where British bombers last week attacked Italian ships in the French Tunisian harbor of Bizta.

Weygand arrived yesterday, unannounced, by plane.

LONDON MAIL SHARPLY CRITICAL

Says Britain Needs Radical Shake - up on Home Front

London, June 3—(CP)—The Daily Mail, in the strongest press criticism of the British Cabinet within weeks, today called for a shake-up.

"When are we really going to get down to the job of winning the war?" the Mail asked. "We are in machines, factories and shipyards to full capacity when we are going to see an end of masterly retreats . . .

Saying the country was seriously concerned about the way things are going, the newspaper continued:

"Churchill declined to believe there was any uneasiness about Greece. Perhaps he can be persuaded that the people are deeply disturbed about Crete.

"We have been surprised in Norway, France, Greece and Crete. . . . We have suffered from serious mistakes. Serious mistakes have been made no mistakes.

"Somebody, not Mr. Churchill needs new ideas. She certainly needs a radical shake-up on the home front.

"Changes are needed and Churchill should not hesitate to make them. The fate of his government may well depend upon his prompt and vigorous action."

WAGE INCREASES GIVEN

London, June 3 (C.P. Cable) — Wage increases retroactive to June 1 will be granted 115,000 railway shop workers was announced today at a meeting of the Railroad Shop Men's Council.

Wages of adult males will be increased four shillings (98 cents) weekly and those of adult females three shillings (74 cents). Proportionate increases will be granted juniors.

Trenton and District

Britain Depending on Canada And United States for Aid Says Canadian Radio Commentator

Trenton, June 3.—"Britain needs tools and equipment badly and is up to Canada to help supply them", said William Strange, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation commentator speaking at Converse Simcoe Park, last night, at one of the National Victory Loan Campaign . . .

Britain is depending on Canada and the United States, Mr. Strange said in his address. "If war is to be kept from Canadian shores, we must send all we can immediately or it will be too late. If we fail the British people now it will be the greatest betrayal the world has ever known".

There is a great need for planes, ships and other war equipment, according to the speaker. While Canada is building on a country, Mr. Strange stated that he saw one ship destroyed with four bombers on its deck. He said he wished there much more use to the British than to the fishes.

Describing the Nazi pilots as young hooligans with twisted minds under the influence of the greatest tyrant the world has ever known", Mr. Strange declared that he doubts sage and destruction of London and other cities in England.

"When I saw London, it was the most unbelievable example of style" he stated. "Whole streets, familiar to visitors to London, are wiped clean. West End, a city just outside of London, which used to be the finest residential district, mansions, lpalities and advanced in regulation and modest dwellings have been entirely extinguished".

Each Bomber Flies Three Jobs

Practically everyone in England is at present handling three jobs, he said. He said that he did his weekly dinner, last evening. The first job is their regular job, occupation or vocation: the second is doing A.R.P. under the direction of the Air Raid and the third is training for something else.

"The whole population of England is a potential army. If the Nazis attempted to set foot on English soil, I pity them" he said. "They'd run.

"You ex-service men will have to change your occupations or of noise in order to visualize the noise of the present war", he continued. "Bombs today are not the bombs of the past but the bombs used in the last war. They come screaming down out of the skies to make a thunderous noise. The Spitfire has a whine which makes a louder nang than anything that Goering can produce in the plane necessary to drop the bombs to places, where they will become effective are lacking".

Mr. Strange described the task of protecting the merchant marine as tremendous. The Admiralty is having a difficult job of protecting the many ships in so great an area and yet the losses are small, in comparison.

"The navy needs 100 destroyers as quickly as they can possibly be obtained", he said. "This need is most urgent. The job of one destroyer in this war is five times as great as any ship had to do in the last war".

Fall to Break Morale

The Nazis have tried to break the morale of the British people by all sorts of tricks and more he told the Rotarians. "One of their tricks is to drop innocent looking objects like fountain pens and other similar objects. When the children pick them up they explode maiming the child for life. Hundreds of children have suffered by this trick and the Nazis hope to break the morale of the parents in this way. Another fact of the Germans, was the machine-gunning of a school by a German plane for fifteen minutes. Fortunately the children were not in the school at the time".

Such things are done to terrorize the people and break their morale, he said. "But the morale of the British people is high and unbroken because the British people are the freest people in the world. Yet they can not hold on indefinitely unless they get help".

"Support the Victory Loan Campaign; buy bonds and aid the British people", he said, "and then both audiences here last night. "Unless you do that the country cannot realize what you have to do and do it then the Nazi machines will go down in shame and your children sold into bondage for generations to come".

Trenton, June 3.—The Trenton Lions Club is staging a Jamboree at the Exhibition Grounds here, in an effort to raise money for the underprivileged children.

Opening last night, the jamboree was already attracted hundreds of Trentonians and the Lions Club expect the Jamboree will be a great success. Sideshows, cabins and all sorts of attractions are being provided by the Lions in their efforts to raise money for their welfare work.

The Continental Cans moved into first place in the Trenton Softball League here last night, by defeating the R.C.A.F. Armourers 7-1.

Stacey, the elongated hurler for the Continentals, hurled steady ball, allowing the Flyers a hit throughout the game. Burtt, on the other hand, was hit for five runs on even beats until the last two innings when he relieved Lee and the Continentals collected two hits in each of the last two innings.

Both teams went on a rampage in the first frame with each nine collecting four runs apiece. Every time on the pitchers settled down to serious business. The Flyers scored another run in the second, to take the lead which they held until the fifth frame when the Canners took the lead and held it throughout the remainder of the game.

McColl with a double and two singles was the best at bat for the winners, while Gauthier collected three singles for the losers.

The lineups:

Continental—Austin, 1b; D. Anderson, rf; McColl, cf; Henry, rf; Stacey, p; G. Anderson, ss; Lafferty, c; Ruttan 3b, and Weber 2b.

R.C.A.F.—Bingo, Whalen, Rogers, Burtt, Gauthier, Romelli, Richards, Hook, and Capuano.

Victory Torch On It's Way to Porquis Junct.

Kapuskasing, Ont., June 3—(AP) Canada's victory torch left here today by Royal Canadian Air Force plane for Proquis Junction after the signing last night by Mayor E. R. Bell. The aerial relay will be flown with the torch to Prime Minister Winston Churchill as a symbol of Canada's determination to help win the war.

An R.C.A.F. bomber brought the torch here last night and it was handed over to the Mayor by the three official guards who entrusted Constable J. Cusack, commander of the Kapuskasing detachment still guards. Set.-Maj. Walter Brown commanded the guard when stood watch over the torch and will until the plane resumed its journey today.

Alleged Sabotage Attempt Probed At Niagara Falls

Toronto, June 3 (CP)—Attorney-General Gordon D. Conant stated that Inspector E. D. L. Drummond of the Provincial Police Force has been ordered to Niagara Falls to investigate an alleged attempt at sabotage yesterday at the Hydro-Electric Canal there. The Attorney-General said that provincial analysts are in carrying out tests in connection with the affair but did not describe their nature.

Cpl. T. M. Bulmer of a Western Canadian Regiment was shot in the leg yesterday while on guard duty at the canal. Col. W. P. Bristowe, Commanding Officer of the Regiment, said the incident was "an attempt to damage the canal" and that Bulmer "obviously did not shoot himself and was not wounded by any fellow soldier."

Hospital authorities said today that Bulmer's condition is not serious and that "he is coming along nicely."

R. A. F. Bombers Raid Bengasi

Cairo, June 3 (AP)—Royal Air Force bombers attacked Bengasi, Axis base on the Libyan coast, during the night of June 1 and "a number of fires were started on the docks and harbor area," the R.A.F. Middle East command announced today.

Unidentified Flyer Killed Near Foxboro

Crashing Into an open field one-half mile north of the Fifth Concession of Sidney Township and approximately three and a half miles west of Foxboro, R.C.A.F. training plane carried its lone occupant to death early before the noon hour on Tuesday. The plane was flying at a low altitude, apparently nose-diving when the motor quit, landed upside down and broke in two. The engine was also scattered for a considerable distance from the wreckage.

According to Mrs. Sam Nicholson, on whose husband's farm the plane crashed, and who was an eye-witness of the tragedy. The plane was flying at a low altitude with its motor stopped. the pilot apparently seeking a level field to make a forced landing. He was flying in an easterly direction, then turned north and suddenly nose-dived into a field. At first we thought the plane was going to crash into the garden where we stand," said Mrs. Nicholson.

The aviator's body was evidently changed direction and crashed two hundred feet from the house.

Trenton Airport officials were unable at once to establish the identity of the plane and it was not known whether the plane was from the Trenton station, or for establishing the identity of the pilot.

U. C. CONFERENCE OPENS IN CITY

Over Four Hundred Ministers and Laymen of Bay of Quinte Conference

Ministers and laymen of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church met here today in the seventeenth annual session in Bridge Street United Church. It is especially significant as more than four hundred persons will be registered for the meetings which commenced last night. Sunday when there will be seven young men ordained to the ministry.

The Conference opened at four o'clock with the Rev. H. Welsford Cliff, President, conducting worship. The Lay Representative, Mr. Lord Lawrence was partaken and Rev. Principal George C. Pidgeon, D.D., preached the sermon. In the evening, on Tuesday a banquet was served, the first place at which the report of the transfer committee will be given and the conference will organize.

I.O.D.E. Chapters Disburse $438,531 On War Services

Toronto, June 3—(CP)—Various chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire conserved their funds and used their resources for war work during the year, according to outstanding war needs, Mrs. H. Brotherhood, K.C., president of the organization's national treasurer, said in presenting her report to the annual meeting of the I.O. D.E. here today.

In the War Services Fund alone, receipts were $438,531. In addition to the amounts expended on war work $18,581 was taken from the general fund, expenditures totalling $456,793.

The various chapters also raised $81,371 on behalf of war funds and other organizations.

Hospital expenditures were $388,088 and disbursements $172,209.

"There is no doubt about the chapters' primary and junior, in every way possible are giving the funds to serve", said Mrs. Brotherhood said. She recommended that the fund be increased $15,000 worth of the present Victory Bonds.

New funds established by the I. O.D.E. in the year included the Bomber and Aircraft Fund, the War Chest and various funds for the soldiers, sailors and airmen and for war sufferers in Britain. There are also contributions today to the Lord Beaverbrook Aircraft Fund.

CONCERN IS FELT FOR PLANE'S CREW

R. C. A. F. Reconnaissance Plane Fails to Return to Base Near Glace Bay, Nova Scotia

Glace Bay, N.S. June 3—(CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force officials said today an R.C.A.F. reconnaissance plane had failed to return to its base near here on a routine patrol flight yesterday and "much concern" was felt for the crew of its four-man crew.

The names of the crew are Sgdn. Ldr. R. B. Wylie, Estevan, Sask.; P.O. H. R. Carter, Moosejaw, Sgt. L. R. J. Chabot, Hamilton, Ont. and A.C. F. J. Tibbett, Bracebridge, Ont.

A statement issued by Adjutant D. J. Young said in part: "As reconnaissance aircraft out on patrol from this station left at 0400 on Monday evening and much concern is felt for the safety of the crew. An extensive search is being carried out by the Royal Canadian Air Force and it is hoped that before long the missing plane and occupants may be located."

TRENTON TO HAVE FIRST BLACKOUT

Town Will be Plunged Into Darkness Tonight for Five Minutes

Trenton, Onti., June 3 — Trenton will stage its first blackout tonight at ten o'clock.

The call for the blackout in connection with the Victory Loan Campaign were approved by the Municipal Council on Monday night. At ten o'clock the local Hydro station will throw the plug which will plunge the town into total darkness for a period of five minutes.

Arrangements have been made for sirens and explosions to be those caused by bombs. In order to be realistic the Victory Loan Committee secured a sound effect record of an actual bombing raid on London. This record will be used on an amplifier system covering the business district.

Victory Loan All Devoted To War Purposes

Ottawa, June 3 (CP)—The entire cash proceeds of the $600,000,000 Victory Loan will be devoted to war purposes, Finance Minister Ilsley told the House of Commons today in answer to a question from Harry JaCman (Con. Toronto-Eglinton).

The Minister said Canada was raising in the current year a large amount of the Dominion's ordinary revenue from taxation, and was also raising 79 per cent of the total Canada's war cost from borrowings plus ordinary expenditures. Parliament was asked to-day to authorize in the furnishing of essential materials.

"In view of this," he said, "it is clear—that every dollar raised by the Victory Loan will be used solely will be devoted directly to war purposes."

Mr. Jackman said his question was asking in view of a letter signed by Gordon Perry asking a statement from the government that the formation of prosnective investors as to what proportion of the loan would be used for war purposes.

Record Shipments 11,000,000 Tons of Iron Ore on Lakes

Cleveland, June 3 (AP)—Shipments of iron ore on the Great Lakes exceeded 11,000,000 gross tons by May to set a record.

The Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported 11,000,000 tons total of the vital defense material, from 11,000,000 tons.

The previous record was established in August, 1917, when 10,811,381 tons were loaded.

AT THE BELLE

"Rage in Heaven"

James Hilton, author of "Good-bye Mr. Chips" and "Lost Horizon," has contributed another fascinating story of romance in "Rage In Heaven", starring Robert Montgomery and Ingrid Bergman, at the Belle Theatre today and Wednesday.

It is a suspenseful thriller, based on a "perfect crime", with Montgomery playing the part of a murderer and Miss Bergman the role of a man destroyed by his own conscience.

Montgomery plays Philip Monrell, a brilliant engineer, whose only unhappiness he could have had with his beautiful wife, portrayed by Miss Bergman, was childlessness. She really loves his best friend, with whom Monrell has a feud, but when a crime that will remove his rival, Monrell commits it, with a formula aside in building his story to amazing climax, with one of the most unusual murder trials of the season.

Donald Watson, Oscar Homolka, Philip Merivale, Aubrey Mather and others in the cast make Europe as well as where the Axis mates will strike next. Despite reports that 10,000 motorized infantry have landed in Syria, and despite some signs that Vichy is ready to give in, Cyprus, it looks at this distance as though might quickly end the war for Germany.

Fun, Thrills in New Film

Gaiety, June 3 — Fun will be in order today and Wednesday when the Warner Bros. comedy film, "Larceny, Inc." Edward G. Robinson is presented as the added feature attraction at the Gaiety. It is the story of showing the latest laugh hit. Manager Perlman has booked "Here Comes Happines," a mirthful comedy of love in the Bronx, starring Mildred Coles, Robert Wilcox and Richard Ainley. In the supporting cast are the well known players Russel Hicks and Marjorie Gateson.

The Belle news of the day will be changed with the same program. Performances start today at 2.30, 7.10 and the last complete show starts at 9.00.

HEN'S EGG CARRIES WORD 'FIVE' IN RED

Cobourg, Ont., June 3 (CP) —A hen owned by Russell Dixon has laid an egg which has clearly lettered in red on one end, the word "five" with a wavy line underneath much like a bird or a plane. The egg was shown Saturday by Mr. Dixon.

Lacks about five million bucks worth of bonds which this Victory Loan is trying to buy specially ranged for Berlin," was the cheerful guess of one citizen who saw the legend.

MARSHAL PETAIN CALLS CABINET INTO SESSION

Gen. Maxime Weygand, Chief of African Forces, Allowed to Sit in

VICHY DENIES REPORT

Vichy, France, June 3 (AP)—Marshal Petain called a cabinet meeting late this afternoon, the second of the day, after a conference with Gen. Maxime Weygand, chief of French African forces.

At the earlier cabinet meeting, which lasted for two hours and was said to have been devoted to discussion of the relations with Britain, Weygand was present but the Marshal was not.

From this earlier session Weygand was understood to have gone straight to Petain, who immediately called a second meeting.

Radio Denies Broadcast Report

The Vichy-controlled Belfort radio characterized as Britain is preparing to attack against Syria. It described reports of the existence of "false news" of German troop landings in Syria and declared French forces "know how to reply to aggression."

The radio particularly denied a New York broadcast that 10,000 motorized units had landed at Latakia, in Syria, and an alleged attack by bombers on the hospital ship Canada, which landed last week at Beirut from Marseilles with 500 German aboard.

Vichy Ambassador Maxime Weygand, who is not a member of the government, arrived with his family, passports, unofficial sources reported today.

Since their papers were in order, it was understood Vichy had taken the attitude the reopening of relations with Bulgaria's.

It was reported in Ankara that Germany had advised Turkey to delay sending a military mission to report of Piraeus for the Turkish armistice to Greece and Italy, family, asserting that at present she could not guarantee safe passage.

THE GOODYEAR BLIMP "RELIANCE"

Airship Coming To Belleville

Sent From Akron to Aid Canada's Victory Loan

Weather permitting, it will hover over Belleville on Wednesday and citizens will see, for the first time in many years, a lighter-than-air craft. It brings messages of good will from the Governor of Ohio to Premier Hepburn of Ontario and to other Canadian officials. It will be flown by Canadian pilots and is named "Let's finish the Job—Buy Victory Bonds." It is called the "Reliance," as the airship is named, was arranged by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, Toronto, Akron, Ohio, and to let Canadians see a type of aircraft which serves a number of useful purposes in war. The "Reliance" is one of more than a hundred airships built by Goodyear, Akron, in the world's largest airship sheds. Goodyear builds for the non-rigid type and is 150 feet long, has a gas bag capacity which gas capacity is 123,000 cubic feet and is powered with two 146 h.p. motors, giving it a top speed of 65 m.p.h.; a cruising speed of 50 m.p.h. and a range of 500 miles. This airship uses helium which is a non-inflammable and non-explosive lifting gas. It requires a ground crew of 14 to service it. This crew travels in a special radio - equipped truck. The airship's Control Car also accommodates 2 passengers in addition to the crew of three, with two-way radio communication.

The slow speed at which lighter-than-air ships can be flown is their outstanding advantage in of Canadian communities.

SAYS IRAQ REBELS CANNOT CONTINUE

Dispatch Reports Turkish Assembly Approves Provision for Construction of Rail Lines to Iraq and Iran

Istanbul, Turkey, June 3 (Reuter)—(AP)—German military uniforms clothes recently passed through Turkey to Iraq, the Turkish police passports, unofficial sources reported today.

Malta, Egypt Likely Next Assault Points

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Whatever Adolf Hitler may have told Mussolini found to discuss in their Brenner Pass conference yesterday, unquestionably plans for prompt consolidation of that victory must have been approved at Brenner Pass.

That meeting, like the five similar personal contacts between the two dictators during the German period, Nor does the fact that General Weygand conferred the same moment to dash from French North Africa to confer with Marshal Petain seem reassuring. It may mean French-Axis "collaboration" in the air and on the sea to contribute to the difficulties of British forces in the Mediterranean.

There is much conjecture both in this country and in Europe as to where the Axis mates will strike next. Despite reports that 10,000 motorized infantry have landed in Syria, and despite some signs that Vichy is ready to give in, Cyprus, it looks at this distance as though might quickly end the war for Germany.

Rev. A. McLauchlin Press Secretary, Seeks Retirement

Havelock June 3—Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, Press Secretary for the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church which meets in Bridge Street Church this week will be unable to attend on account of illhealth, according to a letter sent Camp last August, Mr. McLauchlin has been unable to attend to his duties as Minister of Havelock charge and is seeking retirement from the active ministry at the end of June to the further rest and benefit afforded from which he is making good recovery.

Mr. McLauchlin is a member of the last Methodist Conference, which met in Bridge Street church and which was the last Methodist Social Service and Young People's Conference held in Bridge Street. The oldest son, Robert who graduated at the Victoria University last year supplied his father's pulpit during his illness and has accepted a call for first year in Theology at Emmanuel College, Toronto.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 3 (CP)—Industrials and golds held to the easy side on Toronto Exchange today. Base metals weakened. Volume was down to 30,000 shares.

Senior oils turned heavy. Interprovincial dropped 1-2 to 13 1-2 and Imperial was off 1-8 to 9 1-4. Prices were steadier for Walker's Common, Fanny Farmer, Brazilian Traction, Foundries and Power Corporation.

Teck Hughes firmed 10 to 242, presumably on the support arising from the extra dividend declared by Teck-Hughes Gold Mines. Lake Shore, East Malartic, Preston and San Antonio were up moderately. Kerr-Addison dropped 5 to 3.95 and Macassa was off 5 to 3.85. Hudson Bay was a soft spot in base metals.

Looking to France Across the Straits of Dover

With Spring it is becoming clear again, so that we whose destiny it is to dwell facing it can see again for longer periods that stretch of coast. Once we called it the coast of France; but now it has a tragic anonymity, so that what in former days was a familiar view across 30 miles of water has become a sight of territory strange and remote as the moon.

Eyes there are that see into the secrets of those parts, eyes of fighter pilots looking down precipices of cloud from a sky which, did it but preserve the marks of those who pass along it, would by now be seared and furrowed by tracks, like a worn road; eyes of sentries and look-outs all down the chalk ramparts of our own coast, so that anyone venturing forth without notice upon the sea would find himself an embarrassed figure bobbing perilously within many gun-sights. But to the eyes of ordinary folk the land beyond remains utterly secret and withdrawn.

It seems all the stranger because it was once so familiar; a friendly shore leading to places so soaked and storied in our own history as Cambrai, Poperinghe, Ypres, Arras, St. Quentin, or Menin with its road. Familiar too as the starting-point of much that was pleasant and harmless for thousands upon thousands of travellers in happier days, the place where holidays began with a journey which was to end in postcards from Interlaken, sunburn at Locarno, and to be commemorated for ever by snapshots brought out to enliven by recollection the dark and cold of workaday Winter.

With so much that is still unchanged upon this side of the forbidden sea—gulls following the plow, trains moving through the country to the sound of a distant clanking — it is difficult at times, especially after a rare unwarlike day, not to see that cross-Channel host in the eyes of habit. She sailed so regularly, rolling enormously in Winter, swimming placid and crowded in the days of Summer, bearing great cargoes of schoolmistresses on conducted tours, outward bound for adventure. And boats returning brought us often the seamed and the distinguished, the business men, the rulers of countries far away, the diplomatists who now visit us no more.

And yet we have our visitors. They come by air, from bases in the unknown land whence once the liners of Croydon droned peacefully above us. But these are more deadly. Invaders who make sallies by day along our coast and find battle with our guards among the clouds, or throb across by night when the sirens wail up-country and men and women and children stand, in a sense, to arms. For us it is a strange sequel,for not far away in a meadow is a stone which tells the tale of how one Blériot landed in his monoplane of string and strute upon a day in 1909, being the first who ever burst cross that silent sky. There are those among us who remember it still, and live now to remark the world his exploit heralded.

Yet the sea remains the same. It is a pleasant sea, if moody. Grey very often, sometimes green, in Summer often the profoundest blue; it has a strong rip of tide and the knack of working itself into swift angers of the kind which must have alarmed the Romans when Caesar crossed it, or caused doubt in Napoleon when he considered it.

And there are times, usually towards evening, when great lines and curves appear upon the waters, as though it were writing which we cannot read, spelling forth fragments of its amazing story. Fragments only, for the whole would take an age to recount.

Chaucer's Shipman knew this sea and ferried across it the wines of France; King Henry crossed it on the way to the Field of the Cloth of Gold; soldiers have moved to and fro upon it from the bowmen of Crecy, past the bright uniforms of Blenheim and Waterloo, to the khaki of the great armies of the Somme and the battle dress of those who returned across a flat calm miraculously from Dunkirk.

And many travellers have gazed, in moments of supreme emotion, from those waters upon their native shore, Fielding, at anchor in the Downs, on his way to his grave at Lisbon; Micawber, on the emigrant ship of Dickens' imagination, hull down for Australia. There has passed many a big ship outward bound from Tilbury to the Indies bearing younger sons of Victorian families, seeking life and opportunity in some Dominion of the Crown, yet finding a mooning sadness as, standing ulster-wrapped in the stern, they stared through the dusk at our white cliffs to envy, for a moment long remembered, the home lights of the dwellers upon them.

Also there have passed upon our sea the Armada of Spain, upon which the winds blew and Drake vented his anger, and on a night of August, 1914, the Grand Fleet stole past unlit to its battle stations in the North Sea.

We do not show our lights these days upon the coast when night descends, and the opposite land stretches, a dark ridge under the moon.

But if nothing shows now from either side, and no cargoes of merchandise or ideas or news of the common hopes and aspirations of humanity unite us to that closed territory so near and yet so far, we dream confidently of a day when once more they will, when the lighthouses on either coast shall wink amity to each other, guiding men upon their lawful ocasions in a free world.—Manchester Guardian.

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning at breakfast ma said to pop, Willyum, every time I think of you at that movie last night, I have to blush inwardly. Really Willyum, I mean really, it's quite excusable to laugh at a comedy, but to guffaw repeatedly at the top of your voice in an otherwise quiet sea of chuckles and titters, I must say is embarrassing to say the least. You'll get an inkling of what people must of thought when I tell you what I heard the woman behind us remark to her friend. Well, she remarked, something seems to be funny, ma said.

The poor woman, pop said. She must of been acutely conscious of her own lack of a sense of humor, and I suppose she wondered what it was all about, he said, and ma said, Not at all, that's just the whole point and essence, I mean he had a normal sense of humor and that's just why she couldn't understand your abnormal reaction and I must say I couldn't either.

Do you mean to say you didn't have to hold your sides when the dog and the 2 monkeys all jumped into the fat woman's lap? pop said, and ma said, There wasn't a monkey or an animal in the whole picture, what are you talking about for land sakes?

Yes gods you must of gone sound asleep, you're a fine critic of what happened last night, pop said, and ma said, I wasn't asleep and I'm fully aware of what happened. Other people looked at you too, she said.

Everybody loves a jolly laugh, pop said. But who could help laughing in that bedroom scene when he pulls back the covers and sees the sleeping seal? I suppose you're going to tell me there weren't even any fish in the picture, he said, and ma said, Seals aren't fish and never were, and there wasn't any bedroom scene and you're just vainly trying to cover up your silly tracks.

Now I know you were asleep, now I know what that man in front of us meant when he turned around and remarked th his wife, I dont mind as long as people dont snore, pop said, and ma said, O such a man.

Meaning pop and not the man in the theater.

Cleveland Indians Move Back Into First Place by Defeating Yankees Behind Bobby Feller

Cards Also Return to First Place by Win Over the Dodgers

REDS BEAT GIANTS

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It was the talk of the Major Leagues last year that Cincinnati Reds won 42 games by one-run margins and in doing it won the National League pennant and the world series.

But the way things are going this season, that record may look puny before the finish. It took a total of three runs in their series St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Indians to first place in their respective leagues yesterday and that's just a sample of what's been going on.

To date, 21 of the Cardinals' 44 games have been decided by single runs with the Redbirds winning 15 of them, mostly in the late innings. The Indians have had seven one-run decisions in their favor and six against them in 49 games.

Feller Whips Yankees

The Cards broke their tie with Brooklyn Dodgers by defeating the Dodgers 5-4. The Indians, after losing two games to the Yankees, boomed back into first place when they did when Bobby Feller is pitching, whipped the Yankees 5-1 and moved back to the top after spending a day behind Chicago White Sox.

Some distance behind these leaders, the Reds and Boston Red Sox also moved up. The world champions turned back the Giants 6-3 and took fourth place in the National League by a few percentage points, although they were virtually tied with Chicago Cubs. The Red Sox moved into a tie with Philadelphia's rain-enforced idleness in St. Louis, moved a game ahead of the A's into fourth with a 9-1 triumph over Detroit.

Typical Cardinal Finish

It was a typical Cardinal finish that set Billy Southworth's boys back on top and ended Brooklyn's nine-game winning streak. After the Dodgers recovered from an attack of jitters that cost them four first runs in the fifth and tied the score with a pair in the eighth, Johnny Mize banged out a home run and then loped home after Jim Brown filed out.

The Yankees didn't show much respect for Feller's pitching record, breaking it off at 30 innings in the second when they scored twice to knot the count. But from there on their only scores came on two homers by Tommy Hitchcock.

The White Sox, after reaching the top for the first time since 1921, succumbed 8-3 to Steve Sundra and the seventh-place Washington Senators.

The Phillies aided the Reds' advance when they knocked off the Cubs for the first time this season, 3-2, on Johnny Podgajny's seven-hit hurling and Danny Litwhiler's two triples. Dick Errickson gave Boston Braves their first shutout triumph of the season, 4-0, trimming Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-0, with five hits.

Lou Gehrig

One of the most colorful personages of modern baseball, Lou Gehrig, who died at his home in New York City yesterday at the age of 38 years.

Gehrig was a member of the New York Yankees for nearly 15 years and established a world's record for consecutive games played when he took part in 2,130 major league ball games without missing a contest.

He retired from active service two years ago and died of an apparently incurable disease.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

New York, June 3 (AP)—Arthur Donovan was all set to referee Joe Nova—Joe Robinson fight tonight in Minneapolis, but the papers put on the old blast and Promoter Tommy O'Gorman cheered his mind quicker than it takes to say "Sock me." Billy Conn won't get far with his petition to have Max Schmeling's title given and he's his Yankee Stadium title fight with Joe Louis . . . Hard to believe, but Buck Newsom has failed to last nine innings in two of his seven starts this year.

This information came trickling yesterday over the baseball ticker . . . "Chicago at Philadelphia delayed, umpires late" . . . Then this correction, "Chicago at Philadelphia delayed, account rain . . . (Umpires arrived.)"

San Jose State College has found a way to get some good out of the soon-to-leave footballers. Seven weeks of spring drills came to a close with a regulation game between the "bone guards" (those players sure to return) and the "draftees", who are not at all sure about it . . . .

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Joe Dobson, Red Sox: Pitched four-hit ball against Tigers and made three safe blows himself, including home run.

Elmer Riddle, Reds: Besides turning in good pitching job against Giants, he singled across winning run in seventh.

Steve Sundra, Senators: Beat White Sox with 10-hit pitching, allowing only six in first eight frames.

SPOT PITCHING BY MIKE POWERS BEAT SACO 6-4

Esquire Juniors Clinch Third Place in Softball Tangle at Coleman Flats

STRIKES OUT 13

Some spot pitching by Mike Powers and timely hitting by his teammates gave the Esquire Juniors a 6 to 4 verdict over the SACOS in a City League softball fixture at the Coleman Flats last night when Red Townsend's Juniors made sure of evacuating the cellar slot in the league standing and cinched third place in a pitchers' duel that saw Powers best slingated Jim Hunter.

Powers struck out 13 opposition batters, but made his chore a laborious one by walking six. Jim Hunter whiffed eleven and walked but two, but Skipper Townsend's hitters came through in the clutches to snatch victory led by Vince Guay, whose big bat counted a home run in the seventh, a triple in the ninth and an additional single for good measure.

Extra Base Hits

Doubles by Garrow, Peacock and Mansfield in succession gave the Esquire kids their six runs in the initial frame and they were never headed. As the SACO pressed with single runs in the last three frames, the Esquire Juniors retaliated to score an equal number each frame and retain their initial frame advantage. Garrow led the losers with the yellow cuffing the spherioid for a triple, double and two singles to lead the batsmen of the losing squad. Guay had three, including his circuit blow, baseball getting a trio of bingles also; Hinton was the only other SACO batter to count over one safety off Powers, whose spot pitching carried the Juniors to victory. The game was the fourth in succession suffered by Eddie Ehlker's SACOS.

NO. 4—THE CHOP

This is a perfect picture of the ball and player just after the point of impact in a chop stroke, which is used effectively in the forecourt on high bouncing balls. As can be seen, the ball is again hit just below its centre, but more in front of you than in other strokes. The racket centre comes from above to forward and down.

Chop strokes are used effectively hold an axe, somewhat between either off the forehand or back- eastern forehand and backhand hand in the forecourt on high grips, letting your racket centre bouncing balls. The stroke is es- come from above to forward, slightsentially a wrist and arm one. The ball is hit more in front of you with the racket centre coming from above to forward and down, still hitting below the centre of the ball. It is used to break up some opponents' driving games, especially if they have a hard time getting under a low bounding ball. I like to mention a slice in connection with the chop as it is somewhat similar and is fast becoming a necessary stroke especially for returning a high bouncing ball to one's backhand. Here most players hold the racket as you would ly down and around, imparting a slice or side spin if desired—a sort of a "draw"—hitting the balls slightly below the centre mostly on the inside of the ball either off your backhand or forehand. It is a very good stroke to use when you haven't time to get well away from a ball and you feel too cramped to let go with a flat or slightly topped drive. Do not lean back when trying to make a slice. You'd probably hit the bottom part of the ball and up it would go.

Next—The Volley.

ORIOLES GETTING REAL PITCHING BY MOUND CORPS

Baltimore Has Won Nine of Last Eleven Games and Now Sixth in Loop

RED WINGS LOSE

It's been said for years that all Baltimore Orioles needed was some good pitching and they'd be practically unbeatable in the International Baseball League. They've always had the kind of long-range hitting.

For the past week or so they've been getting the pitching, have won nine of their 11 games and now have come up from a weak seventh in the league standing to a brisk sixth, only two contests behind Jersey City.

It was Floyd Stromme's hurling and the well-known Orioles habit of hitting home runs that produced a 4-3 victory over the fourth-place Buffalo Bisons yesterday. Stromme, a Bison castoff, stopped all the Buffalo hitters except Johnny Mize, who hit two home runs. Charley Dorish came close to stopping the Orioles, too, matching the six-hit pitch and fanning 14, but he tossed in a wild one in the eighth, and that scored the game.

LOU GEHRIG DIES AFTER ILLNESS OF TWO YEARS

'Iron Horse' of Baseball Played 2,130 Consecutive Games for the Yankees

RETIRED IN 1939

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, June 3 (AP)—Lou Gehrig, the great "iron horse" of baseball, died last night.

The big, handsome fellow who was a marvel of power and endurance for 14 years as the first baseman of New York Yankees died at his home in the Bronx after an illness of two years from a rare and aggravating incurable disease described as hardening of the spinal cord which caused his muscles to shrivel.

The end came 17 days before Lou would have been 38 years old. He wrote "30" to a fight with disease that was as dramatic and courageous as any of his exploits on the diamond.

Right up until the time he fell into a coma yesterday Gehrig never acknowledged he was beaten.

But others knew he was waging a losing fight and when death came his wife and close relatives were gathered at his bedside.

Will Cremate Body

Arrangements were made for private funeral services at 10 a.m. EDT. tomorrow at the Christ Episcopal church in Riverdale. The body will be cremated.

Gehrig's place among baseball's immortals was assured a year ago when he was voted into the sport's hall of fame. Before he voluntarily withdrew from the Yankee lineup May 2, 1939, at Detroit, he set a never-approached record of playing in 2,130 consecutive championship games, 34 world series contests and countless exhibitions.

Never Missed in 14 Years

He started his streak as a pinch hitter June 1, 1925. The next day he replaced Wally Pipp at first base and never missed a game for 14 years.

This insidious illness that struck out Gehrig was diagnosed as infantile paralytic amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. Gehrig was not until he went to Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., two years ago this month that he knew anything was wrong physically. There he was told he never could play baseball again and that he would have to have an injection in his back every day.

After the world series that fall, Mayor LaGuardia offered him a city job, post on New York Parole Parole Commission at a salary of $17,500, a handsome plum for a man who made in the neighborhood of $40,000 in his baseball career. Gehrig accepted and was sworn in the following January after spending the interim reading and resting. He was unable to display his energy to this job, seldom going anywhere except to his office when one of the city's institutions. He resigned recently to benefits of parole to society and took every opportunity to host it.

HOUSE KILLS BILL

Boston, June 2.—(AP)—In one of the shortest battles of the year's legislative session, the Massachusetts House killed a measure yesterday which would have permitted physicians to prescribe contraceptives for married persons for the preservation of health.

Proponents argued that the measure was a "Medical Freedom" Bill, that it would save lives of mothers and babies by providing help not now available. The Opposition argued that it would increase prostitution and bring about race suicide.

HARD WORKING HENS

Northampton (CP)—Just as if high-speed egg-laying were not enough, hens of the English Midlands are called on for feathers for pillows and quilts, the women's war-time work for a softball game.

Do you remember when baseball's most dramatic leader, Jack J. Ryan Grew, resigned as manager of New York Giants nine years ago today. McGraw, who died Feb. 25, 1934, spent 42 years in baseball and managed the Giants for 30 of them until illness forced him to relinquish the post in 1932.

Now that the summer season is with us and swimming is one of the favorite pastimes of the people, the public is warned against drownings. Perhaps a good practice would be to attend the "Learn to Swim" classes being arranged at the Y.M.C.A. this month. Physical Director Ed. Shortt is planning a program of lifesaving lessons to be staged in the "Y" pool. All of the fundamentals of advanced swimming and diving strokes will be included in the teachings. Mr. Shortt has conducted such classes for the Royal Life Saving Society in Vancouver and is highly qualified to conduct such a school, that is to be open to the general public.

Although it is highly improbable, two runs have been scored on an infield grounder, with the ball played properly and handled cleanly and no blunder made by any infielder or the base runners.

Here's the answer and it actually happened in St. Louis with the Pirates at bat in the eighth inning recently. The Cards had slaughter on third, Crespi on second and Marion at first with one out. It seems Gus Mancuso grounded to first baseman Fletcher, who threw to shortstop Arky Vaughan, returning Marion, forcing Crespi running and followed Slaughter over the plate on the throw-in from Vaughan's return to Fletcher, endeavoring to complete a double play, arrived too late for the twin tallies.

Eddie Ehlker's SACO softballers chalked up their fourth consecutive loss in the City Softball loop last night when they went down at the hands of Red Townsend's Esquire Juniors by a 6-4 count, laboring on the Esquire hilltop. Mike Powers was the slinger for the losing six, the kid came through with some lusty relief pitching and save his own cause by striking out 13 SACO batters, many coming when it hurt the losers and certainly helped Powers' intentions. Vince Guay's big bat boomed loudly with a home run, triple and single, as Mansfield counted three hits for the kids also. Powers just couldn't get O'Neill, the SACO left fielder who, as this lad hit four for four inclusive, got a triple. Jim Hunter's mound effort of striking out 11 went for little as his teammates could top Powers' offerings as delivered in the clutches.

Finis was written on one of baseball's most glorious careers of modern baseball when it was learned today that Lou Gehrig had died. Known as "The Iron Horse" because of his record, the Gallic rig took part in 2,130 consecutive Major League baseball games, a record that may never be approached, but at the age of 36 his curtain on the diamond came out short and at 38 he was dead, the victim of an agonizing incurable disease. Major League pitchers got their real test when Gehrig forget Gehrig—which was an extraordinary thing to do—and Columbia Lou bloomed out to become one of the most dangerous batsmen in modern baseball. During his diamond career he batted in 1,990 league games, 34 world series contests and countless exhibitions, hitting safely in 1,888 of the league games all over the North American continent. Gehrig's greatest year was his great record-breaking run of 2,130 games, 1938, but he never missed a game for 14 consecutive years. Today the entire baseball world mourns the loss of Lou Gehrig.

SPORT SPICE—Cleveland's "one-man-ball-club," Bobby Feller, came to the rescue of the Indians yesterday as he fanned 10 and his 11th win of the season . . . Feller beat the Yankees, 5-1. Washington beat Chicago and now the Indians are tied with the Chicago Americans, thanks to Bob Feller's good right arm. . . . Over in the senior loop the hustling St. Louis Cardinals put a halt to the Dodgers' nine-game winning streak when Mort Cooper's Flatbush nine 5-4 to take over the leadership of the National Loop. . . . Poor Buck Newsom just can't seem to win this season . . . Last year he was the top pitcher in the American League, today he has but seven and won but three in ten starts. . . . It's high time the officials in the ball park league did something to put an end to jockeying when darkness looms on the horizon during the gals' matches, which ended up in fracases and the Big-Z battle for first place tonight. . . . Polish it off.

ACCEPTS ROOSEVELT'S OFFER

Washington, June 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Eire Government yesterday accepted President Roosevelt's offer to permit the purchase of two cargo ships and a fleet of 20 trucks, 000 of supplies for refugees in Eire.

Robert Brennan, Eire Minister, said his government was disappointed at the decision of the United States not to make defence supplies available, asserting that "if we had the materials the danger of invasion would be less".

Top-Quality Eggs Slightly Easier

Toronto, June 3—Prices on top-quality graded eggs, though quoted only nominally, eased 1 a dozen in light trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. The demand for butter was fair but offerings were not heavy and trading was rather spotty.

The peak of production for the current season is now definitely passed and receipts in practically all sections of the country are on the decline according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Though there is still a considerable surplus over immediate requirements, it is either going into immediate export to the United Kingdom or into storage for the present order, or into storage for fall shipment. Therefore, fresh receipts on the local market can be expected to become increasingly light.

Offerings on the butter market, though not heavy, proved sufficient to meet the fair demand and prices remained unchanged.

Montreal Produce

Butter, finest grade solid, jobbing price, 31 1-2c to 32c.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, offering at A-large, 25c to 25½c; A-medium, 22c to 22 1-2c; B-grade, 21c to 21 1-2c; C-grade, 18c to 18 1-2c. Receipts, 6,749 cases.

Livestock

Toronto, June 3—(CP)—Cattle trade continued slow at steady prices to sellers on account of the livestock market here today. Veal calves were steady to strong and sheep were steady. No price was established for hogs. Local receipts were 25 cents weaker. The cattle holdover from yesterday was also head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 600; calves, 500, hogs, 725, sheep and lambs, 85.

Weighty steers sold mostly at $8-$9 with a few at $9.10. Heifers, steers and heifers mostly at $8-$8.75, bulls mostly at $7-$7.50, canners and cutters at $3.50-$4.75 and bulls $5.50-$6.50.

Veal calves sold mostly at $8-$10.50 with a few at $10.75 and $11.

Local lambs sold at $13-$13.25 for choice with common selling downward at $8.

Sheep sold at $3.50-$5.50.

Hogs closely previously at $12.50-$12.75 dressedweight basis. No sales were reported.

Montreal, June 3 CP) — Market prices were more or less steady on Montreal livestock exchange, it was reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture today.

Receipts: Cattle '296; calves 1,575, hogs 842; sheep and lambs 109.

Good cattle sold at $8.50-$9.25, medium $8-$8.50. Heifers ranged from $4.75-$7.50 with a few choice at $7.75-$8.25. Bulls brought $5-$7.50.

Veal calves sold mostly from $7.50-$10.50 with a few tops up to $11 and a few lights between $5-$6.50.

Hogs sold mostly on rail grade basis at $13.25 for dressed. A few sales were made at $13 for B-1 alive; fed and watered, and up to $10.25 for off-cars, unfinished. Grade A drew $1 premium with the country hog basis $1 under the packer basis for weight.

Sheep made $4.50-$6.50. Lambs brought $10-$12 per hundredweight according to quality.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT

The report that German troops have been landed in Syria is not itself conclusive proof that the Levant will be the next front in the war of nerves. Reinforcement of an Axis effort to forestall possible British occupation of the French-mandated territory would be in full alignment, therefore, from reports locating the initiative.

The Germans have a wide range of choice in deciding on their next step. Cyprus, Malta, Syria, Egypt, Gibraltar are all possibilities. The Nazi high command undoubtedly has before it a detailed programme, part of campaigning for the summer, a program which seems to have been retarded a week or more by the unexpected defiance of Rashid Ali in Iraq.

Ankara, Turkey, is the key to the situation. Such a development, is was considered would be the start of the London-Vichy relations.

"It is not known how Gen. Weygand, who enjoys a semi-independent status in North Africa, will react to this possibility of Anglo-French hostilities. But last winter, during a Turkish mission to procured eastern Libya, Gen. Weygand had his great army in Africa sent himself by occupying Tripoli, the western part, he did nothing.

have long been urging, that Britain occupy Syria and Lebanon, which, in his suppression of the Germans, would create manifold new defence problems for Turkey and practically cut her off from Britain and British support.

"Within a few weeks ago, before the beginning of the invasion of Crete, the Germans were reported to have landed tanks and other equipment in Syria with the intention of proceeding to the assistance of Rashid Ali's rebels in Iraq. Nothing further was heard of these vehicles.

At Vichy the Levantine situation was under review by the Petain cabinet and Gen. Maxime Weygand, just before the French armistice was Gen. Sir Archibold Wavell's opposite in the Allied Middle East command. Weygand, therefore, can give the Vichy ministers a sound estimate of the military possibilities in the eastern Mediterranean.

May Appeal to Berlin

London reports suggested that in the event of a move by Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson's Palestine force to occupy Syria, Vichy would appeal to Berlin for intervention. Such a development, is was considered, would be the last straw in London-Vichy relations.

"It not known how Gen. Weygand, who enjoys a semi-independent status in North Africa, will react to this possibility of Anglo-French hostilities. But last winter, during a Turkish mission to procured eastern Libya, Gen. Weygand had his great army in Africa sent himself by occupying Tripoli, the western part, he did nothing.

enemy might like to know which were battleships" or bombers.

"Two hours later I was breakfasting with a number of young pilots who had still further increased their skill with a weapon that must be the terror of Axis warships.

Meanwhile, he added, the committee regards these first day's figures as "entirely satisfactory" and as indicating widespread patriotic enthusiasm for the loan throughout all sections of the population.

Determined to Make Loan Success

"Indeed there is every active evidence that the whole country is thoroughly aroused and everybody determined that this loan will be successfully finalized well within the allotted time," he said.

From Swift Current, Sask., came one of the lighter stories of how the Victory Loan is being the inspiration of new Canadians.

Manager Bell of the bank manager arrived at his bank at one minute in to 9 a.m., Monday, he found a tireless resident sitting on the steps waiting to buy a Bond.

New Brunswick was the fourth Provincial Government to check in on the campaign.

Many Places Get Quotas

Three Provinces and territories by last night had signified their intention to subscribe to the loan. Quebec topped the Governmental list with $3,000,000;" British Columbia subscribed for $1,000,000, Prince Edward Island $110,000.

Ontario Quota Raised

By nightfall a score or more municipalities had reached their loan quotas to qualify their "honour pennants." The pennants—white naval ensigns with a Victory Loan torch superimposed on the white section —go to villages, towns, cities and districts which have been officially allocated to them. Ontario municipalities received the additional 25 per cent of quota duties.

Victory Loan Speeches

Last night, hundreds of thousands of Canadians listened to Victory Loan speeches, either by radio or at public gatherings.

One program arranged by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation brought together addresses by Sir Lyman P. Duff, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, President J. S. Thomson of the University of Saskatchewan and Mayor Stanley Lewis of Otawa, President of the Canadian Federation of mayors and municipalities.

Sir Lyman said that "if each and every one of us will.... ask his conscience to speak and will loyally abide by the answer he shall suffer from no shortage of financial or other means."

In Ontario, the Owen Sound City Council quoted contributions from the Grey County objective of $2,800,000 as follows: $50,000 in Bonds. At Goderich, the "select few" objective of $100,000 was oversubscribed and the Victory Loan was officially under way.

Loan Headquarters in Toronto said Smooth Rock Falls, a Northern Ontario paper mill town, was the first Ontario municipality exceeding its quota, which was $26,000, or $5,000 more than its allocation.

Guardians of the Dionne Quintuplets announced that the five girls had invested $5,000 each in the loan, and that "we shall strain every nerve to buy more."

BERLIN BLASTED

British fighters shot down one German plane over the channel last evening and another off the northeast coast, a communique said.

British bombers during daylight Saturday attacked Kiel Canal shipping and land objectives in Schleswig-Holstein.

Kiel is at the head of the Kiel Canal, German-occupied Norway, an "enemy" ship was dropped sunk.

Covered Whole Kiel Canal

The Air Ministry News Service said British bombers covered the whole length of the Kiel Canal "in search for enemy shipping" yesterday.

One bomber dropped half its bomb load on a 1,200-ton ship in the canal and then flew down to 1,000 feet on a 3,500-ton ship, "firing his guns and released the time," and uploaded the rest of the bombs.

The British planes found ships of various sizes up to 10,000 tons spaced along the canal, the News Service said. After each attack the planes went back into the protective cloud, where the heavy guns could see the effect of their bombs.

A direct hit was also obtained on a vessel in the Kiel Canal.

CASE IS FURTHER ADJOURNED

London, Ont., June 3 (CP)—With two women victims of an accident a month ago still unable to appear in court, adjournment was given on July 4 today in the case of Percy Bates, aircraftsman from Trenton, Ont., charged with reckless driving. Waiters' car was in collision with another auto at Adelaide and King Streets.

Large Pickerel Kicked to Shore

Bancroft, June 3 (Special) — Mr. Scott Vader of this village can pride himself as quite a fisherman and is not at all particular as to how he lands his fish. A week ago he and Mr. Brough were fishing at the eddy below the dam when a large pickerel broke to take the bait, which Mr. Vader had cast out into the water. Seeing this, the fisherman's luck ended as the gamey fish departed with Mr. Vader's bait, hook, sinker and line leaving the bewildered man with just a steel pole in his hand. Mr. Brough, by the way, landed a seven pound pickerel that same evening. Since then Mr. Vader has been again stalking his prey and this week succeeded in catching a six pound pickerel at the eddy but he seemingly has to have a gaff along with him to land his fish for it required the quick work of Mr. Pete McCoul to land this fish. Mr. McCoul jumped into the river, boots and all, and succeeded in kicking the fish out on shore for Mr. Vader.

Mr. Hartford Palmateer of Toronto, formerly of the Maple Leaf Packers, spent a part of his holidays this last week-end visiting at the home of his brother Provincial Constable R. W. Palmateer of this village. During his stay here his brother took him on a few fishing trips and landing jaunts which resulted in five nice sized bass being caught. Hartford catching three and his brother master answering toe two.

Mr. W. Dillon of Maple Leaf, and Mr. W. A. Dillon of Bancroft attended a meeting of the Orangemen in Eldorado on Wednesday evening in connection with the Deseronto Victory Loan which is to be launched in the near future.

Mr. Jack Hamilton, of Harrowsmith, formerly the Delco Light representative for this district, has now a member of the R.C.A.F. at Uplands, Ottawa. He spent Saturday and Sunday of this week while on leave with friends.

Mrs. G. W. Jones and Mrs. Leo Doyle were in Belleville on Thursday.

Mrs Dora Bronson who has been spending a few days with relatives in town left Wednesday for Peterborough.

Mrs. C. Stoughton and daughter Phyllis of Belleville are visiting with relatives in town this week.

A farewell party was held at the home of Mrs. James Maxwell on Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Donald Easton who left Sunday for St. Thomas to join her husband who is a member of the Air Force in that city. Mrs. Easton was presented with a purse of money as a token of the esteem in which she was held by her many friends in the village.

Mr. T. McAlpine of Elmira is in town spending a few days visiting with relatives at Hotel Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bleeker of Toronto, are visiting with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Reid of town.

Mr. and Mrs Leo Doyle motored to Pembroke last week end visiting with their daughter Doris who is attending school at the Convent.

Mrs Walter Power of Granville, received the sad news this week of the death of her son Bert who has been residing in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buchanon of Havelock, were in town on Sunday visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hendrick Kolnaky.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald O'Shaughnessy at Mattawan, in the Red Cross hospital in Bancroft, Saturday, a son.

The town of Bancroft changed from Standard time to Daylight Saving time which came into effect Saturday at midnight.

Mr. Hugh Patterson of L'Amable was operated on in the local hospital for appendicitis Tuesday evening.

Lieutenant D. Rouse of Petawawa in company with two other officers spent the week end at the home of the former's parents.

Mr. E. L. Sears and son John succeeded by Mr. Paul Michaud and Mr. Donald Stewart all of Toronto, spent from Friday evening until Sunday afternoon camping at Lake Kashagawigamog. Those with Mr. Sears and Mr. Michaud are officials of the Mutual Life Assurance Company and Mr. Stewart of the Traders Finance Corporation.

Picton and District

Picton, June 3 — (Special)—The Victory Loan campaign for Prince Edward County got away to a flying start on Monday evening with a program of music by St. Michael's Choral Band of Belleville and several short talks. Main street, on the lawn in the vicinity of the library was packed by an enthusiastic throng.

The only did the campaign get away to a fine start with such a rally, but already more than 50 per cent of the county's quota has been pledged to buy Victory Bonds for the duration of the war, and as we go to press it is taking an even greater momentum in Belleville, the home city, Douglas Belleville — Toronto — county organizer. pledged $5,000 on behalf of the county to start off their lead. It was stressed that Picton people have always known they are very desirable, giving all an opportunity to do their share in the effort.

The scene was an impressive one Saturday night. In front of the gaily decorated Public Library and Memorial Building, a truck supported a guard of honour from "C" Company, Prince Edward Regiment and the Picton Pipe Band, composed of the guard which cnioted the Queen's Own Rifles, Hamilton, Pte. Dan Hyderman. Pte. Jack and Pte. Bill Hyderman.

At one side of the lawn, a German machine gun, captured in the North African campaign, manned by a parapet of sandbags. A huge thermometer will register the record sales of Victory Bonds.

Sirring music was provided by the Belleville band, and between being very gifted musicians, and very smart in their colorful uniforms.

Mayor Neshitt McKibbon acted as chairman and the program included short addresses by Judge E. H. Guss, Crown Attorney, Picton, Rev. Canon Greggan, Dr. S. H. Robbins.

The pennant flag was raised by Douglas Belleville, chairman of the Publicity Committee and the band played the National Anthem.

The Victory Loan offers an opportunity to every man, woman and bit, Judge McLean pointed out. A loan is not a gift, it is a business and since that time the women had taken charge of the job to see that every county being every man, woman and child would be in London by August 15 last they had done a splendid job and he was not there yet. The Victory Loan is a wonderful bin of the nursery rhyme:

Georgie Porgie, pudding and pie
Kissed the girls and made them cry
When the boys came out to play
Georgie Porgie ran away.

And nobody came.

Georgie Porgie didn't get to London and he is not going to put a foot upon that hallowed British soil. Georgie spoke with his compatriots and they would be ashamed to look at their boys overseas, the Mother Country and her colonies, the task to finish the job.

Referring to the flag about to be raised, the speaker said that it should be held as a reverent thing and a pledge should be given to this war for liberty, freedom and justice.

Must Act, Says Mayor

"It is simply a duty that we did it before and will do it again, that we will come out alright, but we must back this. We must help to make sure," Mayor McKibbon declared. He pointed out that there was too much of "let George do it." Other countries had not been prepared and the world is neutral power here said they had confirmed it. Their armies were ready, their armored cars and mobile field guns.

At Latakia, 70 miles from British-mandated Tripoli on the island of Cyprus, the Nazis were reported to have been met by German air officers who entered Syria in advance of parachute troops. The soldiers were described as wearing tropical helmets and high boots similar to those worn by Rommel's German Africa Corps.

Latakia is the port which is believed to have gone south along the coast to capture Tripoli, capital of Lebanon, 100 miles away.

British sources indicated that the Nazi landing had been sent at once to the headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, commander in Palestine and Transjordan. The British said that French naval patrols might find it difficult to intercept the bringing German reinforcements because the coastwise trip from the Dodecanese Islands is little more than an overnight voyage.

HEPBURN WARNS

The requirements in those regards would be so great that no doubtful if $600,000,000 would be sufficient. Mr. Hepburn went on, to meet requirements Canada should be heavily oversubscribed.

Directing attention to the conduct of the war so far, Mr. Hepburn said that no serious mistakes had occurred because of the apathy given to the people in countries where working men were influenced by Communists.

At the present time, he said, the French plants were producing for the Germans and the Nazis as they had under the former regime.

We have a parallel case in the United States where Mr. Roosevelt, he said. "We had the example of 1917-18 when we were unable to strike when coal was so urgently needed while our Allies in the Coast for five weeks men working on much needed cruisers and destroyers went on strike and destroyed a hand."

military equipment from Rumanian ports to French Syria, it was reported last week, following the landing of 50 men at Latakia last Tuesday.

Sailing from the German-occupied port of Constanza on the Black Sea, the ships were escorted to and to slop ff Rhodes, in the Italian Dodecanese Islands, and continue by night to Latakia and Tripoli in the face of watch by the British blockade.

The Nazi force was expected to take something less than a week. It was understood that German aircraft based at Rhodes and Aleppo would cover the ships.

German Strategy Outlined

The German strategy, in view of the British victory in Iraq, is thought to be to establish a solid grip on northern Syria as soon as possible and air force could strike in any of three directions—at Iraq, Palestine, or the island of Cyprus.

Other reports said they had seen as many as 200 German aircraft in the Rhodes area and at the Syrian-Turkish frontier last week. Some were shuttling between Aleppo and the Mosul oil fields in Iraq.

Observers said they included fighters and transport aeroplanes as well as bombers.

German troops refused to say what would be done with the planes and men after the fall of Crete, it is believed, but it was presumed here that they would be sent to Syria.

Discussing the reported landings of German troops at Latakia last week, Berlin declared that a neutral power here said they had confirmed it. Their armies were ready, their armored cars and mobile field guns.

At Latakia, 70 miles from British-mandated Tripoli on the island of Cyprus, the Nazis were reported to have been met by German air officers who entered Syria in advance of parachute troops. CHAPTER ONE

UTTER STILLNESS held the island in its grasp. The yellow beach stretched away, lonely, deserted save for a few pelicans who stalked their prey among the shell-mounds. Sea gulls wheeled against the intense, hot blue of the summer sky, their weird, keen-tense wails dropping into the great pit of silence like pebbles into a dark, deep well.

Beyond the line of the beach the jungle growth was thick and rank, almost impenetrable, ridden deep in its heart was a small marsh where the sunlight glinted on small pools of brackish water and where tall blue-gray herons and exquisitely white cranes stood immovable on stick-like black legs, beady eyes fastened intently on the water where an occasional darting gleam marked their doomed prey. Occasionally the silence was broken by the ugly rumbling of a giant alligator which was contentedly lirting out its incredible centuries of life completely undisturbed by any dangerous enemy in this small but close-held wilderness.

A pin-point of land, the island; too small even to appear on any maps; too small for any profitable development, measuring, as it did, not more than five miles in length and four five miles in length. Just a few miles of sand and shell-strewn beach and with jungle, peopled only by wild things who had never seen a man; lit to sudden almost startling beauty by the night-light of a heron, ghostly in the silver radiance of the moonlight. So tiny, so unimportant a scrap of land—and yet, lives were to be spent in safeguarding it; evil was to stalk abroad through its scant miles; tragedy and heartbreak — and at last a great happiness was to come to life on this tiny dot of land held fast in the turquoise, white-threaded beauty of the ocean.

In the luxuriously furnished library of a stately home in a certain coast city, five men sat around a great mahogany table. Four of the men were brisk, the oldest not more than 45; they were eagerly engrossed, and there was about them the unmistakable air of success and authority that come of being triumphant in a great many deals.

But the fifth man was one who held the eye. He was old—it was difficult to guess his age, though his hair was snow white. His face was lined deeply, but they were lines etched there by years of pain and suffering, patiently endured, rather than merely the marks of age. The chair in which he sat at the mahogany table was a wheel chair. The lines and most expert-ly designed of vehicle, in which the invalid could propel himself about the house with reasonable speed and ease.

The four men were grouped about him. Alert, wary, yet with an air of amusement and malicious triumph as the self-elected spokesman told for what the invalid had to say.

"But—gentlemen, there is some mistake," said the invalid at last, looking from one to the other, in-locking from one to the other, in-credulous, not yet alarmed or unreasonable, but yet alarmed or uneasy. "The company was formed to develop the island as a winter colony. There was to be a modern hotel, a cottage colony, beach cabanas—"

"Sure—the beach cabanas are going to be started immediately," said one of the men, while his companions grinned approvingly. "But don't be too upset, old man. If nothing beyond the cabanas is built. After all, we only want it for a sort of clearing house. There won't be more than 25 or 30 people there at a time, and when we get the organization working smooth-ly, we can fetch them off every night in fishing boats and land more immediately—"

"But, of course," the invalid interrupted, "once you plan to use the island as a sort of fuel-ling spot in smuggling aliens into this country? That's what you really mean, isn't it?"

His face was grey now and there was a sick, stunned look in his eyes. His hands clenched hard on the arms of his chair.

The other men grinned and their spokesman said almost contemptu-ously, "He's getting wise, boys—isn't that nice?"

"You know, of course, that I shall put a stop to this plan im-mediately," said the invalid grimly, "but—mister—and you will, I'm sure 20 minutes," said the spokes-man. "You're hooked, Markham. You hold 51 per cent of the stock of the new company, which sup-posedly gives you controlling interest. The papers are all drawn up and signed, all you nice and legal and signed. If you tilt a finger to stop us, we'll go into court and have you declared incompetent. And then, for the good of the company, your 51 per cent interest will be divided up among the rest of the stockholders —me and the boys here. Of course, I don't have to tell you, Markham, that that's exactly what we hope WILL happen. We are standing by the island from you outright and you wouldn't sell; we HAD to have it, so we formed a company and bought 49 per cent of the stock. Now that you see you must start something, we'll be tickled to death to hold the 51 per cent. Nothing cards, Markham."

"But if I go to the proper au-thorities—the government—and re-port what you are planning to do—" began the invalid in sharp alarm.

"You couldn't possibly do any-thing that would make it easier for us to have you declared in-competent," said the other man sharply. "The boys and I have good business reputations. This is a le-gitimate enterprise — a swanky winter resort here on the coast. The business people in town are all excited over it, and any such yarn as you plan to spring will be con-sidered fantastic, crazy — and you along with it."

The other nodded in complete agreement and knew by the look that agreed over the faces of men that he knew they were right. That there was no hope and reason in what the man was saying.

The old man relaxed a little in his chair, all the fight gone out of him. The four men grinned at each other as they stood up and their spokesman said coolly, "Well, we looked, Markham—on the way you look at it. We'll be seeing you from time to time. Better let us handle and take your share of the profits and keep your mouth shut—"

They went out and the door closed behind them. For a long time the old man sat quite still in his chair, his eyes on space, his tired body shaken by a violent shudder.

CHAPTER TWO

IN THE SAME coast city on a certain late afternoon, a girl stood on the beach. A girl who was slim and of medium height; a little too thin for actual beauty, though there was something very appeal-ing in the dark eyes that held the ghost of pecish not quite hidden in-side. A certain high, gallant cour-age. She would have been lovely had she not been so thin and so white. She held herself with a set-of-collar grace that is an indefin-able right of all young things. She could not have been more than 20, if quite that.

The night was approaching. The sun had just gone down and the glory of its passing still was re-flected in the ruddy afterglow on the restless, tumbling ocean. Great slow-rolling breakers came in, deeply blue underneath, fading to a blue-green as the breaker reached its peak, breaking in creamy white against the golden-yellow beach.

Sandpipers strutted daintily about the business of hunting their supper; seagulls wheeled lazily against the afternoon sky; a flock of pelicans in solemn formation, flying against the skyline, went past. The wind was salt-tanny against the girl's white, thin cheek.

With a sudden little gesture that was almost gay and gallant, as well as reckless, the girl tugged off her beret and flung it from her. She was not alone—there was no one who will have no further need of such things as hats; she wanted to be free. But the wind caught the small felt thing and sent it dancing along the beach beyond the girl's reach. She lifted her head, her chin out, and squared her naked shoulders to meet the line of breakers. The wa-ter curled about her feet in pearl-ish slippers; about her ankles in sleazy, carefully mended silk stock-ings. The thin, cheap stuff of her dress billowed about her knees as she waded deeper, deeper and deeper into the waves—

A man's sharp voice behind her was crying out. "Wait! That's not the way! STOP!"

For an instant, as though that sharp, commanding voice had been a hand laid on her shoulder, the girl stood still. Then, as though panic pressed hard on her heels, she tried to move faster out into the new water. But the man splashed through the breaking waves to-ward her, caught her, and for a moment they fought savagely, the girl struggling herself away from him. In the end the man's superior strength asserted itself and he turned, half carrying, half drag-ging the girl with him back to the beach.

For a moment she sobbed wildly, clinging to him to keep from col-lapsing. Then she jerked herself from his arms and cried out bit-terly, "Why did you interfere? It's no business of yours. It's taken me days to get my courage up to the sticking point—"

"It doesn't take any courage to kill yourself," the man answered sometimes, NOT to!" said the man sharply.

The girl flung up her head, her face glistening with tears as she looked up at him.

"Cowards? What do YOU know about it? You've never been hun-gry—or friendless—or homeless—"

"No?" The man's mouth twisted in a little bitterness and derision. "Those conditions died beneath his deep and honest pity for her desperation. "How sure you have been of that," he asked gently.

The girl shivered and said faint-ly, "I—can't remember."

The man nodded in complete un-derstanding. "There's a saloon joint up over those dunes along the highway. I'll started in there when I saw you. I've got five dollars I've been saving against the moment when I couldn't possibly go with-out food any longer—"

He broke off then the girl fainti-ly but he wouldn't even listen to her.

Her knees trembled beneath her and only his hand fitted firmly be-neath her elbow drawing her to his side that she leaned a little against him as she walked kept her from complete collapse. The steep dune slipping in the warm loose sand, they reached the paved highway, skirted the beach. Ahead of them through the grow-ing dusk they could see the bril-liantly lit luncheon, and the scent of delicious sandwiches smothered in onions struck them like a blow in the face as the man opened the screen door and drew the girl in-side.

"Two bowls of vegetable soup and bread and butter—coffee, too," he ordered, as he guided the girl to a small table covered with clean but somewhat seared oilcloth.

Neither of them spoke until the man in the greasy apron had brought them the food. Then ate silently with the absorption of starving animals before whom food suddenly appears. And when they had finished the man said, smiling a little, "Feeling better?"

The girl laid a hand on her small middle like a resentful child and sighed luxuriously. "Oh — YES! The only trouble is—this is just go-ing to make it all the harder for me to go back down there—"

"Don't talk like a fool and a coward!" snapped the man. "Do you think I fed you—just to let you go back and destroy yourself? There's a way out for you; there's GOT to be—and for me, too—but it's not THAT way."

The girl declined the cigaret he offered her, and the man studied her for a moment with a curious intentness that did not disturb her. She was relaxed in the sheer com-fort of being fed and sheltered for the moment at least, and of hear-ing a friendly voice after the last few terrifying days.

"See here—are you married?" the man said suddenly, unexpect-edly.

Almost resentfully she answered, "No!"

"Engaged?"

"Of course not!"

"I"—certain, almost uneasy, the girl stared at him, and for a mo-ment terror looked at him from the dark wells of her eyes. Before she could find words to answer him he caught that glimpse of terror and seized his chance.

"I'm sorry," he apologized swift-ly. "I didn't realize how that sound-ed. That was a fool way to put my question. But you don't have to be afraid of me. I'm not a gangster, or a white-slave trader, nor have I any evil designs on you. It's just that I know of a job we might pos-sibly get—"

The terror vanished beneath a flood of hope in her face. "A job? Oh—what kind of a Job?" she breathed with an eagerness that lit candles in the dark pools of her eyes.

"It's a crazy sort of Job maybe you wouldn't be interested—"

"If it's a job—and REASON-ABLY honest—I'm interested!" she told him swiftly, her voice shaken by the intensity of her emotion.

"You'll have to be frank with me implicitly. And I know that's asking a lot, for we never met or saw each other before. And I can't give you any references, and never many occa-tions or tell you very much about the job—because I don't know very much about it myself. You'll just have to make up your mind to a string along with me—if you want the job."

The girl studied him curiously, bewildered and a little uneasy. And then in his eyes she saw, straight-ly, she drew a long breath and nodded as though she had reached a decision.

In Fearful Days Air Warden Says

Letter Gives Picture of Result of Bombing and Fires

Picton, Ont. (CP)—Some of the horrors and a modern but gripping picture of the heroism of air raid wardens in Britain are told in a letter from H. Lupano, himself a warden in London, received by Mrs. B. Lupano of this town.

"I have just come off duty: I am caked with dust, mud, and particles of glass in my hair . . ." the letter said. "We had been hit by a very bad raid; nine houses completely demolished in one block; the church is blown up and the little cinema house just down the way I no more."

The letter went on: "One wing of our house is gone. We have just taken the bodies out of a post office which was blown to bits . . . There were 200 to 30 air-raid wardens up until 6.30 this morning clearing the debris and getting the murdered — that's what they are aren't they?"

The writer broke off at this point to go and look for a delayed action bomb because "if we do not locate it, and it goes off, it will mean the deaths of 15 members of their unborn or just born babies in one wing of the shattered hospital." The bomb went off.

Lupano continued: "Soon I must go for three days' rest. After that I go out again and perform first aid in that three-hour raid. They've been coming in relays almost every night now. We have 14-hour duty . . ."

The letter ended with the words, "These are grim and fearful days, but somehow my little altar in the den seems to tell me that I shall yet drink a toast to peace and home again, and I think it should be in silence—for words would be just silly imperfect sound."

FOR BOMBED ANIMALS

Thames Ditton, Eng. (CP)—Dogs, cats, parrots and canaries, bombed out of city homes, recover quickly and permanently from shell-shock when brought to a farm here run by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

END OF AN ITAL IAN SEA RAIDER

This graphic series of photos shows the curtain coming down on the career of the Italian commerce raider Ramb I, the Italian ship has a brought to book in the Indian Ocean by the New Zealand cruiser Leander in March, but the photos have just been released in Australia and sent to North America. At damaged.

GUNS GUARD AMERICAN PLANE FACTORIES

With unusual precaution against sabotage in effect from end to end of the United States over the Memorial Day holiday, factories engaged in plane and munitions production were under heavy guard. Special guards at the Consolidated Aircraft factory at San Diego, Calif., are shown manning a machine-gun atop one of the factory's buildings following the nation-wide action.

When Nazi Paratroops Dropped on Crete

In this photo, released from Berlin, Nazi paratroops are shown shuting down from great transport planes to the Greek island of Crete in one of the most sensational battles in the history of warfare. Tens of thousands of troops were dropped into Crete by this means and by transport-towed gliders, to be met by a stout defence which also the invaders by thousands.

COMMONS AWAITS NEXT TAX MOVE BY M. F. HEPBURN

Consideration of Income Tax Amendments Delayed Pending Decision From Ontario Premier

BRIEF DEBATE

By C. R. BLACKBURN,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 3 (CP)—Business of the House of Commons has been altered to await the next move of Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario in his controversy with Prime Minister Mackenzie King over taxation methods.

Last night Finance Minister Ilsley told the House that considerations of some income tax amendments would be delayed pending a decision from Mr. Hepburn on the Prime Minister's offer to restore to its former level the tax on interest payable to non-resident holders of Canadian securities of the Ontario Government agreed to a federal proposal that it withdraw from the income tax field.

The announcement and an accompanying statement by Mr. Ilsley created a brief debate in which Ralph Maybank, (Lib. Winnipeg South Centre) said they were not going to get into the controversy.

The House was giving second reading to the bill to amend the Income Tax Act. This contains the clause increasing to 5 per cent the former five per cent tax on interest paid non-resident holders of Canadian securities.

This tax, in effect since 1933, applies to Provincial bonds but not to Dominion bonds. Mr. Hepburn has described it as a tax discrimination which his government will fight in the courts.

Last Friday Mr. King, after an interview with Premier Hepburn, Mr. Hepburn, wired an offer to put the tax back to the five per cent level if Mr. Hepburn would accept the budget proposal that provinces vacate the income tax field and accept compensation from the federal treasury.

No Reply Received

No reply had been received Mr. Ilsley said, and he asked the House, after the debate, if Mr. Hill had been given second reading, to hold up discussion in committee of the clauses until Mr. Hepburn had communicated his decision.

Mr. Ilsley said the compromise offer had been made only after Mr. Hepburn had made it clear in a telegram that because of the non-resident tax increase he would not accept the income tax proposal of the Dominion Government.

The latter was so much more important that the government was willing to forego the increase to get agreement on the Dominion proposal.

The compromise proposal was "not an attempt to use this as a means of forcing or hammering the province into doing what we wanted it to do", Mr. Ilsley said.

Mr. Ilsley he believed the Income Tax proposal to the provinces was a reasonable one, and "we should be left unturned to get agreement elsewhere."

He recommended that the Government call all the premiers to conference on the methods, and Mr. Coldwell endorsed the suggestion.

Suggestion Accepted

Mr. Maybank accepted the suggestion. He recalled the Dominion-Provincial Conference last January when Premier Hepburn, Aberhart of Alberta and Patullo of British Columbia had refused to accept taxation changes envisaged in the Rowell-Sirois report.

The speeches of those "wrecking premiers" were still echoing in the Chamber, Mr. Maybank said, and he was convinced no good purpose could be served by calling another conference.

"If one thing more than another makes me sick it is to hear Toronto complain about taxation when any budget is going to cort it", said Mr. Maybank.

"After having lived on the rent of the country as richly as Toronto has for so long it ill-becomes any person speaking for Toronto to complain about taxation.

"The City of Toronto has more grasping, avaricious people in it than any other city in the world".

Most Generous City in World

"The most generous city in the world", interjected John McNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport).

Mr. King's telegram to Mr. Hepburn offering to compromise was for Mr. Hepburn "a cushion to fall on", Mr. Maybank argued. He questioned the wisdom of sending it.

The remedy for Ontario taxpayers was in the hands of the people. If they did not want double taxation they could see to it that they did not have it.

RAIDED VICARAGE

Bristol (CP)—It would not be in the public interest to make a further statement said the government's spokesman questioned regarding a police raid on the premises of Rev. O. H. Dymock, vicar of St. Bede, here.

As a British soldier stands guard with a bayonet-ted rifle, some of the survivors of the German battleship Bismarck, sunk by British naval action hundreds of miles off the French coast, arrive at an unidentified British port. The photo was cabled from London to New York.

BISMARCK SURVIVORS AWAIT THEIR FATE

How Traffic Influences Business Life Of a Community Told to Rotary

Traffic is one of the most powerful influences in business life and it can either be a nuisance or the greatest boon imaginable, Mr. S. B. Taylor, sales manager of the E. L. Bruce Company, Toronto, told the Belleville Rotary Club yesterday.

With the aid of cleverly drawn skeleton maps superimposed on a shadow box, Mr. Taylor pointed out how the main traffic arteries in Toronto and other Ontario cities had acted as a magnet to merchandising. He illustrated the position of chain-stores, hardware stores, service stations and drug stores along the heavily travelled portions of the cities, with the maps, showing how their number had increased enormously with the increase of traffic.

Heavy downtown traffic is causing a serious problem for large departmental and chain stores in that area he said. In Detroit, there has not been a new department store erected in the congested areas for the past twelve years, while 144 have sprung up in the outlying districts.

Decentralization, because of congestion is one of the answers to this problem, he said.

The gift of an eighteen-hour traffic day in Toronto, he stated, revealed that 90,000 cars or vehicles travelled along Yonge Street while a count was taken along Bloor Street. Statistics reveal that 80 per cent of a city's population leave home every day, whether at work or at play, and that eighty per cent, he added, are the 100 per cent that spend the money.

Congestion is a hindrance in the majority of cities, he remarked illustrating his statement with a picture of the city of Oshawa. "The new four-lane highway, when finished, will divert traffic from the congested area, and the result will be that business will be drawn to and new business areas spring up along the route of the new highway."

While traffic governs the locations of merchandising outlets, merchants must remember that conditions are changing and that they are under competition they have not had to reach. They must keep up the seppo of shopping to meet these conditions.

The neighborhood stores are gradually disappearing. In the southern states, 39 per cent of groceries are sold in super-markets. In New York state a high percentage is also retailed through this medium.

Canada has built more miles of new roads in the last decade than any other country in the world except Germany and these, he said.

Over a period of ten years the increase in cars here has been 17 per cent. Gasoline used in 1930 amounted to 479 1-2 million gallons. In 1939 it was 879 million gallons. Mileage travelled in 1939 was 35,514,337 which is 3,500,000 more miles than that travelled in 1930.

In closing Mr. Taylor pointed out that eight represents 87 per cent of the impressions; sound 9-per cent; smell 2.5 per cent; touch 1.5 per cent, and taste 1 per cent.

Virgil James was host at the guest table. President Percy MacGuire was in the chair; The club directors will seriously consider the financing of the purchase of $500 for larger visitor's sign board following a suggestion made by Rotarian Judge Charles A. Cameron.

Anzacs Discover Nazi Light Signals To Soon Dispose of German Troops

London, June 3 (CP)—New Zealand troops in Crete, who discovered the light signals used by invading German parachutist troops, got the knowledge to advantage and even eliminated a 40-pom carrying airplane, Chester Wilmott, correspondent of the Australian broadcasting Corporation with the forces in the Middle East, said in an account of the fighting broadcast over the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Officers from Crete landed at Tobruk last week and told Wilmott how the New Zealanders would use the light signals to ask for ammunition and supplies from the German planes above. The supplies were dropped following the signals which led the Nazi aviators to believe their own men were below.

"They even signalled for a troop carrier which landed successfully and then was successfully dealt with," Wilmott said.

His account of the fighting said it was "reliably estimated" that at least 5,000 Germans a day were landed by air on the island. The British and Imperial forces "lacked adequate transport to meet such numbers."

Gave Up Use of Gliders

He added that the Germans gave up the use of gliders after the second day of fighting "because they found them too liable to crashes."

The Germans "still run from the bayonet even when they are armed with machine guns." One officer said a whole party of Germans surrendered with their weapons ran in panic at the sight of a bayonet charge and one Maori (native New Zealand troops) charge drove the Germans before him.

"The Germans had a clear superiority in weapons against the Australians, but not against the light artillery of our troops," Wilmott went on. "The German technique was to keep our men down by continuous bombing. This method dropped following the signals which led the Nazi aviators to believe their own men were below.

Chicken-Pox Saved Lives

Evacuee Had It and Saved Companions from City of Benares Sinking

London (CP)—A little girl with chicken-pox saved the lives of 43 children.

She was aboard the torpedoed evacuee liner Volendam last September, en route to Canada, she and 319 other children were rescued and brought back safely to the United Kingdom.

Parents of 270 children asked that the Children's Overseas Reception Board should send them home, because they didn't want to risk sending them off to Canada a second time. But 50 children, at their parents' request, were taken to another port to catch the next liner. It was the City of Benares, subsequently torpedoed with considerable loss of life among the child evacuees.

Before the Benares sailed the little girl caught chicken-pox. A doctor said all 50 children must go into quarantine and could not sail. So they were saved.

Solitaire Calls For Glamor Hand

By BETTY CLARKE

Associated Press Staff Writer

The girl with a new solitaire has a job on her hands, especially if she's a beauty standpoint.

Everybody wants to see her ring and that means seeing her hands, and since she has the right to display her wedding ring she's definitely while) the cuticle must be smooth (so smooth) and her nails must be short (not too long for a bride, please).

There's something about a bride that suggests a soft rose rather than bright red nail polish, though bright red looks really are in style, along with more feminine frills and dangs and dangles. Those styles are shades with lipsticks and eyes to match.

Remember that you can match your diamond and your nails to an elender, graceful line. Choose an oblong diamond or a boat-shaped stone. Then, if you polish over the entire length of the nail with a pale pink polish, the long line of the stone (be it a diamond or another stone) and the line of the nail will appear to be tapering.

If you really shouldn't select a wide-band gold ring with rounded cut or other ornate setting. If you are one of those tall, tall girls with long hands. Remember that a baby 3 stone ring can't seem shorter.

If your engagement ring is wide, your wedding ring should be narrow and in the same metal.

Unsuspected Sinus Infection Can Cause Many Symptoms

For years it has been known that infected sinuses and tonsils can cause disturbances in other parts of the body, resulting in rheumatism, heart disease, impairment of eyesight, loss of hearing and other conditions. That infected sinuses can cause these and other "ailments" is generally suspected but proof of it has not been generally forthcoming.

That many individuals have sinus infection, but themselves know it well known. There may be an actual pus condition, with pressure, pain and discharge from nose is not unduly large, the discharge is of a thick nature, or sinuses. If he finds an infected tooth or tonsil present in his search for the infection causing certain symptoms, he is apt to stop there, certain naturally thinking he has located the cause.

Under-Secretary Knows His Planes

Balfour Was a Fritz-Getter in First Great War and Active Pilot in This

London (CP)—Capt. H. H. Balfour, the flying Under-Secretary of State for Air, believes that so far as flying the Royal Air Force's latest fighters is concerned "one is not too old at 40" in spite of the great speed of modern machines.

During a visit to an airport he took up one of the world's fastest fighters, the Whirlwind, and first it around the country.

Capt. Balfour, who shot down 11 enemy machine during the First Great War, is 43. Soon after the Spitfire and Hurricane reached squadrons of the R.A.F. he flew them at a time when the former was the world's fastest military plane. Handling the Whirlwind, however, must have presented a new test to a pilot coming to its controls for the first time, for it is a twin-engine monoplane unlike the Spitfire and Hurricane.

Capt. Balfour showed how amenable are the aircraft which British designers produce for action who now exceed 400 miles an hour as a matter of course. He was the first British minister to pilot a 300 M.P.H. Hawker Hurricane. That was during a secret night flight at Northolt nearly three years ago. He surprised air force officers with his ability to handle a machine with which he had no previous experience.

The Minister, who took his certificate in 1915, crashed during a flight in January, 1938, but to make sure of keeping his nerve he has medately went up again.

Democratic Forms Of Government Must Be Maintained

Christian Scientists at Boston Urged to Consecrate Selves to Defence of Democratic System

Boston, Mass., June 2.—Some 6,000 Christian Scientists from many parts of the world gathered in annual meeting Monday in Boston were called upon by The Christian Science Board of Directors to consecrate themselves to the defense of the democratic system of government as the best human instrument for preserving the basic rights of mankind to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness".

In this definitely allying this world-wide religious movement with the defenders of democracy everywhere, the Directors stated that it was their conviction that if social and political freedom it to be preserved "democratic forms of government must be maintained".

The occasion for the stirring message of the Directors was the annual meeting of The Mother Church The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Referring to the aggressive forces in action today throughout the world, the Directors pointed out that "human history teaches that when a nation chooses to ignore the laws of God, which are the foundation stone of its government the judgments of God come to failure, and at the same time provides the means for its ultimate defeat and undoing".

The incoming president accentuated the sense of spiritual progress with the reassuring statement that "the present mighty world upheaval does not portend the breaking up of civilization, but the end of the plunging of humanity into chaotic darkness".

In this present conflict in the light of a world hostility, during which industrial and national sin, tyranny, greed, self-will and hate flower and bring brought to the surface of world thinking ripe for destruction and the building of a better world civilization, are the things that will be destroyed.

Evidence of spiritual growth was found in the organization of 37 new branches of The Mother Church, seven of them in England, four in Canada, two in Holland, and one each in British Guiana and Mexico. Also 24 societies formerly were reported so have taken the title of Church and five new university organizations were formed and qualified for official approval.

In the list of churches under the will of Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, the Trust was established in 1913, four new churches have been extended by it towards Christian Science church activities throughout the world.

Reporting on the war relief work, The First Church of Christ, Scientific Committee in Boston began its work on January 1, 1940. To-day over one thousand committees serving as local committees of the branch churches are shipping war relief material to Boston or to Chicago as the two distributing centres functioning in New York, Portland, Oregon and San Francisco.

Reports were heard from various parts of the world indicating that those at the meeting that spiritual progress is actually accelerated rather than diminished, by the rampant forces of material carnage.

Another Grateful Man Praises Syntona Highly

Relieved Stomach Trouble, Dizzy Spells and Pains In Back and Shoulders. Felt Nervous, Rundown.

"I can plainly see why so many people are talking about Syntona and I am now convinced that it actually does all that is claimed for it," said Mr. George Van Norman, well known resident of Millgrove, Ontario, in his recent statement.

"For the past four years I have been troubled with stomach upset with a stomach trouble and constipation, dizzy spells came some way or other I would have to stop working. I felt nervous, run down, pains set into my shoulders and back. I couldn't sleep well and I would get up in the morning tired, stumpish, nervous and irritable.

"I started to take Syntona and after taking it, too and it has proved a splendid tonic. I am now feeling quite well. My stomach trouble has left me entirely, my pains have left my back and shoulders and I sleep well. I am free of those dizzy spells and I feel I am getting my health back. If anyone cares to write me, I will be glad to tell them especially just what Syntona has done for me."

The reason such good results are produced by a medicine that is compounded to act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels at the same time is simply this: The organs of assimilation and elimination are so closely related in their functions that when one becomes ailing it so often affects one or more of the others. Food then should provide energy and resistance, only ferments in the stomach. Excess acids and poisonous waste matter is fed into the bowels and soon the whole system is rundown.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at Campbell's Drug Store.

BRITONS AROUSED BY NAZI THREAT TO SYRIA

BRITAIN CONCENTRATES SHIPPING IN WAR ZONE

Iraq Settlement Enables Britain to Take Precautions

British Source Says "Wrong to Assume All Preparations Are French and German

URGED TO ACT BOLDLY

London, June 4 (CP).—Britain today strengthened her hand for the great battle raging up in the Middle East by two steps aimed at thwarting German strategy.

These preliminaries for what may be a portentous struggle for the Middle East's oil and control of the Suez Canal were announced as successfully completed:

1. Reoccupation of Mosul, the oil centre of Iraq, by British troops.

2. "Necessary precautions in regard to Syria," the British official head for an Axis thrust into Iraq and back-door drive toward Suez.

Although order has been restored, the Middle East general headquarters said martial law had been declared by the Iraq government in Baghdad yesterday following "serious rioting."

House Debate On Crete Predicted

A House of Commons debate on the battle of Crete and conduct of the war as a whole was predicted by political observers today. One said there was widespread dissatisfaction among members who also fear the loss of Crete as the price of "grave lack of foresight on the part of responsible authorities."

An authoritative source, reporting precautionary measures confronting French-mandated Syria where German men and machines already have been reported, said the Iraq settlement "has enabled us to prepare for whatever may blow up in Syria."

"It would be wrong," he added, "to assume that all activities and preparations in that part of the world are French and German."

"Britain," he said, "has been able to take necessary precautions in regard to Syria which she was unable to do while the Iraq business still was unsettled."

He said he was unable to confirm or deny reports that German airborne troops had landed in Syria.

A Vichy report that Gen. Maxime Weygand had been charged with defence of the French Empire might be only "big talk" by the Vichy government, he observed. It is unlikely that such defence would remain single-handed very long—any more than the Italian defence of Libya remained single-handed."

Sharing control over Syria with French-mandated Syria were Vichy's other strongholds where, the New Chronicle declared, the Nazis have been given the right to use six key naval bases along the Mediterranean and the south Atlantic coast of Africa.

Reports were circulated here, too, that the British "fighting for liberty" France into the war again—this time against the Germans—is in a fight over Syria and other parts of her Empire in order to complete Vichy's co-operation in an all-out war effort.

GERMAN-OCCUPIED LE HAVRE RAIDED

Three Nazi Planes Destroyed in Overnight Raids on Britain

London, June 4.—(CP) — Royal Air Force coastal command bombers bombed the German-occupied French port of Le Havre and an airdrome near Cherbourg yesterday, the Air Ministry announced today.

There was not much activity by Nazi raiders over Britain during the night, but bombers were dropped in the south, northeast and southwest of England with some casualties and damage, the Ministry said.

Authoritative sources said three German bombers were destroyed in overnight raids on Britain and that the R.A.F. lost one plane.

WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS

Kitchener, Ont., June 4 (CP)—Forty employees in the stock preparation room of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company plant here returned to work at midnight after a strike that lasted only a few hours.

The strike resulted from "failure of the company to grant an increase after more than three months negotiations," Joseph Macdonald, international representative of the United Rubber Workers Association, claimed today. The local union representative added "the company has promised to take some action by tomorrow."

5 AIRMEN LOSE LIVES SEARCHING FOR LOST FLIERS

Plane Hits Aerial Mast On Sable Island 100 Miles Off Nova Scotia Coast

HIDDEN BY FOG

Halifax, June 4 (CP). — Royal Canadian Air Force personnel on Sable Island, Sydney and Dartmouth took off today to continue a search for four airmen aboard which has already cost the lives of five of their fellow fliers.

While the hunt continued for the men missing on a patrol flight since Monday, it was expected the bodies of the men who died in a crash on Sable Island yesterday would be brought here today.

Everything humanly possible is being done," Air Commodore A. E. Godfrey, Officer Commanding the Eastern Air Command, said. "Large numbers of planes took off this morning from Newfoundland, Sydney and Dartmouth. The fog banks in Sydney and Dartmouth cleared early are breaking up into patches and we hope will dissipate entirely before long."

Conditions Too Rough

Conditions at Sable Island were so rough yesterday that only three airmen could be landed from a vessel in an effort to reach the scene of the crash of the RCAF Hudson bomber, Air Commodore Godfrey said.

"We hope to be able to bring the bodies off the island," he added. "Conditions have improved there very considerably and they may be brought by boat, whichever is advisable."

The big plane crashed into a modern addition to Sable Island—the ultra-thrifty but most radio station. All five crewmen were killed, R. C. A. P. officials announced here early today.

Sable Island, graveyard of ships for centuries, had never before claimed an air-borne ship.

Officials said the plane aircraft plunged to its end on the windswept sands of the 20-mile, 100 miles off Nova Scotia, it was one of many machines searching the fog-smeared coastline for the plane that had failed to turn up at the R.C.A.F. station at Glace Bay, N.S., the night before. The search for the missing men of the crew recently were killed instantly.

Plane Hit Mast

RCAF officials' report on the plane's death dive came out of Sable Island. The island's inhabitants consist chiefly, now, of a few employees of the Marconi Company's transport, so far as is known here.

Radio advices told of the crash. Cpl. Ramsay Hunter of Sydney, N.S., the night before. The search parties, composed of men of the crew recently were killed instantly.

Low-Paid Road Worker, With Three Sons Overseas, Finds Money to Buy Bond

The press car slowed down to a stop on the highway where a group of workers were repairing the road. When we halted a reporter leaned out of the car window and asked a nearby laborer for a match. As a grimy hand disappeared in a pocket, the newspaperman noticed the familiar "Torch" insignia of a bond buyer in the Victory Loan Campaign gleaming proudly on the dusty blue of the workman's overalls.

"Say, buddy," enquired the scribe, "do you happen to own a Victory Bond?"

"Not yet, Mac," came the steady reply, "but I hope to very soon. I've just put my first instalment on a fifty dollar one, and that is about all I can afford."

"But can you afford it?" asked the newspaperman.

The man's hand jerked back. His shoulders straightened up. In his eye came a look of pride and determination. He wiggled a horny finger under the newspaperman's nose.

"Listen, Mac," he said, and he wasn't fooling. "I fought in the last war, and I've got three boys over there now. I am getting thirty cents an hour on this job, and it's a hard work. But no son ever enough to help my boys over there, if I have to give up—all we can get along without. The missus is with me in that. We can manage all right, if buying this bond is going to help the boys. We turned away to his job as a foreman came in sight.

That is the spirit of a humble Canadian workman. And that is the spirit which must permeate all of us if Canada is to see the light dawn on victory. Victory for which we won't win wars. They have cost many lives of the peoples of down-trodden countries in Europe. Don't promise . . . PAY. Hastings County has been called upon to purchase Victory Bonds to the amount of two millions of dollars. Already responses are coming in. The success of the Victory Loan will be the measure of their country's will to survive. Hitler and Democracy can't beat him in its own way. Hastings County will have an answer that is clear and unmistakable, INVEST NOW FOR SAFETY. HOLD ONTARIO FOR THE FUTURE PEACE AND BUSINESS OF YOUR LOVED ONES.

Fled to Holland 23 Years Ago After Plan Failed To Dominate World

—NEVER RETURNED

Berlin, June 4—(AP) — Former Kaiser Wilhelm II, of imperial Germany died today at his exile estate of Doorn in the quiet backwash of a once German surge of conquest almost 23 years after he fled from the crumbling failure of his own plan to dominate the world.

The 82-year-old former emperor died at 11.30 a.m. (5.30 a.m. E. D.T.) in a sudden relapse of an illness which brought family members to his bedside last week.

Even in his exile, it was reported, the "old man of Doorn" will not return to the land of his birth, he will be accorded a full military funeral on Monday, The German High Command has taken charge of the military phase of the funeral arrangements.

The once powerful emperor of Germany died without revealing that dream of restoration of the Hohenzollern monarchy, but almost to the very end followed the news of the German Army's conquests.

There even seemed to have been a reconciliation between the former Kaiser and Adolf Hitler, who, it was reported, once would have had criticized Wilhelm's regime.

ITALIAN COMMUNIQUE

Rome, June 4 (AP).—The Italian high command today said Italian planes attacked the Libyan harbor of Tobruk yesterday, claiming hits on two ships.

The Italians acknowledged British planes had bombed axis-held Bengasi, west of Tobruk.

NAZI FREIGHTER AT BUENOS AIRES

Buenos Aires, June 4 (AP). — The 5,522-ton German freighter Frankfurt arrived today from Montevideo, Uruguay, where she had been tied up since the start of the war.

The Frankfurt left Montevideo after completing in seventeen days a 3-month voyage around Cape Horn and to this Argentine port in American coastal waters.

CIVILIAN PLANE MISSING

London, June 4.—(CP)—A British civilian plane, carrying five passengers and the pilot, is reported missing. It left the 46-city Islands Tuesday afternoon for Penzance, Cornwall, but when fog, rain squalls and speedboats have been searching.

Air activity over the Channel and coast increased yesterday, combined with R.A.F. fighter patrols in action five miles up.

U. S. Takes Over Canada-Australia Shipping Routes

Move Enables Britain To Use More of Her Ships in War Effort

ONLY A BEGINNING

(By J. F. SANDERSON)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 4 —(CP)—United States vessels immediately will take over all British shipping routes from Canada and the United States to Australia and New Zealand.

The move, made to strengthen Britain's Atlantic life-line, was regarded here as a probable forerunner of a complete British withdrawal from maritime activities outside the war zone. Such withdrawal, with U.S. vessels taking over the routes, long has been considered likely but formal action did not come until late yesterday.

In a brief announcement, the maritime commission reported the agreement and said that a dozen British vessels would be released for Britain's war efforts.

The agreement was interpreted in some official circles here as further evidence of Britain's acute need for cargo tonnage in the war of her ocean life-line. Another expectation was that British cruiser ships in the South American trade soon would follow.

The maritime commission's announcement capped a day that saw various steps taken to Britain's life-line battle figure prominently in capital developments.

One disclosure was that "a number" of the commission's new cargo vessels had been converted into aircraft carriers. John J. Dempsey, a member of the commission, gave the information to a Senate committee investigating the defence program.

Heavy Daylight Raids Carried Out by R.A.F. On Port of Boulogne

Folkestone, England, June 4 (CP) —The Royal Air Force said today it carried out a series of heavy daylight raids on the French coast today, including one of the main targets.

Several times the rumble of loud explosions was heard across the Strait of Dover, which was shrouded in mist. Ground on the British side of the English Channel was shaken.

Air activity over the Channel and coast increased yesterday combined with R.A.F. fighter patrols in action five miles up.

Justice Macaulay Retires After 39 Years' Service

Ottawa, June 4—(CP)—Mr. Justice C. D. Macaulay, judge of the Yukon Territorial Court, has retired after thirty-nine years of service in the North, the Department officials said yesterday.

Justice Minister Lapointe has on the Commons' order paper a resolution to amend the Yukon Act to provide for appointment of stipendiary magistrates for the territory, as the services of a magistrate will be necessary until a successor to Mr. Justice Macaulay is appointed.

The veteran northern judge began his duties at Dawson City in 1902, four years after the height of the gold rush to the Yukon, and knew many of the notables given immortality by writers about the North.

Mr. Justice Macaulay practised law in Belleville for a number of years and was a very popular member of the Belleville Association. He has been a frequent visitor to Belleville.

Australia Exceeds Recruiting Quota

Sydney, June 4 (A.A.P.) — Major General Lloyd director of the Australian Army's recruiting campaign, said today that 30,000 men enlisted throughout Australia during the first month of the campaign "and the numbers are increasing throughout the national quota, which is a gratifying record."

Over 6,000 Anzacs Unaccounted for After Withdrawal

Sydney, Australia, June 4 (CP).—More than 6,000 Australian and New Zealand troops were unaccounted for after the withdrawal from Crete it was estimated today.

Percy Spender, Australian Army Minister, announced that of 6,466 members of the Australian Imperial Force in Crete before the German air invasion 1,287 were, including 218 wounded, were removed to Egypt. This left 3,599 men unaccounted for.

Acting Prime Minister Arthur Nash of New Zealand announced yesterday that 4,000 New Zealand troops who fought in Crete were unaccounted for. Of 7,700 that made arrivals in Egypt were 786 wounded New Zealanders.

32,000 Houses Repaired in London, 40,000 in Provinces

London, June 4 (CP)—Air raid damage to private homes in London has been twice as much as to dwellings in the rest of England, Health Minister Ernest Brown told a press conference today.

He said that more than 80 per cent of the damaged houses which could be repaired had been made windproof and watertight. In London last week 22,000 houses were repaired, and 40,000 in the provinces.

SHORTAGE OF OIL SEEN BY JULY 1 IN EASTERN STATES

Concentration of Defence Industries and Shortage of Tankers Aggravate Condition

TO GET MORE ACUTE

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—The populous eastern United States got advance notice today to expect less gasoline for automobiles and less fuel oil for oil burners beginning July 1.

The shortage, petroleum experts said, would become progressively more acute during the autumn and on into the winter.

To combat the approaching scarcity and to keep it from cramping defence production, they recommended that drastic curbs be imposed on the use of oil. Specifically, it was suggested that "gasless Sundays" be started in the area taking the maximum in oil-heating homes be kept from dropping below 65 degrees in winter. No federal program has been formulated, however.

A full report on the situation was submitted yesterday to Interior Secretary Harold Ickes, Defence Petroleum Co-ordinator, by a committee of the petroleum industry. The industry pledged its support "to any extent" in helping to meet the anticipated emergency.

Petroleum experts emphasized, there is plentiful oil production. The crux of the prospective problem, as the oil men see it, is one of transportation. The east is the largest oil-consuming section of the U.S. and its needs have been increasing due to concentration of defence industries. But facilities for delivering oil to the northeastern seaboard have been reduced by the diversion of British Service of 50 of the 250-ship tanker fleet, America's coastwise fleet. Further transfers are likely.

The oil men agree there is urgent need for the construction of an oil pipe line from Louisiana and Texas to the New York-Pennsylvania area. A report that they favor a 24-inch line would move as much oil as 85 tankers, would cost $70,000,000 and require a year or 15 months to build.

FOREST FIRES RAGE OVER 17,000 SQUARE MILES

Officials Estimate Damage in the Millions of Dollars

HOMES EVACUATED

Chicoutimi, Que., June 4 (CP).—With the Provincial Minister of Lands and Forests joining in the fight, 4,000 Pire Rangers and volunteers comprised a dogged battle today against sweeping forest fires estimated to cover 1,000 square miles in the district north of Lake St. John district.

Lands Minister P. E. Cote toured the burning district today, accompanied by Henri Bourassa, M.P., and the Provincial Forest Protection Service.

Officials estimated damage in the millions of dollars although no accurate assessment of the cost could yet be made.

Advancing in some sections at a 20-mile-an-hour clip, the flames destroyed settlers' homes, hunting and fishing lodges, standing timber, garden and thousands of acres of healthy-growing forests.

Fires, some of which were burning through their ninth day, ate into the forestry reserves that supply a number of newsprint mills in the district, while new outbreaks burned fiercely near Berslmis, about 30 miles north of Lake St. Jean, Lamaau and at Lake Mistassini.

Quads Separated by Marriage

Oklahoma City, June 4 —(AP)— The Key quadruplets celebrated their 26th birthday today, separated for the first time on the festive occasion by the marriage of the four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Flake Key. The wedding yesterday of her husband, Bob Fowler, for a visit in Bloomington, Ind.

The quads—Frances, Mary, Roberta and Leota—are home.

ROOKIE STALKS MOON

Fort Jackson, S.C., June 4.—(AP)—Private Fred Garnavant was ordered to investigate a mysterious light beyond the crest of a hill near the "battle line" during a manoeuvre. Doing his new woodcraft, he crawled silently through the darkness—and found himself stalking a ruing moon

Tobruk's Garrison Leading Almost Normal Lives of Desert Fighters

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Tobruk, June 4—(AP)— British, Australian and Indian motorized cavalry, surrounded at the Libyan port of Tobruk by Axis forces, are leading today almost normal lives of desert fighters.

Dug in for protection against shells and bombs, troops are spending upon a patched-up, 30-year-old Italian barracks or in Italians—to keep Hitler's African Corps penned in—and to prepare for attacking a frontier post.

Typical was flash of Nazi blitzkrieg splutters out on the desert. Tobruk's defenders have open sea communications and supplies are adequate. Air mail letters have been delivered from Australia in as little as 12 days.

Italians started before building the perimeter defences about the port of Tobruk from Tel. Isseif and the enclosed area has many hills and valleys.

Close to French Warfare

Nazis garnered columns, usually supported by swarms of dive bombers, have been thrown against the desert stronghold a number of times, but their efforts, the Germans have gained a wedge inside the outer barbed wire of the defence perimeter, have been in area daily and bombers fly over often.

Over the no-man's-land there are frequent exchanges of rifle fire between the two armies. The result is the closest thing yet to the trench warfare of the first Great War.

The men of Tobruk bathe along the shore, and recently a Nazi plane machine-gunned them in the water but no harm was done. Most of the attacks from the air are directed at the harbor and its shipping. In a recent raid, the biggest yet, 100 planes were sent.

Nazis Strike Twice with Tanks

Frequently new defences have taken the offensive; sending out armoured patrols to harass besiegers.

On April 14 the Germans threw at least 50 tanks, including Nazi Mark III and Mark IV types, against the perim er. They broke through for about two miles inside the outer barbed wire, but their offensive cost them several hundred men and 44 tanks. They withdrew and two weeks later struck again.

Since then the besiegers have not attacked with heavy forces.

Women Have Most to Lose and Most To Win by Outcome of War Says Writer

Toronto, June 4—(CP)—Dorothy Thompson, the distinguished United States' journalist, said in a talk here last night that "women have most to lose and most to win by the outcome of this war."

"The women are the ones who have the most to lose and the most to win by the outcome of this struggle."

She appealed to women of the world to unite in a determination that "this war shall end, would to endure and as one means she suggested "an international federal control of the air for all time."

Miss Thompson said that victory at a women's Victory Loan rally attended by an estimated 18,000 persons.

When you subscribe to the Victory Loan you are making a contribution in your heart," she said. "Subscribe to it as a contribution to the supreme act of will that we must mobilize all the women of the world in the peace to come, whatever is done about boundaries and territories and money and economics, one thing must be done—the international control of the aid for all time; an international mutual protection of the air against war. We will see to it that nobody ever again in history makes an armed

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

ROCHESTER CLUB TO VISIT CITY

As has been their practice for the past several years, the officers and members of the Rochester Club of Rochester, N.Y., will come to Belleville on June 19th on a "good-will visit," the motorcade will again arrive at the Government Dock where the latter, following an overnight boat trip from Charlotte, N.Y., expected to be informally given out at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce today. The reception committee in this city is headed by Mr. James Galloway.

While visiting in Belleville our American cousins from Rochester will be entertained at golf, fishing and a tour of inspection of the district industrial plants.

TO MAKE PLANS FOR BOYS' CAMP

Plans for the continuance of the Belleville Boys' Camp at Moira Lake will be made at a reunion supper at the Y.M.C.A. on this evening, according to information given out by Mr. Ed. Barnett, association physical instructor, to-day. Former campers and "Y" leaders are expected to attend the banquet and meeting to formulate plans for the continuance of the Moira Lake Boys' Camp at the conclusion of the present season.

TWO MEMBERS PETIT JURY EXCUSED FROM JURY SITTINGS

Recognizing the urgent need of Canada's war effort, His Honour Judge Madden of Napanee, excused two members of the petit jury summoned for duty at the criminal Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings of the County Court which opened in Belleville on Monday.

After Lloyd C. O'Flynn had impanelled the petit jury and announced all present and accounted for, Crown Attorney, Donnan, K.C., approached His Honour stating that two members of the petit jury were engaged in vital war work and ought to be excused from jury duty under the circumstances.

His Honour then summoned Harold Morton, Frankford, and C. D. Powell, of this city, before him and after hearing of their work in the manufacture of vital machinery for the prosecution of the war, His Honour excused the two men. Crown Attorney Donnan readily agreed to the suggestion and the two men left immediately to resume their employment.

FORMER RESIDENT AIR RAID VICTIM

Word was received in the city today from Chelmsford, England, of the death by Nazi bombing of George Weeks, a former resident of this city. Mr. Vowles, while he resided in Belleville was employed by the Stewart-Warner Alemite Company and lived at 7 Birchmore Avenue, where he was known to a wide circle of friends. He left Belleville four years ago to reside with his wife and family at Chelmsford, England and the message received stated that he was a victim of an air raid some weeks ago. Mrs. Florence Roatte, Highland Avenue, of Belleville, is a cousin.

Tag Day Cheque Sent to Toronto By Kiwanis Club

Stressing the absolute need of tools to finish the job and urging the members to invest in Canada's Victory Loan, William Strange, Canadian radio commentator and author, gave an impassioned address to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Strange has recently returned from a visit to London where he was privileged to view at close range the damage that has been afflicted on bombed Britain. He was introduced by Fred Lewis and Kiwanian's appreciation was expressed by Harold Bateman. Jim Barclay presided at the luncheon with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Charlie Richardson as sergeant-at-arms.

It was announced that a large number will make the journey to Oshawa on Wednesday to visit the club at that city. Peterboro, Lindsay and Barrie will also send members. This is an annual outing provided by the Oshawa Club and a good time is provided. The members from the city will go by train. It was also announced that a cheque for $651.34 has been sent to the Telegram War Victims' Fund the result of a tag day held by the club on May 24th. Jack McVeigh, chairman of the Special Tag Day Committee stated the cheque was in the mail and with the hope that the contribution would assist those who are desperately in need in Britain.

Convincing Speaker

Mr. Strange is a most convincing speaker and although his message was one of deep sorrow for bombed Britain, yet there was a note of triumph, for as he said, the spirit of the British people cannot be bowed with senseless bombing where in a large part, civilian women and children are killed. He stated that the industrial life of Britain moved along a normal course because the factories are well camouflaged as are the docks and jetties where a great quantity of supplies reach Britain every day. The anti-aircraft barrage is centred to protect these important places and therefore the Nazis find it easier to bomb civilian residences and pitiliana than it is to bomb important targets. "They hope in this way to break down the morale of the people but they are mistaken," said Mr. Strange.

The speaker told of monuments of the Old Country, St. Paul's Cathedral, Houses of Parliament, the Public Library, St. James' Park that have been left by Nazi bombing and that literally stricken by grievous loss the vitality of the British people to recuperate from these assaults and are ready to repair the damage in so short a space of time as they will soon be allowed to proceed. "Every person in Britain is doing the work of three," said Mr. Strange, "and it should be small thing for you to furnish the tools to finish the job." The speaker was convinced that Britain would triumph although it would be a long hard pull. He spoke at the meeting on Monday night and a full report of that address will be given in the columns of the Ontario Intelligencer. Many of the members in this city and district on Tuesday were incorporated in the Monday night's speech.

Fire Department Short of Two Men

Since the departure of Mr. Jack Thompson and Gerald "Wargy" O'Brien, there are only seven members of the Belleville Fire Department who are available for duty and the matter of their duties for the duration of the war to join the Royal Canadian Navy of the R.C.A.F., the local fire department personnel has been two short of its full complement according to Fire Chief William Lynch.

Ordinarily the local department calls for a personnel of twenty members, there only being eighteen on the list at the present time. One vacancy has been filled by the fire commission for the local department but in order to permit his present members to obtain a day off in his stead he has not reported for duty at the present time. Lynch is also seeking a spare man to augment the staff on the local force during the summer season when members will be absent on their holidays.

SERVICE MARKED BY SIMPLICITY

Final Tribute Paid to Lou Gehrig, One of Baseball's Finest Characters

New York, June 4 —(AP)— In a service marked by the same simplicity that characterized his life, final tribute was paid Lou Gehrig today at Christ Episcopal Church, the Bronx.

Gehrig, baseball's iron man, died Monday night after an illness of two years. Baseball, which he courageously fought the inroads of an apparently incurable malady.

The church, seating about 200, was less than half filled. The Rev. Harry Leland requested a private service and only relatives, close friends, baseball and civic officials and a few newspapermen were present.

The service was read by Rev. Gerald Barry from the Episcopal prayer book, and was completed in less than 10 minutes. Mr. Barry, after finishing the ritual, remarked simply:

"It is customary to deliver an address at funerals . . . However, it is the wish of the bereaved that this be not done. I am requested to say simply there will be no eulogy because we all know him so well."

Covered With Roses

Gehrig's body lay in a mahogany casket covered with a spray of roses. The front of the church was banked solidly with floral pieces, and car after car at the curb was filled with other offerings. A crowd of 250 persons waited in the rain for the service to end.

Among those present at the final service were Will Hartridge, Amateur Athletic Union President; Leslie O'Connor, Secretary to Commissioner Landis; Eddie Collins, Red Sox General Manager; Tom Richardson, Eastern League President; Ford Frick, National League President; Bill Terry and Eddie Brannick of New York Giants, and Deputy Mayor Rufus E. McGuinn, representing Mayor La Guardia, who was out of the city.

Obituary

LATE JOHN RICHARD HOLLAND

The funeral of the late John Richard Holland of Trenton took place on Saturday afternoon, June 1st, from the Cobley Funeral Home, 45 Front Street, to North Trenton United Church where the service was conducted by the Reverend Earl Whitmore in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

Jury Returns True Bill Against M. Meraw, Tweed

Two criminal cases were listed for trial at the opening sessions of the County Court, Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings of the County Court, which opened in Belleville this Honour Judge Madden at the Court House on Monday afternoon. Both charges were of indecent assault and preferred against Mike Meraw, of Tweed. His Honour presented a short outline of the charges to the Grand Jury before they retired.

"You are not to try the prisoner, but rather to hear the evidence and if you determine there is sufficient evidence to place the accused man on his trial, you shall find a true bill; if, in your opinion, there is not sufficient evidence, then you will find no bill and the accused will be released without further trial," explained His Honour as he delivered the Grand Jury into the hands of Constable Bert Dell. Mr. Donnan, K.C., who immediately presented the case for the Crown's case in the Grand Jury rooms. His Honour pointed out that Grand Jury would not be necessary for them to conduct the conventional inspection of prisoners but that before the true Grand Jury had already completed the usual criminal inspection of such buildings.

Jurryman Absent

The Grand Jury in session is composed of Frank Bateman, chairman, Ross Caverley, Kenneth Denyes, Harold Gardiner, Robert Gibbard, Harry Mullen, Robert McColl, Harry Mullen, Edward Robertson, Frank Sharpe, Ed. Thompson, Percy Munro and David Nolan.

Mr. Jack Thompson, called into the Grand Jury from the ranks of the petit jury, failed to be present. When called to respond to his name when called at the opening of the court proceedings.

Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C., announced that the case would be held in contempt after he had been duly summoned. His Honour Judge Madden took Mr. Donnan's suggestion into consideration and stated that unless a suitable explanation was presented at the opening of the present sitting that Mr. Garrison would be held in contempt.

True Bill Returned

In both criminal indictments, true bills were returned against both Meraw and Gardiner and he will stand trial that he did indecently assault two Tweed women on January 9th last. The cases will open before His Honour Judge Madden sometime today.

Six Recommended For Naturalization

Six aliens sought recommendations from the Magistrate at the opening of the General Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings held before His Honour Judge Madden here on Monday. The applicants seeking naturalized citizenship were presented individually by Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C.

As five of the applicants were born in enemy countries and are living dominated by Nazi Germany, His Honor directed several personal questions towards each applicant and relative to the respective person's attitude and general feelings in regard to the present world conflict. In every case the individual candidate assured the court they would gladly take up arms on behalf of the British Empire and her allies in a common fight against world aggression.

"Are you willing to take the oath of allegiance to the King, the King, and fight for the British if called upon?" His Honor asked the five male persons seeking naturalization. All replied in the affirmative, including Frank Glinal, a native of Rumania, who has conscripted into the Hungarian army in 1913 to fight against the Russians, he to the court.

One applicant, William Snider, a farmer residing in Frankford, failed to appear in person after his application had been filed. His papers were held over until the next court, His Honor stating he would recommend all applicants to the proper authorities at Ottawa next week.

The six appearing before the court included:

Jens Poul Anderson, 16 Harriett Street, Belleville, who came to Canada in March of 1929 by way of the port of Halifax. He was born in Denmark in 1904 and is employed as head waiter at the Trenton Air Station. He is married to Miss Ella Woodrow, Ont., and Toronto.

Frank Ginal, farm-hand residing at R. R. No. 2, Belleville, who came to Canada by way of the port of Halifax in 1930. He is married and was born in Rumania in 1894. He has resided in this county since 1932.

George Lamprou (Lamppropoulos) night manager of restaurant, who resides at 186 Dufferin Ave., Belleville, who came to Canada by way of the port of Quebec in 1926. He was born in Greece in 1901 and has resided in Belleville since his arrival in this country. He is married and has one child.

Muriel Olive Wardner, book-keeper, residing at 13 Victoria Ave., Belleville, who was born in Clarkwater, Bristol, in the United States and came to Canada by the way of the port of Windsor in 1914 and has resided in Belleville since 1918.

Gus Yeotes, merchant, who resides at 146 Bleecker Street, Belleville, and who came to Canada in 1926 by way of the port of Halifax.

Hopes to Shatter Existing Record For Class 'D' Boats

In hopes of establishing a world's record for Class "D" inboard motors in the American Power Boat Association, Lloyd Hicks, well-known Belleville power boat driver, has built a new power boat which he intends to launch this week.

Mr. Hicks, who came within three seconds of breaking the world's speed boat record for class "D" power boats at the A.P.B.A. meet held at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1939 with his boat Baby Rugene, built his new craft during the winter months in hopes of shattering the existing world's speed record for that type of boat. Today Mr. Hicks placed a Ford V-8 motor car engine in his new craft and expects to launch the boat this week.

Although not christened as yet, Mr. Hicks' new craft is not quite as long as his Baby Rugene, it has a 223 cubic inch displacement and is 21 feet, 40 inches long with a beam measurement of four feet, seven inches and the motor developed horsepower. "I am hoping to drive my new boat 50 miles per hour, which would be a new world's record for that type of runabout speed boat," revealed Mr. Hicks.

Lloyd Hicks will compete in five sanctioned A.P.B.A. races throughout Canada and the United States commencing at Lindsay on Dominion Day, at Valleyfield, Que., on July 26th, Kingston on July 30th, Picton on August 4th, and then to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto in September. Mr. Hicks' ambition is to establish a new world's record for the class "D" speed boats and then retire from power boat racing he told the Ontario Intelligencer.

LATIN AMERICA TRADE ANXIOUS LIKES "TWO-WAY"

Many Things Central and South Republics Could Buy From Canada and Some Products They Would Sell

Ottawa (CP)—Value of Canadian exports to Latin American nations in 1940 was 50 per cent. greater than in 1938 and trade statistics for the first quarter of this year show a further increase, Yves Lamontagne, director of commercial relations has reported.

"As compared with the first quarter of 1940, Canadian exports to Argentina for the first three months of the present year have doubled in value, while those to Brazil have increased by 53 per cent. and to Mexico by 16 per cent," Mr. Lamontagne said. These three countries constitute Canada's best markets in Latin America."

The director, Canada's commercial attache to Belgium and The Netherlands before the German invasion forced closing of those legations, was a member of Trade Minister MacKinnon's trade mission to Central and South America last autumn. The mission was forced to postpone its South American trip owing to the minister's illness, but it is planned to resume it this summer.

War's Handicaps

"Canada is handicapped at the present time as regards the development of its trade with Latin America by the fact that in Canada's economic life everything must be subordinated to the 'war effort,' Mr. Lamontagne said.

"The disruption of normal channels of shipping constitutes another difficulty. The foreign exchange and other restrictions which some of the Latin American countries have imposed on their imports and which they have tightened as a result of the loss of their markets in Europe because of the war, constitutes further obstacles in the development of Canadian trade in this area."

"Nevertheless," he said, "it is worthy of note that in spite of these obstacles there are still a number of goods which Latin America can buy and has bought from Canada in increasing quantities since the war began, such as the products of our mines, our forests, our fisheries and even our manufactures."

At the same time Mr. Lamontagne emphasized that trade in the last analysis is a two-way process. If Canada wished to extend her trade in Latin America, the Dominion should buy their goods when possible.

"The Latin American countries in particular attach great importance to this point," he said. "In this connection it is significant that Canada's imports of petroleum and raw cotton, among other Latin American products, were considerably higher in 1940 than in 1938."

Trade Balance

Mr. Lamontagne said up to and including 1939 Canada had a favorable balance of trade with the Latin American countries, but in 1940 the balance was "substantially" in favor of Latin America.

On the other hand, Canada's trade with the Central American group, comprising Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama and Salvador, had remained substantially in favor of Canada. The balance of trade with the Caribbean group—Cuba, Haiti, San Domingo and Puerto Rico—which was favorable to Canada from 1922 to 1938 became unfavorable in 1940; and the same was generally true in regard to trade with South America.

In 1940 Canada sold goods valued at $36,869,000 to Latin America, compared with $17,729,000 in 1938. Imports in 1940 were $33,752,000 compared with $16,153,000. Thus, Canada had an adverse balance of trade amounting to $5,883,000 last year, in contrast to the favorable balance of $1,586,000 in 1938.

The 1940 export figure amounted to only 2.25 per cent. of the Dominion's total exports of $1,593,577,000.

Overseas Competition

Mr. Lamontagne said one factor contributing to the low level of exports to Latin America was the fact that the trade of Latin American countries had been directed primarily toward Europe up to the beginning of the war, and that their products for the most part are similar to and competitive with those of Canada.

Newsprint was far and away the major export to Latin America in 1940, being valued at $9,182,000. Other major items were rubber tires, $1,751,000; sewing machines, $1,671,000; chemicals $1,611,000; farm implements $1,233,000; potatoes, $1,280,000; and dried codfish, $721,000.

Canada's best Latin American customer last year was Argentina which took goods valued at $6,107,000. Second best was Brazil, with imports from Canada amounting to $5,070,000, and third best Mexico with $4,338,000.

DICTATORS MEET

Hitler and Mussolini have met for the sixth time since the war began. Once again it is in the Brenner Pass and the announcement has been made that deliberations ended in "complete agreement on points of view," as if anyone believed any other announcement would be made. It was complete agreement by Il Duce with the Fuehrer. Il Duce cannot have a thought of his own now since the Nazi dictates to him.

What was the "complete agreement?" Time must tell. Hitler doubtless could have sent a letter to Mussolini telling him what the meeting would decide on, for Hitler knew. It was Mussolini's business to come, listen and agree.

Mussolini could not have entered the meeting with the same impressiveness as when they met in Florence last October at the time the Italians launched their attack on Greece. Since then Mussolini's reputation has suffered a decline and Italy now can scarcely call herself her own, for Hitler dictates.

This little Fuehrer-Duce party is a fashion for this pair of world enemies. Both have changed since first they met. Neither one can be to the other what he was before the war began. Hitler, mountebank and pretender that he is, likes to keep up the farce of this meeting and particularly of Brenner Pass being the eternal boundary of the two races, cemented by the kinship of aggression. Yet an unbiassed Italian might well wonder if Hitler is not a bit too familiar with the Brenner Pass. While Hitler keeps up his little dramas with Mussolini, the Italians must realize that it is now all Hitler's doing, endeavor as Il Duce must to keep up the "brave" show before the Italian people.

The pair will get tired of this hollow pretence of the pledge of eternal friendship of the two races, German and Italian. Mussolini must fear retribution under it all, though he may be so blinded to his own selfishness that any crumb from Adolf's plate would please him, such as the creation of Croatia as a kingdom under Italian rule. But when the full swing of American production is joined to British production and linked with the British services, the dictators will be too busy to have their little hollow tea parties, for at heart dictator must hate dictator and gangster hates gangster. There will be a last meeting some day and after that the end of international thuggery and gangsterdom of the aggressors.

THE SITUATION IN IRAQ

End of the defection in Iraq is looked upon by the New York Times as of the greatest importance. "Representations of its collapse will be felt throughout the Near East, in Turkey, Syria, Palestine, Trans-Jordan and the great desert to the south. Britain again has a solid front on the banks of the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, Hitler's jihad has smouldered out at the very moment he needed it most. The Arabs have clearly rejected the Holy War the fanatical Mufti of Jerusalem sought to inflame and both he and the usurper Rashid Ali el Gailani are fugitives, repudiated by their own people."

The Germans occupied in the fierce battle in Crete could not help the Iraq rebels. The Times says, "They (the Germans) failed. For the first time in this war they are fleeing from an area into which they had penetrated. Britain gains the inestimable gift of time to consolidate her futured defence of the Mosul oil fields, time to throw the small but efficient forces which took Baghdad to other fronts where they are desperately needed. It is not likely the Nazis will quit their struggle for Iraq's oil but the short way is now closed to them. The precious fluid that seemed almost in their grasp is snatched 600 miles from their nearest point of attack."

Discussing the campaign the Times says that "It was not the capture of Baghdad but the total disintegration which ended the Iraq campaign. The terms of the armistice undoubtedly give the British complete control of the country. . . The historic road to the conquest of India is blocked. Most important at the moment is that one prong of the Nazi pincers reaching for Suez is smashed."

Hitler cannot be but nonplussed at the collapse of Rashid Ali.

We're in a cruel state.

"Our taxes have gone up again,
They're more than we can pay,
We cannot last for long like this,
We must give in some day."

"Oh you of little faith," I said,
"Are you of British stock?
Such fears and griefs as you display
Our gallant fathers mock.

"The men who manned the 'Jervis Bay',
The men of Dunkirk, too,
Were men who stood and fought till death.
They did not cringe like you.

"Our men have lost and fought again,
In air, on land, on sea.
They trust to you to trust in them.
They die to keep you free.

"Dig down and pay; give, work and pray—
You know we're in the right.
Thank God that you in peace may live,
That you'll keep safe this night.

"If this dear land's worth living in,
If freedom is worth while,
Then we must make some sacrifice
And pay up, with a smile.

"Valiant men, and women too,
Lay down their lives for you.
There's little we can do for them
But steadfast be, and true.

"Give us the tools', they call to us
From 'way across the sea.
Can we afford to hold from them
An answer to their plea?

"Fifth column ranks are filled with men
Like you, who tell of woe,
But little do to make things right—
You're allies to the foe.

"Down on your knees and pray for strength
To fight with might and main,
For every mile we lose to-day
Is that much more we'll gain!"

(News Item:—"Wher they think the heaviest fighting is over, the Italians send troops to Crete.")

Italia's fleet sailed o'er the main
Their flags waved in the blue
"Full steam ahead," the skippers cried,
"Or we're late for Waterloo."

Proud Fascist legions marched away,
A cong'ring mighty host.
But generals muttered their chagrin,
The Crimea had been lost.

Loud, Mussolini's minions swore
"For action do we thirst"
Then gazed, amazed, near Albion's shore
The Normans were there first.

And proud Ciano donned his sword,
His fist crashed on the table,
His voice rang out, "I'm not afraid,
I'll take on Cain and Abel."

THINGS

These are little things of moment;
And the white fence of the garden where in summer time
it grows;
The little window boxes, and a pathway to the door.
A glossy dining table and nice rugs down on the floor.

A set of china dishes — every woman dreams of that—
A little table for company or else a Persian cat.

Nice silverware for dinners and some books when left alone.
And a closet filled with linen she can call her very own.

A crystal bowl for blossoms, and some pictures for the wall.
A pretty silver teapot to be used when neighbors call.
A door she labeled "letters" and the happiness it brings,
In the life of every woman these are most important things.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The Nazism of Defeat

Nazism, like Fascism, was designed as a form of state for war and conquest. As such it can find a certain justification in logic. It can be argued that life is a continual struggle of dog-eat-dog; that the law of the survival of the fittest is the history of mankind; and the life and power of nations is determined by their fitness to wage and expand by war.

At any rate, power is its only justification—the only justification it ever made for itself. Ten million youths raised their arms and declared Hitler Führer because he promised them that he would make Germany the most powerful nation on earth. They were taught to sing: "Today Germany belongs to us, tomorrow the whole wide world." They were taught that there is only one measure of good: will it add to the world-power of Germany? Hitler said, when his opponents told him that Germany was surrounded and shackled and too weak to fight, "If a people but desire freedom, weapons will grow in their hands."

Hitler's and Mussolini's fascism was go-getter fascism. It never occurred to either of them that Fascism or Nazism could be sold to their own people as a means of persuading them to do something up. Hitler did not go out and tell the German people that they would never be able to kick the Allies. Get rid of your government, accept me as lord and I will promise you that I will give away everything in sight."

On the contrary, he overthrew his predecessors and their whole way of life because they were not looking out for the interests of German power and had been making the people weak, pacifist and timid.

But there is a new form of Fascism abroad in the world. Its chief claim of Defeat, or Colonial Fascism. It consists in telling subject people to accept Fascism and become economic and political colonies of Germany in order to avoid danger. It is the Fascism of a leader calling the nation to awaken. It is the Fascism that tells people the nation to go to sleep. It does not awaken a desire for strength; it spreads a mantle of fear. It cries out in ringing tones, "Normay, you are licked! Hooray for defeat! I, Quisling, your great leader, assure you that you are finished! Three cheers for being finished!"

Or, it shouts, "Let us sing the Marseillaise for the brave, free and gallant collaborators! Frenchmen: I, Pierre Laval, always told you you would be licked! Follow me! I will see to it that you are licked even more thoroughly."

Perhaps Quisling and Laval wonder why they are not regarded with the Norwegian and French people as heroes in with the Germans. Haven't they brought their nations the blessings of Fascism? Haven't they been the harbingers of the New Order? Haven't they kept open for them the road to future?

There must be something wrong. When Hitler cries, "Germans, arise!" he gets a hand, and when Laval cries, "Frenchmen, lie down!" he gets nothing but sour looks.

This Fascism of Surrender, surely the most preposterous of all modern phenomena. It is the complete contradiction of Fascism. It is an attempt to arouse a nation under the banner of incarnate force by the manly cry, "Break arms! All is lost!"

Which brings me to the question of Mr. Lindbergh, and his grotesque crusade.

Mr. Lindbergh is a man who, in his personal life, made himself a hero by an undertaking which seemed to the average man, foolhardy and impossible. He was built up into a national idol because of a risky exploit that ended in victory. Such a man has infinite possibilities for a political career.

In a world permeated by Nazi-Fascist ideas, he might have become a dangerous rival to Hitler. Had he come back from Europe, and harangued the country, crying to the crowds: "Wake up; your government is dilatory; this country needs an air force of fifty thousand planes! It needs to double the navy; wake up, young Americans, and save America." he might have demanded that the country need new leadership and recommended his own person.

Instead, our hero has one story that he preaches in season and out: It is too late; America must recreate; she must accept the fiction of influence plan of Hitler and confine herself to that space allotted to her by Destiny in the form of the Nazi Prince. Give up, America! A greater land than thou is on the march. Thou hadst better get ready to take the rap.

Mr. Lindbergh's speeches contain remarkable suggestions that require a little analysis. He says that it is useless and not Hitler who wants to conquer the world! It seems that Nazi Germany, the shrinking violet, needs to be saved from the flame-storming Roosevelt. This leads directly to the plea that this country needs new leadership, to save it from the aggressor in the White House.

What does this mean?

The President was elected six months ago. We have a government appointed by the President, and in harmony with his policies. "New Leadership" can only mean that the President wants his government should be changed. But they have three and a half years of office ahead of them.

Does Mr. Lindbergh think he can persuade them to resign? If not, how can they be removed to make way for "New Leadership"? Is Mr. Lindbergh hinting that the President be impeached? By whom? Does Mr. Lindbergh think that such a process would add to the power of the United States at this moment in the world? Or would it plunge the nation into anarchy, even perhaps into civil war?

This is not Hitlerism, it is Quislingism, the last and most grotesque form of Fascism. It is not an attempt to unite a nation for power, but to divide a nation for defeat. It is not an attempt to seek comrades in arms—a policy which Hitler relentlessly pursued—but to throw overboard our only allies. It is not the promise of a Leader to free the nation, but to get the ear of the dominans power!

It is a really remarkable sight: The spectacle of a man and an organization eliciting hearty cheers from a mass of followers by unchalling them to attack in this immediate crisis of the United States! Allons, citoyens! Prenez les batailleurs! On to Victory! Down with Roosevelt

"America First" takes on a really ominous significance—ominous but not very intelligible. Attack America first! Our frontiers are in Washington! Our Poland lies on the plowed Appomattox, awaiting the rid of the President and give up Surrender to Peace with Hitler!

Such a movement in a country as vital as this one will never be really dangerous. Someone might make a Nazi revolution with the cry "Throw off your chains!" but never with the slogan "Throw up your hands, Americans aren't made that way.

I don't have to overthrow the government in order to surrender. We don't have to sacrifice American institutions in order to be completely supported and dictated to. If the country lets him down Roosevelt could accomplish all that anyone may help at all.

DIPLOMATIC IMMUNITY

Diplomatic immunity is the term used for the privileges and courtesies extended under international law and custom to ambassadors, ministers and other diplomats while on duty in a foreign country.

Diplomatic immunity presents many difficult problems to the local authorities in Washington, D.C., where the representatives of foreign governments and their attendants number thousands.

Every legation and embassy of a foreign government is treated as if it were the soil of the foreign nation whose representatives occupy it.

But diplomatic immunity goes much further than to protect the ambassadors and ministers and top-flight diplomats.

Its protection extends to their families, their suites, their families and even to their servants.

Persons protected by diplomatic immunity cannot be taxed or arrested by the authorities in the country where they are stationed.

They do not have to pay customs duties.

They do not have to comply with police regulations, so that they can even be sued for not paying their debts.

A person enjoying diplomatic immunity is exempt from paying gasoline taxes as he motors about the country.

Diplomatic relations between the United States and Iran (Persia) were severed in 1941 when Iran's ruler the Iranian minister to Washington was arrested by a Maryland cop and charged with speeding. The secretary of state apologized to the Iranian government and severely reprimanded disciplined the traffic policeman.

Most of the abuse of diplomatic immunity involve inferior officials and servants attached to embassies and legations.

TODAY Democracy braces itself for supreme conflict. The mighty struggle between freedom-loving peoples and the forces of tyranny moves on to another crisis.

Today your country asks you to co-operate to the limit. You are not asked to give—but to lend to the point of sacrifice. Canada needs the use of your savings. Canada promises to repay you in full...with interest... and backs that promise with all of its wealth.

Canada needs now to borrow at least $600,000,000. Our army must be enlarged, maintained, armed to the teeth. Ships and men must be made ready for the war at sea. Thousands of planes must be built, thousands of pilots trained. In two years the allied countries must accomplish more than the enemy has accomplished in seven. Canada needs your money to make this struggle a march of victory.

Lend all you can to your country to wage this war to a successful finish.

Fascinating Recipes To be Demonstrated At the Cooking School

Mom's going back to School!

And with her will be several hundred past, present and future cooks. The adage is that teacher of slick cookery tricks—Mrs. Madeline Day.

For weeks now Mrs. Day has been working in her kitchen, examining, planning, testing in preparation for the Cooking School in Belleville that opened this afternoon and will continue Thursday and Friday of this week. Every recipe she uses has been carefully tried out with the needs of the average family's health and budget requirements always pasted up alongside the mixing bowls.

Mrs. Day, a housewife herself, well knows the problems of the average Canadian housewife, and her Cooking School sets out to keep these problems in mind—her Cookery programme is for women. Therefore she is not concerned with elaborate and expensive dishes. She simply tries to bring out the same foods done up in a little newer or better way. Variety in her programme is designed to help women to make their meals more interesting, more nourishing and at the same time, within their budgets. When a woman has to plan and cook 1,095 meals a year, she needs a little inspiration.

Dr. W. P. Fletcher, Marmora, President of Bay of Quinte Conference for Coming Year

Report of Transfer Committee Received and Adopted in Business Session

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Dr. W. P. Fletcher B.A., B.D., quiet and dignified minister of the rural charge of Marmora, was elected this year yesterday honoured with the second highest honour the United Church of Canada can confer that of President of a Conference. Dr. Fletcher is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, is at present ministering faithfully to the parishioners of the Marmora pastoral charge, where pride and appreciation in his work has made him for him many sincere friends. Previous to coming to Marmora he served for eight years at Odessa and for four years before that he was minister of the Christian congregation of the Christian denomination into the United Church. He has been secretary-treasurer of the Bay of Quinte Conference of Theology in Belleville. Three prominent men of the church were nominated for the honour, Dr. Fletcher, Rev. Y. J. Black, B.A., B.D., of Lindsay, and Rev. G. S. Easton, M.A., of Petersboro.

Interesting Sessions Of Be Held

Devotion and inspiration were the keynotes as the Conference opened yesterday afternoon with President H. Welsford Cliff M.A., B.D., of Kingston, chairman, conducting worship and administering the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The opening session of the Conference was delivered by Rev. Principal George C. D. Kilpatrick B.A., B.D., D.D., of United Church Theological College, Montreal, the service over.

Rev. James E. Beckel led in the responsive Scripture reading and the second lesson was read by Dr. J. Semple who asked for the blessing of God upon the work of the Conference.

Basing his thoughts on a text in St. John, Chapter 20, verse 19-20, "The Wound of Jesus". Dr. Kilpatrick delivered a powerful message. "Present day strife, want, insecurity, and sorrow, are not new display wounds inflicted upon Christianity by man", he said. "It is not a question of again affirm the great task of the Christian Church to bring peace and love to the world but the fate and lust for revenge that will inevitably follow". The Church must keep alive and shed abroad the love of God eternally. "It is not enough to say that men may live at peace". Questions regarding Social and Economic reform are not political questions he declared, but definitely religious questions and only if the Church takes up this torch will be realized for a re-built world born of love for our fellow-beings come into life".

In dignified assembly the service continued with Rev. T. Welsford Cliff administering the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper and the elements were served to the large gathering of ministers and laymen by the members of the Boards of Stirling United Church congregations of the City of Belleville.

Evening Session Well Attended

The evening session was opened with a devotional period conducted by the President Rev. H. W. Cliff. The report of the Business Committee was presented by Rev. A. Poulter of Madoc, the Secretary, Rev. James E. Beckel gave the minutes of the afternoon session.

Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, assembled in annual session desire to place on record, and to present Your Majesty our loyal homage and humble duty.

We desire to express our feelings of gratitude to Almighty God for His guidance and sustaining grace vouchsafed in abundant measure to Our King and Empire during the past year, which has been a very critical one, and to pray that, Through the darkness of the calamities of the present time the Sun drawn battle of Britain, we feel that the Almighty will graciously succoring us in this desperate struggle.

We would humbly express our profound admiration for the noble example of calm courage and self-sacrificing service, which has been set before the people of the Empire by Their Gracious Majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth, for inspiring leadership given to the people of the Empire and by the Prime Minister of Great Britain; and for the magnificent spirit of fortitude, which the people of the Motherland have shown under the hardships which they have been called upon to endure.

The events of the past year have only served to strengthen our conviction that our Empire is engaged in a conflict between the forces which threaten the existence of Christian civilization. We affirm our faith in and with the continued guidance and help of Almighty God the cause in which we strive will triumph gloriously.

We hereby reaffirm our humble loyalty to Our Gracious Sovereign, King George and devotedly pray that God may protect and guide him through the remaining days of this struggle.

We would urge upon our people that they use their influence to see that our victory may be speedily gained, and that a righteous peace established a peace founded upon justice in which the freedom of all peoples may be maintained and which each will be encouraged to make its contribution according to the welfare of the whole human family.

Motion by A. D. Cornett seconded by R. P. Woodger that a copy of the Resolution of the United Church of Canada, the Right Rev. A. S. Weddings

CRAMPTON—WARD

Stirling, (Special) — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, was the scene of a pretty June wedding on Monday, June 2, when Winifred Marion Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Ward, Stirling, became the bride of Mr. George Charles Crampton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Crampton, Innisville, Ontario. Rev. W. H. Wallace officiated and the wedding music was played by Miss Grace Pitman A.T.C.M. During the signing of the register, a lovely vocal duet, "I Love You Truly" was sung by Mrs. Walkand Mrs. Roy Eggleton.

The bride given in marriage by her father was charming in a dainty frock of turquoise blue crepe with matching hat and white accessories, she carried a large bouquet of white carnations. The couple were unattended. Mr. James Ward, brother of the bride, and Mr. J. Crampton, brother of the groom, were ushers and witnessed the registration.

Directly after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where guests included the immediate relatives and a few close friends. The bride's mother received attired in an embroidered frock of black and white crepe with white accessories and enhanced by a lovely corsage of gardenias. She was assisted by Mrs. Crampton, mother of the groom, who wore navy blue crepe with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Following a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Crampton will take residence on the groom's farm near Innisville, Ontario. Out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Crampton, Innisville; Mr. and Mrs. J. Crampton, Miss Barrie, Perth, Ont.; Misses Iva and Hazel Hooker, Perth; Mrs. D. E. Ward, Regina, Sask.; LAC. D. E. Ward, Halifax, N.S.; Mrs. F. O. Berri and Carol Adams, Belleville, Ont.; and Mr. James Ward, Belleville, Ont.

CARTER—DOXTATOR

A pretty and quiet wedding took place on Monday morning, June 2 when Miss Nona Doxtator, daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Doxtator, became the bride of Frederick Thomas Carter of this city. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Harvey Bly, Bridge Street, in the presence of a few of the relatives and the Rev. Mr. Sharpe formerly minister of the bride's family officiated. After a dainty wedding breakfast the young couple left amidst the usual showers of confetti for a motor trip to Ottawa and eastern points.

Mrs. Carter have been popular employees several years with the Corbin Lock Co., here and received many useful and beautiful tokens of esteem from that firm and from their friends. They will reside in this city upon return.

DEMUY—FERGUSON

Smith's Falls, June 4—St. Francis de Sales Roman Catholic Church was Monday morning, June 2, the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding of much interest, when Rev. Dean H. T. Manley, united in marriage Doris Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, Madoc, Ont., and Charles T. Demuy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Demuy of the late Telesphore Demuy, Smith's Falls.

Attending the young couple were Miss Betty Ferguson, Madoc, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid and Mr. Fred B. Doyle, Smith's Falls, groomsman. The bride was charming in a gown of heaven blue, with matching hat and white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Miss Ferguson's gown was of dusky rose with white accessories. The wedding march and appropriate music was rendered throughout the ceremony by Miss Margaret Muldoon.

Following the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the home of the groom's brother, 6 McEwen Avenue, after which Mr. and Mrs. Demuy left on a motor trip to the Maritime Provinces and upon their return will take up their residence in Smith's Falls.

Among the out-of-town guests attending were Miss Betty Ferguson, Madoc, mother of the bride, Mr. David Ferguson, Madoc, brother of the bride and Miss G., Demuy, Montreal, sister of the groom.

Young Women's Guild

On Monday, June second, the Young Women's Guild of Trinity United Church held their meeting at the home of Mrs. George Wishart. Mrs. Bradley, the vice-pres., presided and conducted the business of the meeting. The Guild withstood as their guest the immediate past president, Mrs. Pike (nee Doris Kerr).

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Mrs. Cooke's cottage at Roblin's Lake. A layette, the work of the Red Cross Group of the Guild was on display and was much admired. An additional fifteen dollars was voted to help with this worthy cause.

Mrs. Arthur led the worship service. She took for her subject Jesus let him work to be finished Jesus left his work to be finished by the Father, what have they failed? No, they have carried on His work but the fewness of their numbers has left the work to be accomplished.

Mrs. Bewa led the discussion on "A Child's Approach to Religion", basing it on the book by Prof. H. H. Fox.

In the old days it was easier to give religious instruction to children. Now we must be careful to save children from any instruction that will have to be discarded later. We do not get credit for the Sunday School credit for their most effective religious instruction although it comes very, very close. The importance of example was stressed.

A child's first religious instruction should come from the home and love and forgiveness.

Mrs. Arthur spoke of the teaching of the idea of God and stressed the point that God is a spirit and an influence. There is the danger that children will associate God with a human form.

Mrs. Kells spoke of the teaching of prayer. She said that the most that the important thing is the content—time or place do not matter. Mrs. Arthur and Mrs. Smith would look at parables for the general impression conveyed. Mrs. Kells spoke of the teaching of the Old Testament.

Judged by Jesus it gives an imperfect picture of God.

What is important is character the historical background should always be given.

Never be afraid to say that you do not know and never teach anything which you do not accept yourself.

A parent's responsibility is overwhelming since her influence depends on what she is herself. We must study deeply in order that our conscious and unconscious influence be right.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the executive.

First Marriage Solemnized At Mt. View Bombing School

With a uniformed pianist valiantly playing the strains of the Wedding March against a background of clattering typewriters and the low infection of plane-engines as they swept over the building in practice flights, the first marriage to be solemnized at the Mountain View Bombing and Gunnery School took place on Tuesday afternoon, when Aircraftman Harold Edward Kirkland Lake, and Miss T. F. O'Reilly, 86 13 Street West, Vancouver, B.C., took as his bride, Miss Jessie Isobel, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. R. W. Ramsay, Okanagan Mission, B.C.

The ceremony was performed in the newly erected Recreation Hall by Flight-Lieutenant the Rev. Gordon B. Porter, chaplain of the station. Attending the bride was Mrs. Keith White, Kirkland Lake, while outside waited a large complement of the station personnel. Between lines of cheering blue-clad airmen, bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly emerged from the Recreation Hall to the strains of conflict and duty.

Later in the airmen's mess a brief reception was held at which the toastmaster of the groom were present. The couple will honeymoon briefly in Toronto and other Ontario points. The bride wore a navy blue silk ensemble with felt hat and accessories to match, silver fox furs and a corsage of yellow tea roses and snowball blooms. Mrs. White wore a brown effect suit with matching accessories and a corsage

A delightful "Better Way" to help you keep Regular...

THESE DELICIOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening	¾ cup milk
¼ cup sugar	1 cup flour
1 egg	2½ teaspoons salt
1 cup KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN	2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in ALL-BRAN and milk; let stand until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder, add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes. Yields 8 large or 12 small muffins.

Not only will you find these the most delicious bran muffins you ever tasted, but you can be sure they are good for you, too. For KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is the "Better Way" to treat constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet; instead of "dosing" yourself by eating ALL-BRAN as a ripe cereal or in hot muffins every day. Drink plenty of water too. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like purgatives; it takes time to help you back to regular habits. Made by Kellogg's in London, Can.

All-Bran comes in two convenient sizes at your grocer's, or in individual packages at restaurants.

Dyeing Hair Demands Caution

Jean Rogers Has Lovely natural brown hair

By HELEN FOLLETT

MANY a pleading head of hair has been pretty much done for because, at the first signs of grey threads, the afflicted one has attempted home dyeing. For instance, suppose there is a mixture of medium brown and grey and a woman slaps a henna pack upon her brush roof. The result may be that the brown hair will come out auburn and the white threads will be a horrid carrot cast. One must know about such things. Hair dyeing is one of the most delicate treatments given in beauty shops, requiring a knowledge of chemicals and experience in their application.

Job For Beauty Shop

When the blonde baby finds that her hair is darkening at the roots she flirts with the peroxide bottle. She applies it freely, which is a mistake. It should be applied only to the darkened portions; otherwise the hair will be streaky. When the touch up is given one applications should not overlap the other. And how can that be managed when one is treating one's own head? Can't see what is going on at the back.

Dyeing and bleaching treatments are being given all the time and with success; they'd fool one's own mother. They are not the work of amateurs at the beauty game, but the result attained by conscientious professionals.

There are many good hair coloring agents but, naturally, one won't do for all. If you, by chance, are bound to use one experiment on a lock of hair. Take a train where it won't show when your hair is dressed, tie it with a thread, see how it looks after a few days. Then you will not be pouring trouble on your head.

The first dyeing does not finish the job. Nature knows nothing about it, goes on pushing out the grey shafts from the scalp. That means frequent touch ups.

Here's a Brand-New Departure — Classes for Expectant Grandmothers

The expectant father's walk along the corridor of the maternity hospital is old stuff. At least five years ago some kind-hearted doctors, who for all their knowledge, had probably never "expectanted" themselves, suggested to the managers of various hospital boards that a comfortable room, fitted up with magazines, books and ash trays, be placed at the disposal of the male expectant.

Brides' schools, where washing a large doll is part of the curriculum, have also a flavor of yesterday.

Now—please mark well and inwardly digest—there is a school for expectant grandmothers. It was a courageous person who started this educational revolution, grandmothers being notoriously sure of their right to hold Phi Beta Kappa keys in the arts of bringing up the very young.

Recently this column ran a symposium on the subject of in-laws, and yet it be said that most of the domestic blitzkrieg had their origin when Mrs. Youngmother and Grandma clashed over such a simple question as diapering.

Mrs. Youngmother was a hundred per cent for the up-to-date square diaper technique; Grandma replied, with some degree of asperity, that there was nothing like the old three-cornered method.

Certain cases on record have been known in which Grandma, losing every shred of patience, has said, "Your husband was diapered in the three-cornered fashion and he was good enough for you to marry—." It wasn't tell those tales out of school, as the writers of inlaw letters to this column have begged me to be discreet, but their plaints and woes be recognized.

But today's grandmother now insists on being modern. She would rather miss her permanent, wear long skirts or cotton stockings than be unaware of what the young people are up to.

Twenty-five charming ladies enlisted in a class at a certain maternity center in New York; and Washington, D.C., not to be outdone, started a class informing the well-instructed grandmother-to-be with an even larger number of recruits. They began their practice classes on life-size dolls.

Most of these ladies were mothers of daughters who were expecting their first babies, but, illustrative of the new solidarity among women, there were several mothers-in-law.

These grandmothers were too bright, intelligent to require warnings against such blunders of the Dark Ages as pacifiers, paregoric and painted toys. Questions of feeding were wisely left to the doctors who were to have the precious infants in charge.

Fresh air, warm but light clothing, positively no rocking, floor-walking or cuddling drew a slight contraction of the brows from some of the prospective grandmothers. These felt there was no remedy for colic like turning the baby on his tummy on the grandmotherly lap and rocking him.

One grandmother, who had a sense of humor, said, "How about grandfathers-to-be?"

"I wouldn't be at all surprised to hear of such a class," a nurse in charge remarked; "sometimes a grandfather is very handy around the baby."

Fashion Flashes

The round up of the summer millinery scene isn't complete without one big hat. A smart model is a huge-brimmed affair in smooth coffee brown straw trimmed with a clump of lotus flowers and dark green leaves. Dark green velvet ribbon is twisted around the crown and slipped through a slot to tie in a bow at the side under the brim.

The belle of the ball wears black lace. A delightful gala dress is a strapless model of black lace, the bodice edged with frilly ruchings of black net which continue down the front of the skirt and extend into a hem ruching.

A spring tonic to liven up the wardrobe is a belt and bag of brightly colored morocco leather. The long bag has two straps on either side that allow for hucking in order to make the bag shorter if desired. Nice in blue or tan pigskin too.

Sometimes it's cool even in the summer. Then wear a suit with a wealth, a grand model in red and white Tattersall checked flannel. Fringed pockets and last button undone for the right effect.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Puzzled Over Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The following is a form of invitation I received to attend a wedding ceremony:

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mary
to
Mr. John Smith
on (date)
St. John's Church

1. Does this invitation include an invitation to the reception to follow, or does it mean just to the church only? The invitation does not say anything about the reception or where it is to be held. I know that there is to be a reception. The bride-to-be is not a very close friend of mine, just a neighbor.

2. How should I answer this invitation?

3. Should I send her a wedding gift? If so, what would you suggest?

P.

1. This invitation is just what you say it is in the first part of your question, "an invitation to attend a wedding ceremony." In other words, you are invited to the ceremony, but since you did not receive a card of invitation to the reception, you are not invited to the reception.

Apparently there are many guests invited to the ceremony, with a limited number of invitations to the reception. Since you are not a close friend of the bride-to-be, you receive the compliment of an invitation to the ceremony, but are not included among the close friends who are invited to the reception.

2. It is not necessary to answer the invitation to the ceremony. It is the invitation to the reception that requires an answer.

3. There is no set rule about whether or not we send a wedding present, as in giving any other kind of present, we give one if we wish. Of course, it is gracious and generous to send a gift, even if we have been invited only to the ceremony. For after all, this invitation is a compliment paid to us by the bride-to-be and her family.

Under these circumstances, you might send a gift; even though it is something inexpensive. It can be something delightful and appropriate to the new home—a good-looking cigarette box or other type of decorative box, a set of four ashtrays for the bridge table, a set of four small linen napkins, or a bridge or tea table, a small or medium sized glass vase. Any of these inexpensive gifts would be appropriate.

Use of Word

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I wish to open an argument regarding the terms "invite" and "invitation." A says "I had an invite to dinner at his home." B says, "I had an invitation to dinner at his home." B says that one is asked in person does not change this.

Please tell me who is correct. I. The word invite cannot be used as a noun. C. Even when he says "I had an invitation to dinner at his home." The fact that one is asked in person does not change this.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D

Indigestion and Emotional Disturbances

The records show that of every 100 patients consulting physicians more than 50 per cent have no organic trouble, their symptoms being due in many cases to emotional disturbances. In fact, Dr. C. F. Martin, formerly dean of McGill Medical School, Montreal, and a specialist in diseases of the stomach and intestines stated a few years ago that, "Every patient who consults a physician is a 'mental' patient", aside from whether he has any organic disease or not. This means, then, that every patient must be treated from the mental standpoint also if he is to receive help from the physician.

Now, we are all familiar with cases where shock, worry, anxiety, or other emotional disturbance has caused mental symptoms in that the individual acts queerly, partially loses his memory and may suspect members of his family or his friends of plotting against him. But what we are apt to forget is that these emotional disturbances can affect the workings of the body, and "apparently" not disturb the mind to any extent. It is interesting, therefore, to read of the experience of another specialist in stomach and intestinal diseases. Dr. C. Canby Robinson, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, in The Bulletin, Johns Hopkins Hospital.

"In order to illustrate the fact social disturbances cause illness, we studied 50 patient with digestive disorders, admitted in rotation and studied without selection in the gastro intestinal clinic of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Patients with digestive disorders (indigestion) were, we knew, frequently ill because of emotional disturbances, but we were not prepared to find, as we did, that adverse social conditions were entirely or importantly related as a cause of illness in 74 per cent of the 50 patients (88 per cent.) In 30 patients no organic disease could be discovered".

Now the fact that nervousness of indigestion should not be intensified by emotional disturbances are the only cause of many cases of indigestion, (as they are of heart and other symptoms) and have an aggravating effect when real trouble exists does not mean that symptoms of indigestion should not be investigated. It does mean, however that when examination reveals no organic cause for the symptoms, the fact that emotional disturbances are the cause of, the symptoms in the majority of cases should be remembered.

ENTIRE PROCEEDS OF VICTORY LOAN DEVOTED TO WAR

Authorities Believe Subscriptions Will Exceed Daily Average of 33 Millions Needed to Put Drive Over

GAINS MOMENTUM

Ottawa, June 4 (CP).—National loan headquarters reported today that total subscriptions for the first two days of the $600,000,000 Victory Loan campaign amounted to $98,-777,350.

The amount subscribed on the opening day of operations—Monday —was $58,551,250.

"Small investors throughout Canada literally took up the torch of Canada's 1941 Victory Loan yesterday and carried the day in grand fashion," the headquarters said in a report on the first two days of operations.

"Applications from individual investors (on Tuesday) were three times the number reported on the initial canvass day.

"The bulk of the subscriptions to this point have been for the longer of the two terms offered in this issue."

The bonds are issued in terms of five and ten years.

The headquarters statement said that of thousands of orders which poured into provincial headquarters in the first two days, only a small fraction have been for the short-term maturity, indicating an overwhelming preference for the ten-year issue.

Largest single subscription reported to date has been from the T. Eaton Company Limited and its subsidiaries across Canada for a total of $3,500,000.

Urban Areas Come Through.

The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool placed its order for $500,000 from Regina.

The loan committee said that in the urban areas of Eastern Canada, reports started pouring through the reporting machinery of the campaign and Montreal last night reached 15 per cent. of its objective with a total of $17,397,950 according to latest reports.

"From every nook and corner of the country the story of public enthusiasm and support reaches the national headquarters," said the statement.

"People from every walk of life, adults and children alike have taken up the torch to carry the tools of war to Winston Churchill."

The committee said a letter from an 84-year-old American purchaser of Victory Bonds read in part: "I don't have any fear for Canadian bonds for the future; old Hitler cannot take Canada. United States would be fighting shoulder to shoulder with the Canadians . . . two great neighbors side by side would not fear the descendants of old Attila, the hun."

Army Corporal Makes Purchase.

Saskatoon's first Victory Bond purchaser was a young army corporal who purchased a $100 bond. Kennedy, Sask., in the midst of the drought country had a quota of $4,-650 but came through the first day of the loan with more than $15,000. Carlyle, Sask., which the committee said was "none too blessed financially," responded to the call and raised $15,000 in the opening five minutes of the campaign.

Canada's foreign elements helped too.

In Vancouver's Chinatown there is a continuous sing-song appeal from headquarters on a truck urging the people to create a bond-buying record among Canadian Chinese communities.

Vancouver's Japanese community exceeded $50,000 on the first day.

Langley municipality subscribed $21,000 before the opening ceremonies were completed.

A Victory Loan rally in Vancouver woman who had just received notification her son had been killed in battle. The mother said, "my son would will help protect some other mother's son."

Nelson, B.C., subscribed $97,000 of its $500,000 quota on the first day.

"The measure of Canada's determination to fight success in the loan was evidenced by the large amount of individual subscriptions from Canada, while most parts of the country corporations and institutions were reporting generous figures," last night's official statement said.

Finance Minister Ilsley told the House of Commons yesterday that the entire cash proceeds of the Victory Loan will be devoted to war purposes.

Greetings Exchanged

Last night's major loan rally was in Toronto, where Dorothy Thompson, American newspaper columnist, urged that Canadian women in union with other women throughout the world set their wills against war after the present conflict ends and, for one thing, obtain "an international federal control of the air for all time."

In an International broadcast, Sir George Williamson, Lord Mayor of London, England, and Col. W. J. Hexman, Mayor of London, Ont., exchanged greetings and expressed confidence Victory Loan 1941 will be successful.

Loan headquarters issued a partial list of large subscribers to the bond issue which is being sold by more than 20,000 canvassers.

Large Subscriptions

The biggest individual subscription was one of $3,500,000 from T. Eaton Co. Ltd. of Toronto and its subsidiaries. Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. of Toronto subscribed for $500,000 and $1,000,000 purchases were listed for Page-Hersey Tubes Ltd. of Toronto, International Harvester Co. of Hamilton and Powell River Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

Nine $500,000 subscriptions were reported, from Hon. Vincent Meredith of the Bank of Montreal and the Royal Bank, Canada Northern Power Corporation and subsidiaries, Canadian Fairbanks Morse Co. Ltd. and Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd., all Montreal; the Toronto Star Ltd. and Salada Tea Co. of Canada Ltd. in Toronto; and H. R. MacMillan Export Co. Ltd. and Austin C. Taylor of Vancouver.

Monday figures by cities were given as National Loan Headquarters as follows: Calgary $1,530,450, Saint John, N.B. $322,250, Regina $125,300. Up to Tuesday Toronto had subscribed to $16,687,600 worth of bonds.

Well-Supported Move Develops in Senate To Curtail FDR's Power

Washington, June 4—(AP) — A bill supported more developed in the United States Senate today to put a Congressional check on the wide powers asked by President Roosevelt to requisition private property "temporarily or permanently" for defence purposes.

The President made it plain at his Press conference yesterday that one of the prime objectives of the bill was to make it possible for the government to deal summarily with strikes or lockouts in defence industries by taking over the affected plants.

Such action would put recalcitrant labor or management in the position of striking against the government and Mr. Roosevelt said some time ago that this could not be done.

2,000-TON AXIS SHIP SUNK

Cairo, Egypt, June 4 (AP)—British submarines in "highly successful" attack on an Axis convoy off Tunisia yesterday, blowing up one 2,000-ton ship, the Royal Air Force Middle East Command announced tonight.

$400,000 Victory Bonds Purchased in First Two Days of Loan Campaign

Hastings County removed its figurative coat, rolled up its sleeves and plunged into the work of raising two millions of dollars through the sale of Victory Bonds with alacrity, the moment the "Go" signal was given early Monday morning.

Eager canvassers swept into action and were met by a generally responsive public, with the result that when the dust of Tuesday evening, the second day of the official campaign, the sum of $400,000 had been subscribed to the loan.

At noon today, while an admiring crowd looked on, members of the Belleville Fire Department raised the tattered, torn and soot painted the first "mercury" on the large Victory Loan thermometer above the entrance to campaign headquarters on Front Street. The red line stopped at the $400,000 mark, and at intermittent periods through the day will be raised in accordance with the amounts of bonds sold.

Public Utilities Buy $18,000 of Bonds

In the van of the larger subscriptions was the purchase of bonds amounting to $10,000 made by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission. When Chairman Morley Duff handed the cheque to campaign officials he stated that the utilities were pleased to be able to take part in the campaign to the extent of the amount could not have been larger," he said.

He appealed to all, no matter of how little, to get behind the campaign on behalf of themselves and their country. The lowly $50 bond is as welcome as amounts of thousands of dollars," he said. "Everyone can afford to buy and should purchase bonds. It is everybody's fight, not a private affair, and all-should participate by offering their financial support if they cannot offer themselves."

Big Sims Bid Purchaser

Another substantial purchase, reported by canvassers, was that of Mr. Fred Sims, proprietor of the Sims Greater Shows, who invested $1,500 in Victory bonds. Commenting on his purchase, Mr. Sims stated: "This is not an investment for me—it is insurance. Insurance against the blight of Nazism and the curse of its New Order. It will bring permanent happiness, freedom and liberty, and we are paying a cheap price for it by investing in bonds. I am proud to do it, and am sorry that I cannot invest more."

Fifty dollar bills were in with his shows in Cornwall, "was so delighted with his reception in Belleville" that he forwarded his cheque here to be added to the Hastings County quota.

From all parts of the far-flung county, stories are trickling in with many human interest angles in connection with the campaign. In Belleville, an eighty-year-old lady tears shining in her eyes, bought a fifty dollar bond, "for the ladies overseas." In another part of the district, a milk cheque bought a bond.

Officials Pleased

Generally speaking, campaign officials today announced themselves as more than satisfied with the response thus far. "People are supporting the enthusiasm of the situation, and of the vital necessity of a Congressional check on the indications," they felt, "pointed to an all-round response on the part of the public that augurs well for the entire campaign."

COUPLE RESCUED BY MAJOR MOWAT

Former Librarian of Belleville Assists Two, When Thrown Into Water at Kingston

Kingston, Ont., June 4 (CP)—Thrown into the chill waters of Lake Ontario when their canoe capsized, a young couple narrowly escaped drowning.

Picked up in an exhausted condition were Miss Hilda Greenwood of Kingston and Gunner D. H. Oak of Winnipeg, now stationed with Divisional Signals, Barriefield. They were rescued by Major Angus Mowat of the District Recruiting Office, who rowed out more than 300 yards in a boat to reach them.

Quebec Restricts Sale of Liquor

Quebec, June 4.—(CP)—Sweeping changes in the conditions of sale of alcohol beverages in Quebec province, resulting from amendments to the Liquor Act passed in the last session of the Quebec Legislature, became effective today.

Here are the new restrictions.

Restaurants may serve beer and wine only, with meals.

Cafes may sell liquor, beer and wine, with a 50-cent meal.

No liquor may be sold or delivered to hotel bedrooms.

No liquor may be sold anywhere in the province on Sundays.

On Sundays, beer and wine only may be sold, and only between the hours of one p.m. and nine p.m.

All cabarets and floor shows are under direct control of the Quebec Liquor Commission.

FLIGHT OF AIRSHIP POSTPONED TILL FRI.

The Gondyear Tire and Rubber Company's airship "Reliance" one of the few lighter-than-air craft to visit Canada, and which was scheduled to over Belleville today will not appear here until Friday, according to a communication received today by Victory Loan Campaign officials. The reason for the postponement was not given, nor was the time of arrival.

The "Bling" brings messages of good will from the Governor of the state of Ohio to Ontario, and is being flown here in aid of the Victory Loan Campaign. It will trail a banner bearing the words: "Let's finish the Job—Buy Victory Bonds."

GIRLS' CADET CORPS TRAINS FOR INSPECTION

Immaculate in their blue and white uniforms, with blue forage caps set at a rakish angle, the Girls' Cadet Corps of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, were through strenuous rehearsal paces yesterday for the forthcoming inspection parade.

To music of the Collegiate Band the girls went through the various drill manoeuvres and formations, and showed a marked aptitude for the military phase of their school work. Last year the Girls' Cadet Corps nearly stole the honors from the Boys' drill with their smart appearance and evidence of training.

Vichy's Position In War Strategy Is Still Obscure

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, June 4 (AP)—Pending clarification of France's role in the war, the world can only guess where Germany and Italy will strike next in the Mediterranean and Middle East.

A British communique stating that a German troop-carrier plane has been shot down off Malta may or may not indicate that the Mediterranean island bastion might be the next Nazi target. Only time will tell.

Vichy probably holds the key to Axis major strategy. The sequence of Cabinet conferences there with General Weygand, Petain-selected French colonial overlord in Africa, indicates that a final decision on French policy is in the making.

Whether the next Axis thrust is to be via Syria, mandated by France from Sicily to stimulate the stalled attack on Egypt, French co-operation with Italian military forces on a scale far beyond any yet reported is deemed possible in London. And if yrukish reports of Nazi forces landed by air in Syria are true, such cooperation already is in effect.

This would be a graver act of French aggression against Britain than permitting the Nazis to use French air bases in Syria en route to Iraq, assuming such a Nazi invasion was invited or accepted without protest by French authority. The terms of the German-French armistice could not be put forward as a legalistic excuse to cover such a movement.

Both London and Cairo remained strangely silent as to the reports from Turkey. Yet both now must know the facts. A sea-ferried expedition such as Indians cables declare could hardly escape the Syrian coast without being detected by British sea or air patrols out of Cyprus bases, or by British agents in Turkey.

It is significant that in the twenty-four hours since first reports of a Nazi sea landing in Syria were published there has been no word of British air blasting to smash it up. That tends to support denials from Berlin and Vichy that landings have been made. It is difficult to see just what tactical or strategic value Berlin could find in such a move to justify its risks. Some London commentators see a possibility that the Nazis might use a Syrian coastal base to strike by air at Cyprus. It would be a doubly vulnerable base, however. Unless the French gave full and active military support to the forces landed in Syria, British planes from Cyprus, Palestine and Iraq would be close enough to keep up a sustained bombardment. A Nazi supply line to Crete or the Dodecanese Islands would be hard to maintain by sea or air.

There are hints from Vichy that the Cabinet actively there flirted in theirs with the Hitler-Mussolini meeting at Brenners. If so, new Axis demands may have been imposed on France to aid the effort to rout Britain from the Mediterranean and Middle East.

In this corner, however, the feeling persists that it is French cooperation to forward the Axis attack on Egypt from Libya rather than in Syria that it is being asked to do. That is the most dangerous Axis thrust in the East.

AT THE BELLE

"The Rage in Heaven"

James, Hilton, author of "Goodbye Mr. Chips," and "Lost Horizon," has contributed another fascinating story to the screen in "Rage in Heaven," starring Robert Montgomery and Ingrid Bergman, at the Belle Theatre tonight only.

It is a suspenseful thriller, based on a "perfects crime," with Montgomery at his best in the powerful role of a man destroyed by his own emotions.

"Here Comes Happiness"

A gay, sparkling comedy with plenty of laughs is Warner Bros.' "Here Comes Happiness" announced as the added laugh feature. The film starring Robert Cummings, Edward Norris and Richard Ainsley, is a musical comedy.

The Belle News of the Day completes the program.

Beery in "The Bad Man"

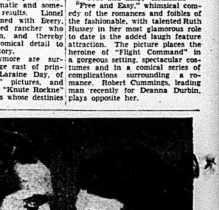
"The Bad Man," dramatic and comical adventure story of the cattle ranges, brings Wallace Beery to the Belle Theatre commencing tomorrow in his most picturesque role since "Viva Villa!"

He enacts Pancho Lopez, Robin Hood of the cow country, in a whimsical adventure in which he applies bandit ethics to straighten out the lives of a group of "tenderfeet" with dramatic and sometimes ludicrous results. Lionel Barrymore is teamed with Beery, playing the grizzled rancher who isn't afraid of him, and thereby providing much comical detail to the fast-moving story.

Beery and Barrymore are surrounded by a large cast of principals, including Laraine Day, of the "Dr. Kildare" pictures, and Ronald Reagan of "Knute Rockne" fame, as the lovers whose destinies the bandit tries to untangle.

"Free and Easy," Romantic

"Free and Easy," romantic comedy of the romances and foibles of the fashionable, with talented Ruth Hussey in her most glamorous role to date is the added laugh feature to attraction. The picture places the heroine of "Flight Command" in a gorgeous setting, spectacular costumes and in a comical series of complications surrounding a romance. Robert Cummings, leading man recently for Deanna Durbin, plays opposite her.



Romance for two in the persons of Robert Cummings and Ruth Hussey, coming next to the Belle Theatre in "Free and Easy," laugh-packed story of a pair of society "fortune hunters."

Collegiate News

Congratulations to Jean Archibald on winning the special prize in Homemaking at MacDonald Institute. Graduation Exercises were held in Guelph last Thursday. Cadets and Cadettes had a fine dress rehearsal on Friday, ending with a parade of the two units plus the band.

On Friday the students of the R.C.I.V.S. were favored with an address about conditions in England by an Englishman who has just arrived from over there. He is Capt. Jones and has been with an Eastern Ontario unit for some time helping with the Y.M.C.A. work that is being done over there. He showed that the spirit of the English people is in no way daunted, with many examples. The staff and students listened with rapt attention during the thirty-five minutes in which he spoke. After the address the band played "There'll Always be an England" on Mr. MacLaurin's request. The principal, Mr. MacLaurin closed the assembly with words befitting the occasion.

On Thursday morning at Assembly the athletic crests for the intramural sports were presented to the worthy champions. The thirty who qualified for crests represented teams in basketball, volleyball and softball. The five series of games had a total of 266 competitors who played on an average of four games each. This large number, more than half the girls registered, signifies their enthusiasm for sports, notwithstanding the fact that all games are played after four o'clock.

Grade IX B team was the envy of the 72 participants in their basketball series. The team consisted of Nancy Hunter (capt.), Joan Hamilton, Doreen Dowe, Mary Everett, Jean Ingram June Coulter.

Of the six teams entered in Grade X basketball, XII were victorious. The team: Joyce Coleman (Capt.), Marion Warren, Inis Lundberg, Dorothy King, Joan Cearley.

The senior series had seven teams in play and XIID won over all others as well as against Trenton and Picton school teams.

There were 30 players in the volleyball series. The lucky ones were Jean Muir (Capt.), Margaret Aman, Mary Aman, Bernice Gurnick, Nora Stoliker, Phyllis Pigden, Jean Brockway, Kathleen Moore.

Grade IX softball players had three games each with the following crests: Perne Belnap (Capt.), Beverley Bennett, Donna Akey, Jean Brown, Barbara Bews Bernice Button, Bernice Bartlett.

School letters "B" were presented to Victoria Scott and Joyce Watson.

Empire Day

On the morning of May 23, the student body gathered to celebrate Empire Day with fitting patriotism. The religious exercises were carried out as usual and the remaining period was entirely devoted to an appropriate program.

The Glee Club, with impressing solemnity sang "Canada, Dear Land of Mine." Next the school band rendered a stirring medley of British airs. The assembled students then rose to join in an alternate reading regarding the aims and ideals of true Democracy.

One of the interesting items of the program was a splendid rendition of "There is a Land" by Marie Duesberry. These exercises were brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Library Club Wiener Roast

On Thursday, May 29, the Library club held its closing wiener roast at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. C. Clapp on the bay shore. The picnic was a farewell party for several of the club's oldest members who leave the school this year. Joyce Watson, for several years the club's very active and very capable President, was presented with a copy of Wilson MacDonald's "The Piazon of Beauty" while Alice Bunton who has been in charge of the mending committee for several years and has made a splendid sucess of her job was presented with a copy of "Wylie Cliffs."

Officers were elected, and next year's president is Betty Redner. Vice-president will be Marian Brennan, Treasurer, Joan Watson, Secretary, Lillian Jeffs. Both Joyce and Betty made impromptu speeches fitting to the occasion. Miss Bunting, who is in charge of the club, was present and acted as a very welcome chaperone as well as planning and preparing for the party. Library Club parties have always been most successful and enjoyable and this one was not an exception. Every one had a splendid time and those who are leaving the club this year are only sorry that they will not be in the school next year.

Cadets and Cadettes

Both girls and boys in the cadets are rapidly attaining a near perfection and they will be inspected on Friday, June the sixth. Smart in their whits and navy uniforms the girls compete more than favorably and can match them at every step. On Friday afternoon, last, they took part in a joint drill and both marched to the armouries where they lined up in formation. The band was in attendance and supplied the military music essential for good marching. Both Cadets and Cadettes made a splendid appearance and deserve a great deal of praise. Joyce Watson commands the Cadettes while Malcolm Jack is in charge of the Cadets.

On Sunday afternoon the Cadets took part in the military parade where they made an excellent appearance. We believe that both corps are better this year than they have been for several. Perhaps it is because they realize that this year their work is more serious than ever before.

Whitlow Wyatt, Cast off by 3 American League Clubs Now National's First Shutout Hurler

Tigers, White Sox and Indians All Turned Him Down

YANKEES BEATEN

(By SID FEDER)

Associated Press Sports Writer.

You look at the National League pitching averages today, at the record of John Whitlow Wyatt, and you wonder whether that scrawniter didn't have the Tigers, the White Sox and the Indians in mind when he turned out that little thing about the "three blind mice."

You must admit the lean chucker from Chickamauga is wearing the same right arm now as he wore back there in the '30s. Yet, those three American League clubs all brushed him off.

Whitlow turned in a snappy six-hitter to sink St. Louis Cardinals 6-0 yesterday. This not only put the Dodgers back up into a tie with the Cards for first place, but also marked the fourth time this year Whitey has dished out goose-eggs.

Wyatt credits the beating was the most important of a parade of grade-A pitching efforts turned loose on the program yesterday.

Tommy Hughes, the latest prize bit of bric-a-brac to pop up with the Phillies, turned in a one-hit job that mowed down Chicago Cubs 7-0. Laughing Lou Novikoff got the only hit, and Lou himself wiped out by (you guessed it) the hidden ball trick.

Made Terry Smile

Another youngster, made even Bill Terry grin by serving up a five-hitter to give the Giants a 7-3 victory over Cincinnati Reds in a game in which four homers were hit.

Over in the American League, Steve Peek gave four runs to Detroit Tigers in the first inning and then settled down to pitch a four-hit shutout the rest of the way. However, it was a case of locking the door after the mule got out and the Tigers trounced New York Yankees 4-0 behind Trucks's eight-hit effort.

Only at Boston and, of course, St. Louis, did the pitchers come a dime a dozen. Pittsburgh Pirates used two hurlers to four for the home end won a free-for-all 9-5 affair. The Browns and Chicago White Sox Senators both had their ball-pens working overtime under the arc lights, in a game the home boys won 14-12 by scoring nine runs in the fifth inning. The Boston-Cleveland night game and the Philadelphia-Chicago day doings in the American League were both rained out.

Guldahl Rated In Golf Tourney Strong Contender

Fort Worth, Tex., June 4.—(AP)—Byron Nelson, the Ilaskin P.G.A. champion, is riding a rising tide of popular favor today as it appears ready to make him No. 1 choice for the United States Open Golf Championship which starts the nine 18-hole round gets started tomorrow.

Whether you ask player or spectator, the name that almost invariably comes to their lips is that of the lean Toledo pro who came up like a rocket from the caddie pen at Fort Worth's Glen Garden Club.

By the way Nelson was playing in practice rounds over the course yesterday, when he and Lawson Little finished all-square with the two masters," Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour, he'll give anybody a good run.

There is another Texan not to be overlooked, Ralph Guldahl, who learned the game in Dallas. He's been around and around and in quiet, Monday, for instance, he shot a 67, three under par, but he wasn't telling even his best friends.

GOLFER INDUCTED

Leavenworth, Kas., June 4—(AP)—Ted Adams, who won the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship in 1938, at London, Ont., yesterday was inducted into the United States Army at Fort Leavenworth. Adams is Missouri amateur champion.

VALLIE EAVES PITCHES LEAFS TO 7-1 VICTORY

Toronto Takes Newark With Eddie Morgan Supplying Hitting Punch

WINGS GAIN GROUND

(By The Associated Press)

Vallie Eaves and the rest of Toronto Maple Leafs are pulling in the same direction now.

Until last night the lanky right-hander and his teammates couldn't seem to get together, with the result that the Leafs lost seven and won none with him in the box. It was always a case of one or the other having a bad day and sometimes both.

They changed all that last night, however, the reward being a 7-1 victory over the league-leading Newark Bears, with Eaves spacing five hits over the route and the Leafs pounding out 10.

Eddie Morgan, Toronto first baseman, led the attack with a home run, a double and a single in four trips, driving in four runs. Eaves pitched steadily throughout striking out seven and walking only two.

Despite the 10-6 Newark hung on to its slim half-game lead in three International League race when the second-place Montreal Royals dropped a 6-2 decision to Syracuse Chiefs.

Rochester in third place gained ground on both leaders with a 5-3 victory over Jersey City Giants in the only other game. Rain at Baltimore forced postponement of the Buffalo-Baltimore contest.

The Chiefs snapped Ed Head's seven-game winning streak, handing him his first defeat of the year with a two-run pitching in the eighth that drove him from the mound. Both Head and Krakauskas who went to the distance Syracuse, yielded 7 hits.

Lou Gehrig Mourned By Thousands from All Parts of Country

By GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, June 4.—(AP)—The last sad sentences will be recited over Lou Gehrig in a little vine-covered church around the corner from his home up in the Bronx.

The wasted body of the great baseball first baseman who died two nights ago after a brave two-year fight against an unsolved disease will rest in a mahogany coffin before the flower-banked altar as Rev. Gerald Barry reads the service from the Episcopal church.

There will be no music with the ritual at the request of Mrs. Gehrig. Only those with invitations will be admitted to the church. But first hundreds who expressed its sorrow last night in a line of men, women and children that wound past Lou's coffin before the altar for hours on end.

Later today the body is to be cremated.

Last night Mrs. Gehrig and his parents stood for hours receiving the condolences of hundreds of persons prominent in baseball and public life, including Lou's closest associates who filed past him by plane and train upon learning of his death.

Babe Ruth Mourns Friend

Babe Ruth was present briefly in those famous Yankee batting orders, standing in the little church last night just before dark. The banshee who was to become Mrs. Gehrig, his great shoulders and chest bulging through a white sports shirt, arrived in a taxi from the veteran National League uniform.

Babe stood for a long minute, head bowed, at the mahogany casket whose face showed only slight evidence of the illness that had paralyzed and wasted the rest of his body. Tears welled in the ball-eyes and ran down his fat cheeks and he stumbled over into a corner, where he sat with his face in his arms.

For once in his fabulous life, probably, the Babe did not appear to relish the attention he received from the crowd outside. He brushed unsmiling through 100 fans who pressed off the sidewalk to the door of the church and who met him as he left with a shout of recognition and death, someone remarked. Gehrig shared the spotlight with his famous teammate

NO. 5— THE VOLLEY

The serve is, of course, your most valuable offensive stroke in tennis, Here Roland Blenkenstaff, Yun Valley pro, is demonstrating the "slice" serve. Starting with the racket and balls held together, the racket arm is swung forward the ground like a pendulum, both arms are opened up, you automatically bend backward slightly, the ball is thrown in the air slightly to the right and ahead of you. Then as your racket swings over your head, you hit the upper right hand part of the ball with an upward, outward, then forward and down motion in that order.

THE VOLLEY—that is, hitting the ball at first, but do not take the ball before it has struck the ground—is done with either fore- or backhand. The grips used are mostly the same as for the drives, with slight variations to suit individual players' preference. Others use the in-between grip, the slice serves grip, for both fore-hand and backhand volleys. The main thing in my estimation is not to take a full back-swing. Use the underarm and mostly the wrist. Punch your volleys from above to forward and slightly down. Start with a two-inch long hit. Next: Lobs and smashes

ZELLERS DEFEAT DEACONS 26 TO 17 TO LEAD LEAGUE

Winners Display Too Much Power Never Being Headed

LOSERS FIELD POORLY

Pounding the offerings of three Deacon hurlers for practically every conceivable corner of the ball yard at the ground-breaking ceremonies, Chuck Barnett's Big-Z league champions forged into undisputed lead of the City Girls' Softball League with a clean-cut 26 to 17 win over the Deacon lassies, thus pushing the losers into the third slot in the loop standings.

Coach Barnett's gang rattled hits in a most unmerciful manner and coupled with some loose playing and errors on the part of the losers, ran the base paths with abandon to count the score and chalk up an unbelievable contest, called in the eighth on account of darkness. The nine run spree in the third frame cinched the game on behalf of the Big-Z swatsters as the Deacons literally booted the ball for glaring errors when it came their way and the column will indicate.

Home runs were far from being at a premium as the Deacons counted three and the Zellers-Douglas and Stevenson counting circuit blows for the Big-Z squad, Woodhouse, Barnett and Hooper all drove out four-base clouts for the losers. Each batted around in the base hits in the most free-hitting game of the season.

Gehrig Went to Death Still Hoping to Do Something Big

By JUDSON BAILEY,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, June 4 (AP)—Facing death, Lou Gehrig was resigned to he shamed his friends into what amounted to a conspiracy of hope.

The "Iron Horse" of baseball's ness was anything he could not conquer until his marvelous courage gave shelter to others. This was also the spirit that made one of baseball's greatest stars were known, and wanted to fight this battle in solitude.

Ford Frick, baseball czar, writes about me being sick I get hundreds, bringing baseball players from all over the country," he said with a wry grin the first winter for the next few days before he had to quit going to his office at the city parole commission.

Gehrig held steadfastly to the belief that he was to be cured and would get better.

"Don't tell me I won't hit bottom for six months or a year, Ford," he would say. "I've been out of trouble you have to go down before you can go up."

Talked Freely

Lou talked freely—"off the blotter in the new terminology he had learned as a parole commissioner—of his old friend Ruth and the cases he was handling, of the things he was doing, and those he hoped to do.

"Some day I want to write something about parole that will get across to the public how great a benefit it is to society," he said. "Most people don't understand it. I didn't at first. My chance. Our work has to be done behind the scenes and nobody knows what we accomplish. It has to be that way because publicity would destroy the benefits of the system.

"But some day I will find a way to write a message that people will understand. It won't be a little story when I do it, either. It will be something big."

That was the way Gehrig went to his death—still hoping to do something big.

GOSSIP ★ NEWS ★ COMMENT

Seems as though Kingston Bill Walshe stuck out his chin again, a feat Willie is well versed in (?word illegible). Recently Bill Walshe went all out in his sports column to tell the world that the Kingston of today was the hot bed of amateur baseball and that more teams were being sponsored in his city than any other place in Ontario. True enough, the Limestone City baseball magnate has done a swell work and too much credit cannot be toseed in their general direction. However, Scribe Walshe apparently does not keep abreast with the baseball activities of the entire province with the result he came into a torrid sports editorial blast at the hands of Bill Gannon, sports editor of The Niagara Falls Review.

Gannon's rebuttal to Walshe's eulogizing of Kingston's baseball prowess speaks for itself as follows: "Fred Caverly and other Falls Baseball boosters will probably have a good laugh over the recent statement from a Kingston writer, who claims his city will have more organized baseball than any other Ontario centre. It's good to hear that another provincial capital is going in for minor baseball on a big scale, but this local fan has been booming in this regard since 1931 and it is indeed unreasonable to think another point can bob up in a single season with more teams than ever previously. The past two years, over 50 clubs have operated from this end and judging by the early start, 1941 is not going to be under this number when organization plans have been completed. At present, two senior, three junior, four intermediate and 25 juvenile and separate school clubs are functioning. With midget and bantam leagues also in the barrier in mid-June, the outlook for another big year in baseball is excellent, so we feel safe in saying that Limestone City boasters will be several squads shy of our number when they place all outfits in the field."

Do you remember when Lord Derby's racing colors, Sansonnet, ploughed through to victory in the English Derby 17 years ago today, bringing the name of the Stanley Earl for the first time. It was also the first winner for the Derby family since 1789 when Sir Peter Teazle was victorious.

Brooklyn fans already are concerned over the prospect of limiting their attendance at the World Series if the Dodgers win the pennant. The salesmanship of Mr. Dan Iets' Field is about 33,000 which would necessitate a second classic. Dominion Day softball tournament to be staged locally for war time purposes. . . . Whitey Wyatt not only pitched shutout ball, but he hurled the Dodgers back into a tie with the Cards, as the Dodgers beat the Red Birds 6-0 yesterday. . . . Poor Bo Bo Newsom has failed to last nine innings in ten of his 11 starts this year and last season he was the leading moundsman in the junior circuit. . . .

Globe and Mail's Dudley Allen, having little to do watching those Leafs continually lose, now has a blimp ride, so like his Leaflan diamond contemporaries, Allen will be up in the air. . . . No matter how you look at it.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 4 (CP)—A slightly stronger tone was displayed today in contra exchange. Golds and industrials featured trading. Turnover amounted to 57,000 shares.

Kerr-Addison was gold feature, advancing a few cents to $4 in active trading and narrow gains appeared also for Lake-of-Good-Hope, Teck Hughes Macassa, Aunor, Lake Shore and Hollinger.

Shares of Big Missouri Mines Corporation were removed yesterday from the trading list.

Base issues were also slightly lower and Noranda, Hudson Bay and Pend Oreille narrowed higher.

Trading was dull in industrials and western oils. Burlington Steel firmed 1-2.

WALL ST.

New York, June 4 (AP)—Narrow selling movements in scattered sections blocked a recovery trend in the Stock Market today.

Price variations were uneven in small fractions toward the fourth hour with transactions meagre.

Some of the defence shares showed the most resilience. These included Dupont, Douglas, Boeing, Glenn Martin, International Harvester, Caterpillar, Dow Chemical and American Can. Gains scarcely were U.S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, International Nickel and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Canadian stocks were generally higher. Canadian Pacific and Dome each gained 1-8 of a point. Distillers, Seagram 3-4 and Hiram Walker 1-4. In the Bond Market Canada 4s were unchanged.

Lambs $13-$13.25 for good local spring lambs with common downward $11.

Sheep $3-$6.

Hogs provisionally $12.60-$12.75 for dressed weights at yards or plant and rows $8.50-$8.85 trucked.

Graded Egg Prices Decline ½ Cent

Toronto — Aided by good demand and light offerings, the grade A large creamery solids advanced 1-4 cent a pound in Toronto egg futures on the open produce market yesterday. The egg market was unable to show any improvement over Monday's weak showing and price on the top-quality eggs dropped another 1-2 cent, a dozen in the graded section.

Creamery prices were unchanged. The Association, production of creamery butter in this Province for the week ending May 24 amounted to 962,463 pounds, compared with 964,450 pounds for the same week last year. Despite this increase of 1.87 per cent, receipts continued light on the butter market yesterday. There was good demand for top-grade butter at 31 1-4 cents a pound, but a general easy tendency of sellers revealed that offerings at such prices were not completely cleaned up.

Trading on the egg market remained quiet yesterday while receipts were also light. Demand also was only spotty. On top of Monday's decline of 1-2 cent a dozen grades A-large and A-medium eased another 1-2 cent yesterday. Prices on grades "B" and "C" along with quotations on grade "A" pullets, remained unchanged.

SLOW PROGRESS RAISES DOUBT OF EARLY CLOSING

Not Likely Parliament Will Conclude Session This Weekend

MORNING SESSIONS

By C. B. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 4 (CP)—First of the all-day sittings of the House of Commons ended last night with little evidence of pre-adjournment atmosphere and doubts were raised of the possibility of parliament completing its present sitting's work this week.

With that object in view, the House met at 11 a.m. yesterday in an endeavour to expedite business.

Morning sessions will be the order of the day for the next week if it's not expected there will be a sitting Saturday because of the commemoration ceremony to be held that day at the graveside of Sir John A. Macdonald in Kingston, Ontario.

That would mean that work must be completed by Friday evening if Parliament is to end its activities this week and take a long adjournment.

The bill to amend the Income War Act was referred to the committee, with the exception of clauses relating to the increased tax on interest paid non-resident foreigners, which stand.

These were held up pending a reply from Premier Hepburn of Ontario to Prime Minister King's offer to forgo the increase if Ontario will accept the budget proposal to the provinces that they vacate the income tax field in return for compensation from the Dominion treasury.

Finance Minister Ilsley said this bill would be introduced again in committee tomorrow and it was assumed the intention was to wait for a reply from Mr. Hepburn before then, if it has not been received before.

Western Problems Discussed

Western problems were discussed as some length on a measure providing for the Auditor-General Gardiner amending the Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

These amendments empower the Governor in Council to increase up to $5,000 in water conservation projects, but projects costing more must be brought before parliament.

This regularizes a practice which has followed in the past and which drew criticism from the Auditor-General.

To a suggestion from J. G. Diefenbaker, Prince Albert, that the over-expenditures questioned by the Auditor-General were made in an election year, 1939, Mr. Gardiner said there was no basis for any suggestion in that direction.

As it happened, 1939 was not an election year and there had been no real reason to think it would be. The election was held in 1940 and the amount of extra expenditures he stopped when he discovered they had not been in the appropriation in 1939. Mr. Gardiner said, and if he had thought politics he would have acted differently.

This measure also will benefit all areas in the House and sent to the Senate.

Amend War Charities Act

A bill to amend the War Charities Act was introduced by Ian Mackenzie in his capacity as Minister of National War Services. It was put through all stages after only brief debate.

The bill strengthened the Government's position in controlling the solicitation of contributions for funds by drawing into scope of the Act any person who may charitable or other purposes, which are useful to the war effort.

Most of the evening session was devoted to discussion of farm problems and the Agricultural Estimates being considered in committee of supply.

Only a few items had been passed when the House adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

The Senate passed without reading to the bill amending the War Exchange Conservation Act, granting interim relief to persons filing returns on certain tariff items, and sent the Income War Revenue Act and that Act providing for collection of Federal Taxes to the House of Commons.

During the day Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Upper House, suggested that the War Revenue Act and Income Commissioners might well be replaced, on grounds the present board is "unduly large and unduly expensive under present conditions."

WORLD STOP HITLER AT DAKAR

St. Louis, June 4.— (AP)—The one chance the United States has of not being forced to send an army to fight in South America is to help the British Navy and Air Force stop Hitler at Dakar, Africa, and Portugal, Senator Claude Pepper said at an aid Britain rally last night.

SEND U.S. PILOTS TO FAR EAST

Washington, June 4 — (AP) — Scores of fledgling United States air corps pilots are being sent to Hawaii and the Philippines, it was disclosed today, for duty with the rapidly expanding air fleets based in the Pacific. The latest transfer orders published by the War Department show that some 116 lieutenants, graduates of the primary week ending June 20 and the advanced months. Then he wrote a letter requesting back pay for the time that had elapsed.

FORMER KAISER

Declines Offer

The two exchanged messages on occasion of Sir P.J.H. campaign in September, 1939, Wilhelm expressed confidence in the army but after the conquest of The Netherlands in May, 1940, Wilhelm declined an offer to return to Germany, saying he was too old to "transplant myself."

This diplomatic reply failed to mention that from the moments of his exile more than 22 years ago, he had determined to return to Germany unless his dynasty should be restored.

Only once was he apparently ready to break that resolution. That was in 1937 when his wife, Hermine, was seriously ill in Germany. He made preparations to make the trip incognito, but only in case her condition indicated, nevertheless and this proved not to be the case. Despite persistent rumors to the contrary, it can be said authoritatively that Wilhelm never re-visited Germany.

Did Not Suffer

His own death came as he wished—without long suffering. He dreaded nothing more than a long illness. While he gradually had grown weaker during the past winter, he appeared vigorous when he observed his 82nd birthday anniversary Jan 27.

The Family Large Landholder

It was only on May 23 that the intestinal ailment from which Wilhelm resulted in death became evident.

His death was a more important event to the Hohenzollern family than would seem to be indicated by the fact he no longer was a ruler. The family for the last 100 years of succession whereby the head of the house has been the family's largest landholder. Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm now succeeds to this position with Prince Louis Ferdinand next in line.

The family still is Germany's largest landholder, although under Hitler large sections of their big estates have been turned over to settlers for colonization.

The Crown Prince, who, it is said, never succeeded in establishing a stable or other purposes, which are useful to the war effort.

Most of the evening session was devoted to discussion of farm problems and the Agricultural Estimates being considered in committee of supply.

Only a few items had been passed when the House adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

The Senate passed without reading to the bill amending the War Exchange Conservation Act, granting interim relief to persons filing returns on certain tariff items, and sent the Income War Revenue Act and that Act providing for collection of Federal Taxes to the House of Commons.

During the day Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Upper House, suggested that the War Revenue Act and Income Commissioners might well be replaced, on grounds the present board is "unduly large and unduly expensive under present conditions."

IRAQ SETTLEMENT

Broadcast Heard

(A British Broadcasting Corporation report heard in New York last night quoted the Nazi-controlled radio in Paris as saying: "From the political as well as the moral point of view France lines up at the side of Germany. Vichy and Paris mean to behave toward Berlin in the same way as Washington is behaving toward London. France will help Germany in her fight against the British Empire to the fullest extent possible without entering into war against Britain.")

The French mandates of Syria and Lebanon at the eastern end of the Mediterranean seemed the chief trouble spots.

Reports from Turkey said Nazi agents had entered Syria by sea and that German "tourists" were flowing across Turkey to Syria by train.

Several hundred German planes already have been reported operating in Syria. (Unconfirmed reports said Berlin, Vichy, and France had sent 150 army planes to Syria recently.)

British newspapers and public alike are demanding that Britain act boldly now to stop placating Vichy." Some have urged that the Royal Air Force blast the air bases at Palmyra, Rayak, Aleppo and Damascus.

Trying to Stir Up Discord

Reuters News Agency quoted Turkish circles in Ankara today the Germans are growing more powerful every day in Syria. They are doing their utmost to stir up religious discord, and there will be no surprise if religious riots break out at any time.

For two months reinforcements for Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson's command have been moving into Palestine and Trans-Jordan. Troops also have been reported entering Iraq near the Syrian border.

Predictions of a great smash-while that the House of Commons will be informed of the fate of the loss of Crete, which fell to an Axis attack in 13 days.

The German Standard declared that if necessary for the defence of Palestine and Iraq, Britain "naturally should occupy Syria at once.

"Are we involved in war with France?" the newspaper asked in a "Parisian mood." It answered: "We see the issue as clearly as Admiral Darlan (French Vice President)."

"The editorial said Darlan had declared that France is at least "treat pay payment" of "his betrayal."

Judge Doubted If Lawyer Knew All Commandments

Los Angeles, June 4 (AP)—A dispute over the 10 Commandments prompted Superior Judge Thurmond Clarke to ask Prosecutor Philbrick McGrory, Eskatown's Attorney, whether Attorney Talbot's mother, Mrs. Helen H. Talley, when she was a girl, taught Sunday-school daughter of the former opera singer and her late husband mate, knew the 10 Commandments.

"She knows some of them," Mrs. Talley replied.

Judge Ingall W. Bull interrupted to suggest that the lawyer and counsel could repeat all the Commandments.

"Such an absurd question," Mrs. Talley answered. "To ask if a mother could know all the Commandments.

Mrs. Talley said the child knew the substance of the Commandments.

"In general, does she know the substance of the fourth Commandment?" asked Philbrick.

"Yes."

"What is the fourth Commandment?"

"It is the one which says: 'Honor thy father and thy mother.' "

"Isn't it true," he asked, "that Commandment has to do with the Sabbath?" Philbrick asked.

"Well, not the way I learned it." That was all the questioning of Mrs. Talley and Prosecutor Philbrick began preparations for the presentation of his case.

The Day in Parliament

(By The Canadian Press)

TODAY

The House will continue discussion of Income Tax Act amendments at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

YESTERDAY

The House of Commons disposed of the bill to amend the Income Tax Act except for clauses related to the increased tax on interest paid non-resident holders of Canadian securities, dealt with amendments to the Prairie Farm Assistance Act and bill to amend the War Charities Act; heard Finance Minister Ilsley outline department estimates.

The Senate gave the third reading to a bill amending the War Exchange Conservation Act and bills amending the Income War Revenue Act and one providing for collection of Federal Taxes. Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader Meighen suggest reduction in the size of the Board of Transport Commissioners.

GIVEN DEATH SENTENCE

Oslo, German-occupied Norway, June 4 (AP)—A German Military Court has sentenced a prominent Norwegian to death, for attempting to sail to Britain. Others tried on similar charges drew long prison terms.

R.C.A.F. Airman Killed in Crash West of Foxboro

His plane crashing into an open field from a low altitude on the farm of Emerson Bellamy, four miles west of Foxboro, in Sidney Township, Sergeant Pilot J. F. Karlenig of St. Vital, Manitoba, was instantly killed on Tuesday afternoon.

According to Mr. Joseph Mulvihill, farmer living on an adjoining farm to where the plane crashed, and who was an eye-witness of the tragedy, said the motor of the plane, a Harvard Trainer, was still running when, after manoeuvering heavily, the plane nose-dived into the ground.

"There did not seem to be anything wrong with the plane as far as the motor was concerned, but it seemed to be acting queerly," Mr. Mulvihill said. "Suddenly the plane struck the ground there was an explosion and the wreckage burst into flames."

The pilot was on a solo flight out of Trenton, R.C.A.F. station when the crash occurred. In the crash the plane was almost completely wrecked with all the fabric being burned off the wings. From the marks in the field where the plane struck it was apparent that after left wingtip had touched the ground it began tearing the wing off, then the plane somersaulted, finally striking the ground several feet and breaking in two pieces, the pilot also was thrown clear of the wreckage.

Mrs. Sam Nicholson, on whose property the plane crashed, also was also an eye-witness and bore out Mulvihill's statement that the plane was flying at a low altitude, the motor was running smoothly and to make a forced landing. Mrs. Nicholson was standing in the garden at the time and thought the plane was going to crash there. "At first I thought it was going to crash into the field in which I was standing, but it suddenly changed its direction and came down two or three hundred feet away."

A board of inquiry from the Trenton Airport will investigate into the cause of the accident.

5 AIRMEN LOSE

pared the search for the four men missing from the base near Glace Bay.

"We can't get out to the spot where we believe they were parachuting," said an officer of the force at Glace Bay.

He expressed belief the plane, in charge of Squadron Leader H. Mc-Gregor, of Ottawa, might either have landed at some isolated spot or have crashed into the sea, to have its crew picked up by ships in the area, or by rescue planes. An Ottawa statement said it was "assumed" the men were down at sea.

Search, on reconnaissance patrol, became overdue Monday, the R.C.A.F. said. Those aboard, besides Squadron Leader McGregor, were: P.O. R. S. Parker, Montreal; Sgt. J. E. Bell, Montreal Junction, Ont., and Ac. F. J. Tibbett, of Montreal.

Toronto Medical Officer One of Crew

In the plane that crashed searching for the missing R.C.A.F. regular crew, was a medical officer, Flt.-Lt. W. A. Hendry, M.D., apparently, he had made the flight with the crew for the sake of the event the Hudson came across the missing men.

Others killed with him were: Fl. Lt. G. B. Snow, Ottawa, in command; P.O. J. Gilbert, Montreal; P.O. Gillis, Paradise, N.S., navigator; Sgt. J. E. Bell, Montreal Junction; Ac. G. A. Dillworth, Rush Lake, Sask.

The R.C.A.F. announced here yesterday that the four airmen who have their bodies conveyed to the mainland. Their bodies were found shortly after the crash would be held.

Toronto, June 4 (CP)—News of the death of Flt.-Lt. W. A. Hendry, one of the five Royal Canadian Air Force officers lost in a search for a lost plane, reached Toronto last night as he had been expected to arrive to move to the Atlantic coast for the summer. He was 47.

Born in Toronto, Ont., Flt.-Lt. Bell was a graduate of Victoria College and the University of Toronto and had practised medicine in Toronto for many years.

Mrs. Bell said she was planning on going to the east coast this summer to be near her husband as her husband was unable to come to Toronto.

Mrs. Bell said her husband had been interested in aviation as he son of Sir Frederick Banting was doing when he was killed in a plane crash in Newfoundland. He was a flying instantly, making a clinical examination of flying.

Fears Many Boards Would Ask for A Pastoral Change

Toronto, June 4 —(CP)— Rev. John Coburn, retiring president of Toronto Conference of the United Church, said at a pre-conference rally last night that "If Jesus Christ were on earth today I am afraid there are many official boards of churches and deputations to see him and ask Him for a pastoral change, because Jesus was a radical nonconformist preacher and never sought crowds."

Nelson Eddy and lovely Ilona Massey in one scene of "Bitter Sweet," the grandest musical romance since "Naughty Marietta," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre. In addition to Feler Lorre in "Island of Doomed Men."

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The British press is demanding bold steps in the Middle East. It urges occupation of Syria at once as a step to safeguard the approaches to the Suez Canal and the petroleum resources of Iraq and Iran. This should be done, it is argued, even if it involves war with Vichy France.

The London News Chronicle today publishes a report that Germany has been given the right to use six key French naval bases along the Mediterranean and the Atlantic coast of Africa, including Dakar.

Such a development would contain the gravest possibilities for Britain, but there is not much she can do now but await action. In the case of Syria, however, Britain is in a position to act immediately. The Iraq government has already used by German aircraft known to be in the French-mandated territory.

Today that it would be wrong to assume that all activities and preparations in the eastern Mediterranean are French and German. Admonished that this crushing of the Iraq revolt was Britain's. The Middle East Command "is prepare for whatever may blow up in Syria."

The British and imperial forces adjacent to Syria in Palestine are under the command of Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson, who had direct charge of the campaign in the British thrust across Libya last winter, which involved destruction of the greater part of the Italian North African army.

Vichy reported this morning that the Royal Air Force had bombed the Shell Oil depot at Beirut, the important Lebanese port 110 miles east of Cyprus. The dispatches said oil reservoirs were blown up by the British bombs, indicating the R.A.F. that is getting ready to deny petrol used by German aircraft known to be in the French-mandated territory.

U.S. TAKES OVER

One Ship-a-Day by November

Mr. Maisky said that merchant ship deliveries were expected to reach a one-a-day rate by November. He gave the number of vessels now under construction as 746.

Dempsey's testimony contained the first official indication that work on converted carriers had been completed or that several ships were involved. Previous information was merely to the effect that conversion was in progress.

Small airplane carriers travelling with convoys have been mentioned as a likely answer to the double threat of submarine and long-range bombers alone. Dempsey's statement they were for navy's use apparently eliminated the possibility of their transfer to Britain for this purpose at least for the present.

It was pointed out, however, that additional carriers likely will add to 2 1-2 years ago. Cause of the blast is unknown.

AGILE PRISONER ESCAPES

New York, June 4—(AP)—Waiting in Brooklyn city prison for sentence on a charge of burglary, one 18-year-old Oreman D'Agnastino escaped by shinning up an elevator cable from the second floor to a roof-top every daylight, breaking through the skylight; climbing a flagpole; releasing the flagpole rope and sliding down it to a fire escape and sliding down to the street; treading the pants cuffs.

NAZIS DOWN UNDER

Wellington, N.Z. (CP)—Eighteen German airmen and 10 Italian airmen were made prisoners of war in the capture of a German supply ship and submarine by the New Zealand Leander and the Australian ship Canberra.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER THREE

"I'LL BE STRING along with you," the girl told the young man, simply.

"Thanks. I won't let you regret it—if I can help it," said the man, but his tone made up for the simplicity of the words. "I've been offered a job. Sort of caretaker on an island near here where a winter resort is to be established. In order to get the job, I have to have a wife."

The girl's eyes flew wide and her breath held suspended in her throat for a moment. The man sat quite still, his eyes meeting hers, waiting for the full meaning of his words to sink into her consciousness, and her decision to follow her understanding. He was giving her all the time she wanted; trying wordlessly to reassure her.

"You—you mean — a make-believe marriage?" she stammered after that first stunned moment.

He shook his head and his mouth was a trifle grim. "No," he told her firmly, "it's got to be a legal marriage—ring, bell and book — that sort of thing. We have to have a marriage certificate and all that. But of course it will in reality just be a make-believe. That is, in reality we will be no more than friends, comrades. It's like two partners in a business deal—"

After a moment she asked, "For how long?"

"A month, maybe two or even three," he answered her promptly, "I don't know yet. But there will be a salary which we will, of course, divide equally; food, shelter—and at the end, an annulment of the marriage if you like."

There was another moment of silence and then the girl said quietly, "What do we start?"

"You mean you'll do it? You'll trust me?"

"But of course," answered the girl as though puzzled at such a question. "You are my friend—"

The man crushed out the tip of his cigaret and stood up. There was a telephone in a far corner of the room and he crossed to it. He was gone perhaps five minutes, and when he came back he was smiling a little.

"Feel like facing another dinner — a real one, this time, from soup to nuts?" he asked as he drew her chair back and helped her to her feet. "We have been asked to dine by Jordan Markham."

"Jordan Markham?" she gasped. "The man who owns the island," he answered. "And I told him that meanwhile I didn't have a wife. Tonight when I telephoned him I was thinking of having one, and he suggested I bring you over to dinner and we have a talk. He wants to see what we are like, both of us."

The girl stood up and they turned towards the door. Outside in the cool dusk dusk shadowed the ocean and the beach aboon them, the man said with a little laugh, "I seem to have forgotten my manners. My name's Tom Forman, incidentally."

"And mine's Elizabeth Carter—Betsy is what people call me, though—"

He looked down at her and there was something in his casual tone and eyes that made her heart stir just a little. "Yes, I can see it would be Betsy—not Lizzie, or Betty or even Beth. Just Betsy. It's cute—and it suits you."

They walked nearly half a mile before they reached the end of the bunline. But in that walk they learned a great many things about each other; such as that she was a stenographer out of a job because the firm for whom she had worked since she finished business training (a year before) had moved its offices to Miami, and she was not a sufficiently important employe to be taken along; she was an orphan, brought up by a maiden aunt who had died when she was 16.

Tom was equally as brief in his account of himself. His father had died when he was seven and his mother had married again; there had been other children born to this union; he and his stepfather had not liked each other very well; there had been trouble, and when his mother died, soon after he was 19, he had run away and taken life into his own hands. He had come to Florida in search of a job, along the added stimulus with several million other young men; and now it was he'd answered the ad. There were no jobs to be had—unless one was married and wanted to be caretaker of an island where a winter resort was going to be built.

Betsy was worried about her bedraggled, scarcely dry clothing as she and Tom left the bus and started down the drive that led from the Ocean boulevard to the Markham place. The brisk night wind had dried her skirts a little, but she was still damp and quite uncomfortable as she walked down the drive bordered by huge oleander trees in full bloom. The very beauty and magnificence of the white villa, its windows glowing with amber light, the superlatively well-kept grounds, all added to her uneasiness.

The door was opened to them by an old man whose white alpaca coat was the only concession to a tropical luxury. He greeted them quietly, without expression, and led the way into a large living room whose walls were lined with bookshelves on three sides, the fourth side, of glass, opening to the terrace and superb view of the ocean.

"The young people you were expecting, sir," he said, and vanished, closing the door behind him.

A man who sat in a modern, very elaborate wheelchair, wheeled toward them from one of the French doors that stood open to the terrace.

"Well, Forman, glad to see you," he said, and shook hands with her young man. "And this is Mrs. Forman, of course."

He held out his thin, frail-looking hand to Betsy as Tom said quickly, "She is to be soon, sir—we haven't had time to be married yet."

"Ah, yes — I understand, of course," said the old man, and looked down at Betsy's bedraggled skirts. "But, my dear, you've had an accident. You're wet."

"I—tried to kill myself by drowning," said Betsy clearly. "Only Tom came along and stopped me."

"Ah, yes," said Jordan Markham, as though here had been the most ordinary remark, but his eyes sharpened a little as he studied her. "Well, you must be quite uncomfortable—and we can't have you sitting about catching pneumonia, now, can we?"

He rang and the old butler stood in the doorway.

"Burton, Miss Carter has had an accident. I'm sure Mrs. Burton can fix her up with something more comfortable than her present wet garments," said Mr. Markham.

"I'm sure she can, sir. If you will come this way, ma'am," said Burton as matter-of-factly as his master had spoken. He led the dazed Betsy out of the room, up a flight of wide stairs and along a corridor to a door that he opened.

CHAPTER FOUR

BURTON LED Betsy upstairs, shortly after her narrow escape from drowning.

A stout, comfortable looking woman in a neat black taffeta dress, a narrow white collar buttoned beneath her plump chin, sat at a small table playing solitaire. She looked up and over her glasses as Burton said, "The lady's happened to an accident, Martha. The master thought you might find her some thing dry to wear while she's having dinner."

"Well, of course I can. Come in, ma'am," said Mrs. Burton hospitably and closed Burton away. "Now, you get those wet things right off, while I see what I can find for you. It's certain you can't wear anything of mine, isn't it?" She laughed cheerfully as she went out.

When she came back she was carrying over her arm a velvet tea gown sufficiently like the present-day hostess gowns not to be too quaint. The color was a deep rose, and the wide sleeves were made of heavy silver lace; there was a silver cord that could be knotted about the waist, so that the garment suggested that it might be made to fit; there were silver brocade boudoir slippers as well, and underthings that were exquisite in texture, soft and smelling faintly of lavender.

"One of Mr. Markham's housequests left it behind after a visit some years ago," Mrs. Burton explained, as she helped Betsy to change into the velvet garment.

Betsy's eyes widened a little as she caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror. With her sooty black hair curling in damp ringlets about her face, her slim body clad in the very becoming rose velvet, she was almost lovely! And the knowledge lifted her spirits enormously.

Mrs. Burton led her back to the library saying cheerfully, "And while you're having dinner, maybe I'll get your own clothes pressed and fixed for you."

Tom stood up when Betsy came in, almost startled. And Mr. Markham, reaching for the look in Tom's eyes, nodded as though in satisfaction, and before anything more than casual words could be exchanged, Burton had announced dinner.

Betsy looked about the big room, the small, round table set for three in the middle of it, a great silver bowl of roses on the lace cloth, delicate china, exquisite crystal and silver shimmering in the light from tall white candles. And little more than an hour ago she had been on the verge of suicide, starving, friendless, sick with horror! It didn't seem possible that she could be here now, in this beautiful room surrounded by luxury and comfort, wearing a velvet gown and about to dine extravagantly and beautifully!

Burton and an attendant footman served the delicious meal, and it was a most ceremonious affair. At least it seemed ceremonious to the wide-eyed, enchanted Betsy, who listened hastily to Tom's and Mr. Markham's conversation, devoted chiefly to politics, the foreign situation and such.

Nothing was said to indicate the nature of the job about which she and Tom had come to see Mr. Markham, until after dinner was over and the three of them were back in the library.

Mr. Markham had offered Betsy a cigaret, and Betsy had smiled shyly and shook her head. "An expensive habit I've never been able to afford to acquire," she admitted with a hasty honesty that quickened his interest in her. He smiled in approval.

Tom accepted the cigar Mr. Markham offered to him, and when the two cigars were burning cheerfully, Mr. Markham looked from one to the other of the eager young faces turned toward him.

"And now of course you want to know more about this mysterious job I have for you," he said, smiling, though there was a shadow at the back of his eyes that made the smile did not quite reach. "Well, I don't blame you—although it's not nearly as mysterious as it sounds. I simply want you to act as caretakers for an island development I am planning."

"But—why did you insist on having a married couple? Why couldn't just a man have been sufficient?" demanded Betsy, her heart sinking as she discovered the prosaic quality of the job.

Mr. Markham studied the glowing tip of his cigar for a moment. It seemed to Betsy that there was a tautness about his mouth as he answered her almost sternly. "Because the island development is for the benefit of honeymoon couples —and there must be a hostess, as well as a host, there to greet them."

Betsy and Tom exchanged swift, puzzled glances.

"The island has belonged to me for a good many years — as a mere," Mr. Markham explained. "I bought it more through that it would make a beautiful winter home, and I meant to use it for the girl I was to marry. It seemed to me the only possible good image for a honeymoon. I'd waited rather a long time to marry. I wanted to have enough to guarantee my wife every possible luxury and drudgery. I'd seen men and women madly in love and trying to scrape along on "barely enough," while the quality of their love grew strained and saddened by their hardships—I wanted something better than that for MY wife. So we waited. We met and fell in love when I was 24 and she was 18. Life is such a pretty wonderful thing. She wanted to marry me and to help me build, but I wanted to lay the world at her feet first! And I was a fool! I felt that I could offer her the things I wanted her to have."

He was still for a moment, living in the past, and Betsy and Tom were quiet, held with him in that momentary grip of silence in which he mentally trod the road to the past.

"I bought and paid for the island," he said, after a tense moment of stillness. "The plans for our home had been approved by Nancy. The house was to be finished and ready for us when we returned from a story book honeymoon cruise aboard my yacht—"

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was in her room sewing on her electric sewing machine, and I went in and asked her a question, her, and she said, "You're panting like a proverbial horse for land sakes. Is that any way to breathe down your mother's neck?"

Well gimminy, ma, if you were as tired as I am I bet you wouldn't be breathing at all I said. You're just been having a relay race around the block I said.

And I laid down on the floor on my back to get my breath better, and ma saying, Will you tell me why you have to play till you're totally devoid of breath?

Because O winnikers, ma, that's how long it takes, I said. Anyways, ma, the way I feel now I've had enough exercise forever. Hay, ma, do you think it would be a good idea if I got a permanent? I said.

Well naturally, ma said. The most beautiful and useful bridges are by engineers, she said, and you'd never suppose I stopped playing and spent all that time studying sporting editor.

Instead and suppose if I had any spare time left over I spent it in the lyberry, do you think I could be a great engineer by the time I'm about 15 years old? Or how soon do you think I'd be a great veterinary doctor if I never even saw the fellows again and spent all day in dog hospitities and at night mixing medicines and making bandages? I said.

I don't see any occasion for any more talk I'm sorry and rush no matter what you decide to become ma said, and I said, O well, anyways, maybe I'll just keep on playing with different games and taking my time learning new ones, and anyways maybe I'm too old to run and have fun myself I'll know enough about sports to be a great

BRITONS SEE EARLY CRISIS IN MIDDLE EAST

ALEXANDRIA VISITED BY AXIS BOMBERS

Britain Blockades Syria and Lebanon For Trade Purposes

French-Mandated Territory Declared Enemy-Occupied Territory by Board Of Trade in London

EGYPT FOLLOWS SUIT

London, June 5 (CP).—The Board of Trade issued a declaration today classing French-mandated Syria and Lebanon as "enemy occupied territory for the purposes of the Trading with the Enemy Act and of Economic Warfare".

Syria and Lebanon thus became the first French mandates or colonies to be blockaded by Britain.

The Board of Trade's action was announced soon after the Australian government had issued an order classing Syria and Lebanon as "enemy occupied" territory for trading purposes.

Egypt, Britain's ally, yesterday listed Syria as German-occupied territory in the first such action.

Goods Liable to Seizure.

Today's Board of Trade announcement also stated that as from May 27 Syria and Lebanon were regarded "as an enemy destination for contraband purposes and all goods originating or owned in that territory will be liable to seizure".

Britain declared all France subject to the British blockade last July but French colonies and mandates were allowed to trade with Germany, Italy, or Nazi-occupied territory.

Forecast was made by military observers that simultaneous German attacks would be made on Palestine, Cyprus and Egypt in an attempt to divide Britain's Middle East forces. Turkish sources said the Nazis had nearly 10,000 men in French-mandated Syria.

Natural Development.

The action of the Royal Air Force in bombing an oil depot at Beirut, Syria, was described by authoritative sources as a "natural and necessary development" of British policy previously outlined by Foreign Secretary Eden.

U.S. RAILWAY MEN SEEK INCREASES

Operating Personnel and Labor Unions Make Demands

Chicago, June 5 —(AP)— United States railroads were confronted today by demands for increases for 1,350,000 organized workers.

Fourteen railway labor organizations, composed of clerks, mechanics, telegraphers and other nonoperating employees, decided yesterday to seek raises of 20 to 34 cents an hour for those groups' members.

The unions embracing the operating personnel, engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and switchmen, voted on May 19 to request a 30-per cent wage hike for the 350,000 men they represent.

The demands of both groups will be presented to the carriers June 16.

Chiefs of the non-operating organizations stated that they had "decided to open their existing wage agreements with railways throughout the United States for the purpose of making such changes in wages as may be necessary to provide for a minimum wage of 70 cents an hour as the lowest rate to be paid in the industry and with other corresponding increases which will provide wage rates up to $1.15 an hour for the highly skilled workers in railroad service."

The railroads will be asked to make the new rates effective as of July 10, 1941.

The increases—if granted—would add many millions to the carriers' annual payrolls. The non-operating unionists did not compute their demands in terms of dollars. The operating brotherhood calculated that the proposed wage advance would approximate an additional $198,000,000 a year.

PORT OF BOULOGNE PRINCIPAL TARGET FOR RAF BOMBERS

Harbor at Zeebrugge Attacked and Supply Vessel off Coast of Norway Fired

LONDON QUIET

London, June 5 —(CP)— Nazi planes in widespread overnight attacks bombed the Midland, Southeast and northeast England, East Anglia and London districts, three enemy bombers were shot down.

A communique said casualties were nowhere large and that no extensive damage was done.

The heaviest attack of its kind in consecutive bombless night although the operations across the English channel toward the city, caused an all-out air defence alert last night.

It was announced that two enemy fighter planes were shot down and one Royal Air Force machine is missing after air fighting earlier last night five miles southeast of the English coast.

The channel clashes followed heavy daylight raids by R.A.F. bombers on the Nazi-occupied French coast. The port of Boulogne was said to have been the principal target.

Heavy Explosions Heard

Several times Wednesday the rumble of heavy explosions was heard from the French coast. For a time, the ground shook on the English side as continual explosions sounded from the Boulogne region.

The Air Ministry communique said British bombers also attacked the harbor at Zeebrugge, hitting the mole and cargo alongside. A supply vessel of about 5,000 tons, off the coast of Norway, was struck repeatedly and fired, the communique said.

Two bombers were missing from these operations, the communique added.

The Admiralty announced today that H.M.S. Hasty was damaged today by a trawler. It said the trawler came out of the action unscathed and unharmed.

The ministry's news service said a 500-ton ship at Zeebrugg was "blown clean out of the water by a direct hit."

While other British planers machine-gunned enemy airdromes, it said, the attack leader dropped bombs on cranes and dry port facilities and was "certain the mole was effectively damaged."

Roosevelt Recommends Construction of Seaway Project to U.S. Congress

Washington, June 5 (AP) — President Roosevelt, saying that "we have no right to take chances with national safety," recommended to the United States Congress today legislation authorizing immediate construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Declaring that no comparable power, shipbuilding and transportation facilities could be made available in the time required to construct the project, which would be a joint undertaking with Canada, the President said:

"Production and more production is the keynote of our all out race for national defence. Electric power and transportation are limiting factors in the production of planes, guns, tanks, and ships.

"The energy and democracy are developing every hydro-electric resource and every transportation way from the Great Lakes to the Dardanelles. Are we to allow this continent to be outmatched because selfish and short sighted interests oppose the development of one of our great natural assets?"

Could be Built in Four Years

Mr. Roosevelt declared he had been advised the project could be built in four years, adding:

"Under emergency pressure it may be completed in less time. I am sure that we agree with the people who say the country's danger will be never more acute.

"But the course of world events gives me no such assurance, and we have no right to take chances with the national safety.

"I know of no single project of the same nature more important to this country's future in peace or war. Its authorization will demonstrate the vitality of democracy that, however long the effort, we intend to outlast, and outbuild, the race of production. In the modern world, that fact demonstrates the rate and fall of nations."

Ocean Going Seaway

"I hope that authorization will not be delayed."

The St. Lawrence project, which would open an ocean going seaway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic and provide for increased power facilities on the Canada-American Border in Northeast New York, originally was presented to Congress in Treaty form. It failed of ratification when the Senate refused to give it the required two-thirds vote.

Now having been introduced in Bill form, the project requires only a majority vote in both Houses.

The cost to the United States has been estimated at $285,000,000, upwards of $90,000,000 of this to be repaid the government by New York state for use of the increased power to be generated at the International rapids section of the seaway.

The president told Congress that its action would "either make available in the next few years" added power of low cost electric power "for the vital industries of North America", and would "either open the way to bring to bear on the greatest transportation resources ever offered a people".

Declaring that Great Britain and Canada need the power, he said additionally:

"Both face power shortages which threaten to curtail production in the demands of the defence programs, coupled with almost incredible difficulty."

Railroads Burdened

Mr. Roosevelt said it took tens of thousands of kilowatt hours of electricity to produce the materials that go into a single airplane. We added that the present aluminum program called for more than 10,000,000 kilowatt hours of power for production as it was hoped almost the whole personnel of existing plants would be mobilized would enlist for active service.

"We have had great help from the civilian committee", said the minister, "and the work of the three committees are just now getting into their stride and everything has accelerated greatly in the last few days".

Col. Ralston asked all members of parliament to "put their backs into the drive campaign" and asked them for help so far given.

Mail circulars had been constructive although there were a few critics who could see only difficulties and objections.

Col. Ralston told Opposition Leader Hanson that answers to the defence estimates had still to be received and he would seek an opportunity tomorrow for discussion of defence matters.

FIFTH OF LOAN RAISED BY DRIVE IN THREE DAYS

Largest Subscription to Loan Thus Far is for $5,000,000

MANY RALLIES

Ottawa, June 5 (CP)—Canadians on Wednesday subscribed $5,000,000 to Canada's $600,000,000 Victory War Loan, running the total for the first three days' campaign to $31,962,400, the National Loan Committee announced today.

The total number of individual subscribers on Wednesday was exactly the same as the preceding two days combined, C. W. Spinney, general chairman of the National Publicity Committee, said in a statement.

Yesterday's subscriptions too were satisfactorily above the daily average of $33,000,000 required to take care of all loan subscriptions by the time books close June 21. (Civic Holiday).

City totals reported this morning were: Hamilton $1,083,800 or 23.2 per cent. of its quota; Calgary $2,309,100 or 41 per cent.; Edmonton $2,200,000 or 41 per cent.; Saskatoon $323,285,850 or 28.4 per cent.

Regina, $344,000 or 22.8 per cent.; Saskatchewan, $319,250 or 31.8 per cent.; Moose Jaw, $136,950 or 30 per cent.; Charlottetown $195,400 or 25.4 per cent.; Brandon $115,000 or 25.3 per cent., and Brantford 125 per cent.

7,655 RECRUITED IN THE CAMPAIGN SAYS J. L. RALSTON

Defence Minister Tells Commons Sure the Required 32,000 Will Be Obtained

ANSWERS GEO. WHITE

Ottawa, June 5.—(CP)—A total of 7,655 men have been enlisted in the army since the start of the present recruiting campaign, Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons today.

He said from indications at hand he was sure the campaign for 32,000 men would succeed. "Two weeks ago would be a success. This, said Mr. Ralston, was 24 per cent of the total allotment sought in the campaign.

Figures did not include those enlisted, immediately before the campaign began, through the regular the campaign which would count toward the objective.

The minister was answering a question from George White (Conservative, Hastings-Peterborough). He declined to give recruiting figures by districts as he thought it would be unfair at this stage would be unfair to the centres concerned.

To Replace Absorbed Units

Of the 32,000 men to be enlisted 8,000 were to replace units of the 4th Division which had been absorbed into the overseas division.

New units for the 4th Division were in process of mobilization and would boost the figures of the division to which they were added. It was at this regard almost the whole personnel of existing plants would be mobilized would enlist for active service.

"We have had great help from the civilian committee", said the minister, "and the work of the three committees are just now getting into their stride and everything has accelerated greatly in the last few days".

Col. Ralston asked all members of parliament to "put their backs into the drive campaign" and asked them for help so far given.

Mail circulars had been constructive although there were a few critics who could see only difficulties and objections.

Col. Ralston told Opposition Leader Hanson that answers to the defence estimates had still to be received and he would seek an opportunity tomorrow for discussion of defence matters.

Observers Believe Raid First Blow At Suez Defences

More Than 100 Persons Officially Reported Killed in Alexandria by Axis Bombs

PORT VITAL SEA BASE

London, June 5 (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Cairo today said more than 100 persons were killed in an Axis air raid on Alexandria last night.

With a shower of bombs officially reported to have killed more than 100 persons last night at Alexandria, main base of the British fleet, the Axis has delivered the first of its threatened heavy blows at the Suez Canal defences, according to qualified observers.

The British government declared French-mandated Syria and Lebanon to be "enemy occupied territory" for the purpose of restricting commerce with them. In axis hands, Syria could base a land drive toward Suez and Palestine, Iraq, Palestine and Trans-Jordan, and would be a wedge between the British Middle East and Turkey, Britain's non-belligerent ally.

Bombing of Alexandria, London's qualified commentators said, is the logical step following German-Italian occupation of the Greek island of Crete.

Cyprus, British island base at the northeastern corner of the Crete-Alexandria triangle, certainly was regarded as of lessened importance to the axis, now that German bombers have fields in Crete, Syria and Libya from which to blast at Suez and Alexandria is well within 500-mile or two-hour bomber range of Crete, Syria and Libyan airfields. Thus, the report of the heavy bombing was taken to mean that the air battle of Suez had started full blast, fulfilling the German claim concerning the statement that there would be no lull after the conquest of Crete.

Alexandria Base Vital.

The casualty report from Alexandria indicated that last night's attack was by far the heaviest on that British bulwark. It has been repeatedly bombed, however. So has the Suez Canal.

The fact Alexandria base is vital to the defence of Suez, gateway to the eastern Mediterranean.

Alexandria lies on the Egyptian shore, just east of the famine relief city of the Nile, about 130 miles west of Port Said and the Canal.

It is the largest Egyptian city that attacks on Alexandria would have the double effect of hitting a British base and Egyptian morale. Alexandria is Egypt's second largest city, with a population of nearly 700,000 to Cairo's 1,200,000.

The link is hardly dry on London's afternoon press editorials begging for a stiffening of British air defences when news of the bombing of Alexandria came.

The Evening Standard spoke of the "urgency" of the situation while the Evening News called for "more Action Stations"—the traditional British order for all hands to battle.

NORMA SHEARER VISITS MONTREAL

Note: Hollywood Actress Takes Part in Victory Loan Drive

Montreal, Que., June 5 (CP)—Norma Shearer, Montreal-born screen actress, told a crowd of 30,000 here last night that she would "carry back to Hollywood with me the confidence that Canada will again do her share magnificently" in the war.

Speaking at a Victory Loan rally at which Air Minister Power was the principal speaker, Miss Shearer said the loan was something "worthy of the support of every citizen and I am sure everyone of us is going to support it."

Miss Shearer spoke briefly in French and English.

Seventy-four persons were treated for fainting and minor injuries during the rally.

A number of the injuries resulted when police lines broke as Miss Shearer was leaving Westmount Park, where the rally was held. None of the cases was serious.

Big Warplane Plant Closed by Strike

Inglewood, Calif., June 5.—(AP)— The C.I.O.-United Automobile Workers Union declared a strike at the North American Aviation Corporation's big warplane plant at 2.45 a.m. (7.45 a.m. E.D.T.) today. Three hours later company officials announced that:

"No North American employees are to report to work today pending future instructions from the National Defence Mediation Board in Washington".

The statement was issued after a telephone conversation between plant officials and company president James H. Kindelberger in Washington.

The "no work today" instructions were given just an hour and 15 minutes before the 7,000 to 8,000 day employees were scheduled to report. A skeleton crew of 1,300 men, including maintenance workers, was in the plant. They had entered before the picketing arrived, but the C.I.O. said maintenance men might leave the plant tonight in order for a quick resumption to work after the strike is settled.

ONTARIO SUBSCRIBES NEARLY $31 MILLIONS IN FIRST THREE DAYS

Toronto, June 5.—(CP) Officials of the Victory Loan Campaign said today that $31,962,400 had been subscribed in Ontario in the first three days of the campaign, with Lake and Chiefford in Wellington County, both have achieved their objective making a total of seven centres with objectives already reached.

Business Men Need Relaxation And Hobby to Live out Allotted Span

By HAROLD C. McKINLEY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cleveland, June 5 (AP)—The world would be better off if man had the habit of lying in bed one hour each week.

That's the comforting concept of a noted physician who today told the American Medical Association that ambition is shortening the average human life span.

Ambition and "the strenuous life" are just as hazardous to the executive's health as his obesity and excessive use of tobacco and alcohol, declared Dr. Edgar V. Allen, chief of the Medicine Division at Mayo Clinic.

He proposed a five-day week, eight-hour day program for business men.

"Could man see how small, how insignificant, how unimportant his individual life is, he might shape it to find his soul achieve more of happiness and content and less of material success and perhaps of health," Dr. Allen said.

Ambition drives those who have no capabilities, into unhappiness, dissatisfaction and ill health, it has been declared. In addition it affects such advice as: "You be a good boy and I'll work hard seven day you will be president, Johnny."

Said Johnny probably won't be president.

For the business man's longevity, the physician prescribed digging a dahlia bed, or any other hobby that affords relaxation; golf for recreation not for low score; occasional relaxation from business and from diet, moderation in drinking and smoking; more fishing and hunting for diversion.

EUROPEAN-AFRICA LEAGUE PROBABLE AIM OF PETAIN

Pierre Boisson, "Defender of Dakar," Joins Weygand to Talk With Cabinet

RELATIONS STRAINED

Vichy, June 5—(AP)—Presumably summoned to conferences considering the future course of the French empire, Pierre Boisson, dubbed by Vichy "defender of Dakar," arrived here unexpectedly last night.

Maxime Weygand, Governor of French West Africa, joined Gen. Maxime Weygand, Commander of Vichy's armed forces in French North Africa, in a two-hour Wednesday conference with Marshal Petain and Vichy's cabinet ministers.

The visits of these leaders coincided with a steady deterioration in relations between the Vichy government and Britain and with reports in Vichy that Hitler is attempting a European-African league of Nations as his next step.

Petain's policy of state development issued by the Vichy information office May 20 saying that it was time for France to reconquer her African territories lost to the French Empire in Gaullist free French troops.

Laval night the controlled Telemondial news agency, commenting on a reported Nazi drive for "pan-African autarchy"—excluding Britain and the United States—drawn up at Monday's Brenner Pass meeting of Hitler and Mussolini, said:

"France, which has turned toward a clearly European policy, can play an important role in this orientation of the two continents, since intercontinental exchanges will be necessary in Europe. For the moment, however Europe must be self-sufficient herself."

MORE THAN 2,000 COAST GUARD. SAILORS FOR U.S. NAVY

Washington, June 5 (AP)— Treasury Secretary Morgenthau disclosed today the United States coast guard is transferring 2,000 of its sailors over to the navy to man new navy transports.

Halifax the "Atlantic Boom Town" Is Now the Busiest Port in World

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, June 5 (AP)—Halifax is the city that wars built. For 190 years the Anglo-Saxon citadel in the North American continents has thrived—and suffered—in wartime; withered, languished, slumbered in peace.

Today the story is the same. The boom is on again. Halifax may not be the largest port in the world, but it's the busiest. It is the Atlantic boom town. It moves the most ships, the most men on convoy and bound for embattled Britain. And by next winter the capacity of the port probably will be doubled.

Building permits have trebled in volume since the depression years. Government relief has not been necessary for more than a year.

Evidence of the crossroads nature of Halifax is on every hand. Its bank, blond Australian soldier flops into the barber's chair next to you,

"Ship it short," he says. "I don't know when or where I'll get the next haircut."

A shipload of Chinese sailors from the Anglo-Asian colonial quarters, fresh from the dramatic rescue off a torpedoed freighter, walk Downtown streets. Down a Norman's in Morris Street, admirals of the Royal Navy, polite Nova Scotians, and soldiers and sailors from everywhere rub shoulders.

"Big Short," a six-foot Texan in a 10-gallon hat, strides in. He is obviously off a tanker, and a bit the worse for an evening out. He joins a Royal Canadian Air Force officer, girls, blissfully unaware that he's

FRENCH LINER HELD AT DOCK

British Authorities Bring Libel Action Due D'Aumale

New York, June 5 (AP)—The French liner Duc d'Aumale, 4,464 tons, scheduled to sail yesterday with a load of foodstuffs for unique, was held at their pier by a writ brought by British authorities.

The liner arrived here May 20 with 181 passengers from Martinique. United States officials have given her permission to operate between New York and Martinique, despite the sailing of other French ships in American harbors.

Henri Rabaud, general director of the French line here, said the action was an extension of a libel action brought against the French line for $1,250,000 due British shipyards for construction of French cargo ships in 1929.

New Treatment For Gas Gangrene Has Been Discovered

Kingston, Ont., June 5 (CP).—A new treatment for gas gangrene has been discovered by two members of the medical faculty of Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., Dr. G. R. Seed and Dr. H. Orr, it was learning recently was published in Lancet, the British Medical Journal.

The treatment is a development which resulted in a startling decline in the mortality rate among guinea pigs virulently infected with gas gangrene, and is a combination of with streptococcus as the greatest cause of death among wounded soldiers.

Sulphanilamide, sulphapyridine, and sulphathiazole were used to control the infection, with the latter found to be the most effective.

The objective was to develop a method which would retard, or postpone the development of shock to a period from the contraction of the infection to such time as the well recognized surgical and serum treatment would be applied.

WINNIPEG STAGES IMITATIVE RAID

Winnipeg, June 5—(CP)—One of the most realistic air raids staged on Winnipeg's main streets last night, simulated a German night air raid and blackout and today they were congratulating the chief of war time raids on English cities.

Eleven shrapnel bursting warnings at 9:55 p.m. Five minutes later a black fire echoed from tops of buildings and searchlights swept the city sky, big bombers and lighter aircraft zoomed overhead and artillery barrage ringed the blackout area.

Flashes of imaginary bombs—thunder flashes set off by the army started the civilians and many observers were frightened when explosions took place a few feet away.

BRITONS SEE EARLY CRISIS IN MIDDLE EAST

ALEXANDRIA VISITED BY AXIS BOMBERS

Britain Blockades Syria and Lebanon For Trade Purposes

French-Mandated Territory Declared Enemy-Occupied Territory by Board Of Trade in London

EGYPT FOLLOWS SUIT

London, June 5 (CP).—The Board of Trade issued a declaration today classing French-mandated Syria and Lebanon as "enemy occupied territory for the purpose of the Law of Trading with the Enemy Act and of Economic Warfare".

Syria and Lebanon thus became the first French mandates or colonies to be blockaded by Britain.

The Board of Trade's action was announced soon after the Australian government had issued an order classing Syria and Lebanon as "enemy occupied" territory for trading purposes.

Egypt, Britain's ally, yesterday listed Syria as German-occupied territory in its first such action.

Goods Liable to Seizure.

Today's Board of Trade announcement also stated that as from May 27 Syria and Lebanon were regarded "as an enemy destination for contraband purposes and all goods originating or owned in that territory will be liable to seizure".

Britain declared all France subject to the British blockade last July but French colonies and mandates were allowed to trade freely, except with Germany, Italy, or Nazi-occupied territory.

Forecast was made by military circles that simultaneous German attacks would be launched on Palestine, Cyprus and Egypt in an attempt to divide Britain's Middle East forces. Turkish sources said the Nazis had nearly 10,000 men in French-mandated Syria.

Natural Development.

The action of the Royal Air Force in bombing an oil depot at Beirut, Syria, was described by authoritative sources as a "natural and necessary development" of British policy previously outlined by Foreign Secretary Eden.

U.S. RAILWAY MEN SEEK INCREASES

Operating Personnel and Labor Unions Make Demands

Chicago, June 5 —(AP)— United States railroads were confronted today by demands for pay increases for 1,350,000 organized workers.

Fourteen railway labor organizations, composed of clerks, machinists, telegraphers and other nonoperating employes, decided yesterday to seek raises of 20 to 34 cents an hour for their 400,000 members.

Five unions embracing the operating personnel, engineers, firemen, conductors, switchmen and trainmen, voted on May 19 to request a 30-per cent wage hike for the 350,000 men they represent.

The demands of both groups will be presented to the carriers June 15.

Chiefs of the non-operating organizations stated that they had "decided to open their existing wage agreements with the railways throughout the United States for the purpose of making such changes in wages as may be necessary to provide for a minimum wage of 70 cents an hour as the lowest rate to be paid in the industry and with other corresponding increases which will provide wage rates up to 44.15 an hour for the highly skilled workers in railroad service."

The railroads will be asked to make the new rates effective as of July 10, 1941.

The increases—if granted—would add many millions to the carriers' annual payrolls. The non-operating unionists did not compute their demands as the Railway Labor Act, operating brotherhood calculated that the total wage sought alone would approximate an additional $198,000,000 a year.

PORT OF BOULOGNE PRINCIPAL TARGET FOR RAF BOMBERS

Harbor at Zeebrugge Attacked and Supply Vessel off Coast of Norway Fired

LONDON QUIET

London, June 5 —(CP)— Nazi planes in widespread overnight attacks bombed the Midland, Northeast and northwest England, East Anglia and London districts. Three enemy bombers were shot down.

A comparatively small casualties were somewhat large and that no extensive damage was done.

The city of London escaped its 58th consecutive bombless night although the heavy, striking across the channel toward the city, caused an air raid alarm shortly after midnight.

It was announced that two Spitfire fighter planes were shot down and one Royal Air Force machine is missing after air fighting earlier last night five miles over the English Channel.

The channel clashes followed heavy attacks during the day by RAF on the Nazi-occupied French coast. The port of Boulogne was said to have been the principal target.

Heavy Explosions Heard

Several times Wednesday the rumble of heavy explosions was heard from the French coast. For a time, the ground shook on the English side as artillery explosions sounded from the Boulogne region.

An Air Ministry communique said British bombers also attacked the harbor at Zeebrugge, hitting the mole and cargo quayside. A supply vessel of about 5,000 tons, off the coast of Norway, was struck repeatedly and fired, the communique said.

Two bombers were missing from these operations, the communique added.

The Admiralty announced a 10,000-ton merchant ship damaged by a trawler. It said the trawler, came out of the sea-sky fight unharmed.

The ministry's new service said a 500-ton ship at Zeebrugge "is blown clean out of the water by a direct hit."

While other British planes machine gunned ground defenses, it said, the attack leader dropped bombs on cranes and other port installations. Fires started in the mole were effectively damaged."

WINNIPEG STAGES IMITATIVE RAID

Winnipeg, June 5—(CP)—One of the most spectacular air raids staged on Winnipeg's main streets last night, complete with sirens, gongs and raid and blackout and today they told the visions of the horrors of war, came to an end.

Sirens shrieked their warnings at 10.30 p.m. and bombs later were ack fire echoed from tops of buildings, searchlights probed the cloudsky, big bombers and lighter aircraft swept overhead and artillery barrage ringed the blackout area.

Flashes of imaginary bombs—harmless flashes set off by soldiers startled the civilians and many persons were frightened when actual bombs took place a few feet away.

Business Men Need Relaxation And Hobby to Live out Allotted Span

By HAROLD C. McKINLEY

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cleveland, June 5 (AP)—The world's health is better off if a man had the habit of lying in bed one morning each week.

That's the comforting concept of a noted physician who today told the American Medical Association that ambition is shortening the span of mankind's life.

Ambition and "the strenuous life" are just as hazardous to the executive's health as his obesity if a person use of tobacco and alcohol, declared Dr. Edgar V. Allen, chief of the Medicine Division at Mayo Clinic.

He proposed a five-day week, eight-hour day program for business men.

"Could man see how small, how insignificant, how unimportant his individual life is, he might shape it so that he would achieve more of happiness and content and less of material success and perhaps ill health," Dr. Allen said.

Ambition drives those who have the capabilities into unhappiness, dissatisfaction and ill health, it has its beginnings in childhood and such advice as: "You be a good boy and work hard and some day you will be president, doctor, etc."

But Johnny probably won't be president.

For the business man, longevity, the physician prescribed digging a dahlia bed, or any other hobby that yields relaxation; golf for recreation not for low scores; occasional fasting; elimination of fats from the diet; moderation in drinking and smoking; more fishing and hunting for diversion.

Roosevelt Recommends Construction of Seaway Project to U.S. Congress

Washington, June 5 (AP) — President Roosevelt, saying that "we have no right to take chances with national safety," recommended to the United States Congress today legislation authorizing immediate construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Declaring that no comparable power, shipbuilding and transportation facilities could be made available in the time required to construct the project, which would be done jointly with Canada, the President said:

"Production and more production is the keynote of our all out race for national defense. Electric power and transportation are limiting factors in the production of planes, guns, tanks, and ships.

"The enemies of democracy are developing huge hydro-electric resource and every water way from Norway to the Dardanelles. We are to allow this continent to be outmatched because short sighted interests oppose the development of one of our great resources?

Could be Built in Four Years

Mr. Roosevelt said he had been advised the project could be built in four years, adding:

"Under emergency pressure it may be completed in less time. I should like to point out to people who say the country's danger will be over quickly that—

"But the course of world events gives no such assurance. Victory in Europe will not automatically end the national safety.

"I know of no single project of this nature more important to the country's future in peace or war. Its authorization will demonstrate to the enemies of democracy that however long the effort, we intend to outlast them in the field of production. In the modern world, that fact demonstrates the rise and fall of nations."

Ocean Going Seaway

"I hope that authorization will not be delayed."

The St. Lawrence project, which would open an ocean going seaway from the Atlantic Ocean to the Atlantic and provide for increased power facilities on the Canada-American Border in Northern New York, originally was presented to Congress by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933.

Now having been introduced in Bill form, its proper progress only a majority vote in both House.

The cost to the United States has been estimated at $385,000,000, exclusive of $90,000,000 of this to be repaid the government by New York state fdr use of the increased power to be generated at the International rapids section of the St. Lawrence.

The president told Congress that its action would "either make available or deny to the United States power of low cost electric power in the Great Lakes area of North America", and would "either open the door to one of the most far reaching transportation resources ever offered a people".

"We, in the United States and Canada need the power, he said additionally.

"Both face power shortages which threaten to grow more serious as the demands of the defence programs grow multiply with almost incredible speed."

Railroads Burdened

Mr. Roosevelt said it took tens of thousands of kilowatt hours of electricity to produce the materials that go into a single airplane. We added that the present aluminum program called for more than 10,000,000 kilowatt hours a year and was constantly expanding, "with the need for

FIFTH OF LOAN RAISED BY DRIVE IN THREE DAYS

Largest Subscription to Loan Thus Far is $5,000,000

MANY RALLIES

Ottawa, June 5 (CP)—Canadians on Wednesday subscribed $43,135,050 to Canada's Victory Loan, the third Loan, running the total for the first three days' operations to $81,962,400, the National Loan Committee announced today.

The total number of individual subscribers on Wednesday was equal to that of the previous days' total combined, G. W. Spinney, general chairman of the Loan Publicity Committee, said in a statement.

Wednesday's subscriptions too were satisfactorily above the daily average of $33,000,000 required to take care of all loan authorizations by the time books close June 21. Citizens Rally

City totals reported this morning were: Winnipeg $1,000 or 29.3 per cent, of his quota; Calgary $2,300,100 or 41 per cent.; Edmonton $2,042,550 or 36.5 per cent.; Vancouver $1,126,100 or 28.4 per cent.

Regina, $254,000 or 22.8 per cent.; Saskatchewan, $319,250 or 31.5 per cent.; Moose Jaw $126,300 or 29.3 per cent.; Outlook $195,600 or 35.2 per cent.; Brandon $113,800 or 29 per cent.; Summerside, P.E.I., $100,450 or 48.6 per cent.; Cornwall, Ont., $114,500 or 21.5 per cent.; Toronto $6,146,000 or 18.5 per cent.

In Eastern Ontario the Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry have subscribed $420,000 of their $1,000,000 objective.

Communities Exceed Quota.

Two more communities in Western Ontario have exceeded their objectives, the committee said. They are Hansell which exceeded the quota by 200 per cent., Exeter 100 per cent., and Lucknow 50 per cent.

The broadcast was heard here by the National Broadcasting Company.

7,655 RECRUITED IN THE CAMPAIGN SAYS J. L. RALSTON

Defence Minister Tells Commons Sure the Required 32,000 Will Be Obtained

ANSWERS GEO. WHITE

Ottawa, June 5.—(CP)—A total of 7,655 men have been enlisted in the army since the start of the present recruiting campaign, Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons today.

He said from Indications at hand he was sure the campaign for 32,000 men, inaugurated about two weeks ago would be a success. This, said the minister was 24 per cent of the total allotment sought in the campaign.

The figures did not include those enlisted, immediately before the minister's radio appeal launched the campaign which would count towards the objective.

The minister was answering a question from George White (Conservative, Hastings-Peterborough). He declined to give recruiting figures by districts as he thought such information at this stage would be unfair to certain districts.

To Replace Absentee Units

Of the 32,000 men to be enlisted 8,000 were to replace units of the 4th Division which had been absorbed and the armored division.

New units for the 4th Division were in process of mobilization and would boost the figures of the districts in which they were formed, as it was hoped almost the whole personnel of reserve units ordered to mobilize would volunteer for active service.

"We have had great help from the civilian committee", said the minister, "and a matter of fact these committees are just now getting into their stride and recruiting has accelerated greatly in the past few days".

Col. Ralston asked all members of parliament to "put their backs" into the campaign and to remind them for help so far given.

Mr. Ralston paid a tribute to the civilian committee; said the Winnipeg's aim of 1,000 men was a matter of fact there

SCHOOL FIRST-AID SQUAD DEMONSTRATES ON INJURED BOY

Members of the First Aid section of the Queen Victoria School Cadet Corps had an opportunity to demonstrate its ability under actual conditions yesterday when they applied first aid to Master John Murray, fellow student, when he suffered a broken arm on the school campus.

Murray was practising the pyramids with the physical exercise class when he slipped and fell heavily to the ground sustaining the injury. The first-aid squad went to the rescue and applied splints and bandages. Later the injured boy was taken to his home.

GIRL SUSTAINS FRACTURED LEG

Ten-year-old Ina Kellar, 44 South John St., sustained a fractured right leg as the result of being struck by a bicycle and knocked to the pavement in front of the City Hall building late Wednesday afternoon when the girl was attempting to cross Front St. The fracture was reduced by Dr. Earl McDonald.

The Kellar girl was in company with Jean Warren, 30 St. Paul Street, when the two girls stepped between two parked automobiles to proceed across the street, but as the Kellar girl walked directly into the path of a bicycle ridden south by Joseph Cummings, 207 Station Street, P. C. Taylor was in the vicinity and assisted the injured girl into a passing motor car driven by Ralph Smith of Wellington, who drove the officer and girl to her home.

GRADING MACHINERY IS MOVED AWAY

Grading machinery which has been at work at the old Mohawk Airport a few miles west of Desoronto, regrading the field for use as an emergency landing field, has been taken away, the field apparently having been completed. The field will be used as an emergency landing field by R.C.A.F. training planes.

HAYING OPERATIONS START IN DISTRICT

That farmers in the Belleville district have already started haying operations was revealed last evening when several fields of alfalfa and sweet clover were noticed neatly rolled on farms on the Massassaga road. Lack of rain in recent weeks is expected to materially lessen the current season's hay crop as farmers have complained that the growth of hay has been retarded owing to lack of moisture. Early season estimates pointed to a bumper crop, but an unusually dry spring seems to have put a check in the growth and slightly less than a normal crop is now expected.

NEW MOTOR BUS SECURED FOR O.S.D.

A new motor bus for the transportation of students and officials to the Ontario School for the Deaf was delivered in Belleville through the Ontario Department of Education this week. The new bus, which seats 21 persons comfortably, is yellow and black. The old bus, which was in use between the O.S.D. and Belleville for the past 13 years, was disposed of when the new vehicle arrived. Most of the exhibits were of the same make. Printed lettering on the side of the bus is following identification — "Province of Ontario—Department of Education."

POLICE COURT

Only one case of seven listed for trial was disposed of in County Police Court held at the Court House here yesterday before E. J. Butler, K.C., on Thursday. Rene Sauriol, Frankford, convicted of careless driving following a written plea of guilty received by the Crown Police office, paid a fine of $5 and costs was then imposed and ordered paid.

Traffic charges against John Bertram, Belleville; Ernest Bandy, G. E. White, of the R.C.A.F., were remanded at the request of accommodating counsel, E. O. Butler appearing for Bertram and D. A. Poott, K.C., representing White. Mr. Robertson agreed to the postponements in both cases.

POLICE BLOTTER

Provincial Police today announced that a quantity of cigarettes, tobacco and groceries, stolen from Donald Freeman's service station west of Trenton on June 1st was positively identified in Toronto by Mr. Freeman yesterday. The goods had been packed in a corn beef case by Mr. Freeman's name, Provincial Police were told. The recovery of the goods was made possible when they were found in a room, and a lad named Lloyd Goyer of Guelph, were apprehended while asleep in an allegedly stolen car near a Toronto service station last Monday. Warrants for their appearance in a local court have been issued by Provincial and Belleville police, Chief Kidd further added today.

Battery Stolen

Frank McDonald, of Point Anne merchant, complained to Provincial Police last evening that a eight-plate battery had been stolen from his motor boat recently. Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson is investigating the matter.

Fire Damage Laid

City police were called to the Perfection Laundry last night where a disturbance was reported in progress. Upon arrival a number of the R.C.A.F. was engaged in altercations and later turned over to the Air Force service police, with the Y pool.

Judges Selected In Victory Loan Essay Contest for Students

Selection of the best three Victory Loan essays written by students of Ontario secondary schools will be announced by a board of judges comprising teacher and high school inspector.

Each school has appointed a committee of the Ontario Publicity Committee for the Victory Loan, has announced that H. T. Jaffray, general manager of the Imperial Bank and president of the Canadian Bankers' Association; Professor J. D. Robins, Victoria University; and E. R. Wallace, high school inspector, have consented to act as judges.

The subject of the essays which are being written by students in all parts of the province is: "The Issues at Stake in this War and Why Canadians Should Buy Victory Bonds." Three prizes are being donated by the Dominion Government —first prize, $100 Victory Bond; second prize, $50 Victory Bond; third prize, $25 in War Savings Certificates.

Boy Campers Of 'Y' Hold Rally

Campers of other years and first-timers from first registration, had hardly had time to dry sat down together last night in a mess hall together and talk over old camps and plans for this year's edition of Belleville Boys' Camp.

Camp Director Joe Shortt told the campers of the improvements made on the camp since last year, of the complete redecoration of all the buildings, and of the reconstruction of the recreation hall, primarily dug hangout with the big open fireplace, of the wrecking of the old diving tower, and of the plans to replace it in time for camp this year with a fine float on which a number of boys may climb and rest at one time, and on which it is hoped to have both high and low diving boards.

Complete arrangements to replace the tower (Erwin Bandy having gone on active service) have not yet been made, nor are the camp committee quite sure what will be done to replace the boat-house Mark Hudson, who is on Active Service and Bruce Cronk and Les Downing who are in the Merchant Marine. However, this will likely give some of the younger boys with experience a chance to show their stuff.

Program Director Ed Shortt spoke of plans for program, and then led a real camp song session, with Gordon McClelland at the piano.

The evening finished with a swim in the Y pool.

Plaintiff Awarded $500 Damage in County Court

In an action brought by William H. Anderson, farmer, of Tyendinaga Township against Smith Transport Company, Limited and Frank Burgess of Desoronto, for damages to his automobile on the 26th of March 1941, a jury of this county returned a verdict of $500.00 in favor of the Plaintiff and dismissed the counterclaim of the Smith Transport Company, Limited, for $138.00.

This case opened Tuesday and late Wednesday evening the jury brought in their answers to questions asked them by Judge Madden the Presiding Judge, and upon these answers was entered judgment in favor of the plaintiff as above.

The action was brought as the result of a collision which occurred on Highway No. 2, about three-quarters of a mile South of Marysville, late in the afternoon of the 26th of March, Anderson accompanied by one Whitton, was driving his automobile in the direction of Belleville on the highway when the transport which was being driven in a southerly direction, collided with Anderson's vehicle at or near a bend in the highway. Anderson asserted that the Smith transport was being driven on the wrong side of the road and the defendants alleged Anderson was on their side of the road.

Several Witnesses

Several witnesses were examined on behalf of the Plaintiff and the Defendant, and evidence was given by Traffic Officer Hatch, of Belleville, and by a barber, Llewellyn Sanderson, of Napanee, that in their opinion Anderson was incapable of driving an automobile by reason of the use of intoxicating liquor. Both spoke of detecting a strong odor of liquor on his breath and Traffic Officer Hatch testified Anderson's face was flushed and his eyes had a glassy appearance. The Plaintiff and other witnesses called on his behalf testified that he had not consumed intoxicating liquor and asserted that Anderson was in all respects in a fit and proper condition to operate his automobile.

Charles A. Payne, K.C., appeared for the Plaintiff and Gordon Defendants were represented by Isaacs Levinter, K.C., solicitor of Toronto.

Soap Box Derby Jerseys Arrive For Big Race

Steel crash helmets and white jerseys arrived at the headquarters of the Kinsmen "Soap Box Derby" today, forwarded to Belleville from the Provincial headquarters of the International Soap Box Derby in Detroit. The official insignia of the race is stenciled on the new jerseys and helmets and every boy entering the Ontario-Intelligencer "Soap Box Derby," sponsored by the Kinsmen Club, on Saturday, June 30th, will receive a crash helmet and one of the jerseys not only to wear during the race but to keep as a retain as his own personal property. In the near future these helmets and jerseys, as well as the Coyle Trophy that goes to the winner, and other valuable prizes to be won at the Kinsmen Soap Box Derby, will be on display in a downtown store. In the meantime entries are being received at the city engineer's office and it is recognized as the Canadian Soap Box Derby championship, if you want to be a Canadian champion, get your entry in early boy.

Belleville Resident Winner of Car Drawn At Rotary Carnival

Mr. E. R. VanAlstyne, resident of Desoronto but temporarily living at 125 Station Street, Belleville, was the fortunate winner of a 1941 Oldsmobile sedan at a draw-ing held in connection with the Rotary Club's Fair which ended on Tuesday evening. Never having owned nor driven a car in his life, Mr. VanAlstyne purchased the ticket from a salesman, late the day before the draw was made, at the Fair Grounds, Oshawa.

News that he was the owner of the car was broken to Mr. VanAlstyne shortly after midnight on Tuesday but only for the co-operation of long distance telephone operators at Oshawa and Belleville might never have learned of his good fortune. When the winning ticket was drawn the name given out was Vanstone instead of VanAlstyne and when the call was put through to Belleville, local telephone operators stated "there was no such party listed." It was only when householders at 123 Station Street, where Mr. VanAlstyne rooms, stated a Mr. VanAlstyne lived with them, was the call apparty brought to the phone and acquainted with the good news.

Mr. VanAlstyne is a native of Deseronto and makes his home in that village. Employed as a conductor on the Canadian National Railways running between Belleville and Toronto, he makes his headquarters in this city.

Obituary

MISS MARY EMILY SISSON

Miss Mary Emily Sisson passed peacefully away at her home, 57 Queen Street, early this Thursday morning after a long period of ill health for some time.

The late Miss Sisson was born ninety-two years ago in Napanee, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Sisson. After residing in that town for a number of years her parents moved to Belleville and the greater part of Miss Sisson's life was passed in this city. The family over a long period of time was prominent in the social and church life of the city and Miss Sisson was popular and held a high place in the esteem of many friends. For many years past she lived quietly and enjoyed home life in her home the remaining friends of her active years. In this home Miss Sisson was a faithful member of the Church of England and when age and health permitted she took an active part in the parish work of the Church of St. Thomas, being a teacher in the Sunday School. She was widely read and possessed a fund of information on many subjects.

The deceased family name was shortened and the family resided in the town of that name in France, later going to make their home in Ireland. Eventually the family came to Canada.

Miss Sisson is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Sisson at home and Mrs. Bessie Schmalz, Vancouver, B.C.

Private funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. JOHN YZEREEF (Marmora)

Marmora (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. John Yzereef was held from the Sacred Heart Church on Wednesday morning where High Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. H. J. Farrell. The pall-bearers were W. Bonney, J. Quinlan, J. Holmes, W. Billings, T. Quinlan and J. Glasing. Interment was made in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

HOP LUM (Trenton)

The death occurred in the Belleville General Hospital early this morning of Hop Lum, a native of China and who for some time past conducted the City Cafe on Dundas Street, Trenton. He was 67 years old and was a patient in the hospital since May 20th.

Surviving is a cousin, Q. Doo Lum of Picton.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, and interment will be made in Belleville cemetery.

WILLIAM S. DYER (Formerly of Belleville)

William R. Dyer, a former resident of Belleville, died at the family residence, 1020 Robertson Road, Toronto, on Wednesday, June 4th. He was in failing health for several months.

The late William Spafford Dyer, B.A., D.D., F.R.S.C., was born 75 Belleville forty-seven years ago, being a son of the late Rev. Dr. W. P. Dyer and Mrs. Dyer, his father was principal of the old Albert College for many years. Upon leaving university he went overseas during the first Great War and served with the Imperial forces. After the war he returned to Canada and for some years he was engaged with the Ontario Department of Mines. Later he became associated with the Canadian Office Mine and up until two years ago he was engaged with the company operating the mine. Since then he followed his profession of Consulting Geologist. He possessed outstanding ability and held a high place in his profession.

In religious life Dyer was a member of the Eaton Memorial United Church, Toronto and in the regard of many friends he held a high place. Old friends in Belleville will regret to learn of his death. During the month of May, just past, he visited for a time in this city, with Alan R. Schryver in this city. He was a member of the board of Governors of Albert College.

Rev. Dr. George Little of Toronto Speaks on Need to Bring About Change in Conditions

DR. TANNER SPEAKS

Attacking the present system of liquor control in Ontario, Rev. Dr. George Little of Toronto, declared on Wednesday evening at the Bay of Quinte Conference at Bridge Street United Church that "the provincial administration of liquor control is at present worse than at any time since the beginning of organized government in province." He stated that the evils of the present beverage room system in Ontario have been largely served to minors, particularly girls ranging in age from eleven to seventeen."

The present system is debauching womanhood and perilously affecting girlhood," he claimed that crime, drunkenness, the double type of degradation are enhanced by the liquor traffic which he said enriches the few and enslaves the masses. Hysterical emotional attacks upon the menace of venereal diseases are brought to the fore but forty of cases where treatment has been received have been proven that such diseases were contracted by the victim was under the influence of liquor.

"We must call upon the church to make a stand for one of the most plorable conditions. Ontario is the last of the provinces to make any constructive changes as have been made in Quebec and other eastern provinces."

No Institution Like Church

Brilliance of oratory was displayed by Dr. Tanner, Dr. Little's fine address, on his last visit to the bay of Quinte Conference prior to his retirement from the ministerial post of Superintendent of Missions. "In my long years of experience throughout all parts of the Bay of Quinte Conference, I have been convinced that no institution has produced more than those associated with the Christian Church. My work led me to the side of those in hard circumstances, in frequent workers, poorly paid and their lot of privation, suffering and sickness.

Home mission enterprises is a work ministering to the small and weak charges, particularly in the province of Quebec, where small groups struggle to maintain the standard of their own church and to be found elsewhere."

Women Candidates Praised

Continuing, the superintendent cited the splendid work of women candidates for the ministry, now active in the mission fields of this conference. Their success is achieved by these candidates is of such high standard that the call will have to look to their laurels, or be outpaced.

Non-church work was also well described by the speaker, particularly in the Italian mission in the city of Sudbury, where primarily has drawn them into Canadian citizenship. There, they are taught in their own tongue that there exists no Communism or Fascism, but all are Canadians.

Church Means Security

"The condition causing greatest alarm at the present time is found in the French Protestant section of that Province. History records that the greatest bulwark of the Russian Church there was a slumbering fire that swept through the land to destroy it. Smouldering well up in the hearts of those who have discarded the church for paganism, Evidence of this condition is given proof in the Quebec Padlock Law. These people must be persuaded that the church has all social, moral and economic problems for them in the church today. Those who discard the church lose the security of trust in their fellow men.

"My appeal to you, brethren, is for greater zeal that religion may not fail, the fail of the Christian religion would jeopardize everything for which we stand in these days. Stand for the noble task of the Christian church and its ministry."

Bridge St. United Church was well filled last evening at Dr. J. W. Tanner, D.D. and Dr. George Little, D.D. were chief speakers, the occasion being session of the Conference. The meeting was opened by Dr. W. P. Fletcher, Brockville, who conducted the worship period last and introduced the speakers. Appropriate hymns and an anthem selection by the Bridge St. United Church choir formed the musical part of the service and Rev. H. H. Ketchum, Trenton Presbytery was acting chairman.

DR. KENT PLEADS FOR CLOSER UNION OF CHURCH, STATE

Principal of Queen's University College of Theology Addresses Bay of Quinte Conference

COMMITTEES FORMED

As the Seventeenth Session of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada proceeded yesterday afternoon under the chairmanship of President W. P. Fletcher B.A., D.D. an interesting feature of the afternoon session was a brilliant address delivered by Rev. Dr. Kent, principal of Queen's University College of Theology, who spoke on the subject "The Church and State". Reviewing past events in the history of Christian civilization with the thoroughness of a great historian Dr. Kent stated that "past events were sometimes the best guide for the future. The cradle of Christian history was in a unified world such as we see at present fighting against. The Great Roman Empire of the day was a total centralized administration of all peoples and three out of five of the hundred million citizens were slaves.

Strife between State and Church continued until the fourth century and the culture of the ancient world vanished, even its language faded. Its collapse was brought about largely by a poor economic setup and two distinct errors, the one the State striving to stifle Christian activity and the Church failing to bolster and cleanse its faulting political system. "Such conditions are not confined to the ancient world". There are those today, who would have the church remain aloof from the State". Again and again Christian endeavour has saved us from entering another dark age. In the 16th Century, the Great Spanish Empire swept all before it the ships of Britain stopped the onslaught saving for freedom and justice the mode of life, which today we enjoy".

People Quite Christian

The outright speech of belief "My Country Right or Wrong" is not a cause to be truly defended. But when the cause of the Nation is the same as that of Jesus Christ there is an awakening of righteous patriotism. "I have been in Britain and know that her people were better men and women than they are today. More people bow the knee but not from fear" — rather in prayer. This deepening spirit of devotion to righteousness is evident to everyone. "Willing hands reach out to help the fallen that not long ago were idle hands". They believe in the things of God and willingly act with true meaning, that they will die rather than sacrifice them. "My plea to you Brethren of the United Church is to strive to bring about a closer fellowship between state and church".

Dr. Manson Doyle

Dr. Manson Doyle expressing the belief that greater effort should be put forth to reach every person with Christian education set forth Commitment plan for United Church School Advance. His suggestions included providing Christian teaching to create a working fellowship. Train the leaders. Use the best teaching materials. Seek commitments to Christ and the Church".

These are the highlight of the United Church Christian Education Advance, which in theory is Protestantism uniting to reach every person with Christian teaching". Every conference in the United Church of Canada will be presented with this plan for advanced Christian education to make safe the future men and women of Christianity".

Report of Nominating Committee

The report of the nominating committee was read and adopted with the following Brethren being elected to the various offices. Records Committee—Rev. Geo. McQuade, T. M. Wesley, and Mr. R. F. Downey. Roll Committee—Rev. P. L. Pull and the secretaries of each Presbytery within the Conference; Resolutions Committee—Rev. A. D. Gorrell, Rev. Geo. L. Easton, R. Douglas Smith, and Messrs. Col. J. W. O'Dell, E. L. Fraser, P. A. Lake. Statistical Secretary Rev. Andrew McLauchlan. Representative at Conference on Deaconess Order —Rev. Verne McWeeny of Colborne.

Brief Addresses Feature Morning Devotional Period of Conference

The second day's session Wednesday morning of the annual Conference of the Bay of Quinte Court of the United Church of Canada was set in motion with an impressive devotional period under the direction of the newly elected, President Rev. W. P. Fletcher, B.A., D.D. An increased attendance indicates that a record number of delegates will be present when the peak is reached. Over four hundred laymen and ministers representing congregations and pastoral charges with the area between Brockville and Whitby and from the shore of Lake Ontario to Montesgle and points still further north.

Strength of the Church

Under the direction of the president the impressive devotional included a brilliant address by Rev. Principal Murray O. D. Kilpatrick of the United Church College of Theology, Montreal, who stated "The strength of the church is not alone in its official leaders but in the hardworking underpaid faithful worker of the Mission field and small rural charge. Built them all these serve to keep alive the continued Presence of God in the Church".

He said it was inconceivable that Hitler and his might could triumph over the things of Christ.

Principal Kilpatrick declared it is the duty of the church to maintain the qualities of love, truth and truth as invincible.

Rev. Mr. Poulter of Madoc presented the report of the business committee. Rev. James Taylor conducted a memorial service in honour of ministers of the Bay of Quinte Conference who had passed away since the 1940 session. He paid tribute to their work re-viewing the achievement in each case. This service was closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Reddick.

War Savings Report

Rev. Dr. James Semple and Mr. Elmer Davies jointly reported for the War Savings Committee. Committee, Dr. Semple stated that all members of the committee had thoroughly support this two-fold effort to aid our country and our Church. Mr. Davies stated that response was anything but satisfactory in the conferences and concluded with the following resolution. "That this conference views with regret of the generally inadequate response to the campaign for a loan to my country and a gift to my church; is and calls upon its ministers and laymen to cross their resolve to save this fields in an earnest effort to get a day from commercialization.

Unemployment Insurance Commission Circularizes Belleville Employers

Machinery for the inauguration of the Unemployment Insurance Plan which will be introduced in Canada on the first of July is now well under way, with front of booklets being sent out to employers in every district, according to Mr. D. D. Wilson, Toronto local representative for the Unemployment Insurance Commission, who has been appointed to the temporary charge of this district.

Beginning on Tuesday morning circulars to all employers of labor in Belleville and district were sent out through the mails by the Commission, the forms to be filled in and sent back to headquarters as quickly as it is convenient to do so. The information thus received will enable the Unemployment Insurance Commission to determine the number of employees in the district and the number of insurance books to be required. The forms specifically ask the name and address of the employer, the style of the business, the number of employables insurable and the number of additional male employees for whom books will be needed during the next sixty days. Included on the circular sent out to employers is a list of the exceptions unemployable employees, a total of 21 classes of employment being included. Ordinarily persons earning in excess of $2,000 per year are excepted but by agreement all the tradesmen, employed in the construction, industry are to be insured. Those engaged in agriculture, fishing, hunting and trapping, domestics in private homes, teachers and those in the service of the government or municipality, if employment is permanent, are also excepted.

Many Co-operate Promptly.

That local employers are endeavouring to co-operate with the Unemployment Insurance Commission in the prompt return of their report cards is shown by the fact that over forty were received at the Belleville office this morning, the first report forms having been put in the mails on Tuesday. Mr. Wilson, local commissioner, would appreciate employers stating definitely the number of workers in their employ who are only casual employees, as in the case of restaurants where certain employees work during rush hours possibly two less than four hours per day. In order that the Commission may be enabled to get a true picture of the requirements in this district, employers must differentiate as to workers of this nature, it was pointed out.

On Tuesday, oral civil service examinations for applicants seeking appointment to the position of superintendent in district Unemployment Insurance Offices were held at the Belleville Post Office. About fifteen applicants, several of whom were from the city, wrote the exams.

THE CONFERENCE

Belleville this week is the meeting place of the ministers and lay delegates to the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada. Such meetings have not been rare in this city and some of the great conferences of the former Methodist Church, today represented in the membership of the United Church body, have been held in Belleville.

The various denominations in this old Province performed a noble pioneering work results of which remain to this day. They have moulded the lives of generations of people and the healthy moral tone of Ontario is due in great degree to the men and women of the early churches whose ideals and faith fortunately yet flourish.

Their annals are rich in the lives and deeds of great Christian characters who rose to serve their fellowmen. These names have not been and cannot be forgotten. For this rich heritage Ontario now enjoys the religious denominations must receive full measure of credit.

The United Church of Canada has this noble heritage. Much of its inspiration grows from these forerunners, the first churches and the first members and adherents. Enriched by the lives and service of those who helped to build the church all through the years, the church is now serving its day and generation and looking courageously to the future despite the problems of this hour.

In our democracy the church, itself a great democracy, is one of the great towers of strength in the national life. In this regard the United Church is able to do and is doing a great service for the nation, for the individual and for the spirit of brotherhood.

WILHELM HOHENZOLLERN AND HITLER

Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since former Kaiser Wilhelm Second fled from Germany and took up his abode at Doorn, Holland. On Wednesday he died at the age of 82 years after an unbroken exile, which was the logical conclusion of German attempt in 1914-1918 to conquer the world.

This man who looked for the restoration of the Imperial German House of the Hohenzollern had for the past decade lived to witness the rise of that sinister figure, Adolf Hitler, to a position somewhat like that he himself had occupied. For more than a year he has had to live in a land (Holland) which had become a conquered nation by the treachery of Adolf Hitler in breaking guarantees of neutrality given that country. The Kaiser who had commiserated with Hitler at the end of the Polish campaign, refused the offer of permission to return to Germany after Holland was overrun, offering the explanation that he was too old to be transplanted. Perhaps he did not care to be in the presence of the upstart Austrian who had fought as a corporal in the Kaiser's army.

The one-time emperor had nearly twenty-five years to meditate over the vicissitudes of autocracy and lived to see the world plunged again into another struggle by the same Germany, this time led by a man possessing nothing that the Ex-Kaiser would have thought could help him to position of authority in Germany. Twenty-one months ago this man began to harry the world in a carefully worked-out campaign of world domination. Of this Hitler, though he has stretched his hand over nations in Europe, is getting no nearer the goal of his ambition and is going farther from his base, while yet Britain stands resolute and unshaken.

Hitler might ponder over the old man of Doorn, once the proudest of emperors, the "All Highest" of the Germans, living in lonely exile for a great portion of his adult life, and then wonder what his own fate will be, when he, the man who has risen on violence and tyranny, comes to his last hours. This Hitler predicted nineteen years ago that Britain would win any war that was directed against her by any enemy and that enemy is Hitler himself.

But the example of the emperor who became a wood chopper at Doorn in a foreign land, cannot teach the Austrian housepainter who became Fuehrer and aggressor the lesson that the world has read so well in the life of the Ex-Kaiser. Anyway, Hitler cannot escape his fate now, he cannot turn back. His fate is sealed.

PAY DAY

Every week, or two, or four,
Pay day comes around once more,
Lifting you for one short hour
To a place of wealth and power,
Giving you the sudden urge
To go out and make a splurge

Bring the kid a ball and bat,
Buy the wife another hat,
Paint the car, or get new tires,
Or a stove or camping fires.
Order up a suit or two,
Pay the grocer what is due,
See the doctor, pay a loan,
Settle for the telephone—

Pay day, pay day, what a honey
It can be for paying money
Out until you're broke once more
As you ever were before.
Still, next week you'll be in clover
And can do the whole thing over.

Overheard on Front Street:—Sweet Young Thing to, girl-friend watching a Service Police of the Air Force walking along the street with an inebriated airman in tow: "So that's why they call them leading aircraftmen?"

G. F., (Who goes with a flight-sergeant): "Leading aircraftmen me eye. Listen Mame, are those letters 'S. P.' on that guy's arm? They stand for 'Salvage Princes.' The other guy has taken on too much fuel, had a forced landing somewhere, damaged his undercarriage and is being towed to a hangar."

AS FUN remarks, husbands should be frank and tell their wives everything, and wives should be generous and believe it.

THE NEW YORK TIMES in an editorial that is as delightful as it is charming has this to say anent the seventh birthday of the Dionne Quintuplets:—"The Dionne Quintuplets are seven years old. In many respects it is a woman's most delightful age. At seven she sits on a man's knee without hesitation, affected or genuine reserve and without pushing him to sleep—". While duly interested, perhaps in the state of his exchequer, and never too proud to accept pecuniary aid, she is no gold-digger whose gratitude is measured by the amount of the contribution . . . At seven she is more or less front-toothless, it is true. But then, she doesn't yet chalk her nose or paint her nails and she hasn't begun to use tobacco. All in all, a charming age. Monsieur Dionne is five times blessed."

ALL IN FAVOR!

I don't like good little boys. I like 'em rowdy and rough and reckless. I like to find the toys spilled out and my apron strings untied. I like to stumble on marbles and have the sugar spilled and some door eternally open. You see, I had a good little boy all this week — part of the time I even had two good little boys. They were sick little boys, and they didn't do any of those naughty things. A baby can be a lot more worry when he just sits propped up in a rocker, not bothering a soul, than he can when he is underfoot every time you turn around. So we'll take 'em naughty.—Sunflower Sue in Oberlin, Kas., Herald.

Recall Words Of MacDonald On Anniversary

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 5—(CP)—One of the leading figures in the negotiations which led to the Confederation of the provinces of Canada in 1867 and first prime minister of the Dominion, Sir John A. Macdonald was a dominating personality in Canadian politics for 24 years before his death in Ottawa, June 6, 1891, at the age of 76.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Conservative Leader R. B. Hanson will co-operate in the ceremonies in Kingston (Ont.) Cliff Park, Saturday, June 7, recalling Sir John's life and his part in the birth of the Dominion. Sir John was a citizen of Kingston in his early years and he died in Calvary Quad Cemetery near that city.

Sir John will be remembered for the great policies he initiated and for his untiring efforts to weld a country torn with racial, religious and political dissensions into a united nation. He will be remembered also in anecdotes that come down to the present day of a colorful and strong personality which like that of Abraham Lincoln was not without its shortcomings and weaknesses. It will be recalled that some of his warmest friends about whose welfare he showed the greatest concern, were the objects often poor people.

As Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Liberal leader, said of him when his death was announced in the House of Commons, Macdonald "was endowed with those lgnner, subtle, indefinable graces of the mind which we and keep the hearts of men."

John A. Macdonald ranked as a great orator although in debate he had an acrimonious manner to get at the kernel of a question without unnecessary words. His speeches contained few purple patches and his eloquence was greatest in dealing on the British Empire and the proud future he pictured for Canada.

Famous Quotation

Macdonald's most quoted sentiment found in more than one monument erected to his memory was "A British subject I was born; a British subject I will die." The quotation is found in the last formal election speech of Sir John to the Canadian people in February, 1891, on the eve of a general election in which he was victorious for the last.

"Under the broad folds of the Union Jack we enjoy the most ample liberty to govern ourselves as we please and at the same time to participate in the advantages which flow from association with the mightiest empire the world has ever seen . . .

"I commend these lsures to your determination and the judgment of the whole people of Canada, with an unclouded confidence that you will proclaim to the world your resolve to show yourselves not unworthy of the proud distinction you enjoy of being numbered among the most dutiful and loyal subjects of our beloved Queen. As for myself, my course is clear. A British subject I was born; a British subject I will die. With my utmost effort with my latest breath, will I oppose the veiled treason which attempts by sordid means and mercenary profiters to lure our people from their allegiance.

Sense of Humor

During a visit of Sir John to Washington the Canadian party was treated to a boat ride on the Potomac. Arriving at the boat early he engaged in the following conversation with the wife of a senator.

"I guess you are from Canada."

"Yes ma'am."

"You've got a very smart man over there, the Honorable John A. Macdonald." "Yes, ma'am, he is."

"But they say he's a regular rascal." "Yes, ma'm, he is a perfect rascal."

"But why do they keep such a man in power?" "Well, you see they cannot get along without him."

"But how is that! They say he's a real skalawag and—"

At this moment her husband arrived and introduced her to Sir John who put her at her ease by saying, "Now don't apologize as you've said is peferctly true and it is well known at home."

An M.P. going into the barber shop in the parliament buildings at Ottawa found Sir John in the barber's chair, the barber sharing the upper lip and his hand holding the prime minister's nose.

"I suppose Sir John," the M.P. said, "this is the only man in Canada that can take you by the nose with impunity?"

"Yes," was the reply, "and he has his hands full."

Defending Hansard to record the speeches made in the House of Commons when the opposition accused it he discontinued because of expense involved, Sir John said: "To do away with the reports altogether would be a deliberate step . . . We all know the regrets expressed by every literary man, every statesman, and every historian that the speeches made by great men in the days of old were lost forever . . . We have no speeches of Chatham, no speeches of Bolingbroke, none of the great orators of the Long Parliament, at the time of fight between freedom and tyranny in the time of Charles I."

Other Sayings

Sir John's views and sentiments are embodied in other quotations, for instance:

"I have never asked the question and never will ask what a man's religion, race or ancestry may be; if he is a capable man, the right man for the right place' that is all I inquire into."

"I believe no country is worthy of liberty unless it is capable to fight for it and not for hired hands only."

"So long as the country is well-governed and enjoys all the benefits it should enjoy, you can smoke your pipe at home. In happy indifference as to whether Reformers or Conservatives are at the helm of state."

"I don't care for office for the sake of money the died a poor man), but for the sake of power for the sake of carrying out my own views of what is best for my country."

"There are often times when I do things that are against my conscience and which I know are wrong; but if I did not make the sacrifice for the weaker of human nature, my party would soon be out of power and those who took my place would manage things worse than I."

THE MORO MINORITY

The Philippine constabulary recently took steps to prevent a threatened uprising among the Moro tribesmen.

Moros, is the name given to between 400,000 and 350,000 natives living in Mindanao, second largest island in the Philippines, and the Sulu archipelago, several hundred islands stretching toward Borneo. They were conquered by Spanish mediation by Moslem missionaries from India in the 15th and 16th centuries.

Although the Moros are not unlike them in race and language, they are chiefly of Malay stock with a sprinkling of Arab blood.

"Moro" is simply the Spanish word for Moor. The inhabitants of Spain and Portugal were called Moros by the early Spaniards because they invaded the Moors of North Africa in being dark in complexion and Mohammedan in religion.

The Spanish conquerors of the Philippines had just succeeded in expelling the Moors from Spain and they regarded as natural enemies the Mohammedan inhabitants of Mindanao and the Sulu archipelago.

For centuries the Sulus engaged in piracy and regarded it as an honorable occupation.

Expert workers in metal and make excellent steel spears, knives and hatchets for use by their fierce warriors.

Their "balangai," fishing boats hewn from a single long log, are models of workmanship and efficiency.

When the United States found it more practical to bribe the Sulu sultans with pensions than to try to subdue their ungovernable tribesmen.

But not ago the last sultanate of Sulu signed away the ancient right of her royal family to govern the Sulus and recognized the Philippine commonwealth government.

Being devout Moslems and believing that they, as Moros, have been cooler toward the independence movement than have the Christian Filipinos.

The Moros in Britain of the Philippines.

Most of the Sulus make a living by fishing, weaving, raising cattle, carabao and horses, cultivating rice, hemp, cacao, copra, coffee, corn, saffron, sesame, sugar-cane, cocoanuts, cotton and fruits, and gathering valuable hardwoods.

But the Sulus, as well as the other Moros, are attached to their religion and customs and are resting under any system of government and are likely to be a thorn in the side of the authorities of the Philippine Commonwealth.

REV. J. B. SKENE NEW MODERATOR

General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Convenes in Toronto

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—Business sessions of the 67th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada will start today with the new moderator, Rev. J. B. Skene, minister of Central Church, Vancouver, presiding. He was elected at the opening session last night.

Mr. Skene, who succeeds Rev. William Barclay of Hamilton, was born at Dunham, Ont. He graduated from Queen's University, Kingston, in 1918, and from Knox College, Toronto, in 1920.

His first charge was at St. Andrew's Church, Huntsville, Ont., where he served from 1920 to 1926. He then went to Emmanuel Church in Toronto and was pastor for 11 years before assuming his present charge in 1937.

Nomination of the moderator was moved by Rev. Thomas Roulston, moderator of the New Westminster Conference. No other nominations came before the assembly.

Homemakers' Responsibilities Great In Keeping Family Healthy and Food Budget Low, in Wartime

Now, as never before, the wise housemaker must study economy in food as zealously as she does the health-giving properties of the dishes she prepares; the nation has no time for sickness or waste, said Mrs. Madeline Day who is in the city to conduct Cooking Schools opening at the McCarthy Theatre, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Day presented the 1941 Parade of the Foods featuring Canadian Cooking and the large audience was delighted with her many practical suggestions, her charming and witty manner of conducting the session. Informality reigned as the gathering and the audience was encouraged to ask any questions relating to homemaking.

The stage itself made a colorful picture with its red and white kitchen decorations, gay curtains; the kitchen set which will be a major prize at one of the sessions, and the electric stoves, refrigerators, washing machines and the very modern sink. The arrangement made a smart background for Mrs. Day, and her assistants Misses Kay Moorcroft, Eileen Laughrige, Shirley Ferguson and Helen Brown, students at Belleville Collegiate.

Warm Welcome

Mrs. Day's appearance was warmly applauded as her previous visit having made for her many friends who were happy to welcome her back to the city again. In opening the session, Mrs. Day explained that the dishes to be prepared, as all the recipes given at the School, were not elaborate but had been planned to give families the best possible food at the least possible expense. Mrs. Day asked that the favourite recipes of members of the audience be submitted as she would be pleased and proud to have those.

During the afternoon Mrs. Day a very competent electian and lecturer, prepared a delicious cake, pie, nut bread, cevilled ham and fresh fruit dish, explaining carefully each step in their preparation and giving valuable hints generally in successful cooking and homemaking. The fine textured cakes she suggested the substitution of fruit sugar for the ordinary granulated variety, and had a new idea with flavoring—adding- it to the creamed sugar and butter instead of last. In this way she found that it blended better. She secured mixing in a little water with the milk in the cake, water made the cake more tender, but the milk kept it fresh longer.

"On The Level"

Being "on the level" has an important meaning to cooks. Recipes will only work out satisfactory if standard, level measurements are used, a fact the audience was urged to remember.

Interested cooks and well equipped kitchens go hand in hand.

"You will usually find," said Mrs. Day, "that the woman who complains that she doesn't like cooking has hardly a useful utensil in her kitchen. She neglects to replace the egg beater and has to use a fork. She doesn't buy the right kind of bowls and pans. Naturally cooking is no pleasure to her, whereas if she invested the very small amounts necessary in the proper utensils she would find cooking not a drudgery but a delight."

Mrs. Day discussed the best points of the electrical equipment, the timers and all the cooking prodigals she was using (often demonstrating their use and the way in which their utmost value can be realized. Should a laundry problems, the preservation of foods as well as their selection and preparation, were discussed thoroughly and her hearers came away with many practical ideas this will aid them in better homemaking.

Community singing added to the pleasure of the audience and the climax of the afternoon was the Parade of the Foods when the guests brought through the aisles on mirrored trays the foods made during the School.

Preventing Heart Attacks

"I have a friend who runs a tenpin alley and he says that the keep it going very well; but he puts it in the gutter every night and carefully keeps it in adjustment, never goes at a high rate of speed and never tries to put it in reverse in a while".

I am quoting Dr. Louis Faugeres Bishop Jr., in Hygeia, the health magazine which says that just as an automobile that is growing old needs special attention if it is to be kept going, so does the middle-aged man or woman remember that his heart and blood-vessels are gradually getting older and are therefore in need of more care than when the individual is young and the elastic muscle tissue of the heart and in the limbs and of the bloodvessels is strong and flexible.

"I have spoken before of the bridge that is growing old and over which we have to carry a load of ten tons. It can no longer carry the load of ten tons, but it can carry a load of 5 tons for many years.

And as the ten ton bridge will carry a load of 5 tons so will a heart that has had some of its strength because of inaction or the plugging up of a blood-vessel supplying muscular walls with blood continue to pump "enough" blood for the individual will go down into second or even first gear in his manner of living. Naturally it is difficult for a middle-aged man or woman who has always been active and running on high gear, to eat less and rest more. It requires thought and patience to do this.

Robert Cummings and Ruth Hussey romance in the laugh-jammed "Married Bachelor," which opens now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Dr. Bishop states that the man of middle age should sleep under a cover and be well protected. He must get up in a leisurely manner in the morning and carefully prepare himself for the day, avoiding haste in all things. He will go on smoothly day after day if he will lead a quiet outdoor life, take a monthly dose of castor oil, observe a diet of a few well chosen articles of food, stop work and rest if he feels any distress in heart region, take conservative and, in general, slacken his pace.
The thought then with those subject to real heart attacks, or to pain under breast bone from effort, as we grow older,

FEMALE PAIN

Kellogg's flavour gives you the kind of appetite that helps digestion. They're splendidly sustaining, too. An average serving with milk and sugar gives you needed energy! Get Kellogg's Corn Flakes tomorrow. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Thrifty! A meal for the whole family costs only a few pennies. Serve the "30-second breakfast" tomorrow. In two convenient sizes.

"Kellogg's FIRST for flavour" say 4 out of 5 Canadian families. During the last three years 5,000 women have been asked: "What is your family's favourite cereal?" Each year Kellogg's Corn Flakes have won an easy majority. Last year, when housewives were asked specifically: "Which brand of corn flakes do you think tastes best, 84% of 4 out of 5, said "Kellogg's."
Your family, too, will enjoy Kellogg's Corn Flakes. When you eat out, ask for the triple-wrapped individual package.

IT'S TRUE! THAT NEW MIRACLE INGREDIENT DOES MAKE NEW IMPROVED OLD DUTCH CLEANSER 50% FASTER!

- BRINGS FASTER SPARKLE
- NEEDS NO HARD RUBBING
- CUTS GREASE LIGHTNING-FAST

The minute you try New Improved Old Dutch you'll realize the difference! It contains an amazing new ingredient that dissolves grease almost like magic! It cleans 50% faster! Gives you double action cleaning! You'll be surprised how easily sinks, stoves, and bathtubs become sparkling ... immaculately clean.

New Improved Old Dutch is safety itself! It DOESN'T SCRATCH ... because it's made with flaky Selamotite. So, say good-bye forever to hard rubbing and old-fashioned scouring. Switch to the New 50% Faster Old Dutch and you'll never use anything else. What's more, you'll be saving money, too, because a little goes so far.

What Construction Work Is Exempt From Licencing

No Licences Required for Houses Accommodating Up to 3 Families, Says Daily Commercial News

RULE FOR LICENCES

"Licences are not required for houses accommodating up to three families" says the Daily Commercial News in today's issue, in an article on the operation of the new Dominion measure to control the undertaking of construction during the present emergency.

"Exempt also are new buildings generally, when valued up to $10,000, alterations to existing structures at up to $5,000 and machinery installation at up to $5,000. Licences are not required, moreover, for any building for agricultural, mining, logging, or commercial fishing purposes nor for railway and transportation company buildings (other than living) nor for any building owned by or for His Majesty or to be erected with funds supplied by His Majesty.'

"Licences must be procured, therefore for all new buildings, additions, alterations except as above, including those already under construction, if started on or after April 28th.

"While licences are not required for projects under way if started before April 28th it is desired that persons responsible for them should communicate particulars to the branch at this time in order to aid the work of recording and administration."

The work of examining applications and issuing licences is now in full swing, under direction of C. L. Berkinshaw, Priorities Officer and Director General of the Priorities Branch, Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa, and C. Blake Jackson, Deputy Priorities Officer and Assistant Director General of the priorities Branch. Mr. Jack heads the Construction Control Division and all applications are addressed to him.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

German plans for welding continental Europe and French North Africa into an economic unit to serve the Nazi war economy may soon be announced.

It is perhaps the Nazi answer, hollow as it is, to the great partnership in war economy forged by the British Commonwealth, the United States, and the Reich Netherlands, Belgian and Free French Colonies—a combination Hitler has bent to beat quickly, before production nears its peak.

The news from Vichy of the arrival there of Pierre Boisson, Governor of French Africa, at once assumes importance.

Boisson is the man who last autumn foiled Gen. Charles De Gaulle's plans to take over Dakar, the port dominating the trade routes between the north and south Atlantic. German submarines already are active near the Cape Verde Islands due west of Dakar, and it is considered probable in London that these U-boats use Dakar as a base.

Now that the Mediterranean Is untenable as a supply line for the British forces in the Middle East, the long route around the Cape of Good Hope becomes a maritime concourse second in importance only to the North Atlantic. Dakar is the key to the safety on this route. Strongly entrenched there, the Germans could play havoc with British shipping as the British navy has no ports in the region with anything like the facilities Dakar has.

Dakar, too, could be a convenience to German efforts to run the British blockade with supplies from South America, the one great overseas source of raw materials production where Nazi interests are still very strongly rooted. Dakar is only 1,700 miles from the Brazilian coast and a number of German ships laden with supplies have already negotiated the crossing.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfast and ma said to pop, O deer, I'm certainly looking fallward to a hectic day.

Just maintain a calm even frame of mind and take everything in your stride, pop said, and ma said, It's all very well for you to hand fourth that advice as you sit behind your 2nd leisurely cup of coffee on your way to an orderly office routine, but just let me give you some idea of what I have to expect, all alone here with Nora off this afternoon. In the first place the men are coming for the living room rug for having cleened, and if I'm any judge of passed experience they'll just stand around blankly and let me move the furniture for them, she said.

There's a simple way out of that, pop said. Just take a little walk around to the drug store and treat yourself to an invigorating ice cream soda while the work is going on, he said, and ma said, O yes, and return to find my good furniture a shambles of scratches. And I expect a half dozen telephone calls and I know they're all coming just when I'm directing the men with the furniture, she said.

The remedy for that is to take the receiver off the hook and just laugh lightly each time you pass the telephone pop said, and ma said, And furthermore I expect the window cleaners and I have to run out to have my hair done because the only time this week Mr. Lenny can take me is exactly 3 o'clock this afternoon and that's probably the time the rug men and the window cleaner will both gully show up.

Why not leave the front door open with 4-cent saying, Rug men and window cleaners welcome? pop said, and ma said, Perhaps you have a suggestion about the dinner problem, a suggestion about going to a restaurant, perhaps.

Well no, my imagination fails me there, pop said.

And he quick folded up his paper and left for his office.

NEWELL JURY DISAGREES AFTER 10-HOUR SESSION

Second Time in Six Months That Accused is Tried for Murder

LONG TRIAL

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—Aircraftman Hugh Alexander William Newell of Toronto remained in a police cell here today, still with an undecided murder charge hanging over him after a Supreme Court jury, the second in six months, failed late yesterday to reach a verdict and was dismissed.

Newell, 27-year-old member of the Royal Canadian Air Force and a veteran of the Russo-Finnish War, is charged with the murder of his 29-year-old Finnish wife, Aune, whose body was found in a secluded part of Toronto Island last Oct. 6, with one of her own silk stockings knotted about her neck.

Newell was tried at the Winter Supreme Court Assizes and disagreement occurred. The second disagreement occurred last night when the jury reported to Mr. Justice W. D. Spach after 10 hours' consideration that no agreement could be reached.

Throughout the long Newell litigation, including the inquest into Aune's death, Newell's preliminary hearing and the first and second trials, there has been a repetition of this evidence:

Newell and his wife had been estranged for several months; Newell was living with another Finnish woman, 36-year-old Elna Lehto, and his wife was working in a restaurant.

The day Mrs. Newell disappeared Newell had gone to see her about a separation or divorce and had discussed both before, and then custody of their five-year-old son, Billy. He had taken his wife out to lunch and she was not seen again.

Newell said he had had lunch with his wife; they had separated with an understanding to meet again later, Aune had not turned up for the rendezvous and he had not seen her afterwards.

Newell, at various times during his trials, was reprimanded by the court for interruptions and on at least one occasion he was sent from the court room.

Kingston Resident Given $152 Damages

Napanee, Ont., June 5 (CP)—Damages of $152 were awarded Harold Earl of Kingston yesterday in an action against John Allenbrand of Prospect Lodge Co. of A. Cameron. The suit resulted from an auto accident last Feb. 21 1-3 miles east of Napanee. The court ruled the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant.

The Day in Parliament

(By The Canadian Press)

TODAY

The House will consider amendments to the Income Tax Act and deal with non-war departmental estimates.

YESTERDAY

The House gave third reading to a bill permitting the expansion of power facilities in Banff National Park and one amending the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act; received reports of its Defence of Canada regulations and war expenditures committees; heard Agriculture Minister Gardiner outline the Government's program for supplying cheese for Britain; passed several items in the Agriculture Department estimates and heard Donald McIlveen (Lib. Regina City) charge prairie people are being "pillaged and plundered" by monopolies—particularly by an alleged fruit monopoly in British Columbia.

The Senate passed a bill amending the Pensions Act after voting down 31-19 and 27-17 changes in the measure recommended by its banking and commerce committee.

Mrs. J. A. MacCabe President of C. W. L.

Toronto, June 5 (CP).—Mrs. J. A. MacCabe of Ottawa was re-elected president of the Catholic Women's League of Canada at the closing session of the 21st National convention here last night.

Other officers elected included: First vice-president, Mrs. J. J. McGarry, Kitchener, Ont.

A resolution was passed pledging support of the Catholic Women's League to the Canadian Legion in addition to work in which they are already engaged.

An invitation was issued by Mrs. Irene Hawkes of Edmonton on behalf of Archbishop J. H. MacDonald of Edmonton and the Edmonton Diocesan of the League to have the national convention in Edmonton next year. The invitation was taken under consideration.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Too Hot To Handle"

A motion picture expedition penetrated the jungles of northern South American on film one of the world's strangest tribes.

Headed by Clyde and Vinna, ace cameraman, and Richard Rosson, the company assembled in Surinam, also known as Dutch Guiana, to film important aspects for the new Clark Gable-Myrna Loy newsreel thrill picture, "Too Hot to Handle", coming to the McCarthy Theatre next week.

Rosson and a complete crew sailed for Surinam months ago to make preliminary preparations for filming important sequences with more than a thousand full-blooded Djukas Negroes in their tribal dances and costume. De Vinna and an assistant reached Surinam later, by plane, via Miami and across the Caribbean Sea.

The Djukas were selected for the jungle sequences because of their colorful background and tribal rituals. Rosson succeeded in communicating with the tribe who live in the dense jungles of the hinterland, through the co-ordination of the Dutch government which is on friendly terms with them.

The history of the tribe dates back to the Seventeenth Century when their ancestors were captured in Africa by the Dutch and transported in slavery to Dutch Guiana. Shortly after their arrival, the tribesmen revolted, fled into the interior jungles and formed their own tribal government as it had originally existed in Africa.

The Djukas were first discovered by President Roosevelt himself on his famous expedition down the River of Doubt in 1908 and they are believed to be among the purest-blooded Negroes in the world today. They have never intermingled with other nationalities and they retain the same rituals and rules of government their forebears observed in the Seventeenth Century.

AT THE BELLE

"The Bad Man"

Wallace Beery, the best cabalero in all the West", rides to thrills, adventure and laughs, in "The Bad Man", film transcription of the famous New York stage play now showing at the Belle Theatre.

As Pancho Lopez, whimsical bandit, he sets out to straighten the tangled lives of a group of "tenderfeet", with thrilling, dramatic and comical results, while Lionel Barrymore, as the grizzled old rancher he can't scare, provides laughs galore by his antics.

Lorraine Day and "Dr. Kildare" pictures, provides a beautiful and dramatic feminine lead opposite Ronald Reagan, who repeats the great performance he gave in "Minute Rockne". Nydia Westman contributed flattery comic and Chill Wills another comedian of "Boom Town", scores again. Tom Conway, Henry Travers, Chris Pin Martin, Charles Stevens and other clever players are among the principals.

Richard Thorpe directed with the same skill that marked "Wyoming" and gorgeous scenery on location near Gallup, New Mexico, was effectively photographed by Clyde De Vinna, as were the thrilling cattle stampedes and chases between bandits and mounted police over the rocky terrain of the cattle ranges.

"Free and Easy", Funny

Whimsical humor, a charming love story and glimpses into the foibles and the haunts of fashionable society serve to make Hilarious entertainment of "Free and Easy", which brings Robert Cummings and Ruth Hussey, fresh from their triumph in "The Philadelphia Story" to the Belle screen, as the comedian feature attraction.

The picture tells the story of a couple of aristocratic fortune hunters, played by Cummings and Nigel Bruce, who set out to find rich wives. Cummings, playing the son, woos and wins a rich spinster, played by Judith Anderson, then falls in love with Miss Hussey who plays an impecunious society girl. Engaged to both he finds himself in hilarious complications with two charmers on his hands and not a dime in his pockets. Finally, a whimsical turn of events extricates him from the laughable complications.

Miss Hussey is compellingly beautiful and Martha Gray, and wears a series of stunning gowns to elaborate parties, the races, a fashionable casino and the opera.

"Heroes of the Atlantic", is the title of the new Canada Carries on Series, revealing the story of the men in the Battle of The Atlantic. The merchant marine and navy as one service.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Pals of the Press"

[The latest fast-fists' and rum-plot-ralin' Jacquiliner picture opens today at the Capitol Theatre and will easily provide the Three Mesquiteers' fans enough excitement to last through Friday and Saturday. This time Republic gave the boys enough trouble to keep them busy forever, but they manage to overcome all obstacles after a maximum of difficulty. "Dan Burke", admirably played by Pat O'Malley, is a stagecoach road builder whose work is jeopardized by two smooth crooks, owner and legal light, respectively, of a competitive line. Their rough tactics include highway robbery and the murder of Dan's son whose death is mistakenly accredited to the Three Mesquiteers. Plot, from this point on, involves the boys' efforts to clear their names, recover the stolen payroll money which will enable Dan to finish his road, and see that justice is done. What with plenty of gunfire, fast riding, cliff-leaping and dynamiting, everyone is kept adequately preoccupied.

"Murder Among Friends"

"Murder Among Friends" with Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard is the other feature being shown with "Pals of the Press". It has plenty of romance more than its not eight murders.

Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard make a striking pair of amateur sleuths. Marjorie is a fast-talking Southern gal who just can't seem to keep from getting into hot water. John is a doctor, engaged to Cobina Wright, Jr.—who, paradoxically, shows up mighty well in her screen debut—but Dr. John has a weakness for swift-talking blondes gals like Marjorie. He does his best to resist her, but he can't. Together they stage a battle of wits with the local gendarmie which will keep you holding your sides.

The climax is a fitting one for this unusual murder mystery—and we'll bet you can't guess "who done it" either!

On the same programme will be shown the eighth chapter of Zane Grey's "King of the Royal Mounted", the latest News, and a new short subject in the ever popular Canada Carries on Series "Heroes of the Atlantic".

Marjorie Weaver and John Hubbard are the gay young romancers who find themselves knee-deep in a sensational murder plot in "Murder Among Friends," starting tonight at the Capitol. The Three Mesquiteers, "Pals of the Press," an action-packed adventure, is shown on the same program.

3,000 CHURCHES DAMAGED

New York, June 5 (CP)—Some 3,000 churches in Britain have been destroyed or damaged seriously by Nazi bombs and many more have been slightly damaged, Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, pastor of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, said yesterday in a broadcast from London.

The bombed churches carry on, said Dr. Bonnell and added that "the destruction of the churches has brought an ever-increasing spirit of co-operation among the various religious bodies."

CANADIANS PAYING BONUS ON CHEESE GOING TO U. K.

4.6 to 5.6 Cents a Pound as Premium to Assure Continuous Supply of Cheese

BRITAIN PAYS 14.4 C.

Ottawa, June 5 (CP)—Canadian people are paying from 4.6 to 5.6 cents a pound on all cheese going to the United Kingdom, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the House of Commons yesterday.

This is made up by the premiums paid by the Federal, Ontario and Quebec Governments. Great Britain pays 14.4 cents a pound.

Steps had been taken to assure a continuous supply of cheese for the United Kingdom for this year and next.

Mr. Gardiner was replying to a question asked by Dr. Ross (Centre Toronto-St. Paul) who referred to a press report of an appeal to the United States for milk products made by Lord Woolton, British Food Controller, and asked what was being done in Canada.

Mr. Gardiner made the following reply:

"We have had no information with regard to Lord Woolton's appeal to the American people the press.

"It has been intimated to us from Britain that they would like us to turn all the milk possible into cheese and supply it to Britain.

On Parity With U.S.

"The price of 14.4 cents on boat at Montreal offered by Britain is all that they can be expected to pay as it is on a parity with what they are paying New Zealand. The Canadian Government is, therefore, paying 1.6 cents above that price in addition to one cent premium on 92 score cheese and two cents on 94 score cheese. The Ontario and Quebec Governments are adding as much as two cents a pound.

"Under these conditions the Canadian people are paying from 4.6 to 5.6 cents a pound to assure the 14.4 cents which Britain is paying on practically all the cheese in general. There was not about one-quarter of the return to the producer. We have gone forward to assure that this year and next the highest possible production of cheese will be made available to the British people."

Expert All Salt.-Que. Cheese

"To make doubly sure that the additional production this secured will go to Britain the Dairy Board commandeered all cheese coming on the market and set it aside forward until further notice in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec where 93 per cent. of all the cheese is made.

"It will thus be seen that although we have not adopted the plan suggested in the United States we have met the appeal of Britain in the manner suggested. This fact has had the widest publicity and I am sure the method adopted is accepted by the British Government as the best possible way of providing the greatest possible quantity of Canadian dairy products to Britain."

Nazis Meeting Passive Resistance In French Territory

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, June 5 (CP) — Free French circles in London are alive with stories of the passive resistance the Nazis are meeting from Frenchmen both in occupied and unoccupied France.

Here are a few of them:-

In the Latin quarter of Paris, where students demonstrate actively against the Nazis, the cafes along Boulevard St. Michel are filled with German soldiers. When the soldiers enter the restaurants they unclasp their belts and bayonets and hang them up. Students copy them by wearing a belt from which a bicycle pump is suspended by a piece of string. On entering a restaurant they make a great show of removing belt, string and bicycle pump and hanging them up in the German manner.

Another story tells of a German officer who walked about Paris for an hour with a piece of paper on his back on which was written: "De Gaulle Temm." To the Germans this meant nothing but to Frenchmen it read, "De Gaulle Traitor"—De Gaulle loves you.

Students are active, too, in Marseille, where a great religious revival is taking place among the young people. They include followers of Gen. De Gaulle who escaped from occupied to unoccupied France. Some have been captured and interned in Port Saint Jean, a former Foreign Legion depot in Marseilles.

From Caen comes a report of a new form of punishment the Germans are imposing on the French. If a Frenchman is heard saying the word "Boche" he is taken before the kommandatur. The kommandature, as a punishment, orders the offender to repeat 200 times, the words, "Mesieurs, les Allemands"—Gentlemen, the Germans."

Mother's Information Results in Arrest Of Son for Murder

Chicago, June 5 (AP)—A mother, torn between her duty as a citizen and love of her family, furnished police with information yesterday that resulted in the arrest of her 21-year-old son on a charge of murder.

Tearful and depressed, Mrs. Mary Ziemba reported to police that during an argument between her husband and son, she heard the youth say: "I'll take care of you like I took care of the watchman."

Mrs. Ziemba said she remembered that a watchman employed at a lumber yard where her husband worked had been beaten to death and thought there might be some connection.

Police arrested Peter Ziemba, confronted with the information his mother had given. he broke down, said Lieut. James O'Brien, and confessed that he and an accomplice killed Bruno Biedrycki during a robbery, Feb. 6th.

WALL STREET

New York, June 5 (AP)—Bullishness was restrained in today's stock market but this was enough of it present to lift leaders fractions and a few issues as much as three points or so.

Among steels, Savage Arms, Consolidated Aircraft, Lehigh Valley Coal common and pfd. and U.S. Distributing pfd. went to new tops for the year. Others getting support included Texas Corp. Sperry, Douglas Aircraft, Water Works, Steel, American Tobacco, Woolworth, Standard Gas preferreds, Union Pacific, Dupont and J. C. Penney.

Falardo Sugar dipped to a new 1941 low.

Canadian stocks were quietly traded. International Nickel moved up ¼ while Dome lost ⅝. In the bond market Canada 4s were a point lower.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 5 (CP) — The Stock Market registered moderate strength in the industrial and base metals groups today and the golds came forward after midday, led by Kerr Addison which advanced 15 to a new record high at 4.20 while trading in substantial volume. Aggregate turnover for the first three hours was 50,000 shares.

Upper Canada, Chesterville, Preston and Pickle Crow were other golds to improve 5 cents or more while Macassa and Wright Hargreaves were lower. International Nickel was a laggard in the base metals.

Utilities ruled higher and senior oils were a bit heavy. Bell Telephone climbed a point, 10-1 and Walkers was up 1-2 to 39. Bids tightened for Western Oils and Home at 1.68 was up 3.

Butter and Eggs Remain Steady

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—On the Toronto open produce market yesterday butter and eggs cleared fairly well at steady to firm quotations.

The increase as of June 1 of nearly 2,000,000 pounds in the nine cities' holdings apparently had no influence on the butter market. There was no rush to buy, but dealers reported that offerings, which were not in large volume, met with steady at unchanged prices. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery sold at 31½ cents a pound.

After maintaining a weak trend during the first two days of the week's trading, prices turned steadier on the egg market yesterday when buying quickened and light receipts created more freely. Grade "A" pullets particularly were in good demand, and this grade rose ¼ cent to 1 cent a dozen in the graded section of the market. Reflecting the recent easiness in prices for export, grade "A" large and "A" medium to the retail trade weakened ½ cent a dozen.

R.A.F. BLASTS RHODES AIRPORT

Violent Explosions Caused In Rail Yards on Italian Air Base at Rhiteria

Cairo, June 5 (AP)—Heavy damage to Axis advance posts in the Libyan desert at Mirabi Tower is announced by the Royal Air Force today in attacks on the Libyan port of Benghazi and Martina airport on the Italian island of Rhodes.

Direct hits were scored on hangars, causing violent explosions, in the raid Wednesday night on Martina, the communique said, "and a number of bombs fell among dispersed aircraft."

At Benghazi, on the same night, it said heavy R.A.F. bombers "inflicted considerable damage on the waterfront of the Axis-held North African base and touched off heavy explosions in and near the city's airport.

Italian Italian CR-42, attempting to ward off the British raiders was shot down at Benghazi.

The communique also said severe damage to Messerschmitt fighters were damaged by British fighter planes while protecting parties of the Libyan coast and others were driven off from an attempted raid yesterday on Malta.

British planes continued supporting land operations in East Africa, the communique said, and in the Cassia area of Ethiopia "several small concentrations of troops in fire and waved white flags when attacked by South African fighter planes.

From all these operations, it said, one British plane is missing.

Trenton and District

Blackout Trial Is Successful, All Lights Out

Actual Sounds of Air Raid Reproduced from Record-ings Made in England

Trenton, June 5—(Special)—The blackout trial in this district conducted a great success according to Mayor H. Cory, who was in charge of the event. Every light in the town was put out at ten o'clock while all traffic was stopped.

Chief Constable W. Bain enlisted the aid of over a hundred volunteer A.R.P. workers and strict order was kept throughout the town. For fifteen minutes before the blackout was scheduled the police stopped all traffic coming into the town and warned them of the blackout that was to do.

The fire siren sounded at 9.58 and two minutes later the town lights blinked out. During the blackout the police sirens and whistle of the fire engine were kept continually going to represent the sirens that are on during an air raid in London.

Actual sounds of an air raid were broadcast over a loud speaker from the top of the Post Office by means of recordings made in England during an air raid. All motor traffic came to a halt and lights on the cars were put out.

During the height of the blackout the auxiliary fire brigade made a rush call to Dundas Street where incendiary bombs were supposed to have fallen.

The volunteer workers and police had things well organized and Trentonians were given a brief taste into the happenings of an air raid in London.

Relief at New Low

Relief in this town has hit a new low level, the number of persons on these most of them are unemployable. According to the Relief Administration Council, for April and 42 are women. Of this number 32 are aged and 6 are mentally unemployable.

There is a sufficient number of relifees in many years. The administrator said that there are only 12 persons on reiief who are unemployable.

Nursing Sister Helen Ruth Kerr and Flying Officer James Kerr, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kerr, are receiving a number of distinguished honours at Yorkton, Saskatchewan, where both are stationed with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Miss Kerr, a senior in the R.C.A.F. Medical Service, has been awarded her Flight Lieutenant stripe and in the ceremony at the Yorkton on May 28, she had the honour of carrying the torch and signing the scroll that will go with the torch to Prime Minister Winston Churchill in England.

Her brother, Flying Officer Kerr, has been assigned to pilot the plane with the broadcasting equipment when Yorkton station is formally opened on Wednesday, June 11.

Century Grahams Defeated

The Century Grahams defeated the Bata Shoe 12 to 10 here last night to move into second place in the Town Softball League.

The Centuries played a steady game from the opening frame and collected runs in every inning with the exception of the eighth. The Batas put on a batting splurge in the seventh stanza to collect seven runs and tie up the game but the Centuries collected another run in the last of the seventh and one in the ninth to clinch the game.

Morin with five singles led his teammates at bat while J. Ellis was close behind him with four singles.

Coughlin, hurling for the Centuries, slipped badly in the seventh while the Batas pounded him for an even dozen hits. Throughout the remainder of the game he tightened up and allowed the two hits, in the last two frames. Chard on the mound for the Batas allowed 11 hits but also gave up four walks.

The line-ups:

Centuries: Niddery, Morin, J. Ellis, Lund, Ellis, Drake, Coon, Watson, Coughlin.

Batas: Shirtliewsky Matthews, Chard, Aquino, Kowanick, Sabo, Hargraves, Sajac and Stojan.

Describing bottlenecks in transportation as serious as shortages of power, he said the attack on ships has burdened with expanding production and the seaway would provide a "great highway for new and more important defence production plans."

"It will cut by more than 1,000 miles" the freezone continued, "the stretch of dangerous open water that must be traveled by supplies to Great Britain and strategic north Atlantic bases."

He said the project also would increase the United states capacity to build ships.

"The Great Lakes today," he said, "had many shipways and dry docks as well as resources of men and materials for shipbuilding. They are bottled up because we have delayed completing the seaway."

Mr. Roosevelt said that in dealing with the present emergency "too many people have underestimated the degree to which our resources will be taxed. We cannot afford to make any more mistakes of that kind."

HALIFAX

an uninvited guest.

Good Geographic Position

Ask a native Haligonian why it takes war to push his city into prosperity, and he will answer you short and easy.

It is geography, political geography, economic geography, physical geography. Halifax is one of the finest natural harbors in the world. Further inland, connected with the outer harbor by a deep narrows, lies a huge anchorage base, where scores of ships may lie, awaiting convoy. The port is ice-free all winter, too.

About the closest a Nova Scotian comes to bragging it his wise-crack that Halifax is noted for exporting codfish and human brain power.

Today three of her men are in Canada as Nova Scotians. Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, the Minister of National Defence, learned to fight war in 1914. Desperately wounded three times, he would have won the coveted Victoria Cross if he hadn't disobeyed orders by risking his life to rescue wounded comrades.

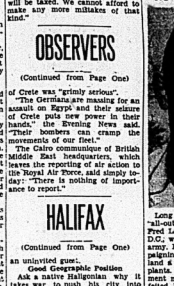
The Hon. Angus Macdonald is Minister of National Defence for Naval Services. He, too, was wounded in 1918, left for dead on the road to Mons. The Hon. J. L. Ilsley is Minister of Finance.

Thern in Side of French

Geography also made Nova Scotia, and before partially Halifax harbor, a British perch to restrain the French north Atlantic. In the 18th Century, Parliament subsidized a colony in 1749, sent it to the harbor of Chebucto in Acadia. That colony became Halifax. There Canada's first French and Indian wars when British Navy Paymaster Byng's prosperity to Halifax. Then the American Revolution.

During the Napoleonic wars, the Royal Navy kept fleets in the harbor, Wolfe planned the capture of

NO HONOR AT HOME



Long before Americans began the "all-out aid to Britain" battle cry, Fred Latham, 26, of Washington, D.C., was fighting with the British army. But, friends say, his part in campaigning with the Tommies he can't speak of. Latham, a Presbyterian defence plants. Fred revealed that employment managers insist that he forfeited his American citizenship by enlisting in the British army—and the rules say "none but citizens in defence plants." He was wounded seven times in the leg during the escape from Dunkirk, and has only recently returned to the United States after being released from a Canadian hospital.

Quebec here, and it was here during the war of 1812 that the world's first steamboat was built. It was here and escorted through the American blockade to Europe and back.

The story was the same in the Crimean and Boer Wars. The big push of prosperity came in 1914.

Take 2/3s of War

Through it all, Haligonians have insit rested content to reap the pros-it of war. They have also taken the risks of war. You can name monopolies of the world. The British forces anywhere in the world, without them, would be helpless. Halifax is the only Canadian harbor from which convoys may leave. Taylor Wood III, now commander of the Canadian Corvette Mounted Police.

In the last war, Halifax built industry "there is a monopoly subsidy in it," Mr. McNiven declared, ment particularly in connection with supplies to the extent of $1,750,000,000 in the last war.

"Monopoly" is further protected by the difference in freight rates by coasting duties, by the 10 per cent. general duty and finally by the 10 per. cent exchange rate.

"Dealers on the prairies who have been in business for years are denied the right to handle goods of this monopoly.

"They have the cash. They are willing to live up to every condition imposed by the monopoly, yet they cannot buy the goods. The monopoly takes to itself the right to select its own dealers and negotiates the terms on which its products shall be sold."

On the day the government bill to amend the Alberta Natural Resources Act with a number of members opposing a move to permit the Calgary Power Company to raise the water level and generate power at Lake Minnewanka in Banff National Park.

Resources Minister Crerar sponsored the bill which was based on an agreement between the Alberta government and the Mines and Resources department and which he said was justified by the urgent need for power for war industries. The bill was put through all stages.

The senate twice over-rode recommendations of its banking and commerce committee by defeating, 31-19 and 27-17, amendments the committee suggested in the bill to amend the Finance Act, bringing it into line with requirements of the present war.

One amendment would have excluded men called up for compulsory training from eligibility under the Pension Commission's discretionary pensioning powers in case of disability or death suffered in Canada, and not attributable to service, by means of the armed forces in necessitous circumstances.

The other proposed that the Governor-in-Council may appoint chairmen, assistant chairmen and executive personnel of the pension commission without regard to the provisions of the Civil Service Act.

Only the most optimistic observers believed any expectation that parliament would conclude its work by Friday night. There was talk of an all-night sitting tonight but this would require unanimous consent.

If the long adjournment is not possible Friday night the members will return to work Monday morning at 11 o'clock and not Wednesday as the king's birthday.

The government bills remain to be dealt with, two from the Labor Department, one from the Justice Department and one from Agriculture, but Prime Minister Mackenzie King assured Conservative House leader Hanson at question time that none of them would move in the least contentious. There will also be some supplementary estimates.

KIWANIS MEMBERS JOURNEY TO OSHAWA

Twenty members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club enjoyed an interesting visit to Oshawa yesterday afternoon. In a special coach on the C.N.R. the club members journeyed west and were met at the Oshawa station by members of that club. Taken in cars the members were driven to the Oshawa Kiwanis camp, north of the city, where a well arranged program sports had been arranged with members from Oshawa. Belleville and other clubs were present. A fine banquet was enjoyed with the pro-

"MONOPOLIES" ATTACKED BY PRAIRIE MEMBERS

Donald McNiven, Regina, Alleges Fruit Monopoly in British Columbia

BITTER DEBATE

By C. R. BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 5 (CP)—Donald McNiven (Lib. Regina City), charged in the House of Commons last night that Prairie Provinces people are being "pillaged and plundered" by monopolies particularly by an alleged fruit monopoly in British Columbia.

He spoke just before the House adjourned after making some progress in nearly four hours' consideration of agriculture department estimates.

Hon. Cross Stirling (Con. Yale), who said he would not agree with everything Mr. McNiven charged, told the Regina member that "any things were one-tenth as bad as he has described them", he could gain rights under the Combines Investigation Act.

There was no time for Agriculture Minister Gardiner to make a reply in the opinion of Mr. McNiven said "either one or two companies" set up under British Columbia marketing legislation "operated to control the fruit industry in British Columbia and that in way "today the most highly protected industry in this country." He said the Combines Investigation Act had no jurisdiction.

Victims of All Is Charge.

"We have a great many monopolies in this country and the worst one is me that we who live on the prairies are victims of all of them," said Mr. McNiven.

"We have the fruit and lumber monopolies of the province. We have the industrial monopoly of Eastern Canada.

"We on the prairies, in the Province of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, all there battered and bruised, pilfaged and plundered, raped and ravished by these monopolies, already victim of the vivacious."

In the British Columbia fruit industry "there is a monopoly subsidy in it," Mr. McNiven declared, ment particularly in connection with supplies to the extent of $1,750,000,000 in the last war.

FIFTH OF LOAN

Indians on the Brantford, Ont., reserve plan to hold a general council meeting Friday night to formulate plans for purchase of a subsidiary tail boat.

On general canvass only the quota at Crow's-Nest, B.C., was $164,000 but the public have subscribed $204,000. Other campaign units reported to have oversubscribed are Medicine Hat, Alberta are Turner Valley, Pincher Creek, Bowness, Banff, Acme, Nordegg, Carbon, Luscar and Champion.

The National Loan Committee said a 30,000,000 subscription from Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. and its subsidiaries, Canada Iron was the largest individual bond purchase reported.

Besides that subscription, a partial list of large buyers issued today showed a $2,500,000 order from Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. and Western Canada Power and Light Co. Ltd., Montreal; and $2,000,000 orders from Canada Packers Ltd., Toronto, and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., Winnipeg.

Large Rally At Montreal.

Largest loan rally for the night was at Westmount, Que., Montreal suburb where $6,000,000 was to hear addresses by Air Minister Power and Norma Shearer, the Westmount-born screen star.

A Victory Loan statement issued by Sauvé Bienfaisan, president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, expressed confidence Canadian Jewry would realize the urgency of the call being made for loan funds.

Figures issued last night at provincial headquarters in Montreal showed a total of $28,804,630, Manitoba's at $2,385,000 and Nova Scotia's at $3,822,600.

Subscriptions Monday and Tuesday in Ontario totalled $46,500,000, Prince Edward Island $280,650, British Columbia $4,000,000 and Quebec $1,-$4,646,650 and New Brunswick $1,-571,850.

Among the major cities, Montreal's three-day total was $32,285,-350, exceeding its quota of $17,000,000 objective. At noon yesterday Ottawans had subscribed for $4,125,450 worth of bonds of the $5,000,000 objective of $33,000,000. Prime Minister Mackenzie King bought $1,000 worth.

Five Ontario communities — Brockville, Perth, Arthur, Hensall, Exeter and Brussels—had exceeded their objective. The Thames-Grand River division, embracing the counties of Norfolk, Oxford, Brant and Haldimand, was leading the 18 divisions in Ontario with 20 per cent of its quota obtained. Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry counties subscribed $420,000 of their $1,800,000 quota in the first two days.

Perplexing Question— Who is Going to Ring Invasion Alarm Bells?

London, June 5 (AP)—A ringing question jarred Britain today amid preparations for ringing bells in places and low.

"Who," the Bishop of Chelmsford wants to know, "is going to ring the bells with those ropes used to tell the populace that invasion has begun?"

Soldiers are busy digging fresh trenches in the parks and are unwinding more barbed wire to fortify almost every bush and tree, but the bishop's poser is perplexing lots of persons.

It's this way:

Usually churches are locked at night. Comes the invader. What happens? Some one has got to get the key, which usually is kept at the vicarage. The rectory often is some distance, perhaps miles from the church.

Suppose panting Paul Revere reach the rectory. Comes more explosion. Parson must be dressing.

Suppose the parson hasn't got the key. Then refer one to the Verger, who must be found, awakened and asked for the key.

In any event, the Verger or more expert bell-ringer, should be on hand to fling the bells because church bell ringing is not like ringing a dinner bell, expert points out, and an amateur might crack the bell or jam the clapper.

Some solutions suggested include:

1. Furnish the home guards with wooden keys to the churches and give them a little instruction in proper bell ringing technique.

2. Distribute rockets for bells.

Larry's "Boughten" Wonders Fumbled into First Place by Dodgers Beaten by the Braves

Rain Washes Out All but Three Games in the Big Leagues

MACK HONORED

By GAYLE TALBOT

Associated Press Sport Writer.

Simply by staying in out of the wet while their chief rivals were fumbling themselves into defeat, Brooklyn Dodgers have climbed back into the leadership of the National League.

Larry MacPhail's "boughten" wonders are in a half-game in front of St. Louis Cardinals, who dropped a 4-3 decision to Boston Braves in one of the three games played in the big league yesterday and Durocher led from the top for the first time since May 19.

It marked the fifth defeat for the Cardinals in their last six games.

The Cards' infield, regarded by many observers as the one questionable spot in an otherwise great team, committed three errors to present the Braves with the same number of unearned runs and the margin of victory. Rookie Frank Crespi made two of them at second base and Jimmy Brown bobbed up with another at third.

The Cards made nine hits yesterday off Art Johnson, the Boston rookie, but probably wouldn't have scored at all if Johnson had covered first more spryly on Enos Slaughter's infield single after two were out in the sixth. The Braves rapped Harry Gumbert for 11 hits and handed him his first defeat since joining the Cards.

Contests Washed Out

All the other National League contests were washed out by a general rain in the east, and only two American League games escaped the downpour.

St. Louis Browns, playing their last game under manager Fred Haney, walloped the unfortunate Washington Senators 7-4 and thereby climbed to the edge height in seventh place in the American League. Luke Sewell, their new pilot, can never claim he was saddled with a last-place outfit. President Tom Barnes' timing was perfect, if slightly peculiar.

Under the lights at Comiskey Park last night, Chicago White Sox celebrated "Comic Mack" night by walloping his Philadelphia Athletics 6-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Thornton Lee.

A total of 32,656 fans turned out to honor Philadelphia's 76-year old manager, presenting him with a gold plaque and a watch during the pre-game ceremonies.

Lee's victory, his seventh of the season, lifted the Sox to within a game of the idle Cleveland Indians in the American League.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By the Associated Press)

Johnny Berardino, Browns, tripled in the seventh inning with the bases loaded to beat Washington, 7-4.

Arthur Johnson and Bama Rowell, Braves, pitched and batted Braves to 4-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Thornton Lee, White Sox, hurled five-hit ball against Athletics for 6-1 victory.

LATTA DEFEATS CANNIFTON 6-1

Dr. Empson's Squad Gets Away on Right Foot in Opener of South Hastings Loop

Showing surprising defensive strength and wielding potent bats in the clinches, Dr. Jack Empson's Latta nine got away on the right foot in the opener of the South Hastings Baseball League out at Canniflon last evening, when, with Dr. Marsh showing mid-season form on the mound, they set the homesters down in an abbreviated five-inning fixture by a 6-1 score.

Proving himself the wily manager that he had demonstrated himself to be while at the helm of the Canniflon boys, "Doc" Empson, new mentor, trotted out several players from the Latta district who in the past have shown their ball-playing prowess in the S.H.L. It seemed like old times to have Joe Latta and Johnny Orr working together again as battery mates, while the two Wagar boys and Hamilton covered the field defensively.

Latta went into the lead in the first inning when they got to Lorne Carroll, who was pitching for the homesters, for one run and were never headed from then on. Adding two more in the fourth and three in the fifth, the visitors tallied six times in the concerted drive by the Canniflon boys netted them one run in the last of the fifth.

Corbys Remain Undefeated While Esquire Kids Move into Second Place of Softball Loop

Corbys Defeat Point Anne 12 to 7 While Esquire Taking Reliance 18-15

THIRD FOR HARRIS

Corbys A.C., and the Esquire juniors won their games in a ball tilt played in the City Senior Softball League last evening, the Corbys beating the "Consumers" 12 to 7 at Point Anne, while the Esquire kids pounded out an 18 to 15 victory over the Reliance Aircraft at Coleman Flats. Corbys remained undefeated in the starts as the result of their win, while Red Townsend's Esquire kids are vaulted into the possession of second place in the league standing by handing the "plane-makers" their second defeat.

Bert Burt, Corbys pitcher in the Esquire kids capitulation on the mound, fielding of their rivals and rattled off 21 base hits to pound the offerings of Burr over the middle of the moundsmen in a most prolific manner. The junior lads got five runs in the initial frame and added three more in the third, but were practically every subsequent inning as they drove Burr, Lunn and Trenton moundsman, to the showers in the fifth and continued to cuff the offerings of Art Stewart, until he was replaced by Archie Major in the seventh. Adams hurled for the winners, and his teammates gave him a substantial lead to work with but he could not stand the gaff and was touched for a double, but not a single losing club batter got over two hits off Adams except Gray, who had a single, double and triple. Adams struck out nine batters and whiffed six in the route journey.

Corbys Hit Early

Six extra base hits helped Corbys get their victory over the Point Anne and keep their unbeaten string of victories intact. The visitors got off to rather evenly until the Bawden-Barrage crowd rattled out five hits and five runs in the seventh to clinch matters and let Manager Harris send in his first win of the season.

Klaer blasted a home run in the third, with none aboard, while Hogan, Bawden and Bawden touched Barnhart for triples and Harris and Lunden rounded out the hits, while Barrage, rang up four singles in five official tries, as Klaer added two singles to his home blow drive. Whitehead hit the only extra base blow for Point Anne, a triple in the fifth, and he had two singles and he also starred on the attack. One other game is slated for the Corbys' circuit when the Reliance meet SAOO on Friday night.

GOSSIP, NEWS & COMMENT

"If I can drive this baby 50 miles an hour I'll quit speed boat racing, buy a nice cruiser and enjoy myself with my family." Lloyd Hickel, well known Belleville power boat racing maestro told us yesterday as he was putting an eight-cylinder into the new class "C" racing craft, which he built this spring. With the installing of the engine and looked over his handiwork with an expression of satisfaction on his face. "The next thing is to see how she'll perform in the water." Lloyd Hickel designed and built his new craft, which comes in the 225 class, for the express purpose of trying to break the existing world's record for class "C" power boat competing in the American Power Boat Association sanctioned events. Her two stabilizer fins swing with a four foot nine inch beam.

Lloyd only missed equalling the world's record for class "D" boats with his Baby Engine by 20 odd seconds at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1939 and today he is very confident of making another attempt to shatter the record he so nearly equalled that year in his boat. Incidentally we asked Mr. Hickle how he arrived at the name Baby Engine and his explanation was quite unique. Our two girls are named Ruth and Eugenie, so I coupled parts of both their names and called the boat Baby Eugene," explained Mr. Hickle, although Mr. Hickle has not christened his new craft as yet, it might be interesting to note that the power plant installed includes an 85 horse power Ford V8 engine, which Mr. Hicks feels has sufficient power to accomplish his heart's desire. He drove Baby Eugene 42 miles per hour in the water, telling that his new craft will reach at least 50 m.p.h. After he launches his new craft, Mr. Hicks promised us a ride, of which we'll have more to report at that time.

Softball fans in Belleville, and more particularly those who patronize the city games, will regret to hear that Sylvia Reddick, hardhitting first baseman for the Lock Lock team, will no longer clout circuit blows high up and far away over the Armouries since this season. Miss Reddick is under the care of her family physician and has been ordered to take a complete rest. It is hoped that another softball season rolls around Sylvia will be back in the game good condition and her health completely regained.

Do you remember when War Admiral, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes, took the Belmont Stakes four years ago today to take his third straight major race as a three-year-old. The famous son of the great Man O'War coasted home to a four-length victory, equalling the mile-and-a-half American record of 2:28 set by Randy Mandy in 1927.

Connie Harris chalked up his third win to as many starts when the Corbys A.C.'s got their unbeaten record in the city softball loop perfect by trailing the Cementmen 12 to 7 last night. At the same time Red Townsend's Esquire kids scored more runs than Reliance, in a scoring spree, to win 18 to 15 and climbed into sole possession of second place, as the result of two wins this week. The Reliance trotted out Bruce Burtt, former Corbys hurler, as their starting hurler, but the local juniors showed little respect for his offerings and his teammates licked in with some weird fielding, which they kept up all night and the Esquire kids had only drove Burtt to the showers, but sent Cecil Stewart to the mound to finish the game. Major had a quiet bench at Archie Major had a quiet coaching and stop the instant he got his chance on the mound last night at the bat hitting, two circuit blows a double and a single, which down at Point Anne Klaer also hit for the four-base route. Leo Goyer, who has returned home from the Kingston hockey wars, made his first appearance with the juniors and hit a home run as a pinch-hitter.

Believe it or not—Charlie Gehringer, Detroit second-sacker, can hardly remember all keystone sack mates. Gehringer, who has been played with no less than twenty-two shortstops since he joined the Tigers over 15 years ago.

Paavo Nurmi, the "Phantom Finn" of the early days, has been the pointed coach of the athletes at the Finnish training institute in Pyatsi. Nurmi opened a haberdashery in Helsinki and tourists from all over the world visit his store in hopes of shaking his hand. He also owns a sporting goods store in Helsinki—one that the Russian bombers missed. Incidentally, the Finnish people welcome Nurmi back into their midst and are hoping for the day of another "Flying Finn" to take Nurmi's place in the field of sports.

SEIZURE POWERS ASKED, NEEDED SAYS STIMSON

Will Relieve Machine Tool Bottlenecks, and Aluminum Shortages

BILL IMPORTANT

Washington, June 5 (AP) — War Secretary Stimson said today that property seizure powers asked for the President were needed to relieve machine tool bottlenecks, aluminum shortages and German patent controls on vital defence processes, and should not be delayed by any "frivolous objections" in Congress.

Discussing the requisition bill at a press conference, Stimson said he believed there would be "no serious objection" to imposing a two or four year time limit on the proposed powers."

He was willing to accept a time limit, the War Department head said, if that would help "the feeling of those who believed they are spitting the crumps on a would-be dictator."

Stimson said that the bill was regarded as "most important" before Congress and "ought to be passed with as little delay as possible."

"On one side," he added, "we are being pounded for not going faster and on the other we are meeting frivolous objections to the methods we asked to help us go faster."

The War Department proposed the enactment of the bill giving President Roosevelt unlimited powers to take over private property and it had the support of the navy and O.P.M. In Congress, however, it has met with a variety of criticism.

Discussing the needs which he said lay behind the proposal, Mr. Stimson mentioned machine tools as an example. He said there were many machine tools not in use at all or collected by second hand dealers "who are trying to hold up the government."

Bodies of Three Burned in Fire Placed in Grave

Kirkland Lake, Ont., June 5 (CP). —Bodies of the three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Olivia Lafrenier, burned to death near the Martin Bird Mine yesterday, were buried here today ahead of funeral rites at Assumption Roman Catholic Church.

The children, Irene, six, Novela, five, and Wilfred, four, died when they were trapped in a blazing shack near the mine which is 25 miles east here. The family had accompanied the father to the Martin Bird Mine district when he was engaged in cutting wood. They recently had moved from Kirkland Lake to Larder Lake.

While the father was in the bush, he learned today aboard a plane in an abandoned shack. When the fire started Mrs. Lafrenier, who was nearby, attempted to crawl through a window into the blazing building but the was unsuccessful, receiving severe hand cuts before she finally was driven back by smoke and flames.

The fire spread to and destroyed several other small wooden buildings in the vicinity before being brought under control by mine workers and Larder Lake firemen. No mine buildings were damaged.

VICTORY LOAN TORCH REACHES BRANTFORD

Brantford, Ont., June 5 (CP)— The Victory Loan torch arrived in Brantford today aboard a bomber and thousands jammed the airfield and park to view the symbol of Canada's determination to prosecute the war with all its resources.

The torch, to be flown across the Atlantic to Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, was received by Mayor J. P. Ryan, while a choir of 500 patriotic songs. Following the signing of the scroll by the Mayor and other officials and the taking of pledges, a procession, including 1,200 members of the military forces and a number of flouts, moved through the city.

SAVED FROM DROWNING

Caledon, Ont., June 5 (CP)—Two Hillburg, Ont., youths were recovering today from effects of a near-drowning after their automobile left the road yesterday and overturned in the Credit river, three miles west of here. Caledon is about 30 miles west of Toronto.

J. I. McDonald, lunch stand operator, was credited with saving the lives of the two, Bert Tarswell and John Lang, both 17. McDonald extricated them from the machine and applied artificial respiration to one of them, reviving him just before the arrival of a doctor.

NAZI USE FRENCH-TYPE PLANES

New York, June 5—(AP)—French-type planes bombed the trans-Jordan capital of Amman yesterday in reprisal for British bombing of a Beirut gasoline dump, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported today.

This action, the BBC announced said, "lends support to the theory that the French-type planes which were seen from the Turkish coast, flying from Rhodes to Syria, were manned by German pilots".

Cadet Corps of Queen Victoria School Complimented by Inspecting Officer

Marching with the skill and precision of veterans that' elicited hearty commendation not only from Inspecting Officer Captain S. R. Wilkins, M.C., but from other officials as well, the cadet corps of Queen Victoria High School underwent its annual inspection this morning before an attendance of pupils, teachers and parents.

To the music of the school's own 40-piece band under the baton of Alfred Cooper, the corps paraded in review order, salutes of route, battalion and company order by the saluting base, the corps drill and other manoeuvres showed distinct evidence of intensive training and upheld its proud tradition of being the best public school corps in the district.

"The Cadet Corps work should not be taken for granted", Captain Wilkins said in a brief address to the corps following the inspection. "It is the foundation of training for your life to come whether you be in the army, the factory or the office. The cadet corps always be the cadet, no matter where he is. He should be a credit to his community, his school and his family by his bearing in public, his actions here and his attitude at school. You are a distinct credit to your instructor, your school and yourselves."

Smaller Members Praised

The inspecting officer paid a special tribute to the smaller members of the corps. "Your steadiness was fine," he said, "and you showed more than a little school spirit. You appeared to take the inspection for the ride!"

Signal flags flashed in the morning sunlight as the smart signal section went through its manoeuvres. First aid drill demonstrated its ability with bandages, splints and stretcher. A physical training display by the corps featured gymnastics, pyramids, etc., was a feature.

Lt. Col. Grubbe Presents Gold Medal

Lt. Col. Grubbe, M. D. Orlebe, officer commanding the Argyll Light Infantry, Lorne Regt., was present in the gold Medal of the Dominion Rifle Association to Cadet Norman Bowler and the D.C.R.A. Gold Certificate of Membership to William Sharpe. Also participated the corps on its appearances and drill. "I was particularly impressed with the steadiness of the corps" he said. "Open ranks, school underwent a credit to your instructor and your school."

Lieut.-Colonel E. A. Geen, who represented Rev. W. J. Walker, chairman of schools on the Board of Education, presented the Strathcona Silver Medal to the 1940 winner, A. Langsteer and the current winner Bernard Tugnette. He complimented the corps on its ability and evoked rounds of applause when he announced that the rest of the day would be a holiday.

Captain Widdis presented the Dominion Marksmen Bronze Pins for 75 percents efficiency to Cadets N. Bowler and Bertram Stapley, and the Silver Pins for 90 percents efficiency to Cadets Jim Jackson and Bernard Tugnette.

A feature of the inspection was the performance of the school band, some forty youngsters who are rapidly rounding into a fine musical organization.

Capt. Bateman Efficient Instructor

The work of the corps has been brought to its present high state of efficiency by the instructional ability of Captain E. Bateman, of the Argyll, whose interest in this work is exemplified in the appearance and knowledge of cadet work of the corps.

Following the inspection and presentations, the corps marched by the band marched through the streets of the immediate district before being dismissed. Following are the officers, non-commissioned officers and sections of the corps:

Restrictions On Oil in Eastern U. S. Probable Within a Month Says Ickes

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Petroleum Administrator Ickes declared today restrictions on oil consumption in the East was "probable" within a month, and added that he hoped that seven-day operations will be necessary they would be undertaken on a voluntary basis.

The defence chief of all in the populous East, Ickes said, might become necessary that seven day runs on Sundays might be necessary, but hoped that "we can" drive and cut it promises to be some way.

Restrictions now appeared necessary only in the East, he added. Ickes strongly urged the immediately application of Daylight Saving Time to the whole country, and exhorted C. W. Kellogg, President of the Edison Electric Institute, and chief of power for the office of production management, for his recent statement that "the power situation will be found to have been adequately provided for."

There is a power shortage now, Ickes told the press conference, and it promises to become worse.

London, June 5 (CP)—The Oxford Union Society has decided to offer Captain R. A. Pitarro, Speaker of the House of Commons, a year-old dispatch boxes, to replace those destroyed by bombs. The boxes were used by Commons and Peel when they attended Oxford and are facsimiles of those destroyed.

Britain's lifeboat service has rescued more than 3,700 persons since the start of the war.

About 150,000 books and a large collection of valuable manuscripts were lost when Liverpool General Library and Public Museum were damaged in a raid. Valuable documents stored in a strong box in the library were saved.

Men and women who dash into a tavern for an ale during raids find it full of fellow customers. Neglect of Infant Brings Reformatory Sentence of 9 Months

Brockville, Ont., June 5—(CP)—Convicted in Magistrate's Court here today of neglect of an infant, Mrs. Dora Barton, 20, of Prescott, Ont., was sentenced to nine months in the Ontario Reformatory with a three months indefinite term added.

Miss Theresa Gallagher, 17, also of Prescott, found guilty of the same charge after having been fined by Mrs. Barton to care for the child in question, was given a suspended sentence plus two months indeterminate in the Reformatory. Mrs. Barton and the children have been placed in custody of the Children's Aid Society. When found abandoned in a Prescott residence the baby was in a deplorable state of neglect.

These new marks were made by Smith in seven days in different pools.

Is U.S. in July

No less an authority than Stan Braumingen, coach of the famous Chicago Towers club, thinks Billy Smith is the greatest free style swimmer of all time. Braumingen should know, for he has been coaching swimming for 23 years in all parts of the world.

Smith, only recently turned 17, is a junior at the Baldwin High School in Maui and is coached by world Champion Soichi Sakamoto.

Smith's greatest performance was the men's National A.A.U. outdoor team championship in 1939 and again last year.

The national young swimmer, who has been competing in meets for only three years, weighs around 170 pounds and is big for his age. He is the first swimmer of Hawaiian blood to break any records since Duke Kahanamoku.

Smith will compete in the United States A.A.U. outdoor championships to be held in St. Louis in July. He should be the outstanding performer in the meet.

SIGNALLERS HOLD SPORTS DAY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Officers and Men Forgot War Problems to Enjoy Sports Program

MANY SPECTATORS

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in Britain, June 5 (CP)—Canadian soldiers had their biggest reunion of the war when the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals held its sports day.

Officers and men forgot war problems to join in sports events on a field beside the 1st Canadian Corps Signals Officers' Mess.

Apart from the Provincial Colonel-in-Chief of the R.C.C.S., the highlight of the programme was the sports meeting drew 2,800 spectators.

Soldiers came from many parts of England, greeting old friends for the first time since they arrived from Canada. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Corps Commander, and Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum, Commander of the 2nd Division, were on hand as well as many officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Corps of Signals.

Signals Win Honors

The 2nd Divisional Signals swept to easy victories in the sports events, scoring 61 of a possible 63 points. The 1st Divisional Signals were second with 13 points, followed by the 1st Canadian Signals unit with one and the Canadian Corps Signals with three.

Captained by Sigmn. A. Cubits, of Verdun, Que., the 2nd Division edged out the 1st Division's softball team 16-13 in the feature game, holding unit 26-13 in the semi-final.

The tug-of-war was a 2nd Division walkaway all the way. Coached by Sigmn. C. Dodds of Toronto and Captained by Cpl. G. W. Duke of Montreal, they beat the 1st Division in two straight pulls in the opening set, and the Golden-Gord final for corps in the afternoon.

Kingston Man Wins

The champions, who went into rigid training for the event and had built a training table for the week, scored another victory in the 880-yard run, Gunner Ken Lincoln, of the holding unit and 1st Division in 2:16 minutes.

Sigmn. N. W. Griffin of Kingston, Ont., was the individual star of the winners.

Cpl. A. S. Broomfield, who used to run for Toronto West End Y, added to the 2nd Div. total of 61 with victories in the 880-yard run and broad jump.

In the 880 yards L. Cpl. T. A. Jacombs, of Hamilton, A leap of 21 feet 2½ inches gave Sigmn. Griffin first place in the broad jump over Cpl. Broomfield of Bridgeway Ont.

Wins 100-Yard Dash

Simon, in the 1st Division, won the 100 yards dash in 10.3 seconds after winning the 220 in 23.2. Sigmn. Griffin was second.

The 1st Division medley relay team, captained by Maj. C. S. McKee, of Toronto, won a race in which all ranks from Lieutenant-Colonel down took part. Lieutenant-Colonels and Regimental Sergeants-Major ran 25 yards, Majors and Sergeants 50, Captains and Corporals 75 and Lieutenants and Signalmen 100.

Prize winners were presented to the competitors still wearing shorts and sleeveless sweater.

Sgt. W. Brook of London, Ont., had to be helped to the stand to receive his medal for the medley relay. Captain of the team, Sgt. Brooks, who played with London, Ont., injured his foot in a motorcycle accident before the field day.

KNEW HIS STUFF

Thomas Cole, an English astrologer who predicted "staggering" events for May 11 was killed that day by a German bomb.

FINNS GOOD WALKERS

Finland won its nation-wide walking contest with Sweden, qualifying 600,000 persons as compared with 1,100,000.

NEWARK CATCHER BELTING BALL AT .356 CLIP

Kee Sears Picked to Replace Bill Dickey of the Yankees in Near Future

BEARS SECOND

(By the Associated Press)

One of the reasons Newark Bears are in first place in International League baseball has been the timely and consistent hitting of their young catcher, Kee Sears.

The son of the National League umpire, Ziggy Sears, has been belting the ball at a .356 clip for the season and is leading the league in batting.

Only 22 years old, the big left-handed slugger has already been nominated by some fans as the logical successor to Bill Dickey, when the day comes for the great Yankee star to retire.

Sears started his baseball career three years ago when he left the University of Alabama and joined the Yankee farm system. He was sent to Amsterdam of the Canadian-American League in 1938 and to Norfolk in the Piedmont League in 1939.

Last year he made the long jump from B to double A at Newark and racked up a batting mark of .356 in 40 games.

The Bears remained a half game out in front yesterday when the weather man took a hand in the tight race and washed out the entire program.

Today the Bears meet the third-place Rochester Red Wings in an afternoon doubleheader at Ruppert Stadium, while Jersey City clashes with Montreal here. Buffalo plays Syracuse and second-place Montreal entertains Baltimore in two night games.

NATIONAL OPEN AT FORTH WORTH

Byron Nelson, Former Fort Worth Caddy, Favored to Win Tourney

By WILLIAM T. RIVES

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Fort Worth, Tex., June 5—(AP) Golf's greatest extravaganza—the National Open—started today in the cow country of Texas, the scene of many a big fat pay day for a band of professionals rarely as favorites to conquer the Colonial Club course.

All records attendant to the tournament teetered as the field of contenders began the 36-36—72 layout, which had had the finest golfers in the United States muttering through practice rounds.

Included as favorite was lean Byron Nelson, former Fort Worth caddy whose string-straight game appeared made to order for the baffling course.

Close behind was Benny Hogan, another local product who is leading in money this year.

Other Texans in the running were: Jimmy Demaret, who toted bags around Houston courses in early years; Ray Mangrum brothers, Lloyd and Ray and Dick Metz.

The talk was all about the Texans and Lawson Little, defending champion, a stranger in the country squire from Connecticut who breezed in with two-under-par 68 yesterday; Sammy Snead, from Hot Springs, Va., whose hitting is playing well despite an failing putting; Craig Wood and Paul Runyan.

Special rules appeared in prospect because heavy rains early in the week soaked the 7,005-yard course. Under the rules, players would be permitted to lift balls from the gumbo mud at some fairway points.

More than home fires must be kept burning in this war!

The Torch of Freedom has been lighted. Keep it burning. Let Churchill and Britain and the Empire knew we send not only the Torch but our full financial support.

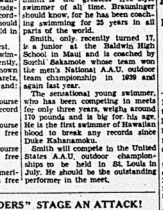
TOBRUK "DEFENDERS" STAGE AN ATTACK!



When the history of the war in Africa is written, no small part will be devoted to the gallant fighting of Imperial forces; not only held Italo-German legions at bay, but actually rallied forth in extensive raids, capturing prisoners and weapons. Here is an actual war scene with guns manned by Anzacs making things hot for the German Nazis, who gained a precarious foothold on the other perimeter defence at Tobruk.

I couldn't face the grease in dishwashing

SO I TRIED RINSO — and the grease vanished in no time!

GREASY water, greasy dishpan, greasy hands and greasy dishes! I couldn't face another day of it! Then I tried Rinso. Astounding! In a minute all the grease was dissolved by the Rinso suds. Dishes came out shining and dried so easily. My dishwashing was done in no time! Try Rinso for your dishes. For greater economy get the Giant package.

Honeymoon Gold

By PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER FIVE

Again he was still, and they saw the white line that etched itself about his mouth. The silence that at time lasted longer. He looked up at last, from Tom's concerned, interested face to Betsy's.

"Nancy was killed in an automobile crash on her way to the church for our wedding." He brought the words out as though each one must be torn loose separately, with a sickening moment of agony.

Betsy cried out, a little stricken cry of deep pity; Tom said something in an undertone that expressed his thoughts; Mr. Markham smiled at them, a smile that was little more than a grimace.

"So you see, I have a great anxiety to feel that at least some few people should know the happiness Nancy and I might have had on Halycon Island," said Mr. Markham after a long moment. "I've had plans drawn up. The house that Nancy and I planned is to be built. Surrounding it will be six small cottages, far enough apart to give the privacy that all honeymooning couples want, yet close enough so that they need not feel isolated. It is my plan that six honeymooning couples be selected to come to the island for periods of 30 days; yes, as hot and hostess, will occupy the house that Nancy and I planned. It will be your duty to select, from a vast number of applications, the couples who are to come. And you are to see to it that they are made comfortable for their happiness will, of course, be a thing they themselves will have to attend to."

He smiled a little at their surprised faces, and after a moment he asked quietly, "Well, what do you think of the job I am offering you?"

"It sounds too fantastic and much too wonderful to be true," said Tom swiftly.

BETSY WAS on her feet now, her face quite white, her eyes wide. "There's something you have to know about me, Mr. Markham, before you decide definitely that you want me for the job," she said clearly, avoiding Tom's startled eyes. "You've probably investigated Tom's background and references and all that—haven't you?"

"As a matter of fact, I have," answered Mr. Markham evenly. "I know beyond a doubt that he is exactly the man I want."

"But you probably won't want me when I tell you the truth about myself," said Betsy, speaking quite clearly though with an effort. "In the first place, I'm—not—a Cinderella girl."

"Oh, for Pete's sake!" Tom said sharply.

But Mr. Markham held up a thin hand to silence Tom and his eyes met Betsy's straightly. "Suppose you go on, my dear," he said quietly.

Betsy was scarlet now, her fingers twisting the silver cord that knotted the rose-colored velvet about her slender body, her eyes clinging to Mr. Markham's, trying desperately not to see Tom's startled, accusing face just behind Mr. Markham.

"Well—you see, I—I'm in love with a married man," said Betsy shakily. "That's why I ran away down here. And after the firm I worked for transferred to Atlanta and when my money gave out and I couldn't find another job, I was going to commit suicide — only Tom came along and stopped me."

"So you are in love with a married man!" said Mr. Markham, his voice was level, almost expressionless. "ARE—or WERE?"

"I'm still in love with him," said Betsy, setting her teeth hard above the little sob that tried to clutch her throat. "I'll always be crazy about him, I guess. He's a pretty wonderful person."

"And is he in love with you?" asked Mr. Markham gently.

Betsy's eyes widened enormously and she gasped.

"Oh, goodness, no! Why, he doesn't know I'm on earth. He adores his wife; she's beautiful and good and—well, everybody thinks she's wonderful. I do, too. That's why I felt so terrible when I knew I was in love with him."

"Then he doesn't know that you're in love with him?" asked Mr. Markham, while Tom merely sat silent and listened.

"Oh, goodness, no!" gasped Betsy, as though shocked at the bare idea. "He'd just about have a fit if he thought—why, I was just a stenographer in his office. I suppose most of the girls working there are pretty crazy about him, but I—I KNEW I loved him. There wasn't anything for me to do but run away before I made a fool of myself."

Mr. Markham nodded gravely. "But you DID run away!" he pointed out.

"Of course. What else could I do?"

Mr. Markham looked up at Tom and smiled faintly.

"I think she's the girl for the job, don't you?" he asked, smiling a little. "She's a square shooter, obviously, or she'd have stayed around the office and tried to vamp the boss—don't you think?"

Tom nodded. "I knew she was a square shooter before I'd talked to her half an hour," he said gravely. Betsy was scarlet now, her eyes radiant as she looked from one to the other of the two men.

"You—you mean I can stay? That I can have the job?" she stammered, faint with new hope.

"Your honesty in telling us something that you might quite easily have kept as a secret—something we really have no right to know, my dear, is sufficient proof of me that you can be trusted," said Mr. Markham quietly. "If Tom feels as I do—"

Tom was studying her curiously and, as though interpreting emotion in Mr. Markham's voice, he asked Betsy, "Why did you tell us this?"

Betsy's eyes fell. "So that neither you nor Mr. Markham would believe that—that—well, that you and I might be one of the honeymooning couples," she confessed almost humbly. "I didn't want you to think there was any danger of my falling in love with you—"

"Or of my falling in love with you?" Tom finished for her, looking a trifle resentful. "Well, you needn't be afraid, lady. I can assure you there's not the slightest danger of my falling in love with you. In the first place, you're not my type."

She flushed a little beneath the sting in his voice and Mr. Markham brushed his hand across his lips as though to conceal a faint smile. And then he said briskly, "Well, now that we seem agreed that you are to be queen of Halcyon Island, shall we say good night? Meanwhile, you are to stay here, as my guests — that is, of course, if you do not object? I can get around very well and will be by constantly consulting, conferring. It will make much more than simple if you will just be my guests until the island quarters are ready."

Betsy said quietly, "Because, of course, you know we are homeless and penniless and we haven't any place to go—"

"Nut!" said Tom.

"My dear, I hope you will neither of you give me friendless while I live or homeless. We are going to have a lot of fun, we three, and it makes me very happy indeed to have you here with me. Burton will show you to your rooms and we will continue this discussion in the morning. My doctor insists, you know, that I keep rather early hours."

Burton appeared at the door, although neither Betsy nor Tom had seen Mr. Markham give any signal of a call bell. But there he was, correctly expressionless, watchful.

"Burton, Miss Carter and Mr. Forman are going to be my guests for a few weeks. Will you see that they are shown in the rooms prepared for them?"

Burton bowed.

Betsy and Tom said good night to Mr. Markham and followed Burton up the stairs. At the first door on the left of the landing, where Betsy had changed her wet garments earlier in the evening, Burton paused, opened the door and said politely, "This is the room prepared for you, Miss Carter. If there is anything you need, just call."

He turned to Tom and said politely, "This is a little farther down this way, sir."

Betsy lingered to look down at Betsy, his face grave, almost stern. "I don't know why you should be necessary to stage that little confessional scene downstairs. But you have bothered warming me before, and I thought I told you at the time that I understood that this was strictly a business arrangement."

"Yes, sir, did," said Betsy swiftly. "But he's so wonderful. I couldn't let him deceive him — about us. And—well, I thought you should have the right to decide whether you wanted to—to—work with me or not."

Tom looked at Betsy hard for a moment, his eyes angry and puzzled, and then he turned on his heel and walked away to where Burton was waiting.

Betsy went in and closed the door, her face hidden behind her. The whole evening had been so amazing, so utterly incredible, that she had the feeling of being a sort of a dream. She wondered if she would also wake up and find it all a dream? Find herself huddled on the beach, to wake up to see that men in work out into those turquoise white-tipped waters and all her old troubled, unhappy business of living? She shivered a little and put her hands against her hot cheeks. And then she smiled, even as she was tired or troubled or worried, she seemed to see Dirk Maynard's dark, handsome face, his smile a flash of white teeth, his dark eyes almost caressing—even though when he looked at you like that you knew he wasn't really seeing you; he was thinking of that exquisite creature who was his wife; the lovely, fragile, blue-eyed blonde who sometimes trailed her expensive furs and her exotic perfume through the studio when she came that way to Dirk's private sanctum.

Betsy sighed, and a wild clutch of pain and loneliness held her in its grip. She was hungry for the sight of Dirk's face, for sound of his voice, for just the look of him as he came swinging through the office with that air of a conqueror-hero home from the wars, which was an integral part of his audacious charm.

And she was a little ashamed of herself that when she had got herself out of the lovely velvet gown and into the fresh, dainty nightgown that Burton had placed so neatly on the bed, she crept into bed and cried herself to sleep; because she was so lonely for the dear, familiar, dangerous warmth of Dirk Maynard's presence.

Diamond

The famous Vargas diamond which weighs about half a pound troy and which is said to have cost Mr. Harry Oakes nothing but the rough, is now in the skilful hands of Mr. Adrian Grassely, whose nerve-wracking task it is to reduce it to fragments which will eventually glitter on fingers, throats and breasts, states The New York Times. It is the usual practice to cleave such a stone with a sharp blow of a steel blade. But the Vargas is an anomaly. A freakish twist of its grain was detected by patient optical study, so freakish that it was decided to cut and cleave afterward.

The square edge of the saw, a disk of phosphor bronze which is about four inches in diameter and between .005 and .002 of an inch in thickness, digs into the stone, covered with a mixture of diamond dust and olive oil. Mr. Grassely did some worrying and sweating before the first day's saw made no impression on the surface. Now that he has cut the stone, the even more ticklish process of cleaving remains. This process involves an intimate knowledge of the Vargas stone's structure—a knowledge acquired only after weeks and months of painstaking study. Unlike sawing, cleaving takes place with the grain. The right plane must be established and then marked by a groove which is scratched deeper and deeper with a series of sharper and sharper diamond edges. Then a steel blade, much like that of a carving knife, except that its edge is square, is inserted. A single tap with a special mallet and the diamond falls apart—if the cleaver's deductions are correct.

Evidently the accomplished Mr. Grassely's worries have only begun. When Joseph Asscher split the famous Cullinan diamond a doctor and two nurses were in attendance to revive him if his weak heart were to fail. After delivering the tap that was to spell success or failure he collapsed. It took him three months to recuperate in a hospital. We hope that Mr. Grassely's heart is as good as his nerves must be, since that even Lloyd's will not insure is something that not even the surest hand itches to split. But when it is split and falls apart in accordance with shrewd prediction, what a sense of triumph must be that of the man who delivers the fateful tap.—Windsor Star.

Dutch East Indies Replies to Japanese Economic Proposals

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, June 5 (AP)—The Netherlands East Indies will deliver an answer to Japan's economic proposals today as for an economic agreement designed to boost exports of vital commodities to Japan, official sources said today.

Although the nature of the reply was not disclosed, it was understood that Netherlands authorities would offer to meet export quotas based on a survey of Japanese imports during the past year and calculated to provide for an economic agreement designed to boost exports of vital commodities to Japan, official sources said today.

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning at brekfast ma said to pop, pop, if a man is slim and comparatively young, and the most of the time is full of pep, and he dreamed I was a tottering old woman with 2 crutches and no teeth, and all my wrinkles were peeping around corners at me and whispering and sniking each other if I had made my will yet. It was simply too gawdy, Willyum, and the wirst of it was, it was so long and dragged out and I remember all so all too well, unfortunately. Why cant the happy dreams have their details behilnt them like that? My, just listen while I tell you, Willyum, and see if you dont agree it was one of the most fullest dreams anyone could have, she said.

Now that's a strange one, I had but the opposite dream last night pop said. I dreamed we were moving into a new house and I was helping the moving men get the stuff out of the van, and our new next store neighbor came and read out of her window and called to me, Hey, I'll bet you're moving, isn't it? and just then you came out to our new front door and said, What a lovely day for moving, and our mother said, Why that's just what I was saying to your son here.

You may think that's strange but I dont, ma said. Nobody could possibly think you were my son with this bald head of yours as such a telltale indication that time has left her behind in the 90s and said, and pop said, Naturally, but of course I'm glad to hear it.

It's all very well to say it was only a dream but your dreams are infallible indications of your hidden inner thoughts, and if you have any erroneous misconception that you look younger than I do, just let me tell you that it wasn't very long ago that somebody asked me pointblank if I was your 2nd wife, and not in a dream, either, ma said. Just for that, I'm not going to tell you the details of my dream, so you can go straight to your office in ignorance, she said.

Why you did, trying not to look as lucky as he felt.

No Decision Yet On Third Trial

Toronto, June 5 (CP).—No third trial for Leon Beckerman, Toronto aircraftsman High Accredited Member of Toronto whose second trial on a charge of murdering his wife, Anne, ended last night in a jury disagreement.

"The matter is under consideration by myself with the law enforcement officers of the town," Attorney-General Gordon Conant said today. "The only person who can order a re-trial is the Attorney-General."

Crown Attorney J. W. McPadden said there is no legal limit to the number of re-trials in such cases.

It was reported that the Supreme Court jury which heard the case in Newell's second trial last night voted seven to five for conviction.

WOMEN OF CANADA!

Help keep the war away from your own doorstep. BUY—urge your menfolk to buy—VICTORY BONDS

The loss of all that you hold dear is threatened. Your home is now only ten bomber-plane hours from "over there."

Night and day, in the British Isles and on the sea, in and out of uniform, men defend your hearthstone as surely as though they stood and fought at your own doorstep. They need more tools to carry on this fight — your fight. Decide now that their efforts shall not fail through any failure on your part.

Much money is needed to buy more ships, planes and tanks, to keep the war away from Canada, to ensure Empire victory. We must win. Lend your Government some of your savings by buying Victory Bonds. Lend to preserve the things that money cannot buy. Your security is all of Canada's. Your money will come back to you with interest.

GREAT AND LOWLY PAY GEHRIG TRIBUTE

A poignant scene in the Church of the Divine Paternity in New York, as George Ruppert, partowner of the N. Y. Yankees, is joined by schoolboy baseball fans in paying homage at the bier of Lou Gehrig, one of baseball's best loved players of all time. Lou played 2,130 consecutive championship games, many of them under Jacob Ruppert's direction. Mrs. Gehrig is shown at the left.

WOMEN NOW "MAN" THE MOP-UP SQUAD

British women are now being assigned to duty with the squads that clean the debris after air raids and to other tasks that heretofore were regarded as "man's work," it said.

These informants said that Sarcoglu informed the envoy that Turkey was prepared to take additional security measures along her southeast frontier, facing the Syrian French mandate and Iraq.

Washington, June 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt Wednesday signed legislation to give $100 a month additional pay to officers and $50 addition to enlisted men in the United States armed forces who serve in parachute jumping units.

Mrs. Francis Kellam and her daughter, Edith, are shown at work in Chelsea Barracks, London, and to the mother of 13 children, five of whom are serving with British forces.

Axis Submarines Extend Zone Of Operations to 700 Mi. East Of Labrador; Many Ships Lost

New York, June 5 (AP)—Maritime sources, disclosing the recent torpedoing of eight British ships, totalling 54,368 tons, revealed that axis submarines had extended their work of destruction two-thirds of the way across the Atlantic to within 700 miles of the American continent.

They said that four British ships were torpedoed in a single day in positions roughly 700 miles east of Labrador and about 350 miles south of the tip of Greenland—an area presumably covered by the U.S. neutrality patrol. This would place the axis submarines 1,400 miles west of Ireland, indicating powerful long range vessels were in use.

The ships were identified as the San Felix, motorship tanker, 13,037 tons; Rothermere, freighter, 5,336 tons; British Security, motorship tanker, 8,470 tons, and Darlington Court, motorship freighter, 4,974 tons. The Darlington Court was reportedly en route to England with cargo loaded at Albany and New York City.

Three British freighters were also reported sunk recently.

Ramilies, 4,353 tons; Starcross, 4,662 tons; Silvereye, 6,373 tons and Clan MacDougall, 6,843 tons.

The Silvereye and Clan MacDougall were torpedoed simultaneously near the Cape Verde Islands and the other two were struck off the Irish coast.

FELT TIRED, RUNDOWN AND FULL OF ACHES AND PAINS

Tells of Restored Energy and Improved Health After Taking Syntona. Had Suffered Three Years With Stomach Troubles, Headaches, Backache, Nervousness and Sleeplessness.

MRS. ESTHER WHEATLEY

Mrs. Esther Wheatley, 48 Becker street, London, is another local lady who is glad to pass her experience with Syntona along to others, as she knows how much it has meant to her. Mrs. Wheatley reports as follows:

"I am the mother of four children and ever since my first baby was born I have had stomach trouble. The headache that accompanied it so bad I could hardly get up and down stairs. Although I often had morning pains, I had no real appetite and food just seemed to sit there. Constipation was the cause, too, and bad breathing. I was subject to dizzy, bilious spells and severe throbbing headaches. My nerves were on edge and I had lost so much weight I felt weak all the time and dragged my feet through all the work to be done.

"I had tried all kinds of medicines and tonics, but nothing helped me at all. Then, months ago, one day I was told about Syntona. I found that it was just helping me. I wasn't taking it long before my appetite picked up and my food began to digest better. Now, after a few weeks, I have got relief from the pains in my back and limbs, I am free of headaches and bilious spells, my nerves are relaxed and I sleep better. My whole system has improved to such a degree that I am glad to tell others. Syntona's large medicine size will feel tired out all the time like I used to."

Let this pure Herbal Tonic help you as it has hundreds of other local men and women. It is pleasant to take and quick to act. Syntona is sold and recommended in Bellevilla at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Britain, Germany In Strategic Moves Jockey for Position

Reports of Nazi Troop Infiltrations Into Syria Bring Warning From Press "Position is Grave"

CYPRUS FOCAL POINT

London, June 6 (CP)—Belief the Nazis were reinforcing their North African army in preparation for a drive on Suez caused new concern today as Britain and Germany jockeyed for position in an impending battle for control of Syria.

There were indications British troops might move into the strategically-situated French mandate as any moment in an effort to gain the jump on the Nazis. Reliable sources said the long-awaited shove down in the Middle East could not long be averted.

Reports of new Nazi troop infiltrations into Syria brought warnings from the press that Britain's position is grave. There were increasing demands for decisive action to meet the situation.

(Berlin sources claimed "there are no German troops in Syria."

Some Landed at Cyprus

(The German radio, quoting dispatches from Beirut, claimed British soldiers were preparing to land on the North Syrian coast and to attack from Palestine and trans-Jordan. The same source said a large portion of the British forces reached from Crete had been landed at Cyprus, off the Syrian coast.

(Fighting continued in Asiatic Turkey, said in a broadcast last night that Nazi troops were reported to have occupied Damascus, Syria, only 60 miles north of the

ITALIAN AIRCRAFT ATTACKED BY RAF

Airdromes at Aleppo, Island of Rhodes Raided and Planes Damaged

Cairo, Egypt, June 6 (AP)—Royal Air Force bombers destroyed an Italian plane on Aleppo airdrome in Syria yesterday, the R.A.F. Middle East command announced today in the first definite allegation that Fascist aircraft were in the Vichy-ruled state.

The presence of the Italian planes at the northern Syrian air base led the British to attack them, the communique said, after British learned the Germans were using airdromes there as way stops en route to Iraq.

Besides hitting planes on the landing field, today's war bulletin said, bits were registered on hangars and runways.

Columns of smoke arise from the asphalt runways, it added.

In a heavy night attack on Kattavia Airdrome, island of Rhodes, Wednesday night, the R.A.F. set off a number of explosions which were followed by fires.

Still other raids were made on Derna and Benghazi, the latter to assist in the air force's attack on Axis supplies in North Africa, and the High Command said buildings and harbor facilities were hit.

MOLOTOV MAY VISIT JAPAN

Tokyo, June 6.—(AP)—The Japan paper Hochi reported today that Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov probably will visit Japan this summer, returning the visit which Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka paid to Moscow recently. There was no confirmation from other quarters.

2 AIRMEN KILLED NEAR YORKTON

Aircraft Dived to Earth From 1,000 Feet Shortly After Takeoff

Yorkton, Sask., June 6 (CP)—Two Royal Canadian Air Force men were killed early today when the Harvard training plane in which they were flying crashed three miles northeast of No. 11 Service Flying Training School here.

The mch killed were Fit. Lt. J. E. MacDonald, pilot of the machine and Sgt. T. Sharples, passenger. R.C.A.F. officials gave Fit. Lt. MacDonald's next of kin as Mrs. M. B. MacDonald, mother, Regina, with Sgt. Sharples' next of kin was listed as Mrs. A. Sharples, mother, Winnipeg.

Both men were attached to No. 11 School as instructors under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. At the time of the crash, which occurred at 4.55 a.m. (D.S.T. Fit. Lt. MacDonald was coaching Sgt. Sharples on night flying. The aircraft dived to earth from a height of 1,000 feet shortly after it had taken off.

The ayell Harvard Trainer was destroyed.

Air Force officials said the cause of the crash is unknown. They determined but that a court of inquiry will be convened immediately.

No 11 Service Flying Training School is under command of No. 2 Command of the R.C.A.F., with headquarters in Winnipeg.

3 SUPPLY SHIPS, ARMED TRAWLER SUNK BY NAVY

Believe Ships Intended To Supply Bismarck and Other Nazi Warships

LOCATION UNDISCLOSED

London, June 6 (CP)—The Admiralty announced today that the Royal Navy had sunk three supply ships and an armed trawler intended to supply the German battleship Bismarck and other Nazi warships.

The Bismarck, which was sunk May 27, three days after destroying the British battle cruiser Hood between Iceland and Greenland, was believed to have a range of about 15,000 miles without refueling.

The Admiralty announcement said, she must have been bound on a long sailing cruise, for supply ships would have been unnecessary for operations within any given area.

With three supply ships—a couple of tankers and a munitions carrier or store ship—the Bismarck could cruise for a year without having to put into port.

They declined to say when or where the supply ships were sunk or to indicate their size.

MANY LARGE ORDERS

Many Large Orders

Ottawa, June 6—(CP)— Cash subscriptions to Canada's $600,000,000 Victory Loan Thursday totalled $200,350,550, more than one-third of subscriptions for the first four days of the loan campaign to $190,267,550, it was announced here.

The total subscriptions for the first four days of the present campaign are more than double the second war loan," the national loan headquarters said in a statement.

Second war loan totalled last January was for $300,000,000.

Thursday's total included subscribers to the current loan during the first four days was 154,300 as compared with 150,890 who in two weeks last January subscribed to the second war loan.

C. P. R. Takes Ten Million

Among the major subscriptions announced this morning was that of the Canadian Pacific Railway for $10,000,000 of which $1,000,000 is for the Canadian Pacific Railway Pension Trust Fund.

The Canadian Locket Company of Canada Ltd., also placed a subscription for $100,000 and the Bronfman Interests and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Limited subscribed for $1,000,000.

Exclusive Squads of Firewatchers Guarding St. Paul's Cathedral

By LOUIS Y. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, June 6 (CP)—St. Paul's cathedral has one of the most exclusive squads of firewatchers in Britain, but their duties, though not them famous, are kept secret.

The squad of 30 firewatchers includes distinguished architects, churchmen and engineers and so great is the pride in the 200-year-old building that they risk their lives repeatedly to keep it from destruction by fire bombs.

St. Paul's has been bombed twice and on more than one night has been surrounded by flames, its silhouetted against a backdrop of flames. The vast dome and its lofty cross-crowned spire continue to ride the skyline of London because of the success of a firewatching system ranked among the most successful yet devised.

A man in the shadowy crypt is linked by a nerve system of telephone wires with the most distant cranny of the building. From his control room in the crypt the shift officer issues orders, drafts men to their patrols and summons help from one part of the cathedral to another.

Each squad is divided into three patrols—the "top men, the "church floor patrol" and the "crypt patrol."

The commanding points on the roof are two or three "top men." From there they must telephone reports of a fire before they cannot reach and extinguish themselves.

Each "top man" is provided with a set of plans of every part of the cathedral—the direct information level, the stone gallery, the church roof, the church floor and the crypt.

They were encouraged to memorize every staircase, window and ledge that might harbor an incendiary bomb, and the aims of their knowledge.

They were drilled in getting to all parts of the roof and taught where every stirrup pump, another hose point and tap, bucket, rake and shovel—all important in combating incendiaries—was placed.

Recognition of Common Citizenship By Britain, the Empire and U. S. Proposed by Leslie Hore-Belisha

Edinburgh, June 6 (CP)—Leslie Hore-Belisha proposed today recognition of common citizenship by Great Britain, the British Empire and the United States as the "most hopeful assurance of the determination of the democracies to establish a new order."

The former War Secretary also suggested that "the industrial effort of the British Empire and the United States, in order to reach its most intensive pitch and fullest scope, should be directed as the military effort of France and Britain was directed in the last war, by a single Allied Council fortified by expert knowledge."

The proposals were made in a speech before the Scottish National Association.

Criticizes Handling of Crete Defence

The former Minister sharply criticized the government's handling of the defence of Crete, which he characterized as a military disaster. "We were not fully informed," he said, "and always for the same reason—lack of information. Lack of preparation and imperfect execution of its project. Each reverse is glossed over by the same series of incompatible explanations, and asked.

GENERAL DENTZ CAUTIONS TROOPS TO DEFEND POSTS

Requests in Broadcast to Troops to Maintain Possession of Territories

DENIES NAZIS IN SYRIA

Damascus, Syria, June 6.— (AP) —Vichy's high commissioner in Syria, Gen. Henri Dentz, has cautioned his troops against "false promises" and denied that military control is in hands of Nazi Germany.

"The command is clear", he said in a radio address last night to the troops—defend our possessions and our honor. Remain your own."

"I simply ask you—the Marshal has given me the mission to maintain our possession of the territories belonging to us or entrusted to our protection. Nothing more, nothing less.

"There is nothing in this contrary to the honor and interests of the people. You have heard me, and have understood me. I owe no more than to you."

C. P. R. Cripps Goes to London

Returning to England for Consultation and Will Soon Return to His Post

London, June 6.—(CP)— Sir Stafford Cripps, British Ambassador to Russia, "will return shortly" for consultation and will go back to his post after a few days in London, it was announced here unofficially today.

Sir Stafford and his wife have left the Soviet capital, flying to Stockholm today on the first leg of their trip home.

"At the foreign secretary's request, Sir Stafford Cripps will shortly return to the United Kingdom for consultation," said the announcement.

"After a few days in London he will return to his post in Moscow. It is the normal procedure for His Majesty's representatives, when they come home for consultations periodically, to receive from him in order that they may be kept in touch with all aspects of the situation."

Unofficial quarters speculated on the possible connection of Sir Stafford's impending consultations with recent foreign reports of Russian and German troop concentrations along the borders of the Soviet Union's western frontiers.

Diplomatic observers in London have been devoting much space to hardening attitude in Russia and to reports of military move against Turkey and possibly Iran (Persia).

Greek Puppet Gov't Set up by Germans Passes New Laws

Berlin, June 6 (AP)—The Greek puppet government set up by the Germans was reported today as adopting the death penalty for any Greek participating in "warlike actions" it was reported today from Athens.

The government also abolished the Greek National Youth organization "Don," which was formed by the late Premier John Metaxas, it also was reported.

("Warlike actions" presumably mean pro-British manifestations, which are reported to be occurring frequently since the German occupation.)

HITLER CONFERS AT BERCHTESGADEN

Berlin, June 6.—(AP)—The German news said officially today that Hitler says Hitler conferred at length at Berchtesgaden today with Dr. Alfred Pavelic, leader of the new Croat kingdom. Goering and Foreign Minister Ribbentrop also attended.

THE NETHERLANDS REPLY TO JAPAN IS UNFAVORABLE

Not Willing to Give Japan a Large Share Of Indies Output of Rubber, Oil and Tin

CONTENTS NOT GIVEN

By RELMAN MORIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, June 6 —(AP)— The Netherlands delivered a generally unfavorable reply today to Japanese demands for a large share of the Indies output of war materials of rubber, oil and tin, but the chief of the Japanese delegation indicated he was not prepared to break off negotiations summarily, as he had intimated beforehand he would do.

After receiving the 10-page memorandum in a 90-minute conference, Kenichi Yoshima, chief of the Japanese delegations, said it was "disappointing," but he did not think Tokyo would find it satisfactory.

Although he had said previously that the negotiations were teetering on a "precipice," with implications of danger to friendly relations with the U. S., which substantially bowed to Japan's wishes, he said today he would have to study the reply more closely.

Leaves Room for Clarification

Yoshikawa explained this apparent contradiction by declaring that "the Netherlands answer leaves room for clarification and that therefore the chief Netherlands negotiator, Dr. H. J. Van Mook, can agree on some points, but it is my impression that agreement will be very difficult on others."

Although the reply was not made public, reliable sources said it carefully steered a middle course, offering to maintain normal trade relations without furnishing Japan much of any important commodity.

Japan has been negotiating almost a year for a large share of the Indies' rich trade riches, without success, despite recurrent delays.

The final reply is understood to offer much smaller quantities, than Japan originally had asked, with provision that the volume be based on the annual average of exports and imports from the past five years that none go to Germany and that the needs of the Indies, including Great Britain will take precedence in any case.

Actual amounts involved never have been disclosed by either side.

British Empire Warships so Common In Halifax They Hardly Get a Glance

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, June 6 (AP)—British Empire warships are common as fog in Halifax.

The sight is so common that work-bound citizens hardly look up from their morning papers.

Canadian Government censors will not release the Convoy Conference. But they must recognize the fact that the port is busy as ever. Forbidden is publication of actual movements of ships in and out of harbor. I found them most co-operative and helpful.

On the other hand, for military reasons, various news stories originating anywhere from Montreal eastward must sometimes bear the censorship date line, "At Eastern Canadian Port."

The anonymous date line is occasionally a joke hereabouts. When Judge R. H. Murray was late for court the other day, he apologized to the lawyers who had been waiting, saying he had come from home across the harbor.

"I thought you were coming an East Coast Canadian harbor," he said.

People here take the war every bit as seriously as if they were being bombed every night.

Stop a few moments out by the freight yards next to Bedford Basin the great anchorage zone. Thousands of cars are loaded with lumber, military stores, mystery other war supplies. Peer across the yards into the Basin, and see the big bombers from the United States on the decks of freighters.

In no time at all a couple of Mounties are at your side, asking for your credentials and your business. If you can't explain yourself, you're in trouble. Visitors don't fool. And as far as the loading docks are concerned you don't get by without hailing distance without being faced by a grim guard armed with a rifle.

But sabotage is infrequent at this point unlimited of aid for Britain. The worst yet are the tales empty agents tell in the States, about how Canada will confiscate tourist automobiles, charge ferries a dollar for gas. And of course, is pure hokum.

Nova Scotians are still chuckling good-naturedly about the great tourist panic of last year, 1940, the day war was declared in London. Down in Nova Scotia the tourists rushed the steamship agencies demanding passage home before Hitler's bombers arrived. Everyone believe Americans know there's no danger of that now.

Roosevelt Orders Terms of New Act To be Carried Out

Tells Press Conference Legislation Includes Ships in U.S. Waters, Philippines, Canal Zone

OPERATION OF ACT

Washington, June 6.— (AP)— President Roosevelt signed today Legislation permitting the government to take over and operate the approximately 80 foreign ships now idle in United States waters.

The presidentially-operated order-ed the Maritime Commission to carry out terms of the Act.

At a press conference the President said the order authorized the Commission to—

Purchase, requisition, charter, or take over all foreign ship, lying idle in waters of the United States, including those of the Philippines and canal zone.

Operate any of them in the service of the United States directly or through an agent.

Charter or lease any of them for foreign or coastwise service, but not to any belligerent government without presidential approval.

Document the vessel under the laws of the United States or of a neutral nation of the western hemisphere.

Make just compensation to the owners.

No News About French Ship

The President said he did not know how many ships will be affected or which would be taken first. He said also he did not know whether any French vessels would be included.

The measure, sponsored by the administration, provides that the government can acquire ships by requisition or purchase or may charter them for the duration of the emergency.

"Fair compensation" would be made to owners, but funds pain would be held in the treasury for possible application against foreign debts to the United States.

Co-operation from the government from taking over, except by outright purchase, any vessels which actually were owned by a foreign government from the outbreak of the war, Sept. 3, 1939. Only an Italian tanker and a small Danish training ship fell into this category.

Besides those 1.2 vessels, foreign ships in United States harbors are as follows: 35 Danish, 14 French, two German, two Estonian, 25 Italian, one Latvian and one Netherlands. The French vessels include the giant luxury liner Normandie, 79,280 tons, pre-war queen of the art fleet, which now is tied up in New York.

RUNAWAY TEAM CRASHES INTO WINDOW

Reminiscent of earlier days when runaway horses were more common than they are today, considerable excitement was occasioned in Stirling earlier in the week when a team owned by Mr. Arthur Scott of that village ran away and crashed into the front of Walter Hillocks' office, breaking a large plate glass window and causing damage to a new washing machine and radio which were on display.

The horses were hitched to a farm wagon and were tethered in a shed at the rear of a/s feed store and they broke loose and ran out the alleyway and onto the street. Hitching the surb the horses were steered into the display window but were out on the street again before they were brought to a halt. Only minor injuries were suffered by the team of horses, but the display window was sadly wrecked.

DEER FEEDS IN ALFALFA FIELD

Deer are seen frequently in the Stirling district according to a news item in The Stirling News-Argus. Indications that deer will be plentiful for the hunting season next fall are carried in the report that in the recent week several residents have seen the animals in the locality but the most dramatic comes from Fred Anderson of Anderson's Island. Mr. Anderson told The News-Argus that a deer feeds in a field or alfalfa on his farm every day.

Council Recommends Parking On One Side of Church St. Only

Several Committees Formed to Deal With Matters Pertaining to City Business

OTHER MOTIONS

A number of recommendations were submitted and adopted by the council committees on Thursday night in preparation for the regular council meeting to be held on Tuesday night. Monday being a public holiday, owing to the celebration of the King's birthday.

It was recommended that parking on Church Street from Bridge Street East to Foundry Street be restricted to parking on the north west side of the street and that no parking be allowed on the east side and that a bylaw be prepared and submitted to council for passing on Tuesday night.

A special committee of the Chairman of Public Works, Ald. Rollins, Aldermen Kennedy, Folwell and Armstrong was appointed on the Special Oiling Committee. A committee consisting of Aldermen Clapp, Armstrong and Chairman of Public Works be appointed to look into the question of the advisability of Rudy Jiggs as per a former recommendation passed at last regular meeting and report back to council on Tuesday night.

Signs To Be Placed

"No Parking" signs will be placed in front of the premises of Alex Carmichael, this space not to exceed two car lengths and the signs to be placed under the direction of the City Engineer and Chairman of Public Works, according to a recommendation passed.

The city solicitor will be instructed to take proceedings against the person who has erected a building on the Bay shore east of the Bellevile Filtration Plant on property claimed as part of the Poulton estate, and to be taken under the bylaw relating to "building permits" this person not having taken out a permit.

Placed On Market

Four or five "No Parking" signs will be placed on the City Market, the location being KING OF THE MARKET lessee. The city clerk was authorized to advertise the council's intention to close Elizabeth Street from Victoria Street to Leighton Street and Victoria Street from Pine Street to the southerly side of the Canadian National right of way (spur line) and that the city solicitor prepare the necessary bylaw putting this resolution into force. The city solicitor was authorized to prepare the necessary deeds and the mayor and clerk authorized to sign the deeds for property sold to the following residents: Lots 2 and 9 south side Dundas Street East to Mar Wenman, $60; Lot Pt. Victoria Ave. to F. T. Hart, $30; Lot Pt. 40 Sinclair Street, to Lillian Page, $30; Lot Pt. 31 Purdy Street, to Nila Whitmarsh, $25; Lot Pt. 132 Meeker Ave. to Ethel Meens, $50; number of lots to Canada Packers Ltd., $100; Lot Pt. Jury Disagrees In Meraw Case

After sitting for over seven hours the jury disagreed in the Mike Meraw case heard at the County Court before His Honour Judge Madden yesterday, Meraw, a native of Tweed, was arraigned on a charge of indecent assault and the evidence was heard on Thursday, the jury retiring shortly after five o'clock yesterday.

Following the disagreement Meraw was released on $7,500.00 bail and the indictment deferred until the next court which is December, 1941.

The charge of indecent assault was preferred against Meraw by Pte. Lloyd Hayes. Hayes of Tweed, following complaints laid with Tweed police charging the accused with assaulting them. Several witnesses were examined by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. with R. H. Hodgson, K.C. of Peterborough, represented the prisoner who introduced several character witnesses for the defence.

The jury considered the matter for nearly seven hours before they announced a disagreement and His Honour Judge Madden relieved them of their duties at midnight last night. It was revealed later that the poll of the jury stood at ten to two in favour of conviction.

Drunk Found Asleep On C. P. R. Tracks

The alert observation of a Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive engineer doubtlessly resulted in the saving of a man's life in Belleville early this morning when the engineer observed the form of a drunken man on the east-bound C.P.R. tracks in the Belleville yards a few hundred yards before a passenger train was due into Belleville.

The engineer of the freight train halted his train at the C.P.R. Station and signalled Mr. T. Symington, local C.P.R. station agent, who in turn notified the police with the facts.

Constables Wright and Evans proceeded to the scene where they arrested John Culbertson, of this city, on a charge of intoxication. Culbertson was detained at the police station for the remainder of the night and today appeared before Magistrate F. J. Butler, K.C., on a charge of drunkenness. He pleaded guilty and the matter of sentence was deferred for one month pending the suggestion of Chief Kidd. Culbertson was then given into the cethody of his employer and returned to work following full well the fact that only the alert observation of the engineer had perhaps saved his life.

Cadets of King George School Undergo Inspection; Marching is Commended

Said to be the best turnout in years, the Cadet Corps of the King George public school swept by the reviewing stand on the school campus yesterday afternoon where they underwent their annual inspection by Captain A. R. Widdis, inspecting officer for Military District No. 3. The well-drilled lads called young sters under Cadet Captain Arnold Carter executed all and other manoeuvres with a precision that bespoke the fine instruction and enthusiastic ability, in battalion, company, platoon and route and platoon formation they swung past the saluting base where the inspecting officer took the salute, with him were Principal Kells and Cadet Instructor C. A. Brown.

To the marching tempos of the Public School Band under Major Sir Alfred Cooper, the corps went through their paces drill under the respective company commanders. Following this the entire battalion gave a display of physical exercises through the medium of whistle and gesture command under Mr. Brown.

Good Clear Commands

In a congratulatory address to the corps following the inspection, Captain Widdis complimented the battalion on the officers and the clear concise way in which they gave their commands. "You can't all be officers," he said, "but from your drill this afternoon, your officers next year will have the look to their laurels. Your marching form and swing is very good."

He urged the cadets not to forget their training and to apply it to their everyday life. Next year, he said he would introduce signalling and map reading as part of the schools cadet training.

Large Number Spectators

The inspection was witnessed by the entire school, the pupils being lined up on a grassy bank near the campus. A large crowd of spectators viewed the parade from locations near the school.

Officers of the Cadet Corps are, Cadet Captain, Arnold Carter; Company Commanders, Jack Hesman, Allan Vickers and Jim Grent. Second in command is Bruce Woods.

Annual Edition of the "Elevator" Displays Thoughtful Preparation

Showing promising skill in the ability of its editorial staff and its page proportioned well-balanced appearance, demonstrating that considerable labor and thought has been given its composition, the 1940-41 edition of "The Elevator," the official publication of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, is just off the Press.

Giving a complete resume of the literary and athletic activities of the school for the past year, the magazine also includes the ever-popular alumnd and humour sections as well as form news. Special mention is given to the ex-pupils B.C.I. & V.S. who are on active service, former students of the school having given their lives in the fight for freedom. They are Seaman Tom Coate, of the R.C.N., who lost his life when the destroyer "Margaree" was rammed and sunk; Telegraphist Ken Ryley, also of the R.C.N., who was drowned when the patrol ship "Otter" sank off Halifax and Flying Officer Jack White, of the R.A.F., who was killed in action over Germany.

A second feature—a recount of the school's efforts in the sale of War Savings Stamps and of which the students may justly be proud—is included. With the stamps sales of each form noted separately, a total of well over $10,000 is represented.

The magazine is indeed, a credit to its editor and to those who worked on it. The staff is dedicated to the memory of Miss Claire Hitchen, a former member of the teaching staff of the school.

The editorial staff of "The Elevator" includes Phyllis Barlow as Editor-in-Chief with Jack Stock as Assistant Editor. Assisting in the various departments are: Literary, Joan Bennett and Kathleen Bateson; Activities, Bernice Saunders, Shirley McCormick and Irene Hughes; Girls' Sports, Marion Diamond; Boys' Sports, Bruce Crook, Lawrence Howe and Alec Thompson; Photography, Bea Allore and Jim Hawkins; Humour, Margaret Coulby, Muriel Weir and Eleanor Palmer; Exchange, Victoria Scott; Form News, Mable Adams, June Cronby and Gordon Bankier; Dramatics, Lloyd Gladwell; Alumni, Anna Hogle, Margaret Clarke, Myrla Goodfellow, Margaret Anderson, Morley Anderson. Alec Cunningham and Fred Foley. Mr. Jury acted as advisor.

POLICE COURT

ASSAULT CASE ENLARGED A WEEK

Charles Stapley, Belleville, appeared on a charge of indecent assault and the matter was enlarged for one week during which time Crown Attorney Donnan stated he wished to have the accused examined by Dr. Boyle, the provincial psychiatrist.

Stapley is charged with indecently assaulting two small girls at the Exhibition Park last Monday evening. He pleaded not guilty when the charge was read to him today.

R. J. Arnott, K.C., appeared on the accused man's behalf.

Pte. Cecil Asselline, of the R.C.A. appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. today charged with the theft of $4.00 taken from his uncle, Alfred Asselline of this city. The accused elected summary trial and pleaded guilty and was given 14 days as a jail sentence, which is to be run from the date of arrest on June 2nd. Asselline having been in custody on a drunk charge since that time.

"How long have you been absent from your unit?" asked Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C.

"Thirty-five days," replied Asselline.

"Oh, so you're absent without leave?" remarked the Crown.

Private Asselline nodded assent and Chief Kidd then stated he would immediately notify Asselline's commanding officer of his whereabouts.

Carl Woods, Belleville, appeared charged with failing to produce his National Registration card, the matter having been enlarged from Monday's court in order to give Woods an opportunity to apply for a registration card as he contended he had lost his original card.

"Have you applied for a renewal form?" asked Mr. Donnah.

"Yes sir," replied Woods as he presented the form. "But I can't get the proper authorities to sign it," he continued.

"Here, I'll sign it," added Mr. Donnah as he signed his name and returning the form to Woods instructed him to forward the same to Ottawa.

Khaki Closeups

(By Douglas Amaron)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, June 6.—(CP)—Khaki closeups in store:

Officers at headquarters of a 1st Division Infantry Brigade from Western Canada are steering clear of the "order of the bowler hat". As unique an order as any in existence, the O.B.H. is "awarded for outstanding oversights, blunders or such other causes" as the brigadier, a former University of Alberta chewan professor, may designate.

It was inaugurated by the brigadier early this year after a series of what he called "stupid mistakes." So far there have been only two awards, both to Edmonton lieutenants—the first for "misleading a night convoy" and the second "for failing to deliver a gun base".

Some of the furniture at headquarters of the same brigade was supplied by Mrs. Churchill, wife of the Prime Minister. When the house was requisitioned the furniture was left there but the owner is a prisoner of war in Germany and his executors decided recently to clear out the house.

"We let some of our good friends know of our predicament", the brigadier said. A few days later Mrs. Churchill's offer of furniture was received and accepted.

Members of the 1st Canadian Division spend their leave in London and the South of England while 2nd Canadian soldiers get farther afield, often to Scotland. No one is sure what makes the Division men north, but one reason advanced for the 1st Division in the south is the fact that when they first arrived in England the men were stationed in Kent, the area where there were four girls to one man. When later the 2nd Canadians weren't interested in going far away and they've kept the close-to-home habit ever since.

Christ's Church Must be Strong To Make Democracy Secure Moderator Tells Conference

Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle Pays Visit to Bay of Quinte Conference Now in Session

EARL LAWSON HEARD

Included in the itinerary of the Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle, M.A., D.D., LL.D., moderator of the United Church of Canada was his visit to the Bay of Quinte Conference Thursday to which the fathers and brethren of the conference looked forward with eagerness. This calm, confident leader of the great Canadian Church is visiting conference meetings throughout Eastern Canada and Newfoundland with rapid succession. Within the next two days he will visit two in Eastern Canada and Newfoundland, continue on to the Maritimes and Newfoundland.

Introduced by President W. P. Fletcher to the Bay of Quinte conference he delivered an address of inspiration and hope to those present. "I am deeply impressed," he declared, "with loyalty and sacrifice of church officials of every rank. The spirit of unified effort is heartening. In the twelve I am very much impressed with the areas in the northern parts of Ontario and Quebec. I am amazed at the development not only in things material but in the cultural elements of mind, spirit and heart. Buildings display this tendency in cultural things. Attendance at worship is not as good as it could be but with the many counter activities in these troubled days this is to be looked for. Financial support remains at a good level. But this fact remains clear, the church of God gives inner support to us in these troubled times.

Speaks Across Barriers

"The church of Jesus Christ speaks across all barriers of racial and social character and can see more clearly to mould the moral patterns for the new era order of things to come," said the moderator. "Through its ministry it builds a fellowship that does not know the worst.

"Military victory can prevent the destruction of Christian democracy but the basic principles of democracy are rooted deep in things religious, therefore to make democracy secure, we must make the church of Jesus Christ strong."

Dr. Kent, D.D., expressed the gratitude of the members of conference to Dr. Tuttle for this fine address and asked him to convey the greetings of the Bay of Quinte Conference to other conferences he would visit within the next few days.

Rev. W. J. Scott of the Pensions Board presented the report of the Pensions Fund Committee and introduced Dr. Armstrong, who addressed the gathering on this vital subject.

During the discussion period, Mr. Elmer Lawson, prominent layman voiced the opinion that it was most difficult to ask the members of locality to support this fund, when pensioners who had directly affected failed to live up to their obligations.

Nearly 400 Attend

The highlight in the laymen's activity of the Bay of Quinte Conference was the banquet at which the guest speaker was the Hon. Earl Lawson who thrilled the large gathering with his address based on the history of the British Empire and entitled "The House That Jack Built." President E. L. Fraser acted as chairman. The musical contributions to the evening's entertainment were made by Rev. Ken Rickard, who led in community singing and a brilliant performance by Jack Deacon, well-known Canadian tenor soloist, was thoroughly enjoyed. Loud and long was the ovation given this Canadian artist, who was gracious in his response giving three encore numbers.

Hon. Earl Lawson

Introduced to the gathering by Elmer Davies, Hon. Earl Lawson delivered his now famous address, the "House That John Built"—John Bull, until it reached its present status in world history. Through sacrifice, justice and righteousness room after room has been added to the house of the empire." New Zealand, South Africa, India, Australia, Canada have all become a part of this great house through the noble efforts of the sons of "John Bull."

Incident Seen

From his own experience he revealed the whole-hearted loyalty of a London costermonger outside Court of President E. L. Fraser, The Canadian member of this London discussion period was Mr. W. W. Brown of Hamilton, General Secretary of Lay Advisory Council of the United Church of Canada. In his address Mr. Brown outlined the importance of the laymen's activity in the life of the church and its effect upon the citizenship of the nation. The pageantry of the King's visit to Canada was not just a display, it was the true sentiment of the Canadian people to the head of the House of the Empire. At the great Coronation princes rulers of every part of the world carried thousands of miles to pay tribute. Today in this great conflict citizens of these additions to the House of the Empire are standing by . . . Some say, in the defence of Christian civilization, democracy, others would have us sacrifice our very activity to giving only material aid, but there is an inexpressible sentiment rises in the hearts of all men of the Empire wherever they be, that causes them to rally to the defence of the land of their ancestors, though many have never set foot upon its soil. It was this spirit that flashed before the eyes of the world at Dunkirk as common men from offices, mills, factory and mines went forth to save and help their fellows. Hitler cannot command, obtain or conquer that spirit. Every Canadian can contribute to "this House of the Empire," which John Bull built and which shall be maintained completely."

Principal Morrison of the Ontario School for the Deaf expressed the gratitude of those present to the committee in charge, to the speaker and to the ladies responsible for the fine dinner. Prof. W. J. Walker, newly appointed president was then introduced and delivered the remaining portion of the program.

Laymen's Activities at B. of Q. Conference

Strength of unity is displayed in the keen interest of the laymen's association at the Bay of Quinte Conference as they met this week in conjunction with the 11th Annual Session of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Their own particular meeting for discussion and re-organization was held in St. Thomas' Church Hall under the chairmanship of President E. L. Fraser, The Canadian member of this London discussion period was Mr. W. W. Brown of Hamilton, General Secretary of Lay Advisory Council of the United Church of Canada. The unforgetable performance given by Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney in "Boys Town," not only won them the Academy Award, but the plaudits of moviegoers throughout the world. Now they are to be seen in a sequel to the earlier bill, "Men of Boys Town," next at the Belle Theatre.

speakers.

Rev. Poulter, of Madoc, presented the Business Committee report and Rev. James E. Beckel, Secretary, gave the minutes of the previous sessions.

Several Reports Adopted

The adoption of several reports was effected when the Thursday sessions due largely to technical matters, ran late. Many reports were referred back (6) to the committee for revision. All, however, were adopted in principle and adoption was sanctioned at the second reading of those slightly delayed.

A report of action taken with regard to the Sunday School was presented by Mr. H. C. Marshall which was adopted by the conference. The committee revealed the facts concerning the portion of the estate left to the Bay of Quinte Conference and the manner in which it would be received.

Greetings from W.M.S.

The first woman speaker of the entire conference thus far was heard during this session when Mrs. F. L. Hopper delivered a splendid address on the work of the W.M.S. Mrs. Hopper's educational address from the religious standpoint of such groups as Baby Bands, Mission Bands, Young People's and G.I.T. activity can't be estimated. Each Hall during the year, therefore, should have as an ideal the purpose of spreading the knowledge of Christ thoroughly and quickly so that world-wide peace shall be established forever.

Highest Quality, Greater Production Of Cheese Needed for Export to U.K. Speaker Tells W.I. at District Meeting

Roslin — The annual meeting of the East Hastings District Women's Institute was held on Wednesday, June 4th in the Presbyterian Church at Roslin, with the President of the District Mrs. Fred Bunnett of Halloway presiding. Mrs. A. Bates and Miss Allen Wilson were in charge of registration of delegates and visitors.

The morning session was opened with community singing led by Mrs. Moore. Mrs. Charles Beatty acted as accompanist. The secretary, Mrs. Noble Brown, read the minutes of last year's meeting which, was held at Plainfield and also read the financial report of the past year's work.

Mrs. Bunnett gave a report of her work during the past year and urged all to put their shoulder to the wheel.

Greater Cheese Production

Mr. Pollard of Gilling addressed the gathering on the need of "Greater Cheese Production of Cheese for export to Great Britain."

Mainly because it is well to the top in the quality of the cheese produced, last year there were less than 50 cheese produced in the country not of export quality. Mr. Pollard urged the women to do all they could to help maintain this standard. Cleanliness in food stuffs is second in importance only to "clean cows" in the milking front line.

Cheese is a necessity in places where people face a disadvantage in the preparation of food, and while the cheese maker is the greatest artist known to modern science today. No two cheeses made will arrive at the factory in the same condition, give your cheese-maker co-operation. Mr. Pollard was asked "does cooling the milk affect the test?" and he replied that it did not if properly done. The milk should be as clean while cooling over night, to keep the cream moist and cool, also to be covered dry and leathery tough.

A luncheon was served in the Anglican Church hall by the ladies of the Roslin Branch.

Convener's Report

The afternoon session opened at 1 p.m. with Mrs. Bunnett presiding. The following convenors of Standing Committees gave their reports. Education, Mrs. H. Ketcheson, Halloway; Health and Child Welfare, Mrs. C. Haight; Home Economics, Mrs. J. Sills; Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. C. Beatty; Relief and Community Activities, Mrs. Harry Grills; Girls' Work, Miss Lillie Weese.

Mrs. C. Holmes, the Federated Representative spoke to the gathering. There are 1391 branches of the Institute in Ontario with 40,300 members.

The roll call of branches showed members present from Queensboro, Plainfield, Phillipston-Zion and Roslin.

The secretaries gave brief outlines of the past year's work of the branch.

GREEKS FLOUT HUNS

How the Greeks who have shown the true spirit of the Grecian race flout the Huns even in the streets and public places of Athens is told in dispatches from the Greek capital. British soldiers prisoners of war being marched through the streets under guard by the Huns were showered with flowers by the Greeks in spite of the Germans.

The Greeks do not fear the vandal German race even if for the time being it is confined of their native land.

This demonstration was natural, it was not strained. It was the act of the loyal people who honor their brave Allies, the British.

Britain over a century ago, proved her admiration for the Greeks and Greece finally attained her freedom. Not all the generations and centuries during which Greece was not free affected their spirit for when they came into the full light of democratic liberty, they showed their loyalty to democratic principles and their admiration of free men and the free cause.

A daring Greek went up the Acropolis, that famed elevation in Athens which was the citadel of Athens in olden days and tore down the Swastika flag. The Germans, angered, threatened to shoot anyone removing their emblem. But neither the emblem nor the threat of the enemy can daunt the Athenians or other Greeks.

This is a typical attitude of the peoples whom the barbarous Hun tries to hold in thrall to vicious Nazi principles. Everything German is hated and shunned over Europe. It is a natural consequence of the criminality and violence of the German leaders.

But the spirit of democracy in these peoples guarantees their recovery when Nazism will have been crushed in the British and Allied victory.

'SECOND WATERLOO' AND PEACE

President Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University New York, stated at the 187th Commencement this week that from the time of the emergence of mankind from its elementary barbarism to a complex and many-sided civilization there has always been "one fundamental and unending conflict."

"That conflict," he said, "is between the moral ideal of unselfish service to one's fellow men and the controlling desire for gain at whatever cost to others."

He went on to say that for the time being the moral ideal has disappeared and with it all that has to do with international relations. The gain-seeking impulse supported by brute force has taken its place and so far as the surface of things is concerned human civilization has gone back a full thousand years. Peoples once great and highly civilized have dishonored their pledges and their word is given only to be broken. He urged men not to lose faith in the ideals and teachings of three thousand years of the great prophets and apostles of the mind. He looked through the clouds into the future and said:—

"We must not despair. Our spirit of faith in the ultimate triumph of the moral ideal and in the permanent establishment of liberty of thought, of speech, of worship and of government will not and must not be permitted to weaken or to lose control of our mind and action."

Dr. Murray called the twenty years of Napoleon's domination of the Continent of Europe and of his threatened invasion of Britain a little less than one hundred and fifty years "a full dress rehearsal for that which is now taking place." After the failure of the Russian campaign and retreat of Napoleon, discontent broke out throughout the conquered territories. "Then followed Waterloo and Europe was set free again."

The noted educator said:

"Today the world is waiting another Waterloo. It may come on the Continent of Europe, or it may not come on the sea. It may come in Africa. It may come in Asia. We have faith that it will come."

He pleaded that "when this second Waterloo does come" there should be full responsibility for leadership in organizing the world of independent and liberal-minded nations, so that

"The foundations upon which our life and governmental real may never again be put in danger and that no third Waterloo may ever be necessary."

OURSELVES AND OTHERS . . .

BY

TOOLS FOR CHURCHILL

From Dad
I want to say in years to come
When we look back to now
That I had backed the Victory Loan
My children to endow.

From Mother
Although one son is over there
And one is on the sea,
I want to say I backed the Loan
When they come back to me.

From Brother
I hope to grow up big and fast
Then I can do my bit.
But now I'll help the Victory Loan
With tools and also grit.

Brother Jack he wears the blue
And Bill is in the air
My little change will buy a Bond
I am trying to be fair.

From Grandad
I saw the war in Africa
And saw the last one through
So get more tools for Churchill
This Loan is not for you.

From Grandma
And when we've won this cruel war
We can bow our heads in prayer
And bless the tools for Churchill
In which we had our share.

A TIP TO CANVASSERS

It has been said that every cloud has a silver lining. And by the same token many a clean heart beats under a dirty shirt, and many a dollar lies hidden in the pocket of a ragged pair of pants. One can never tell by the looks of the figurative human frog how many bondjumps he will take in the Victory Loan pond until he has been prodded a bit.

The gent in the shiny new car may be riding in his wealth. The grimy laborer may have a hundred or so tucked away and is willing to invest. The taxi-driver is likely to buy a bond while his fare probably had to borrow a quarter for travelling expenses. The waiter who serves you your lunch in your favorite restaurant may . . . . but wait, here is a true story.

Seated in a restaurant the other night with Clark Kinnear, dynamic young assistant organizer for this district, this writer "listened in" to a successful sale of a $50 bond.

When the young Chinese waiter, we'll call him "Nip," came to the table, Clark hit straight from the shoulder. "Have you any Victory Bonds, Charlie?" he smiled in his best bonds sales manner. Nip smiled.

"No. Me no got no yet."

"You know what they are for, don't you?" Clark led.

"Sure. Me know. Help win war."

And Clark had off with his best sales manner. Nip listened with the stoical serenity of his race. Then he nodded his head.

"Sure, I buy."

Out came an application form. Rapidly it was filled in. Clark looked up at the smiling Nip. "All you need is five dollars for the first instalment," he grinned.

Nip looked at him. "Me no need five bucks. Me pay all now. War bad, Britain help China people in war with Jap. Now China people here help Britain beat dam German, German like Jap. No good. Me sign cheque for all fifty dollar."

Clark's eyes widened. Quickly he filled in the amount on the cheque form at the bottom of the application. Nip leaned over the table and affixed his signature. "Me like lots China boys, glad to help win war," was his terse comment.

But Nip also had a sense of humor. Later, when the lunch was finished, he approached the table, laid the luncheon cheque down and grinned. "Me pay you big cheque, now you pay me little one."

GRANDPA REQUIREMENTS

The Grandpa business by and large is a trade for two;
In fact, it's not the sort of work
That eager youth enjoys;
It doesn't call for judgment rare
Or special kind of skill;
Nor is there very much to learn
before the work can start.
You must be getting on in years
and as a general rule,
The women folks must look on you as just a dear old fool.

The grandpa business calls for age, say fifty years and more
With all the wild oats sowed and reaped, and all said before.
It's not a job the young can do,
for much too wise are they,
Inclined to deal with children in the scientific way.
The parents do as doctors tell and follow counsels stern,
A method grandpas ridicule and swear they'll never learn.

A grandpa has to know, of course, the wisest way to spoil,
Where nickels purchase ice cream and pennies candy lollypops,
And he should know what children crave, small arts are simplest to do.
Like going to the circus or a picnic or the zoo.
Just to make the matter short, I'll tell it here and now,
A grandpa does most everything that parents don't allow.

Commencement Address

New York, June 6—

Who taught you, Americans, to worship mediocrity?
And why
Does it worship them, that quiet, granite man?
Or Hamilton, perhaps?
The handsome, fiery boy who led a ragged army
With the words of Plato in his pocket,
And Adam Smith, and John Stuart Mill?

Was it Jefferson,
Teaching his Negro slaves to play Mozart in Monticello
And telling them the time would come
When there would be no more slaves?
Was it Lincoln?
Who made a war because
There was too little imagination,
Audacity and grace of God,
Intelligence and strength of will,
among the people, north and south,
To find any other way.
To save the world of freedom?
"With malice toward none;
With charity for all;
With firmness in the right,
As God gives us to see the right,
Let us strive on,
To finish the work,
We are in."

Who taught you, Americans, to worship success
And despise achievement
Unless rewarded by fortunes,
And membership in the best clubs
And pictures in the Sunday supplements,
And write-ups in the social columns?

Plead by press agents? Build-ups for a small you to regard the build-up
As the measure of success?
Was it Edison, Steinmetz, Bell, Goethals, Reed,
Cushing?
Was it the grim men of New England
Proclaiming the Christian Sparta,
The City of God?
Was it Roger Williams, maybe, or Tom Paine?
Or William Penn who founded Philadelphia,
The City of Brotherly Love?

Was it the men and women who
Trekked to Oregon,
Claiming the last outpost of the free
For a land stretching from sea to sea,
Where, if you worked hard, and endured much,
There would be earth under your feet,
"My home,
My native land?"

Was it the Bohunks, the Wops, the Greasers,
The Polaks, the Limies, the Chinks,
Buying their citizenship in the United States of America,
With the sweat of their brows
And the oil in the backs
Tacking real out of mountains,
and silver and gold,
Bauxite, magnesium, copper and lead,
Laying the tier and spanning the rails
Over prairies and mountains, through swamps and through deserts
To build and to tie together
One nation,
Indivisible,
With liberty,
And justice,
For all?
And ending their lives in the slums of Pittsburgh,
Manhattan, Chicago, Scranton, Detroit,
Remembering how the lilies-of-the-valley smelled in Karelia.

Or the almond blossoms on the slopes of Trentino?
"But this is God's country
And my kid
Goes to high school
And may get to be
One of these bosses."

Who taught you, Americans, to look for the secret of prosperity
In the rapid turnover of quickly obsolescent goods,
Sold by high pressure and postponed payoffs,
And the quicker it wears out
The better for all?
So whether you want it or whether you need it,
Buy! Buy! Buy!
For the faster you spend the richer you are,
And the less you work, the more you accomplish,
And the worse you work
The more you help your fellow-workers,
And your own self-respect,
And we must settle the bosses
If we have to cut off our own noses to do it,
And we must defeat the workers,
Even if it costs more than higher, steadier wages,
Because if we don't
Our competitors will wreck us
Or the other union agent get the bacon.

Who taught you that, Americans?
Was it the Negroes, whom Lincoln freed?
The abolitionists raved and the carpet-baggers looted,
And the Ku Klux Klan walked at night.
But Lincoln laid quiet in his grave,
"You set them free and set them free to starve."
And he never said a mumbling word.
Not a word.
Not all God's chillen got wings.

Who taught you that, Americans?
Was it the young Jew, Brandeis,
Hearing his uncle tell how he saw

Lincoln at Springfield,
Hearing his father tell
How the revolution for freedom in Europe,
The revolution for the United States of Europe,
In 1848,
Failed, and he went into exile?
Was it the young Brandeis
Of the race of the people of the law,
Of the race of the people
Versus the interests?
And said,
"Thou shalt not steal"?

Who will tell you again, Americans,
To remember what you started out to be,
To remember what you started out to be,
To remember where you started out to go?

I will tell you who will tell you,
You will tell each one his comrade
From the prayers your mother taught you,
From the school books of your childhood,
Out of words but half-remembered,
Out of instincts long perverted,
Out of what you know within you,
And have learned from your experience.
You will ask, each one his comrade,
"Do you like the setup, partner?
How about we fix to change it?"
But with yelling and with shouting,
Not with bitter talk and fighting,
But with instruments and with doing.
Every one and all together,
Like the little Hiawatha,
Learning from the truths of nature,
Learning from the elders' counsels,
How to make a ring of freedom,
For ourselves and for all others.

Okay, but to do what?
Merely to say in the Constitution, brother,
Meaning?
"To form a more perfect Union,
"Establish justice,
"Ensure domestic tranquillity,
"Provide for the common defense,
"Promote the general welfare,
"And secure the blessings of liberty
"To ourselves and our posterity."
Okay, and what else?
To proclaim liberty throughout the earth."

WHITE GOLD

In the golden age of cotton before the War Between the States the people of the South were fond of referring to King Cotton.

Cotton has been stripped of some of its kingly sentiments, but it still retains many of the attributes of a royal plant.

Many more Americans depend on cotton for a living than on any other crop grown in the United States.

It is the most important cash crop grown in America.

Some 13,500,000 people—almost eleven percent of the people in continental United States—are directly dependent for a substantial part of their livelihood on cotton.

Two million persons on 2,000,000 cotton farms in the South and Southwest depend on cotton for about one-fifth their income.

Three million Americans are employed by cotton textile manufacturing in its various branches.

Half a million people in the United States are supported by cotton marketing and processing.

In addition, millions of other Americans own stocks and bonds in cotton mills and other companies based on cotton, have an interest in banks and other organizations that finance the growing, handling and manufacturing of cotton, or are engaged in selling cotton products.

In fact, cotton enters directly or indirectly into the daily life of every person in the nation.

Cotton is used in more than 1,000 different ways.

Virtually every person in America contributes to several ways every day of his life.

Cotton is the only important farm crop grown in the United States that cannot be used until it is processed. Processing must be done in specialized plants away from the farm.

Cotton is no longer the king of kings, but it is still a king.

ECONOMIZE ON TIN

Washington, June 6 (AP)—The tin that has been used to make tubes for shaving cream is going into armaments. The office of Production Management called on manufacturers today to effect a saving of about 70 per cent of the tin used in making tubes for shaving preparations, paints and adhesives. They were requested to use tin alloys instead.

Coal Association's View on Bituminous Coal Stocks

"The National Coal Association," says the Ontario Fuel Dealer for May, "upon the resumption of coal mining in the bituminous fields of the United States, put forth some facts recently, in one of their bulletins, which could well be considered by all users of bituminous coal, regardless of location. The article was headed 'Let the facts speak for themselves.' Bituminous coal stocks and future requirements were stated, in part:

"One month has been lost, and production up to May 1st is about 20 per cent below the first four months of last year. Up to April 1st production this year was 10 per cent above the same period last year.

"Production in March was 46 million tons. Industrial stocks were 45 1-2 million tons, about 30 days' supply, on April 1st. Consumption in the industry of from 30 to 35 million tons is estimated in April. Only a very small amount is being produced in April; therefore stocks are down to perhaps 15 days or less for industry, May 1. And these stocks are by no means evenly distributed. Some plants are practically out of coal and others are on a reduced operating schedule.

"Coal must be moved promptly; cars are scarce and will be scarcer without any delay. These stocks in industry are below the danger mark; they are much lower than at any other time since figures have been kept on this subject, and they must be built up. Lake movement has been held back from a month that movement will be heavy. There is practically no coal in stock at upper lake ports.

"Rates by general must be built up to over 50 million tons before fall in order to assure all concerned an adequate supply against the winter, when the movement naturally slows down. Industry must also be fax-ed beyond their capacity this fall unless many others are made to protect the' situation during the next five months. Naturally prices are going to be higher, with wage increases augmenting the cost by instances to 20c an hour. Industry is getting into high gear. The railroads are gearing for the heavy traffic. The president of the Association of merchant Railroads said: Just announced the need of 120,000 more freight cars in 1942 and 150,000 additional in 1943 of all classes.

"The war emergency agency will prepare to meet the demands that are obvious. The producers of coal stand ready to furnish the coal required. All high-pressure efforts to frighten consumers must be avoided, but they should be acquainted with the plain facts'."

Supreme Court Upholds Sentences

Montgomery, Ala., June 6 —(AP)— Alabama's supreme Court yesterday upheld prison sentences for three of the nine negroes in a widely publicised "wife swapping" case.

Those facing prison under bigamy convictions returned in Federal Circuit Court are Odell Brand, 33, his first wife, Delia, and Will Johnson. Court records show that Annie Fay Johnson, who testified for the State, "acknowledges her guilt and agrees to plead guilty", but shows no further action in the case.

The Brands were sentenced to 2 to 2 1-2 years and the Johnsons to 3 to 3 1-2 years.

Testimony in the trial showed Johnson and Brand obtained divorces Feb. 8, and then married each other's mates the same day in Mississippi, after agreeing to divide their children and property.

Alabama law forbids remarriage of divorced persons within 60 days and the court voided the divorce decrees in March, 1936, the bigamy trials following.

POLL IS TAKEN

London, June 6.—(CP Cable)—Eighteen per cent of the British population think the Germans are a barbarous and uncivilized people and hate them all.

Of two other statements drafted for the Ballup survey to a cross-section of British opinion, 53 per cent agreed that "some Germans are not bad but as a nation Germany is dangerous to the peace of the world".

Thirty per cent agreed that "the German people are all right. It's only their leaders who are evil".

Dull Grey Ships Thrills, Romance But Softly Told

Officially Crews of Port Arrived Safely, but Little but Grim Experiences on Every Trip

By JACK BRAYLEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

An Eastern Canadian Port (CP) —A ring of armed guards, drab blocks of dirty colored paint, a show of passes, steamship engines which "don't have a thing" and a maze of restrictions add up to a big headache for Canada's wartime ship news reporters trying to get ashore from a port which is further obscured by a label "secret".

But on the other side of the solid guard of veterans, and probably a good pail lie more thrills and romance than ever put over on the Victoria Cross, are found in the glistening white and gold of the Queen's uniform.

The war has changed all the ships and the men who sail them. No easy days of passenger list handouts and long detailed arrivals of notables who trailed freely and skippers who feared no one for the listening.

Today drab and dirty, their names blotted out, they carry camouflage and revealed only on the closest questioning. Sailors plod into port at all hours, unspoken questions written on their faces, showing of identification cards and their war-scarred sides. Successive rings of veterans guards, police persons and immigration officials have to be passed.

Officers Aloof

The purser who used to meet newsmen with a cheery smile in passenger list and a helpful tip now snugs an apologetic look as though he were guarding the Bank of England.

But both passengers and crew, for the most part, welcome newsmen crossing behind them, are usually in talkative mood. And from them come the stories of adventure and the high seas. They recount chapters in the long battle of the Atlantic, stories of running fights with raiders, of bombings, sinkings and of tragedy.

Passengers, most of whom are on government business and in official capacities, come dribbling in by dozens on freighters bearing house flags which in peacetime represented the ultra degree of comfort in ocean passenger transport. Cabin class now means merely a secondary steel cell in the bridge-house which in peacetime afforded privacy to the second officer's mess. The crew are doubled up and the passengers, less inclined to the rigors of the high seas, are tripled up.

The freighters are shared out to the various lines to compensate for the requisitioning of their proud liners, now operating as armed merchantmen and troop transports.

And the British seaman has become a grim guardian. His face in the past bespoke free and easy adventure. But that was before he was subjected to treacherous machine-gunning in an open boat and before he had been fired upon while clinging desperately to a life raft. Some fighters.

Now he is angry. Take one chief steward of a passenger-carrying freighter. This normally mild-mannered and hard-to-ruffle Englishman was the very soul of calm and unconcern a scant three or four months ago. Yet it was he who the other day said:

"The gloves are off now. There was a time when we used to pick them (Nazi submarine and dive bomber crews) up, wrap them in blankets and give them hot drinks and smokes—treat them as we would expect to be treated ourselves—but no more of that." And he contented his fist on the companionway wall.

He told of seeing German gunners shelling open boats and German Stukas spraying struggling seamen with machine-gun fire.

"They have been given many opportunities, too many in my way of thinking, and they show no compassion. I'm not saying we should retaliate, although I've seen the Old Man have a time restraining his fifth crew fist recently, but when they come into our hands we'll have to treat them in future like the swine they are."

Victory War Loan Committee Visits Deloro Plant

Marmora—At a mass meeting of employees held at the plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company on Wednesday afternoon the desirability of buying Victory War Bonds was very ably stressed by J. B. Boyce, vice-chairman of the committee for Hastings County. The speaker was introduced by R. A. Elliott, general manager of the company and appreciation of his remarks was voiced by S. B. Wright, Vice President of the Company. Selections were played by the R. C. A. F. Band of Trenton, who following the meeting played further enlivening strains in the village.

Private William Reynolds of Petawawa is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. F. N. Marett and son James returned home on Tuesday after spending two weeks with the former's daughter, Mrs. G. Bond in Kingston. They were accompanied by Mrs. Bond, who will spend a few days in Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds of U.S.A. are visiting former's sister, Mrs. F. R. Wells and Mr. Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Sizemore of Oshawa are visiting relatives here.

Mr. Bill Snell of St. Thomas is visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. Eggleton.

Mrs. C. H. Buskard and daughter Lois have returned to their home in Deloro after spending the past several months in Toronto.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw—Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Mumby accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jeffrey of Thomasburg left on Monday morning for Ubly week for Saint John, N.B. where they will visit for a couple of weeks with the latter's son, Mr. Mumby and family.

Mrs. Leon Wayne and Mrs. Swayne of Mainland renewed acquaintances in Bonarlaw on Thursday and visited in Thomasburg on Friday of last week. They also attended the funeral of the late Mr. Evans Weese of Detroit. Mich., which was held at Carrying Place, Ont., Canon Swayne conducting the funeral ceremony. The late Mr. Weese was a brother-in-law of Mr. Mel Fitzgerald of Springbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Caldwell returned from Toronto on Friday of last week where they have been visiting relatives for several days.

Mrs. Wm. Percy and children of Toronto were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Slocker on Saturday last.

Rural Dean, Rev. A. B. Caldwell of Marmora was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Young People's Association of St. Mark's Church held in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening of this week and delighted those present with his talk on "Experiences in the Diocese of Montreal." His address was both instructive and entertaining as he had many humorous experiences to relate in connection with his twelve years' work in Quebec Province.

After the business session which was conducted by Mr. Carl Heath, President, the meeting was turned over to Mr. W. J. Cottrell of Marmora who sang a humorous song, "The Farmer Boy" which was enjoyed by all. He also conducted a "Mirror Contest" which caused much merriment. The prize went to Miss Marion Richardson.

The Association voted $3.00 to the Mission fund of the church and also appointed a committee to secure book markers for the church.

Miss Freda Kaufman was appointed Assistant Secretary-Treasurer upon request of Miss Iva Pye Brown, Secretary-Treasurer.

Moira

Moira—Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Parrell and Douglas spent a day in Belleville recently with Mr. and Mrs. E. Nicholson.

Rev. Doggett of the Thomasburg Circuit conducted services on the West Huntingdon Circuit on Sunday, at the evening service Pearl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Holbert was baptized.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Franklin and children of Belleville were tea guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ketcheson.

Rev. Mr. Turner of Pakenham, a former pastor on this circuit made a number of calls on friends on Tuesday.

Mrs. Harry Vanderwater has returned to her home from Belleville General Hospital and is progressing favorably.

Those who have strawberry patches have noticed that the strawberries are battling to ripen, but if dry weather continues the yield will be small.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Emerson and boys of Halloway were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Emerson.

Another from here motored to Belleville on Sunday afternoon to witness the parade.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lake and Mr. Everett Lake of Stirling were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson.

The school meeting was held last Friday evening when the two former teachers were both engaged for another year.

Red Cross

On Tuesday afternoon a very successful Red Cross meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Wallace McInroy. At this meeting two quilts were quilted, ten dresses and eleven bloomers were cut and distributed, also a number of pieces with which to make more quilt blocks were sent out. A lunch was served at the close of the meeting and a generous collection taken.

TO PEOPLE WHO CANNOT SWALLOW PILLS

If you feel sluggish, depressed, liverish or are inclined to constipation—just try this treatment for two weeks: Take enough Kruschen to cover a dime, in a cup of hot water, morning.

Neither could be easier to take, and Kruschen is not harsh, but is a mild, gentle laxative.

Constipation is caused mainly by a lack of moisture in the large intestine. Kruschen contains carefully blended mineral salts that bring back the moisture. Besides clearing out stagnating poisonous waste matter, Kruschen helps to rid the bloodstream of other poisons resulting from constipation.

Get a package of Kruschen from your druggist at once. In two weeks you'll feel your old good health coming back. Two sizes; 25c and 75c.

FOLLOW THESE TWO RULES OF HEALTH

1. To get well, see your doctor.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Clarice Isabel daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dafoe of Madoc, to Jabez Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Broad of Belleville. The marriage to take place on June twenty-first in Trinity United Church, Madoc.

Mrs. R. S. Gibson is in Toronto for a few days visiting friends.

Mr. John M. King, Hazelnbrae Ave., has been called to serve with the R.C.A.F., at Trenton Airport.

Friends of Mrs. C. Holloway will regret to learn of the death at Timmins on Tuesday of her brother, Edward McIlvoy.

Mr. W. A. Cunnington, an old Belleville boy, now residing in Tofield, was in the city yesterday on business and also took occasion to look up some of his old friends who were pleased to talk over old-times with him.

Tea hostess at the Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club yesterday afternoon were, Mrs. E. Robson and Mrs. G. Watkin. The winning rink was that of Mrs. W. Gilbert, Mrs. S. Joss and Mrs. C. Lent (skip).

Mrs. M. W. Wellcome, San Diego, Calif., while visiting friends in Belleville, has been the guest of her brother, Mr. Henry Lough and Mrs. Lough, N. James Street. Mrs. Wellcome who was accompanied to the city by Mrs. E. Bateman, Toronto, is also spending some time with relatives in Hastings County.

Mr. Ryan (Tip) Timmon of Tillsonburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Timmon of Sydney, successfully passed the final medical and X-ray examination in Hamilton on Monday, and entered the Manning Pool, Toronto, on Thursday to train for a pilot observer in the R.C.A.F.

Irises and peonies in colorful array against a background of patriotic colors made an effective setting for the tea and bridge held in the Golden Rule Room at the Armouries by Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. The green and white shades of hair welcomed the visitors. Arrangements for bridge which many enjoyed during the afternoon were in charge of Mrs. Fred Lester, Mrs. Milton Davison, and Mrs. Jack Yanover. The prizes were won by Mrs. C. Mosher and Mrs. P. A. Sprung. Mrs. W. C. Morgan was convener and Mrs. Eric Keeler, convener of the tea. Mrs. W. F. Ponton, Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Mrs. R. B. Chadwick and Mrs. J. Mc-Fee poured tea at the charmingly-appointed tea table and members of the Chapter assisted in serving. Mrs. W. Mecklenburgh drew the lucky ticket on the War Savings Stamp, the winner being Major W. C. Morgan. Mrs. C. Miller acted as treasurer, and Mrs. L. Shinis and Mrs. Purvis were conveners of the home cooking. Of special interest to visitors was the display of some of the articles made by the Chapter in their war work, which included beautifully finished quilts, children's dresses, dirty bags for the Navy, housewayetes, hospital supplies and bags for women of England to take with them into the bomb shelters, containing every toilet necessity and planned with a thoughtful consideration of the needs of the recipient. Mrs. J. F. Bell, Mrs. Mont. Caldwell, sewing convener, were in charge of the exhibit.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held in the S.S. room of the church on Wednesday, June 4th at 3 p.m. Mrs. Furgey president in the chair.

Hymn 356 and Scripture Lesson read by Mrs. Frank Parsons.

Mrs. A. Bell and Mrs. Maddic rendered a delightful duet "In the land where the roses never fade" which was very much enjoyed.

Mrs. D. J. Reid, delegate to the 57th annual meeting held in Brockville, read a very interesting and instructive report on the convention and a hearty vote of appreciation was extended Mrs. Reid. Afternoon tea was served by Mrs. B. Beard and the members of the group. The meeting adjourned till September.

Triangular tables have been invented that can be combined to form square ones or corner dressing tables.

False Note Fatal to Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE false note in the beauty composition and a girl does not stand in the beauty chorus. She's out! Strange how the eye of the observer pops lightly over beauty assets and spots defects in a jiffy. A few stringy ends of hair amidst the curls; that's bad. Ping-pong balls that aren't up to par are worse. Even though a woman may have the face of an angel, neglected nails will put her on the spot.

Pall down on a single detail and you get a black mark. It is very sad, but it should keep one on one's beauty toes. Good grooming is well worth the time and the bother. It shouldn't be a bother; one should enjoy being fastidious, neat, a sweet and delightful eyeful.

Clean Powder Puffs

Trot out a soiled powder pad and you're done for; your complexion won't like it either, because it is a common source of blackheads. Messy purses are an abomination; some of them seem to hold everything except the beefsteak just purchased for dinner. Fussy women clear out the purse after every shopping spree. And gosh! the things that they find there! All kinds of junk.

Many a woman will spend an afternoon at the beauty shop, getting a trim, shampoo, wave, a facial and a manicure, and then trot home on runover heels and display gloves that are a disgrace because they are ready for the dry cleaner. Does not make a bit of sense.

Hosiery that shoes should have a color bond. The hat should not only have the pleasant tilt, but it should be kept brushed. If there are a few ugly fingers on the chin they should be cleared away; facial spinach is not becoming.

Once upon a time a man told me that he was crazy about a girl. Then he noticed that her coat button was held on with a safety pin. He said he visualized an untidy house and dishes in the sink, so he did not propose to her. Upon such small matters do the currents of human life depend.

Herring Lassies Busy on Tweeds

Glasgow (CP)—The 5,000 Scottish "herring lassies" who in peacetime tramped the fishing ports of Great Britain, gutting and salting the catch during each fleet's short season, will be making their summer from their quayside pitches.

Their usual season would have started in June. But peace must return before seaside bridal-parties again watch their deft hands wielding the gutting knife with their incredible speed and skill.

Most of the "herring girls" come from the Outer Hebrides—from the islands of Lewis and Harris. Many of the girls are working in the looms weaving the tweeds, for which the islands are world famous, for the export trade. Others are working on the land in the wartime Women's Land Army. Another 2,500 of them are busy "kippering." The kipper trade is busier than ever and has a greatly increased output."

The "herring lassies" worked under the supervision of the coopers—the barrel-makers—in crews of five. They packed herrings into the barrels of salt almost as soon as the herring fleets unloaded their catch. The salted herrings went into very few British homes. They were chiefly for export, to Germany, Poland, and the Baltic States.

Today far fewer herrings are arriving on the East Coast. The herring fleets are much smaller and many of their units are flying the White Ensign. So the girls are to remain North of the Border.

Weddings

RUBBS—HOWARD

The marriage took place at 104 W. Moira Street, last evening, at nine o'clock of Wanda Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howard and Ronald Roscoe Hubbs, son of R. C. Hubbs of Mountain View, Ont. Rev. D. P. Evans officiating. The attendants were the bride's brother and sister, Mr. Wm. Howard and Miss Gladys Howard.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Tenseness Can Cause Neuritis

When we read about the professional football players being given vitamin B1 to help their "nerves", and foods rich in vitamin B1 said to cure "neuritis"—inflammation of a nerve—it might be thought that vitamin B1 was the "cureall" for any disturbance of the nerves or nervous system.

Many physicians will admit that next to infection the chief lack of vitamin B1 is the cause of neuritis, but other causes are of increasing effects upon the whole body. But let us see all about conditions of this, Dr. John McDowell McKinney in Hygeia, the Health Magazine, points out that the common kind of disease can cause or be associated with a neuritis, and that a simple breaking of a bone if a nerve is injured, or by reason of kinds of cuts and bruises. There is no type of infection which has not given rise or been partly to blame for, a neuritis. Tumors, poisons, gout, diabetes often associated with neuritis.

"There is one cause of neuritis or neuritis-like pain which is frequently overlooked, namely tenseness, fear, unhappiness and emotional distress. These produce neuritis or neuritis-like pains in two ways: first, under stress of unhappiness or worry, the muscles of the neck, shoulders and back are unconsciously held tense and rigid. This sometimes kept up for hours or even days at a time. Muscles kept rigid under continued emotional tension become sore, tender and inflamed. Secondly, these tensed muscles, either by direct pressure on a nearby nerve, or by interfering with the blood supply to a nearby nerve, will set up a neuritis".

You and I know from experience how our stomach, heart, intestines, head, and other organs are affected by disagreeable news.

The lesson for all of us is that we must not allow ourselves to become or remain tense. I have to tell myself daily to relax as I find myself tense while driving, reading, writing or in other daily habits or tasks.

Remember, then, that when your physician can find nothing "organic" wrong for your neuritis or neuritis-like injury, lack of vitamins—and tell you that it is your tenseness that are to blame, they are very likely to be right.

It may require religion, philosophy, or both, to obtain relaxation to prevent neuritis.

Large Audience At Second Day's Cooking School

Mrs. Madeline Day Presents Interesting and Instructive Lecture on Cookery

PARADE OF FOODS

Savory cooking odors emanated from the McCarthy Theatre Thursday afternoon as the second session of the Parade of the Foods, a demonstration of Canadian cookery by Mrs. Madeline Day, took place. Mrs. Day had a varied menu for her program and the delectable appetizing dishes which resulted aroused the delighted admiration of the audience.

Speaking of many years' experience and brides just embarking on homemaking careers found the school most profitable, each step in preparing the dishes being carefully explained, and many new suggestions being proffered by the lecturer. As in the previous afternoon's session Mrs. Day stressed economical selection and preparation of health-giving foods. She showed how the neglected cuts of meat can be made delicious by long slow cooking and how various other foods may be prepared by this simmer method.

For her first demonstration yesterday she chose veal and ham pie for which was a tempting flaking crust, following this with pineapple parfait cake with pineapple parfait icing, orange pecan pie, stuffed weiners, rhubarb jelly.

Practical Hints

In baking Mrs. Day has found it practical to use a cotton canvas baking cloth rather than a baking board; she also suggests placing over the rolling pin, a child's white stocking, finding that she has found most satisfactory.

Discussing the making of pastry she advised the light touch.

"Don't roll out the pastry as though you were working with cement", she said. "Some people think that the more they do it the better the legs of the table start to get stiff".

Patting the pastry firmly into the pie pan will avoid air bubbles underneath, she said, and for meat pies this is particularly disastrous as the pie crust has been known to find its way to the top of the filling for this very reason.

To seal in a filling, Mrs. Day uses a moistened paper strip on the top and folds it over the top crust. This is usually satisfactory with the most obstinate filling.

Problems Discussed

Thursday's audience felt quite at home with Mrs. Day and many questions were asked by the homemakers present. These questions were welcomed by the lecturer who encouraged her hearers to discuss any of their homemaking problems at the School. Miss Brown efficiently assisted Mrs. Day on the stage.

The largest item in the family income is spent on food and for this reason women should carefully consider the buying method of prescription and proper preparation of food.

Community singing with Mrs. Smith providing splendid accompaniment, was an enjoyable part of the afternoon.

The interesting demonstration will be given a close with the "Parade of the Foods", giving the audience an opportunity to see, at close range, the various dishes prepared by the lecturer.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today was Lucky Leroy Shooster's birthday and I was walking to school with him and Shorty Judge and Puds Simkins, and Shorty said, G. Lucky, I wish you'd of been a great, famous man, like Julius Caesar 100 years ago and this was still your birthday.

Why, what would he study about that? Leroy said, and Shorty said, Why, plenty we'd be having a holiday from school in your honor, Lucky. Giving us an idea, and I said, Well why cant we celebrate it in advance, I mean how do we know he's not going to be famous some day, he's lucky enough.

Sure, G, he's libel to discover a new ocean or hemisphere for all we know and always finding things, Puds said, and I said, I wish we were positive about it, then we'd have a perfect excuse. How do you feel about it, Lucky? I said.

How can I tell, I feel lucky enough, Leroy said, and Shorty said, Well I bet there's a darn good chance of it, so why cant we take a chance ourselfs and just make it a half holiday this morning in case he's not great enough for a whole holiday?

We'll walk out to the Park, Leroy said, and Shorty said, Hay you cant say you have to go to school, you cant celebrate your own famousness, what would be cheating that would spoil everything.

Hay, who's suppose to be lucky feel about it, lucky? I said. If there's going to be any advance celebrating for me I want to be in it, he said.

Which by that time we were almost at a ways to school and the bell seemed to sound worse instead of he's not great enough for a whole better, so we gave it up.

Kingston Presbyterial W. M. S. Holds 55th Annual Meeting

The 55th annual meeting of Kingston Presbyterial W.M.S. was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kingston, Thursday afternoon and evening, May 29.

The president, Mrs. George Darling of Gananoque, occupied the chair and gave the call to worship.

Members of Deseronto auxiliary took charge of the afternoon devotions and Mrs. Miller of St. Andrew's Auxiliary, very warmly welcomed the delegates and visitors.

Seventy-three delegates responded to the roll call with a special item of interest, after which Miss Macfarlane gave a summary of news items and suggestions contained in a publication from Toronto.

Reports of the various departments were heard. These all urged upon the members a closer adherence to duty and a more faithful pursuance of the special work in which each department.

The Presbyterial treasurer's report was given by Mrs. George Mc-Donald: forwarded to the provincial treasurer tfo 1940 was $2,311.33. Mrs. McDonald of Napanee offered the dedicatory prayer.

Greetings from the Ontario Provincial Board were presented by Mrs. Riddell of Kingston, who spoke words of encouragement and assured the Presbyterial that help and understanding would always be available from the board members.

An address was given by Miss Margaret Ramsay, who has recently returned from the mission field of Formosa. This address contained an account of the work accomplished there through educational institutions, hospitals, bible women and native workers.

Members and guests of the Presbyterial were entertained at supper by the Catharine Parlile Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church.

In the evening the devotional period was conducted by members of Trinity Auxiliary.

Greetings of Kingston Presbytery were extended by Rev. J. A. Wedderburn, minister of the church. He stressed the importance of establishing Christian homes, which work largely rests with the women of the church as well as the keeping alive and active the missionary spirit.

A short report of the Ontario Provincial meeting held in May in Brockville was given by Mrs. A. E. Cameron, and the audience was again delighted with an address by Miss Ramsay, entitled "Here and There in Formosa."

Officers Installed

Rev. J. F. Wedderburn conducted the installation service of the following officers: Honorary presidents, Mrs. Reid, Belleville; Mrs. H. R. Duff, Kingston; Mrs. Morrice, Belleville; Mrs. Hunter, Belleville; president, Mrs. George Darling; first vice-president, Mrs. William Shaw; second vice-president, Mrs. Orchard; third vice-president, Mrs. H. R. Rollins; fourth vice-president, Miss M. Cameron; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. Ranson; recording secretary, Mrs. Ross; treasurer, Miss A. Powler.

Secretaries of secretaries, young women, Miss Clara Thain; teenage girls, Mrs. Thain Kinnear; mission bands, Mrs. E. Hunter; Sunbeams, Mrs. Gardiner; Glad Tidings, Mrs. J. H. Dougall; literature, Mrs. H. E. White; welcome and welfare, Mrs. K. Hunter; literature and literature, Mrs. J. Fargey; life membership, Mrs. Mackay; supply, Mrs. J. M. Tompkins; student, Miss J. Use Lighting That Flatters

Billie Burke's charming Hollywood home has an atmosphere of ease and graciousness.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT about the lights in your home, lady?... When you turn them on for the merry evening party do they make you look younger or older? There is such a thing as having flattering lights, and others which the little facial crinkles do only too well.

It is a joy to go into the home of a woman who has understanding of soft and proper shading of the silkwoatt glow worms. There is an atmosphere of ease and hospitality. The guest feels that she is appearing at her best, if nasty old man Time has done any complexion ravishing, they will not be noticed. Th·re is no cruel glare to make her eyes tired and to start nerves aiming.

Mid Lights

A ceiling of deep cream gives a softer reflection than a white one. Mid-lights are kind, they cast soft tones, dainty and delicate. The room which is lucrative any new house must put her mind on these matters. It may be news to her that she can employ an illuminating engineer who will consult in her just what sort of lamps she should have, how high they should be, and all that sort of thing.

Floor lamps should be placed beside chairs so that the light comes over the shoulder of those who occupy them. Candles on the dining table should be so shaded that the light does not fall on the chin of those who sit around the table.

Blue shades on table lights are likely to make faces look drawn. Greens make the skin look sallow. Rose imparts a pleasing glow and should be chosen with caution. Yellow makes the skin look ruddy.

More than bne woman has gone to a beauty shop "to be made over" make-up laid upon her celestial pallor, only to go to a dinner party in lights that are so dazzling that she left and looked as old as Eve. That's playing fair with one's guests.

Local Women Asked to Assist In War Effort

An opportunity for local women to join the Farm Service Force and thereby enter a National service in which will greatly assist Canada in her wartime effort, was presented locally this week when Miss D. M. Jackson, representing the Employment of Labour, was in the city with the object of interviewing possible workers to assist this summer on fruit and vegetable farms in the Niagara district. Lack of help on farms has prompted authorities to adopt, this method of securing assistance needed.

All workers must be between the ages of 16 and 45 years for fruit and vegetable work. Sixty camps for the girls, each of which will be under the supervision of its own "Camp Mother," are being established by the Y.W.C.A. in cooperation with the Ontario Government.

The kinds of work may include picking, packing and shipping fruit; hoeing, gathering vegetables; pruning, spraying or tying up vines, berry picking to vary from nine to ten hours per day. Rates of pay, when the work is hourly rate will be a minimum of 17½ cents per hour, with a corresponding minimum rate of piecework based on piece work.

The Ontario Government provides transportation from and side workers if the girls agree to work on a farm and stay for a period of three weeks. This transportation will be arranged in person only through an Ontario Employment Service office on the presentation of references. Applications should be made as soon as they are to be employed and the period of service.

Girls entering the Farm Service Force will be rendering a national service in a time of need. It was pointed out by Miss Jackson. And while it is expected the greatest response will be from girls of school age, teachers or others on their holiday during the summer will be welcomed. Applications should be sent to Farm Service Force, Department of Labour, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, the local Collegiate or Separate School or the Employment Service Office.

Stirling and District

Display of Work and Concert Held by Stirling Red Cross

Stirling—Loyal support to the cause of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross was displayed by the large attendance at a concert and display of work given in the Stirling Theatre on Monday evening. School children, community citizens and ladies of the organization worked whole-heartedly in an effort to make the event outstanding in every detail.

Fine Talent

Mrs. Gordon Bailey presided and introduced the various numbers interspersed by the modelling of garments prepared locally for war victims of the British Isles. The program opened with the singing of "O Canada" and following was a picturesque group dance by a group of girls, Miss G. Poynter presiding at the piano, Little Grace Carleton won the honors in the juvenile with her display of tap dancing. A song offered by Carolyn Rollins, Tommy Patterson, Ruth Tulloch and Rosa Bradshaw in patriotic fashion was also an appropriate contribution thoroughly enjoyed. Then followed a parade of tiny boys, modelling little boys' garments'created by the ladies of the district for the children of Britain. Little Marilyn Eggleston and Arlene Tummon delighted the audience with the vocal duet as they were accompanied by Mrs. C. Tummon at the piano. Miss Margaret Vanderwater offered an exhibition of tap dancing that was heartily received. A feature of the program that was most filling was a vocal trio by Leslie Harding, Carleton Wallace and Harry Conley singing "My Sister and I" was directed by Rev. Leslie Harding and exceptionally well done.

Fashion Parade For Men

The main event of the evening was a fashion display of men's clothing prepared by the local branch of the Red Cross. For this event Mr. R. A. Patterson acted as Master of Ceremonies and delighted the crowd with his original wit and humor as he described the various models all enacted by prominent citizens of the village, each displaying and praising the articles shown. Those assisting included Messrs. Murray Hick, Ira Eggleston, Cecil Macklin, Gordon Bailey, S. L. Lucas, C. L. Hutton, D. Ross Patterson, Rev. Leslie Harding, J. L. Good and Arthur Duncan.

The proceeds of the evening was unavoidably detained and the impressive total numbers offered by several local workers to fill the vacancy in the program were thoroughly enjoyed. Prayer was offered by Maj. Watson, field secretary of the Canadian Red Cross.

The June meeting of St. Paul's W.A. was held the home of Mrs. Will West on Tuesday afternoon, June 3rd. The President, Mrs. R. B. Patterson, presided over the meeting. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, and several acknowledgments of cards and letters received during the month, also reported eight cards and two letters sent during the period. Fourteen visiting calls were reported. Mrs. A. E. Good and Mrs. M. Pitman were appointed for the June social committee for the month of June. The roll call received forty ladies present.

A very satisfactory financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. M. Hick. During the business discussion the meeting decision was passed, the W. A. contribute one hundred dollars to the General Funds of the church for the year. The association's thanksoffering. The days it will be W.A. convention held in Trenton May 22nd was given by Mrs. B. Duffin in the absence of Mrs. Fred Jackman who was ill.Mrs. Duffin gave interesting remarks. Mrs. R. A. Patterson presided over the remaining program. Following the singing of the hymn "Jesus Calls" the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Patterson. Psalm 23 was chorally read by Mrs. Tren Donnan and taken from Psalm 91 and Matthew seventh chapter, closing with a splendid sermon poem on "Christ-ending." Mrs. Patterson discussed an interesting article entitled "The Diary of a Hick Nun." The lesson gave a reading by Gertrude Webster entitled "In an Airport." This part of the meeting closed with the singing of another patriotic hymn, National Anthem and the Mizpah Benediction.

During the social period Mrs. R. P. Coulter directed a conundrum game, which proved very humorous was served by the committee, and the appreciation of the W. A. was ably expressed to the hostess, Mrs. West and entire committee by Mrs. E. G. Bailey. Following are the ladies responsible for this meeting: Mrs. R. P. Coulter, Mrs. Claude Tucker, Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Mrs. Arthur Duncan, Mrs. Ira Eggleston, Mrs. A. Gordanier, Mrs. R. P. Coulter and Mrs. H. Chambers.

APPRECIATION FOR SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

1. What is the proper way to express your appreciation for a stork shower to the hostess and to the guests?

2. If a friend or relative sends a gift for the baby, is it proper to thank the giver personally, or send a card in addition? Which is the correct to send a card of appreciation to a ladies' organization for flowers?

C. T.

1. As the guest of honor at the shower opens each gift, she expresses her thanks for the thoughtfulness of the giver and for the gift itself. She acknowledges it to be in a hurry to get at the next gift and should make the giver feel that her gift is deeply appreciated.

When the guest of honor leaves, naturally she will thank her hostess appreciatively for her party-plan and her delightful hospitality. The usual custom of honor writes a note of thanks a day or two after the party, to the hostess, enclosing the note in a box of flowers. She also writes a little note of thanks to each giver.

2. If the friend or relative brings the gift, the thanks will be said at that time. But if the gift is sent, it isn't gracious, because it doesn't show spontaneous appreciation, to wait until the giver is casually encountered.

This idea of saying or writing our appreciation of gifts can't be over-done. Giving a gift means thought, planning, trouble, expense. The person with a sincere sense of appreciation makes the proper how to show that she is grateful for this generous plan for happiness. Casual thanks aren't enough. Ready-made cards of thanks are in the worst kind of taste. We must let our own words from our hearts flow.

CONFUSED OVER FORMALITY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am being married this month in the afternoon at four o'clock. After the ceremony there will be a reception. I shall be about three hundred guests.

The invitations have been mailed to our relatives and friends — and to a few people I have acquired since. My mother and sister both tell me that this was the wrong thing to do. That is, that we would have been the proper thing for my fiance to send out the invitations themselves personally. They also say that the invitations are unusual and undoubtedly be offended and probably not come to the wedding.

My fiance is in business, and has a wide circle of business hours and his preparations for the wedding. It would have been impossible for him to have delivered the invitations personally. Will you please write and answer for me in your column? Thank you, if you will please.

CONFUSED

Someone.

Since you did what is the customary and proper thing to do please don't cloud your mind needing days by this unnecessary worrying.

Your mother and sister apparently are confused about this formality. What they need now is to am sure, be worried about ,your invitations and should not accept your wedding invitation. I am sure they will accept and will come.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AGE-OLD PROBLEM RECURS, 'TIS FEMALE MORE DEMURE

"Because necessity is the mother of invention, the male of the species has become very adroit in concealing things from his better half."

Coming across this challenging sentence in Evelyn Thiele Wren's published in Richmond, Virginia, I adjust my spectacles breathlessly. It seems that many men are reduced to all manner of subterfuge when it comes to saying "cigarette money" from their pay envelopes.

A letter received by a loan institution from an attorney, reads: "Gentlemen:

"Your letter of the 4th is the occasion of this reply. The apparent excess deduction for title examination and insurance from the borrowed was not actual and I deducted it myself. I am sure you than I was supposed to have.

"Confidentially, the borrower's wife 'holds the purse strings' and he added this item to his application in order to get him a little spending money.

"Singularly, another borrower has made a similar request when his loan is closed."

The piteous plea for a few smokes perhaps or a movie or cup of cotee, or maybe something more substantial, from numerous letters received by this column, one of which follows:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a man of supposed desires if you like, but I've always been dependent on tools, things my father put me in a bank, from which I've lacked the initiative to cut loose. The lady-wife supervises every penny of my salary, and I must confess she's a financial wizard.

"To get a little spending money I occasionally play poker. When I win, I go to the Penny-and-One and buy tools. The last two or three times I've been a steady loser at the game.

"I read your column regularly and see that you sometimes tell women how they can earn a little pin money. Do you know of any way in which a man can make a little money on the side? My position as a bank clerk precludes my cutting grass, delivering groceries from a chain store, cleaning back yards, washing cars or anything fancy.

"I note that the despairing often sign themselves 'Anxious' in letters to you, so I sign myself

"Anxious and Then Some."

The law journal mentioned above states that a six-footer left his frail little wife an enormous pair of insurance policies. "All of 'Fifty' were them in life; now she can have them either as a death."

Another married man bequeaths all set sizes to his wife, "provided she would walk to the market on each succeeding day." Another has read a confession that if her tongue had been shorter, her husband's life would have been longer. Another down-trodden male left a legacy: "To Elizabeth, in acknowledgment foolish fondness, I married, and who in return has been the most unjustly, to accuse me of crimes of every human stripe from highway robbery."

Attention, Ladies! You are at liberty to jump into the arena and defend yourselves in this column.

A Tailored Buttoned Dress

Pattern 4777

4777

By ANNE ADAMS

This button-front cotton is lifted right out of the "housekeeping" class by its trim, tailored lines and well-designed details. You'll find Pattern 4777 by Anne Adams useful for day-time wear, for shopping or visiting. It's one of the most slenderizing frocks you've ever owned, with lovely long-waisted lines given by those side-front sections that gracefully curve around to the back. A conventional full-length front buttoning, double front skirt panels and a long panel down the back are all wonderful figure-flattering features. You'll like the young air of the notched collar which may be in self-fabric, or white, or in fresh contrast. Here's a real "find" that you will wear the calendar around —do make it right away!

Pattern 4777 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. For size 36 takes 4 5-8 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to The Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

Seaweed Silk Looks Success

London (CP) — If the English girls, like them, prefer silk, London legs are going to be clad very soon in the new material called "seaweed silk"—produced from seaweed. Experiments have been going on for two years since by accidental discovery—seaweed was found to contain rayon constituents and at last success has been achieved. Professor J. B. Speakman announced at Leeds, University, "This rayon is very suitable for stockings, underwear and other knitted and woven good," he said, explaining the nature of the new fabric, "and the property which will give it many uses, he said, is that it is inflammable.

SAUCE-SAUSAGES WHILE FRYING
—You'll give them richer flavour

WHEN sausages are nearly done, add half a teaspoonful of H. P. Sauce and a little water. Rock the pan to and fro and when done, fry then dip up the gravy two or three times and pour over the sausages as they finish cooking. This seasoning with H. P. Sauce, adds a most enjoyable touch of flavour. Make both ends of the sausages quite tantlet. All meats are given a heavier, more relishable flavour by H. P. Sauce in added while cooking or when serving. Being a thick, fruity sauce, H. P. helps you to economize as well as add flavour. With a dab of this on your cold meats tasty dishes from leftovers and fried fish, inferiorities fade. Try H. P. Sauce for your next family meal.

Mack's Miracle Athletics Must Move Over to Share Spotlight With the Red Sox

Joe Cronin's Team Now in Third Place, Three Games Back of Indians

YANKEES BEATEN

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sport Writer.

Recognition already has been given Philadelphia Athletics as a late-blooming miracle of the spring, but the A's need to move over and make room for Boston Red Sox.

Joe Cronin's gilt-edged boys have done a lot of aimless wandering some of it in the second division, since winning five games in a row at the start of the season.

June nine days ago they slipped to six place in the American League yet today they are up in third place with a brand new five-game winning streak and are only three games back of the pace-making Cleveland Indians, whom they crushed yesterday 16-1.

About to be Drafted

Mickey Harris, the 25-year-old New York City southpaw who is about to be drafted into the army has provided perhaps the biggest spark in the current rush. He started the present streak by pitching a two-hit shutout against New York Yankees May 31 and yesterday he smothered the Indians with six-hit pitching.

The Sox backed him up with a 16-hit assault on four Cleveland hurlers. Ted Williams hit his ninth homer of the year, Don DiMaggio collected his first, Cronin tripled with two on, Jimmy Foxx doubled with the boss leader and the fun-fling went on all afternoon.

Wrest Four Decisions

It was the 13th worst rout of the year for the Indians, who didn't score until the eighth inning and wouldn't be in first place today except that the Athletics took care of Chicago White Sox, 5-3.

The A's reeled off six runs in the second inning on four passes an hit batter, a triple by Wally Moses and doubles by Sam Chapman and Frank Hayes. After that Lefty Grove had Joe Dobson in subjection with seven-hit pitching and the A's breathed themselves to another three-run splurge in the eighth.

Detroit Tigers took a ragged 5-4 decision from New York Yankees in 10 innings to complicate the American League race further by bunching no more than four games within a space of four games.

St. Louis Browns' wallopin' Newsy off to a good start as manager by whipping Washington Senators 9-4 for a sweep of their three-game series and their longest winning streak of the season.

Both shaded out the National League program.

British Make New Airscrew

London (CP)—A "Contraprop," a new tyre of airscrew designed to improve the efficiency of aircraft, may be fitted to Royal Air Force planes, if it survives rigid tests in workshops and in the air.

The contraprop, or co-axial, an oppositely rotating airscrew with controllable pitch blades, resembles two airscrews, arranged close together and mounted on two shafts, one running inside the other and turning in opposite directions. Bench tests were started in 1939 and flight tests in 1940 but they have not been completed.

Capt. A. Rolfe Dowgill and G. J. Smith-Pert, British engineers who developed the new design, claim it is the first controllable airscrew in the world and that advantages are obtained by using it in modern highpowered engines.

By reducing the overall diameter of the airscrew, the developers said, undercarriage design problems are less troublesome, especially with fighting aircraft. Interference of the slip of the airscrew is true, so the aircraft doesn't attempt to swing while taking off and there is an improvement of the aircraft's power of manoeuvre in the air.

A special arrangement, details of which are kept secret, enables one half of the contraprop to be kept working if the other is put out of action, and in effect, twin-engined reliability is obtained. Cannon can be mounted to fire through the centre of the contraprop.

SHUTE IS LONE MASTER OF OPEN GOLF COURSE

Shoots a 69 in First Round to Beat Par by One Stroke

A TOUGH COURSE

(By William T. Rives)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Fort Worth, Tex., June 6—(AP)—Battered in the opening round, pursuers of the United States National Open Golf Championship staggered through the ropes today for another tussle with Colonial Club's tough par.

All alone stood little Denny Shute, sole man to master the course.

Shute, twice winner of the P.G.A. championship, carved a 36-33-69 to best par 70-35 in yesterday's first round.

The greatest opening day crowd in the tournament's history, approximately 8,000 persons, jammed the fairways behind their favorite threesomes.

Overlooked by selectors who left him a 20-1 shot, Shute found the links a friend because of his monotonously straight game.

Only two players equalled par—Vic Ghezzi and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, with identical scores of 35 on each nine.

Many With Seventy-One

Bunched behind the leaders with 71's were Gen Kunes of Philadelphia, Harold (Jug) McSpaden and Lawson Little, all former Canadian Open Champions; Ben Hogan, and Jack Ryan of Louisville, Ky., Little is the defending champion.

Sharing 7's were Henry Ransom, local pride; Clayton Heafner; assistant Harry Todd of Dallas; Bunny Torpey of Dodaco, Mo.; Ted Kroll of Hamilton, Ont.; Bill Kalsey of Louisville, Ky., and Johnny Bulla of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The rest of the field sagged. Byron Nelson, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Craig Wood, Lloyd Mangrum and Chick Harbert were among the 72's.

Ralph Guldahl, who sprinted in as a hot favorite in the final, was all but the low 60 scorers and ties. Tomorrow comes the climatic 36-hole finale.

Because of yesterday's soaring scores, the consensus among pros was that 286 would win

6—LOBS AND SMASHES

The smash shot, shown here, is often overdone by beginners, but when learned is by far the most use ceseful answer to a not-too-good lob shot. The ball should be hit, preferably in the air without a bounce, with a flat racket. Strike the upper portion of the ball with a forceful forward and down motion. Follow your stroke to bounce high or angle them off if you are close to the net.

SOMETIMES, when the going gets fast, you cannot manoeuvre yourself into a position for a good offensive shot. The next best thing, then, is a good defensive shot which will give time to get set for your opponent's return. That is the chief function of the lob, although it may be used offensively to get a player at the net to give up his position.

To make a good lob shot, the idea is to hit the ball just high enough to clear the reach of the opponent's racket head and fall near the baseline, bouncing away before your opponent gets another chance at the ball. It sounds like a simple shot, but to accurately judge the proper height and distance requires a lot of practice. One thing you should remember when lobbing from the proximity of the baselines, is that the highest point of the arc the ball describes is right above the net. If your lob describes such an arc, you get the desired deep lob. To lob short and run in to the net, a frequent error, is fatal.

The answer to not too good a lob is the smash. The ball is hit, preferably in the air without a bounce, with a flat racket. Strike the upper portion of the ball with a forceful forward and down motion. Design your stroke to bounce high or angle them off if you are close to the net.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS FIGHT WAY BACK TO FIRST DIVISION

Only Two Percentage Points Behind Sixth Place Orioles

RAIN IS DAMPER

(By The Associated Press)

After a 10-day lapse which dropped them from fifth to seventh place in the International League standings, Syracuse Chiefs, with the help of some fine pitching, are valiantly fighting their way back toward the first division.

One game out of fourth place May 21, the Chiefs went into a slump and lost 10 of 11 games before Ken Burkhart stepped in and toned a one-hitter against Montreal Royals June 1 to check the nose-dive.

The Krakauskas went the distance the next time out beating the Royals again, and Les Hincks carried on the good work last night, shutting out Buffalo Bisons 2-0 in the only game played.

The victories put the Chiefs a scant two percentage points behind the sixth-place Baltimore Orioles and pushed the fourth-place Bisons two full games back of third.

Hincks doled out three singles, struck out six and walked only one to register his fifth conquest of the year. Freddy Hutchinson, ace of the Buffalo mound corps, opposed him and was nicked for seven hits, including the shutout.

Rain put the damper on the rest of the doubleheader for the second straight day.

CONN TALKING A GOOD FIGHT

Pittsburgh Boxer Believes He Will Knock Louis From His Crown

Pompton Lakes, N.J., June 6 —(AP)—Billy Conn, classic ring pugilist boxer from Pittsburgh, is so confident he will knock Joe Louis out of the heavyweight championship from the Louis Juna 18 that he has even the current champion on the Louis-le-terrific-club beginning to worry.

Billy has grown up remarkably in the last few months. Manager Fred Apostoli finally has given up hope of outgrowing his present 175 pounds, but mentally.

Now, instead of making flip cracks about his opponents and refusing to admit that anybody could lick him, Billy is the first to tells with the cold detachment of a surgeon how he will defeat the big Negro. He sounds like a much more dangerous Billy. Billy Conn was the slim-waisted firebrand who used to fly into a rage when his alley fighter.

"I've always been that way," Conn said today. "I know, you think I'll do that with Louis, but I've got my head knocked off. But I won't. I'll fool you, Louis, and every body else this time.

"Why do I think I can take Louis punches and beat him on his stepping around him? Because I took all Lee Savold had to offer and still can think Louis can hit a bit harder than Savold. Besides, Louis has not broke my nose the first time he hit me, and every time he caught me on the head that I thought my brains were coming out the other ear. I've seen how to keep my head up and went on feeding him left hooks."

Do you remember when Jockey Steve Donoghue rode his third successive mount in the Derby at Epsom Downs 18 years ago today? Irving Paprvis has written that he established a record unsurpassed by any rider in Derby history. He added three more to that total of classic before retiring in 1927. During his 30-year career he had more than 2,000 firsts.

It's just like home on the baseball diamond for some of the Belleville lads in training at Petawawa Camp these days. The reason is that pitching for the Meier Transport unit is none other than Jack "Chief" Williams, who handled twice as many ball players, that is well ... up in the standing of the Petawawa Military Camp League, according to the local boys, who have to face him. "The Chief may not possess the pep and bop he used to get on the old pitching mound, but control and canniness more than makes up for what his physical effects lack on the mound today," one of the local baseball enthusiast over-lunched at Petawawa informed us last week. Several members of the old Napanee Gibbards are lined-up on the same team with Williams, we hear.

When the Cubs took "Pinky" Dean off the active player list and made him coach, it was an unexpected move, which came as a surprise even to him. Dean refused Dizzy's request for voluntary retirement when his unconditional release and then signed him as a coaching aid to Manager Jimmie Wilson. It was said that his player status would end in 1940, would be continued and that he would be given additional compensation as coach, stating that Lt. Wilcox and General Manager Jim Gallagher both paid tribute to Dean's competitive spirit, Gallagher commenting: "He's too valuable to wind up in the minors—or picking cotton. We'll be of great help in helping young pitchers." Dean's comment was: "Boy, has this club been good to me!"

"The Cardinals and Dodgers have yet to hit that losing streak or slump that catches up to every Major League club at some time or another during a season. That's when our pitching a defensive ball will prove itself and we'll be in the tick of the race," declared Manager Bill McKechnie of the world champion Cincinnati Reds in his version of two polite National League race would develop. Maybe Deacon Will hasn't looked at the league standing lately, the Redlegs are no less than 11 games out of first place and languishing in the second division.

SPORT SPICE—The St. Louis Browns won their first game under Manager Luke Sewell this season, day, beating the Senators 4-2. . . . It was the Browns' third consecutive victory. . . . After a celebration at Sportsman's Parlor . . . The Detroit Tigers took an overtime contest from the Yankees. . . . Rock Stevens at last getting into a winning vein with another relief hurling. . . . What about bringing the Sunday Collegiate Girls' softball team, with the Greenwood skaters as the chief attraction, down for an exhibition game here? . . . All eyes are due to war charities, of course. . . . Frankie Edsall, Oshawa Generals' defenceman, signed a two-year contract with the Toronto Maple Leafs recently. . . . And when they begin to talk hockey can autumn leaves be far off? . . . That'll be the day.

Tennis Schedule

Four clubs have been entered in the southern section of the Trent Valley Tennis League this season, two from Belleville, Point Anne and the Trenton Canoe Club. The two local clubs are the Quinte and West Side Clubs.

Two games have already been played in the league, which finds West Siders leading the loop with four points, the Quinte and Trent Canoe Club tied for second with three points each and Point Anne trailing with two points.

The remainder of the league schedule reads:

June 11—Quinte at West Side.
Point Anne at Trenton.

June 18—Quinte at Point Anne.
West Side at Trenton.

June 25—Point Anne at Quinte.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER SIX

WORK HAD already begun on the buildings that were to break forever the lonely grip of the wilderness on Halcyon Island. The Hacienda, as the home of John Hunt and Antonia was called, was almost finished when Betsy and Tom first encountered Marham. In the busy days afterward, while they worked out the multitudinous details of the successful operation of Markham's scheme, the six cottages began to spring up, small, compact, amazingly convenient. Betsy was besides herself with delight at Markham's suggestion that she attend to selecting furnishings for the houses; no two to be alike; yet each to be as new as a bride, and as complete and modern as even the most exacting housewife could demand.

She and Tom spent the days on the island, surrounded by carpenters, plasterers, plumbers and electricians. Betsy treasured wicker-planned floor space, selected built-in cabinets, and rushed back to town to spend hours in the furniture stores and drapery shops choosing suitable pieces.

At night, after dinner, she and Tom reported to Mr. Markam on the day's activities, the day's progress and any details of problems that might have come up. Then Mr. Markham would produce his list of applicants for space on the island, and together would go over the credentials, letters, the references. Each couple must be sponsored by two responsible citizens in their home town; each couple must have been married within the past month, or be planning to be married within the next 30 days; and each applicant must write a letter giving his or her reasons for asking for such a honeymoon.

Betsy and Tom were astounded at the number of applicants. Burton brought in the mail in the morning in a huge wastebasket, no tray in the house having been found large enough to contain it; but Mr. Markham welcomed the great flood of applications and spoke appreciatively of the publicity firm he had engaged to spread the news of his plan.

Because a terrific amount of money, judiciously spent, can create wonders of achievement, Halcyon Island was ready before Mr. Markham had dared hope it would be. It was his wish that Betsy and Tom be married at the Hacienda, though it hardly rained an arduous journey for him; who so seldom left his house. But on a mellow blue and golden afternoon his wheelchair was carefully lifted aboard the small launch which chugged its way carefully out to the island. There Tom and Burton lifted the chair from the launch and wheeled it along the smooth cement drive that led up to the steps of the Hacienda.

And there Mr. Markham got his first comprehensive view of what had been done toward carrying out his plans. He sat on the narrow terrace, looking about him, eager as a boy.

The Hacienda was a two-storied structure in Spanish style; a long living room with French doors opening on the terrace; a dining room, a kitchen and a small library downstairs; upstairs, two bedrooms, one on either side of the wide hall, each bedroom with its own private bath; following the plans which Nancy had approved 25 years or more ago.

From the terrace of the Hacienda, Mr. Markham looked to the left where, scattered among palms and wild tea-olive and mango trees, he could see the roofs of three small cottages; each with a large, square living room, a kitchen, a dining alcove, one bedroom, and bath and a screened porch. To the right, there were two more such units. In front of each there was a scrap of green lawn, a wall bordered with gaily tinted beds of zinnias and phlox.

Mr. Markham drew a deep breath of pleasure as he looked at the patio in front of him; the green lawn, the flowerbeds, the oleander and hibiscus bushes; the one lovely poinciana tree, looking green and placid now, which would froth in incredible beauty of flame-orange cup-shaped blossoms when the weather grew warmer.

"You've done a beautiful job," he told Betsy and Tom. "It's exactly as she would have wished it to be, exactly."

"It was your money, Mr. Markham. We only did what you told us to do and what you paid for having done," said Tom.

Mr. Markham nodded. "But you don't realize, my boy, how unusual it is to get such exact and instructions carried out so perfectly. I'm very happy—very happy, indeed."

A speedboat was docking at the tiny concrete pier and Burton said quietly, "It is the minister arriving, sir. Everything is in readiness."

"Yes," said Mr. Markham, "everything is in readiness."

Burton wheeled him into the living room. This morning at his orders the room had been filled with great quantities of flowers, although Burton and Mrs. Burton and Mr. Markham were to be the only witnesses, it was in every essential a full-dress wedding.

As Betsy saw the minister come into the room and shake hands with Mr. Markham and Tom, she felt a moment of panic. After all, Tom was a stranger to her. Oh, of course, she liked him. He was fun to be with, and all that. But to be married to him? It was all she could do to keep from crying out in sharp protest, as Tom turned to her and held out his hand.

She moved forward step by step. Slim and breathlessly pretty in her gown of starched white chiffon, a wide, bell-brimmed hat shading her face, her arms laden with bride's roses and valley lilies, her bride-like she looked, she knew; but surely no girl ever faced her wedding feeling less like a bride.

Panic took her, and protest; denial rose to her lips. Then she looked down into Tom Markham's white face and met his tired, kind eyes—and suddenly all panic, all protest, all denial went out of her heart. Impulsively, tears straggled her eyelids, she bent her head and kissed his cheek. Then she straightened, put her hand in Tom's, and lifted her head to the minister.

The minister cleared his throat, opened his Bible and began to read: "Dearly beloved, we are gathered here—"

Betsy stole a startled glance upward at Tom's controlled young face. He wasn't looking at her. He was looking at the minister, listening with a curious intentness to what the pastor was saying. His hand held Betsy's firmly, but not too tightly. His whole manner was calm, sober, alert, nonexcitable. Suddenly illogically, Betsy felt a little unreasoning wave of rebellion sweep over her. What was she doing? This man was a stranger to her—she barely knew him—yet she was marrying him!

Actually marrying him!

It was as though she had been asleep and had suddenly awakened to a terrific thunderclap. She was frightened. This wasn't the way she had thought of being married—

Tom's fingers tightened on hers and he whispered almost silently, "Steady, old girl. Take it easy!"

Betsy caught her breath on a little gasp and looked up at him. There was the faintest quirk at the corners of his handsome, thin-lipped mouth. There was an almost quizzical twinkle in his blue eyes, in the tilt of his darkly red head. Betsy felt a little tide of scarlet sweep over her face; her eyes dropped, for she knew she had been on the verge of making a fool of herself and creating a scene here.

She was able to give her response to the minister at the right time, and in an unbelievably short time it was over.

CHAPTER SEVEN

After the minister had departed, Mr. Markham accepted a glass of wine and a bit of the wedding cake that Mrs. Burton had provided. "I'm going to miss you two," he said.

"Stay here with us," Betsy begged impulsively.

Mr. Markham laughed gently and patted her hand.

"Three on a honeymoon? Whoever heard of such a thing?" he said teasingly.

"Well, if you want to get downright technical about it," Tom said Betsy vigorously, "whoever heard of a honeymoon as this? A couple of strangers—"

"One of whom is anxious to be friendly," the other stands around with a chip on her shoulder, daring somebody to knock it off," said Tom coolly, but there was a small glint in his eyes.

Betsy stared at him, her head tilted back. "Which wearing a chip on whose shoulder?" she demanded with deepening mistiness.

"Shall I draw you a diagram?" asked Tom.

Mr. Markham looked from one to the other. His tired old eyes sharpened, and his hand shook as he made a little gesture of appeal.

"Children, children, have I made a terrible mistake? Have I roped you two into a situation that is going to make you unhappy? I wouldn't for anything in the world, have meddled in your lives if I had dreamed that it would be unpleasant for you—"

"Sorry, sir—I think I can manage her all right," said Tom, and his jaw set a little.

Betsy stiffened and her chin tilted at a pugnacious angle. But before she could put into words of her tongue, her eyes met Mr. Markham's anxious gaze and all the belligerence went out of her. She bent swiftly, put strong arms about Mr. Markham and laid her cheek against his.

"I'm a good-for-nothing gal," she apologized contritely. "And it would serve me right if you took me by the scruff of the neck and heaved me off the pier, where it's nice and deep. But just don't pay any attention, darling. I'm tired and nervous and jittery. But down underneath, I'm very grateful for what you've done for—us."

"Grateful!" The word somehow seemed to have an almost unpleasant ring in his ears, and for a moment Mr. Markham looked at Betsy.

But Betsy, bent on making amends handsomely and completely, turned to Tom, held out her hand and said quietly, "Sorry, partner, that I blew up. I'll behave, honest I will!"

"Sure you will," Tom told her grimly, as his hand closed on hers. There was a look in his eyes that told her he meant what he said.

"Because if you DON'T behave, I'm not a bit too good to turn you over my knee with the business-end of a slipper in my strong brown hand—to help me!"

"Cavuman stuff, eh?" she commented in an awed tone.

"Cavuman stuff is right!" Tom told her firmly.

And suddenly they were laughing at each other and the air was cleared of all unreal tensions and strain.

"Oh, that's much better," said Mr. Markham, in sharp relief. "Really SO much better! I was beginning to be honestly worried about you two."

"Well, don't you worry about us a bit. We don't rate it, or need it," said Betsy firmly. "We've been perfectly swell to us, and if there's any worrying to be done, you let us worry about you. We owe you so much. We're terribly grateful—"

But an hour later, as Burton was helping the boatman to lift the last of many packages, Mr. Markham turned and said, in sharp distress, "Burton, did you hear them? They're grateful to me—GRATE-

WALL STREET

New York, June 6.—(AP)—Prices slipped by fairly common on a heist and stock market today.

Among the declaring issues were: Boeing, Sperry, Consolidated Aircraft, Douglas, Curtiss-Wright and New York Central. Trading lower at times were General Motors, J. I. Case, Caterpillar, American Smelting, Southern Railway and American Telephone.

Operators were made extremely cautious by developments tending to threaten the government "de-Vichy and the United States" and were therefore unwilling to engage in much action until the muddled situation cleared.

Fair gains were made in the early hours by Chrysler and Pacific Gas, Hayden Chemical, Humble Oil and Montgomery Ward "A".

Walkers, up 1-2, was the only Tor. Stock Exchange issue showing a change.

Liveweight: Unchanged at 9.10

Dressedweight: Unchanged at $12.50; Brantford, $12.35, plus transportation; Chatham $12; Hull $12.50, plus transportation; Listowel $12.50, plus transportation; Stratford $12, plus transportation.

Top-Grade Egg Prices Stronger

Toronto, June 6—On the Toronto open produce market yesterday good demand strengthened prices to slightly over a grade of Ontario A-medium eggs, while butter held steady.

The improved buying, evident Wednesday, continued into yesterday's session of the egg market, and the day's volume of receipts moved readily through wholesale channels. Prices were quoted and held firm, with grades A-large and A-medium in the grade assembly at the trading gaining 1-2 cent a dozen.

Slower, spotty demand for butter failed to weaken prices, and as sellers were not offering in heavy volume, Ontario No. 1 creamery solids closed steady at 31 1-4 cents a pound.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, June 6—(CP)—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Eggs: Graded-grade solid, jobbing price, 22c to 22 1-2c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used cases, specials at A-large, 23 1-2c; A-medium, 22c; B grade, 20c to 20 1-2c; C grade, 18c to 18 1-2c. Receipts, 7,771 cases.

Carmen Grills Elected Head Of Cheese Board

Mr. Carmen Grills, R.R. 5, Trenton, was unanimously elected as president of the Belleville Cheese Board at Trade at its annual meeting of that body last evening which was held in the Memorial Hall in the regular Thursday night meeting of the Board. Mr. Grills replaced Mr. W. McLaren of Melrose, who acted as president for the past two years.

Other officers elected were—1st Vice President, H. L. Adams, R.R. 7, Belleville; 2nd Vice President, Ernest Bateman, Tweed; 3rd Vice President, Clayton Wright, R.R. 3, Hickory. Mr. Fred Mallory was re-elected to act as secretary-treasurer for another year while auditors appointed were Mr. Cecil Thompson, Springbrook and Mr. William Bedell, Hillier.

Before stepping down from the presidency, Mr. Adams thanked the members of the Belleville Cheese Board for the co-operation they had shown during the past year and especially thanked the secretary and Mr. Jim Irwin, Chief Dairy Grader, for the splendid co-operation received during his term of office. Mr. George Weaver, R.R. 3, Belleville, presented the retiring officers for the ensuing year and extended a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Grills upon the efficient manner in which he had conducted the board during his term of office as president.

The number of cheese boarded showed a considerable decline from that of the previous week as due to the unsettled weather. Mr. Ivan McCreary, cheese buyer, no cheese was purchased. Seven cheese were boarded. The cheese boarded totalled 700 boxes. Trade sold for the one price of 14 7-16 cents with McCreary taking 1,522; Swift Canadian Company, 1,443 and Stock Cut. OPPONENTS WOULD DEVELOP POWER BUT BAR SEAWAY

Missouri Democrat Against U.S. President That Project Would "Benefit Defence Needs"

27-FOOT CHANNEL

Washington, June 6—(AP)—President Roosevelt's plan to develop the United States Congressional committee to the power and navigation waterway development brought a storm of protest from opponents today that only the Hydro-Electric power portion of the program be undertaken at this time.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark (D., Mo.) said in view of the President's assertion yesterday that additional power facilities are needed for defence industries, he and others favored the defence bill project to authorizing development of the power resources.

But the Missouri Democrat, one of the leaders of a conservative fight to prevent Senate ratification of a treaty approving the proposed development, said he could see no merit in the President's contention that the 1,200 mile waterway from Montreal to the Great Lakes would be of any benefit to defence industry needs.

Clark's suggestion, however, raised the question whether power and navigation phases of the project could be separated and some members voiced doubts it would consent to such action. The build canal and locks for both purposes than to authorize the hydro power alone.

Spoke With Equal Emphasis

The President in his message to Congress, spoke with equal emphasis of the need of both the power development and the seaway for national defence, both through the Great Lakes and Atlantic.

The proposed seaway—which is entirely within the United States—would be completed in four years or less—would help prevent transportation bottlenecks, and would permit the immediate shifting of long-term naval construction from overcrowded coastal yards to inland sites if the facilities, the President added.

Mr. Roosevelt called the project ed power and navigation scheme "an important part of the whole national plan for the North American continent."

Canada and the United States signed the Waterway Agreement at Washington March 19. It provided for joint construction and use of facilities in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence stretch or international rapids between Cornwall, Ont., and Massena, N.Y., to generate 2,200,000 horsepower.

In addition, a 27-foot channel would be cut in the upper St. Lawrence at the international Soo-Sault ranges and Lachine rapids. These locks, together with the Welland and Sault St. Marie canals, would provide a 27-foot channel for ocean-going ships from tidewaters below Montreal, the Gulf of St. Lake Superior, a distance of 1,200 miles.

Referring to the recent passage of German troops into Syria, the Syrian air bases, he claimed that this move placed Turkey in danger.

Claims Reports Unfounded

Regarding reports that Vichy was abandoning Syria to German military control, Admiral Platon declared had been landed at Latakia and 15,000 Nazi troops had arrived at Beirut in a French hospital ship, but claimed all these stories were unfounded.

"There are not, and have never been, Germans in Syria or Greater Lebanon", he said.

Explaining the Vichy-Berlin collaboration policy, the General warned that Germany's collaboration overture to pro-British and Free French sentiment—and there is very large one—with the alluring image of hypothetical victory which is confronting France with terrible greatness to France.

"This policy, however, that it nothing is undertaken now to assure the independence of France, no Frenchmen will remain in France by them".

frontier of British-occupied transjordania.

Coupled with these developments was a growing confidence in the growing criticism of the Government's conduct operations.

Situation Regarded as Serious

One political correspondent asserted that the present defeat in Crete has bitten deeply into the prestige of the Government, and added:

"The complexity of responsible members of all parties has been seriously shaken and the demand for an imperial war council has been growing steadily.

The situation caused by reported Nazi troop movements in Syria has produced a particularly serious because of the probability that country-menaced by British occupied her in war with France.

It was recalled that shortly after the collapse of France the British and Free French forces in Syria were would be permitted to occupy Syria and Lebanon if the Government in Vichy Government was prepared to fulfil that pledge.

There was a disposition in military circles to regard the situation in Syria as a diversion of sight on Alexandria—an easy hop for modern long-range bombers.

Prospects of Better Dominion - Ontario Relations Seen in Latest Move

TAX WITHDRAWN

(By C. R. Blackburn)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 6 — Ontario's acceptance by the House of Commons of a Government move to satisfy Ontario protests against the budget increase in the non-resident tax and a proposal from Premier Mitchell Hepburn for a Dominion-Provincial Conference were interpreted today by observers here as a promise of better relations between the Dominion Government and the largest province.

Today yesterday Finance Minister Ilsley announced that, faced by the imperative need for revenue, the government would satisfy Mr. Hepburn's objections to the 5 per cent tax on interest payable in Canada to non-residents by withdrawal of Canadian securities.

At almost the same time, in Toronto, the Ontario Premier was dispatching a telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King suggesting a Dominion-Provincial Conference at which all differences could be ironed out in the interest of a "united war effort".

Before it was generally known that Mr. Hepburn's telegram had been despatched, the House of Commons accepted by provinces from the increase from five to 15 per cent in the Dominion Succession Duty and Dominion-guaranteed securities already were exempt.

Latest Development

This was the latest development in a dispute between Premier Hepburn and the Prime Minister based on Mr. Hepburn's charge that the increase was discrimination against the provinces.

The tax at the five-per-cent level has been in force since March when there had never been any protest from the Ontario Government. It was placed in a discriminatory position as compared with Dominion bonds. He challenged the validity of the tax and threatened to fight it in the courts.

At the same time Mr. Hepburn indicated he would not press for a Dominion proposal, contained in the Budget, that provinces forego abandon the personal and corporation income taxes during the face of heavy increases in the Federal taxes announced in the Budget.

To meet this situation the Prime Minister offered to restore the tax on provincial bonds from 5 to 15 per cent.

To give Mr. Hepburn time to talk over with his colleagues, Mr. Ilsley to amend the Income Tax Act, last of the 187 Budget bills, was held up in the Commons on Saturday but its answer was received.

Mr. Hugh Hall announced he would wait no longer to dispose of the bill and that the Government would immediately carry out its side of the compromise offer in the bill.

This was being done, the Minister said, to avoid "unnecessary delay" between the Dominion and the large Province "in settling a campaign" dealt with Agriculture Department statistics.

The Senate adjourned to Tuesday after the reading of a message from Gen. Dandurand said it seemed likely the main supply bill from the House will not reach the Senate until the middle of next week. Government Leader Meighen moved the suspension of the new rules to allow the bill without premiums paid to foreign companies operating in Canada without Federal license, pending determination of the validity of the tax.

Smuts Pleads With U.S. to 'Hurry'

Cape Town, South Africa, June 6 (CP)—Prime Minister J. C. Smuts is speeding American aid to United States to "hurry up" and "not hesitate any longer," it was declared here today.

They say the United States is a country of hustle," he said, "if it is determined to help it does. I don't trull the United States will live up to it in the near future."

Prelate Stayed To View Flames

London (CP)—Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, 77-year-old Archbishop of Canterbury, was blown from his blast when Lambeth Palace, his London home, was bombed and set afire in a German night raid on the capital. But he refused to go to a shelter.

People from nearby Lambeth walk Hospital carried the chief crypt had to be moved when the weight of water used to fight roof fires threatened to flood the crypt. A high-explosive bomb set fire to the roof of the house the palace grounds—wrecked pumping machinery. Incendiary bombs began a big hold.

It was then the butler suggested the Archbishop would be safer in a shelter. Dr. Lang refused to go. He insisted on remaining indirectly in the chapel and library he installed when the war began. the flames as possible to see what parts of the building were being damaged.

Firefighters were constantly in danger by streams of molten lead pouring from the roofs of the 13th Century buildings.

The Day in Parliament

HEPBURN ASKS

Double Daylight Boosts Business

London (CP)—Double daylight saving time, introduced to help British industrial output to the fort, has brought a golden prosperity harvest to London's show business.

In the first week it was tried out at theatres, cinemas, dance-halls and greyhound race tracks in and around London, it helped the business of the year.

Estimates of the figures, later, many putting on evening performances for the first time, are not yet complete but given that its first evening meet found it was filled to capacity and many were turned away.

Movie and theatre owners reported similar figures. Dance-hall attendances instead of half-empty usually were packed.

A dance-hall manager said "before the new hours, the crowd used to start to drift after about an hour's dancing. Now the floor is packed, and they stay on until the end of the King."

It is just about 26 years ago since daylight saving first became law in Britain.

William Willett was the man who first thought of it and campaigned for it for many years before finally was persuaded to adopt it by Parliament in 1916. Fighting over Chiselhurst Common early one summer morning, in brilliant sunshine, he noticed the blinds in all the houses were drawn. It immediately struck him that much of the best part of every day was wasted.

He was then a keen golfer. Chiselhurst itself, Willett persuaded the village to advance their clocks 80 minutes in deference to his wishes. But the 19 speeches made in 1916, before the government decided to adopt it.

Welsh Port Plans Shelter Colonies

Cardiff, Wales, — (CP)—"Shelter Colonies" the first of what may be a chain of underground towns for living built outside the limits of this Welsh seaport.

According to plans approved by the city council here, the first colony will be the most up-to-date yet, for in addition to providing spacious living quarters and communication they will be served by lighting, heating and ventilating systems.

Attached to each colony will be a canteen, medical centre, and baby carriage and bicycle sheds, decorative.

Furthermore, the Minister said the recreation ground attached to each will accommodate 48 persons. They are to self-contained and will be at least 100 yards apart for housing bombed-out persons under the new scheme.

The shelters will be camouflaged and will be built with a view to avoid the possibility of more than one being hit at a time.

TAKE IT ALL FOR FREEDOM

Toronto, June 6 (CP)—"Take all we have—and give us freedom," were the words with which Premier Hepburn, in a radio repairer, greeted a Victory Loan canvasser here today.

He had just received word that an Italian bomb killed his mother in Genoa air raid.

DESIRE KILLED HIM

Abbeville, S.C., June 6 (AP)—A 16-year-old boy who had long desired a desire to run a locomotive, "eased" himself from a moving train and started running it. The locomotive ran into a switch and turned over after a short run. The boy died of scalds and bruises.

HULL'S STATEMENT BEING CONSIDERED BY VICHY GOV'T

French African Representatives Sit in on Cabinet Meeting

DARLAN PRESIDES

Vichy, June 6 (AP)—Vichy's African representatives participated today in a cabinet meeting which was reported to have discussed the declaration of Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, that voluntary co-operation of France with Germany would be considered "utterly inimical to the just rights of other countries.

"The general question of defence of the Empire as part of the new European organization also was said to have been considered.

Vice-Premier Jean, Darlan, presided at the session, which was attended by Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of Vichy armed forces in North Africa; Pierre Boisson, Governor General of French West Africa, and Admiral Jean Esteva, resident General of Tunisia.

Jacques Benoist-Mechin issued after the session said merely that it is "dealy with questions relating to French Africa" and that the Colonial Governors were present.

Official circles in Vichy said the statement was lacking immediate. Ly, although it was believed considered it a reply to Admiral Darlan's recent anti-British comment.

The first unofficial reaction was based on his statement concerning "a policy of collaboration with other powers for the purpose of aggression and opposition."

It was ligisted in three quarters that collaboration with Germany was purely economic and political in order that France might take a normal place in reorganized Europe after the war.

B. C. I. Cadets and Cadettes Show Splendid Precision and Efficiency at Inspection

Inspecting Officer Stresses Necessity for New Uniforms for Cadet Corps

STREET PARADE

In the shadow of their Alma Mater, and the saddening heat of a typical June day, nearly five hundred members of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School Cadet Corps and Cadettes, marched today before the critical gaze of inspecting officers and high ranking military men of the district as they underwent their annual inspection.

Hundreds of people lined the borders of the campus as the smart Collegiate band heading the khaki-clad cadets, swung on the inspection grounds a few minutes after ten o'clock. The nattily attired Cadettes, immaculate in blue skirts, white blouses, white shoes and blue berets, followed in a splendid line along the edges of the campus as the Cadets marched by.

Col. Gribble Takes Salute

Rifles at the slope, the cadets with all the precision and marching efficiency of veterans, returned smartly to the right swung past the saluting base where Lieut.-Colonel A. B. Gribble, Argyll Light Infantry (Duke of Edinburgh's), inspecting officer of the district took the salute. With Col. Gribble were Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ponton, officer commanding the Peterborough Training Centre, Major Harry A. Ketcheson and Captain J. Keir, also of Peterborough; Captain S. R. Wildis, inspecting officer of M.D. 14 and Rev. A. E. Beauchesne Payne, Lieut.-Col. A. E. Geen, W. J. Hepenstal, members of the Board of Education, and Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, principal of the Collegiate.

Under Cadet Corps Major Malcolm Jack, the corps paraded in review, battalion, column of route and other formations past the stand. The blue silk colors of the corps flag rustled in a light breeze that intermittently stirred the warm air. The colors were carried at both inspections by color parties of the respective corps.

Following the march-past and inspection, the battalion went through company drill under their respective commanders. Signallers went through their paces. At the conclusion of the inspection "A" Company were awarded the silver trophy emblematic of company efficiency.

Presented With Trophy

Presenting the trophy, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne congratulated the corps on their fine showing. "We must not forget that we are in a war on terror," he said, "and in these days we all have a job to do. Cadet Corps are training our Canadians and ready for whatever tomorrow may bring". Mr. Payne evoked rounds of cheers when he announced a holiday for the remainder of the day.

A parade of matching color and rhythm, the members of the Girls' Corps excited much interest as they swung past the saluting base in their trim uniforms. Under the colonial colors of cream, who has a fine voice and word of command, Cadette Corporal Marjorie Wilson gave a splendid demonstration of marching efficiency. They swung their arms like "soldiers of the line" and turned about and marched smartly when passing the reviewing stand. In a colorful line of blue and white they came smartly to the "general salute" and executed other drills and manoeuvres with the ability of veterans.

Missing Opportunity

Commenting on the appearance and manoeuvring of the Girls' Corps, Captain Widdis, said "Belleville would well be proud of the corps that without benefit of victory drilled under the same officers within the year. The Canadian Auxiliary Territorial Service is missing a golden opportunity," he said, "if they do not recognize Girls' Cadet Corps as the ideal foundation for their work."

The Cadet Corps work here was excellent," he continued. "Belleville is practically the only centre where special cadet work is carried on. Here, each section does a sequence of training with the result that the whole is a well-trained, well-disciplined unit. Your city should be proud of its cadets."

Should Purchase Uniforms

He deplored the fact that the cadets were obliged to parade in uniforms "unbecoming to their training and efficiency." "In view of the fact that increasing interest is being shown in cadet work throughout the country the Board of Education here would be well advised to give encouragement to an otherwise outstanding corps by purchasing uniforms that would enhance not only its appearance, but its precision, attention and training excellence," he declared.

Following the inspection, the corps paraded with the band along Front Street to the Armouries where the Cadet Corps was dismissed. Later the Girls' Corps marched to the school campus where it broke off.

Following is a list of the Girls' Cadet Corps. The Cadet Corps officers' names will be published later.

Amputate Crushed Hand Of O. Patrick, Frankford

Mr. Oran Patrick of Frankford, employee of the Bata Shoe Company of that village, was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital late Wednesday afternoon, suffering from a severely crushed hand, sustained while he was operating a large hole press at the Bata plant yesterday afternoon.

The injured man was rushed to the office of Dr. McMullen, Frankford, who immediately ordered him taken to the hospital, where it was later discovered necessary to amputate at the wrist. Mr. Patrick is under the care of Dr. Biobie.

KNOCKED FROM BICYCLE

Lodi, Ont., June 6 —(CP)—Struck by a car as he was riding a bicycle near Riverside Park last evening, Gerald Trimble suffered a possible fracture of the skull, contusion, and other minor injuries. His condition today was reported as "fair."

Lloyd Smith, Guelph, alleged driver of the car involved in the accident, appeared in police court today on charges of dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. He was remanded on bail.

SHARES ORDERED FORFEITED

Welland, Ont., June 6—(CP)—Mr. Justice C. P. Plaxton of the Ontario Supreme Court ruled today that 709 shares of International Petroleum held by Frederic E. Wheeler were to be forfeited to the Crown.

Wheeler allegedly attempted to smuggle the stock into Canada without a license some time ago. At the time of his apprehension by Provincial authorities Wheeler was fined $2,000 and costs.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT

Canadian Press Staff Writer.

German bombing of Alexandria, chief naval base of the Eastern Mediterranean, creates new problems for Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham's ships, whose freedom of action has been curtailed considerably by the loss of Crete.

Advices from Egypt state that while 100 persons were killed and much property damage caused, no ships or naval property suffered hits in Wednesday night's raid. But this was the first attack by the Germans on the centre of British Mediterranean sea power since they acquired a base in Crete, 500 miles to the northwest, and more will follow.

Since the loss of the cruiser Southampton and the severe damage to the new aircraft carrier Illustrious in the Crete campaign, the fleet at sea has demonstrated it can cope with German dive bombers operating from bases in Sicily and southern Italy. But acquisition of Crete brings German shore bases substantially nearer the main theatre of operations.

Ships on the move can dodge bombs more easily than those confined to port, and the German air attacks will force the fleet to make quicker turn-abouts on its necessary calls at Alexandria for fuel and other supplies, and for the repairs and refitting overhauling inevitable among a large number of ships in frequent action with the enemy.

Flying Officer Clas Baar

Alexandria is the only first class base the fleet has in the eastern Mediterranean. Haifa, in Palestine, has a good harbor and refueling facilities, but is within range of the Iraq oil pipeline and the docks of large workers and refitting facilities are meagre. The Royal Air Force has fighter squadrons in Egypt and Syria, but as the Germans probably will go on raiding as a night the effectiveness of these is reduced.

Numerous units of the fleet were reported in dispatches but it should be concentrating in the waters off Syria to protect the large British contingents reaching Syria by sea. There has been no confirmation of this however, and the German propaganda agencies are claiming a large afield as Vichy and Turkey, appears to be planning other sorts of reports to cause confusion.

Even the old chestnut about a split invasion of the Near East threat has been revived, with next week or the week after set as the likely period off time. This bogey has been one of the most successful of Nazi stories because of the old hate between Bolshevism and Nazism.

For the present surely Germany is not seeking new foes. Nor will the Kremlin stick its neck out for the German armored divisions. Whatever the Ukraine can produce about soviet minimum needs Germany can probably obtain for the asking.

Dr. J. J. Robertson Ordered to Conduct Inquest at Oshawa

Toronto, June 6.—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant has ordered Dr. J. J. Robertson, Coroner of Belleville, Chief Coroner for Hastings County, to conduct an inquest at Oshawa into the death of William J. Raly, killed by a police car last Saturday, on the Kingston highway. The car was driven by Provincial Police Officer A. Ramsman.

Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson of Lindsay, will assist in the inquest, which will take place on June 12.

Raly stopped his car and walked around behind the vehicle filling the path of the police car. He was so seriously injured that death occurred within a few minutes.

The reason why I have appointed Dr. Robertson and Crown Attorney Anderson to conduct the inquest," Attorney-General Conant said, "was because I don't want any local officials connected. There is to be no partiality shown and the case is to be dealt with in the regular manner."

STATEMENT TO BE MADE

Ottawa, June 6 (CP)—A statement on gas prices to consumers in Western Ontario will be made in the House of Commons by Munitions Minister Howe told a questioner today.

He was replying to a request from Earl Rowe, Conservative (Simcoe South) who said the people of Western Ontario were apprehensive of reports concerning a gas shortage and suggested an official statement from the government might be reassuring.

Blimp Presents Graceful Appearance In Flight Over City

Silver sheen radiating from the side of its sleek hull, the Goodyear blimp "Reliance" poked a snub nose over the western horizon shortly after 1.30 p.m. today on its cross-Canada tour in support of the Victory Loan Campaign.

The sound of its motors came on a steady monotone to the crowds of Front Street pedestrians who watched the progress of the ship as it circled over the city. Behind it, floating on a long cable, was a large trailer bearing the words "Buy Victory Bonds."

The blimp rose and fell gracefully in the air currents as it covered high in the air. It arrived in the city from the northwest and followed the course of the Moira River up through Victoria Park, turned and sailed northward over the main business section. It turned again when the course circled the city before disappearing on the base of Trenton, 60 miles away.

While it was difficult to estimate the speed of the "Reliance" a motorist who followed the course of the ship as it sailed over the Belleville-Stirling Highway, stated that he was travelling at a speed of 80 miles per hour.

The airship was sent to Canada in support of the Victory Loan Campaign by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, and brought the warm wishes of the people of that state to the Victory Loan officials in Canada.

BERLIN CLAIMS 3 SHIPS SUNK

Berlin, June 6 (AP)—The German High Command claimed today that German air convoys off the east coast of Scotland last night, sank three merchantmen totalling 15,800 tons and damaged four others. (British confirmation of this claim is not available.)

Expect Mussolini To Make Warlike Statement Soon

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, June 6—(AP)—Reports from Europe that Premier Mussolini is about to make an "important" speech aroused curiosity although there is no hint as to its nature.

It is time for a Rome accounting. Just a year less five days ago Italy declared war on France and Britain in the spoils of the Nazi-won victory in Europe.

If for no other reason the approach of the 23rd anniversary of Italy's belligerency presents Mussolini with the inviting opportunity for speech-making. Within that twenty-month period his own and Italy's prestige has gone down, yet he can boast of victories—German-made victories.

In Africa, east and north, and in Greece, Italian armies have suffered morale-shattering defeats. Italy's once-powerful fleet has been repeatedly blasted by the British Navy. Even Mussolini's boast that Ethiopia has been undone. Italy has been routed from all East Africa except for minor units still holding out.

Impending a Grim One

But for German intervention in the Balkans Italy would have had reverse Italian military failures there. It faces now only a very grim accounting to make to the people for that year of war. Even as it is, no realistic appraisal of Italy's one war effort can be cheering to Italian pride. Greece was conquered by the Nazis, not Fascist Libya retaken from British by German arms.

Hope is there the slightest probability that Italy can regain her Empire across the Mediterranean except as a gift from the Nazis. Nothing could be more completely deflated Mussolini, probably even in German eyes, that his and Italy's record. They seem to centre largely in Vichy, but lack any substance.

Victory Hitchhiker

It is quite possible, however, that a new declaration that the European side of the Axis have been substantially realized may be forthcoming from some source. It could not well come from Hitler himself, and he might have designated his victory hitchhiker, Il Duce, to do it.

This much seems clear, nevertheless: In the light of Italian reverses, Mussolini could hardly face his people with anything short of a Hitler-approved pledge that the lost Italian Empire in Africa will be re-gained. Whatever recapitulation of Italian defeats and subsequent Axis victories he may have in mind, Africa regained and eliminination of British power in the Mediterranean must be his keynote.

Which does not tend to incite expectation of a peace move from Rome just now. On the contrary it calls for a warlike trumpeting in the best Mussolini manner, plus assurances to France as well as to Italy that Britain is crumbling, and of warnings to Washington that further American efforts to save her would be disastrous.

DAYLIGHT ALARM FOR 30 MINUTES

Purpose of Nazis Evidently Weather Reconnaissance —No Report of Bombs Dropped

London, June 6 (CP)—Anti-aircraft guns roared in London this morning in the London area shortly after sirens had signalled the end of the capital's first daylight alert since April 22.

Several German aircraft were seen across the city, but scattered to avoid sharp bursts of shellfire and disappeared without another alarm being sounded.

The alert lasted less than 30 minutes, ending after a small formation of Nazi planes flew over the London area, wheeled and returned south.

Their purpose evidently was weather reconnaissance. There were no reports of any bombs dropped.

Nazi bombers last night were limited to an attack by a small number of invading planes on parts of Scotland. The Government said no damage was slight and casualties few.

Col. Fordham's Services Used in Special Work

Ottawa, June 6 —(CP)— Services of Col. R. A. Fordham, former officer commanding the Lincoln and Welland Regiment, are being used in special work—for a short time, the interment branch of the Department of Pensions and Health said today.

Queried regarding a Niagara Falls report that Col. Fordham had been appointed director of internment, one official said any such statement was unauthorized and inaccurate.

He added the internment alternative is Canada, where prisoners of war and alien civilian internees are held. He said they were also scattered across the country, is under review and Col. Fordham's services are being used in this connection.

Lumber Stores Burned at Constanta, Port on Black Sea

Bucharest, Rumania, June 6, —(AP)—Fire today destroyed a quantity of lumber stores and threatened destruction of oil, coal, lumber and grain at the Black Sea port of Constanta.

German troops and Rumanian fire fighters early were able to localize the fire after a four-hour battle. Origin of the blaze was unknown.

(Constanta has been reported a centre of German military activity.)

Deloro Village Subscribes $210,000 To Victory Loan

The smallest incorporated village in Ontario and the first in Canada to go over the top in its objective in the Victory Loan Campaign, Deloro on Monday afternoon announced today that it had subscribed $210,000 or precisely 40 per cent of its allotted quota of $500,000.

Taken into consideration that the village has only 300 people in roughly 400 people, the efforts of the Hastings County village is one worthy of special mention.

Since the beginning of the campaign the entire residents headed by the officials of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, have shown an exceptional interest in subscriptions to the loan, and have left no stone unturned to do their share in the all-important drive.

Deloro's effort is one that inaugurates a high mark for other communities to look to. It is indicative of the loyalty and British traditions for which this country is inordinately proud and will go down in history as a sterling effort to assist the Empire in its hour of need.

S. A. VETERANS OCCUPY POSITIONS IN EGYPT

Other U.K. Forces Keep Watchful Eye On Syrian Situation

Line up to Face German Threat at Suez Canal From West or Nazi Thrust From East

NAZI SUBS REPORTED

Cairo, June 7 (AP)—South African Veterans who helped change the map of Mussolini's East African empire occupied positions in Egypt today ready to tackle the Nazis in the Western Desert, while other British forces kept a watchful eye on Syria.

Some of the South Africans, shouting a song, "We'll Go Anywhere in Africa" swarmed in trucks which carried them through British and Italian Somaliland and into Ethiopia, while others sailed down the Nile, digging in for a swim every time their vessels stuck on a sand bar.

These troops lined up to face the German threat at the Suez Canal from the West, while other British forces kept a watchful eye on the menace of a possible Nazi thrust aimed at Suez from the East.

The Vichy Government claimed last night after a Cabinet meeting that Britain was considering an attack on Syria but that "the British Command had not "completely approved" the plan.

(The note, similar to memoranda addressed by the Nazi propaganda Ministry to German newspapers telling them the attitude to take, said "English propaganda would like to have it believed that German troops are arriving in Syria in justify—perhaps—British military action against that country.")

Col. P. C. Stallard, South African Minister of Mines, will Brig. G. H. Blaine, Defence Secretary, toured the camps of South African troops today as representatives of Prime Minister Smuts.

Meanwhile, further reports of Nazi infiltration into French-Spitting, and Mussolini's plans to take heard. Reuters News Agency said that Nazi Pocket submarines" had been seen in the harbor of Beirut, Lebanon, during the past week.

In Ankara, Turkey, foreign military attaches said that Air Corps engineers were constructing fighter plane airdromes at Latakia, Syrian port 62 miles from the island of Cyprus.

The airdrome, these reports said, was designed to protect the port against the Royal Air Force and to serve as a base for attack on Cyprus. The Colonial Intelligence System's reporter in Ankara said: German pilots, technicians and officers walk about the town of Alepp to 90 miles from Turkish frontier as "sportsmen." Aleppo has been bombed by the R.A.F.

From the British Island strongHold of Malta in the central Mediterranean, Reuters said that heavy Axis air raids came a declaration that "we have no intention of allowing either the Germans or Italians to establish air bases."

Lt.-Gen. Sir William Dobbie, governor and commander-in-chief of Malta, said the lessons of Crete were being put to good use in the defence of Malta.

Another report which some observers said might be a prelude to war on the Middle East struggle came from Rydz-Smigly, Polish leader now of Berlin, and told of a drastic reduction in the Russian army on the Rumanian railways, effective Sunday, because of interruptions in the transportation of freight.

There was no explanation of the reason for this intensification, but Ankara reports Thursday said heavy land and air forces and concentrations had been arranged on the Russian border.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Moderate to heavy rain has occurred in Northern districts of Ontario, but it has been fair and warm in southern and eastern sections. Except for showers in extreme northeast Manitoba, the weather has been generally fair in the Prairie Provinces and southeast in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

'All Not' Well Between Weygand And Jean Darlan

London, June 7 (CP)—Exchange Telegraph News Agency said today in a dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, that General Maxime Weygand had advised Vice-Premier Jean Darlan that the attitude of French North African troops could not be guaranteed in the event they were called upon to fight Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French.

Exchange Telegraph's Zurich correspondent quoted a French diplomat source as saying that there had been "stormy meetings" between Gen. Weygand and Admiral Darlan and that Weygand, at his own insistence, had been relieved of responsibility for the conduct of French troops in Syria.

SUBSCRIPTIONS PUT LOAN WELL ON WAY TO OBJECTIVE

End of First Week of Drive Shows Total Ahead of Average Anticipated

MANY BROADCASTS

Ottawa, June 7 (CP)—Canada's $600,000,000 Victory Loan established a new record for one day when $1,475 individual Canadians bought bonds which brought the day's total to $41,150,750, the National War Loan Committee announced today.

Subscriptions Friday brought the total amount of cash subscribed since the campaign opened last November to $231,118,700.

The loan committee announced that Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd., of Monmreal, whose subscription was the first reported at $1,000,000, should have been listed at $2,000,000, split equally between the 10% Victory Loan maturities of 5½ years and 10 years.

Cities Reporting

Reports from cities this morning showed that Calgary was credited with $2,965,550 or 52.72 per cent. of its objective of $5,625,000.

Edmonton $2,732,550 or 48.70 per cent.; Regina $408,350, 10 per cent. (Continued on Page Eleven, Col. 6) claimed to have been repelled.

Halifax Around 1,000 Beds Short When Ships Turn Loose Their Crews

With their blacked-out street signs and their air raid sirens Haligonians are prepared for a blitz, but they are not prepared for the sailor boom-town, Halifax is becoming.

Another problem is liquor, a tough nut for any town in wartime, especially a seaport with liquor laws peculiarly unadapted to war conditions.

The law says you must buy your liquor and take it straight home. You can't drink it except in your own home or your club. Restaurants and hotels need serve alcoholic beverages.

This has started more or less fake clubs, devoted primarily to drinking by the sailors. Anybody who knew his way about town could be a member of one of these clubs. One—the packishly named order of interior decorators — recently closed.

No Brawls or Riots

Service men have monopolized the company of the vivacious Halifax girls, pushed the local Beau Brummels out in the cold. Most decided of all results are the officers of the Royal Navy. It has always been so. Next come the airmen. Then the soldiers. They have divided this old city carefully into districts. The doctrine of each is well defined. The people know where to go if they want their drinking done.

But Halifax doesn't hold a practice blackout more than once every two months. The air raid wardens are not too strict. The little strips of light around windows during the blitz, and the dim street lights are relished on Hollis, this often happens, by sailors who have been at sea enough in doubletime money over which to keep him comfortably the week's end.

Haligonians take to their hearts as many refugees from bombed England as they can get. They knit, save tinfoil and put up flags.

In the restaurants, American jukeboxes play the latest tunes, also occupy a favorite diversion. More Canadian nickels go down the slot for "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" than any other popular song. But Halifax loves "There'll Always Be An England."

R.A.F. FIGHTERS IN FIERCE DUEL OVER CHANNEL

Attack Bombers on Way to Britain—Sky Lighted by Explosions

LIGHT RAID ON LONDON

London, June 7 (CP)—Nazi raiders, gliding in with motors throttled, gave London its first taste of night bombing since May 11 last night while heavier formations, supported by long range guns, attacked a big British convoy in Dover Strait.

Royal Air Force planes struck back at the guns on the Nazi-occupied French shore and observers on the south coast said R.A.F. fighters engaged in a fierce duel with German planes over the Channel.

Although the British attack the eastern sky from Boulogne to Cap Gris Nez was lighted with explosions and tracer shells.

Several houses in one London district were damaged by the German night raiders and a few people were injured, Bombs also fell on a town on the southeast coast, where a casualties were reported.

No alarm was sounded in London itself, but the capital was under a blazed away at intervals. It was the first time high explosives had been dropped on the capital in more than a month though a few firebombs fell June 4 on the outskirts of the city.

Britain is Confident She Can Hold Suez Says John G. Winant

By JACK BELL,
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 7 (AP).—Ambassador John G. Winant was understood today to have told President Wallace and other United States Senate leaders that Britain is confident it can hold the Suez Canal and prevent the Mediterranean from falling under Nazi control.

The ambassador to Britain was closeted with the Vice President and Senators for more than two hours yesterday. It was said authoritatively that he set forth a more encouraging report of British morale and chances of winning the war than some of his hearers had expected.

According to theirtative reports of the meeting, the ambassador gave the following presentation of British viewpoints:

British leaders believe they have sufficient well-equipped forces in Africa to meet Hitler's troops on equal terms, and they do not feel that defeats in Greece and Crete mean eventual loss of the Mediterranean.

There seems to be substantial reason to believe the British Air Force has attained air superiority over the British Isles, the English Channel and the inasion ports of occupied France, conditions supported by a sharp decline in daylight bombings and relatively fewer successful night raids by the Nazis in recent weeks.

Not New At Task.

The trans-Atlantic shipping situation is more critical, although it is noted that sinkings have "levelled off" somewhat and are not now at their peak. The United States Atlantic patrol is credited by Britons with an increasing measure of effectiveness in getting goods to the British Isles.

A majority of the French people, British leaders think, do not want to go along with the axis powers in war but the Vichy government may be brought to that position by extreme pressure.

From a political standpoint, Winant was said described as believing that Prime Minister Churchill is retaining the full confidence of a vast majority of the British people, with a consequent unshaken high level of morale.

Winant was said to have reiterated the assertion of President Roosevelt that the United States is not flying trip bone, did not bring peace proposals of any kind.

Nazi Raiders Cut Off Before They Could Reach the British Coast

WATCHERS VIEW DUELS

Folkestone, England, June 7 (CP) —A rumble of distant gunfire was filled with the roar of planes as fighters and bombers battled above the view of watchers along the English coast.

Most of the fighters continued across the channel, however, some darting down to machine-gun lines of Nazi planes which attempted to sneak over at the same time.

In full view of shoreline watchers the R.A.F. fighters cut off the Nazi raiders and forced them to turn back toward the French ade.

8 British Ships Reported Lost In Past Week

U.S. AMBASSADOR SAYS JUST PEACE NOW IMPOSSIBLE

Joseph Crew at Tokyo Declares U. S. Might Have to Enter War Eventually

GIVES STATEMENT

Tokyo, June 7 (AP)—Joseph Grew, United States ambassador to Japan, declared bluntly today a just peace with Germany at this time "is utterly impossible" and said the United States might have to enter the war eventually to preserve the American way of life.

Replying to a group of American Legionnaires who called on him to sign a cable opposing United States aid to Britain, Grew declared there is a "conference for justice, peace, and an equitable world order," the ambassador wrote:—

"While I share your hope our country may never have to enter the fighting, I believe circumstances may arise when it may become necessary for us to get into the fighting in the interests of the safety of our own future national safety, and for the maintenance of the American way of life, but precisely to insure the just peace and equitable world order which are among your fundamental desires."

Mr. Grew said Germany had chosen the course of war five times in 75 years, and would now be satisfied with any just peace.

Failure Almost Certain

"From all the evidence available," the ambassador added, "I believe and the great majority of our countrymen believe that the futility of the international scene of life... "One can not temporize with cancers, diseases, and wars can not be rendered wholly impotent down to the last cell lest it engulf the whole body, and organization of the heart and soul. It already has contaminated the greater part of other countries. It already has contaminated the soul of Germany."

The cable which the ambassador had been asked to sign was sent to John T. Flynn, chairman of the "Keep Americans Out of War Committee" and declared democracy groups here declined to sign.

FDR Ready to Take Over Strike-Bound Aviation Plant

Order Effective Monday if Strikers Do Not Agree to Return to Their Machines

PATIENCE TAXED

Washington, June 7 (AP)—Government concern over defence strikes — embracing the White House, Congress and the Office of Production Management — boiled over into talk of action today.

A high Federal official said last night the President would take over the C.I.O.-closed North American Aviation Corporation plant at Inglewood, California, before Monday if strikers did not agree today to return to their machines.

Efforts to effect an end to the walkout were reported under way in Inglewood but late last night Bill Backman, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations-United Automobile Workers Negotiating Committee, declared: We will not go back to work today—the strike vote stands."

The Washington official reported that a government agency would direct government seizure and management of the big aircraft plant unless production was resumed promptly on $186,000,000 in the bomber and pursuit craft orders for Britain and the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt's patience was "tared and broken" by the action of United Automobile Workers Union in abruptly forcing the idleness of 12,000 workers at Inglewood while the Defense Mediation Board was striving to settle the labor dispute, said the informant.

The official did not specify on what statutory grounds such a government assumption of management would be based.

Sabotage Suspected Is Claim

William P. Goodman, chairman of the C.I.O.-U.A.W. local in the plant committee, which ordered the walkout, said "The strike will be settled within 24 hours" if the company grants us our legitimate wage demands. Both the company and the office of production management have been notified several times of our intentions to strike if we did not receive our basic wage cutback clauses. These demands were ignored.

In Congress, a drastic anti-strike amendment forced delay in House consideration of the $10,000,000,000 Military Appropriations Bill.

Administration leaders strove today to round up sufficient House votes to defeat the Rankin amendment. It would prohibit House

"Torch of Victory" To Arrive in City Monday at 6.15

Ceremonies attending the reception of Canada's "Torch of Liberty" will be held in the Fair grounds at 6.30 p.m. Monday, June 9th. City organizations, veterans, school children will parade to the grounds arriving there at 6.15. Dr. R. Wallace, Queen's University will deliver an address and the flame will be lighted by the assembled crowds.

Mayor Clarence E. Thompson, will sign the scroll and a Torch Parade will follow to the home of the grandstand. The Torch will arrive by bearer at the Trenton airport at 6 this afternoon and will be taken to Coboorg and Preston prior to being brought to Belleville.

Victory Loan officials urge all to attend the ceremonies. Further information regarding the ceremonies, parade, etc., will be found on Page 7.

High Tribute Paid Late Telegraphist Earle Day By Hon. Angus MacDonald

Striking tribute was paid by the Hon. Angus MacDonald, Canadian minister of the navy to the late Telegraphist Earle Day, son of Mrs. Harley Day and the late Mr. Day, in an address given in Kingston recently, according to the Whig. The life when his ship H.M.C.S. Otter exploded and sank while on Atlantic patrol duty off Halifax.

As the cold waters of the Atlantic slowly enveloped the Otter, young Belleville man turned to his mates on a raft and in a voice that rang out his "There'll Always be an England", a stirring song of the sank in a watery grave.

"I've just told you the story of a young Canadian," the minister said. "In September 1940, Alexander Earle Day, a young man from Belleville. Joined the Canadian Navy. He seems to have been an unusual in any way. I have looked at his file and I see that he was 5 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height. Like many others he enlisted as an ordinary seaman and was in that capacity on the Otter which was doing patrol work off the Nova Scotia coast. He was a cool and blustery day, with stormy seas, high winds and a chilling rain."

Flames Force Crew Off Vessel

"In the early afternoon hours," the minister continued, "the Otter was struck by a torpedo. Many of the officers and men were forced to take to the boats and rafts. There was no skin of fear, no trace of panic. Many of these men had just joined the navy, some had just had their first touch with the sea. But they met their misfortune gallantly and no tradition of the navy was broken. Day was not in the ordinary difficulties. They leap from the comparative safety of the boats to the rafts so that the boats could. Some are swept into the water. Others, however, made their plunge into that cold and angry sea in attempted rescue."

"Before other craft could reach them," the minister said, "twenty-three of the Otter's crew perished from cold and exposure."

Display Splendid Courage

"But this is the tale of young Day," he went on. "He is a telegraphist, not a gunner or a stoker or a signalman. He has no particular clerical skill rather than physical courage. He feels the bitter cold of the air and the water sapping his strength and vitality and realizes that he cannot survive much longer. Perhaps it is the rose on his left arm to remind him of his mother; perhaps it is the British stood still during the moments of which his veins, or perhaps it is his splendid courage and training that had some experience as a wireless operator. He became an ordinary telegraphist and was in that capacity on the Otter. He enlisted this year on the 'Otter' which was doing patrol work off the Nova Scotia coast. It was a cold and blustery day, with stormy seas, high winds and a chilling rain."

HORTICULTURISTS TO HOLD CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association, District No. 8, comprising the area between Port Hope and Quebec Province, will be held in Christ Church Parish Hall, Belleville, next Tuesday. The convention is being held under the direction of District Director, W. M. Livingston, Brockville; Mr. A. B. Symons and Mr. John Watson of the Belleville Horticultural Society. The Convention Committee is comprised of Mrs. G. A. Bonisteel, Mrs. P. W. Gaetz, Miss Helena Lynch and D. M. Parrell.

Featuring the program of the convention will be an illustrated lecture, "Insects of the Flower Garden and Their Control", by W. G. Mathewman, Associate Entomologist, Dominion Department of Agriculture; moving pictures of local gardens; short addresses. During the afternoon there will be a period of general discussion of questions relative to society and association work, while there will also be a visit to the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Dundas Street, and to the Belleville Purification Plant.

FRAME BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

Thought to have been set afire by children who have been in the habit of playing in the building, a medium-sized frame barn and chicken house on the corner of Frank and Purdy Streets was almost completely gutted by flames shortly before nine o'clock on Friday evening.

Tinder dry and built of inflammable material, the barn fell easy prey to the flames which had received a considerable start before the alarm was turned in to the local fire department. When the brigade arrived on the scene the flames were already leaping out through the roof and it was impossible to save the building.

The barn was owned by a Mr. Farrell who lives in Roslin and the property on which the barn was situated is tenanted by a family named Waldron. It was not determined whether the gutted building was covered by insurance, but in any case, it is not expected the loss will be great as the barn was old and had not been in use for some time.

POLICE BLOTTER

Commissioner Wm. H. Stringer, head of the Ontario Provincial Police, was in the city today and inspector district headquarters No. 8 at Belleville, Inspector Frank Gardner announced. Provincial Police motorcycle patrolmen throughout the Belleville District are preparing for two province-wide parades, the Torch Parade and a Cavalcade which are to pass through Eastern Ontario next week.

Mrs. Wood Returns From Home

Mrs. S. H. Wood, 10 Evans Street, complained to city police that her home had been entered and two dollars stolen some time Friday. Entrance was made by the persons reaching through a broken door glass and unlocking the door. The premises were ransacked and drawers looted while the family was absent.

Detective Fred Isard investigated and later apprehended two small children, a brother and sister, who resided nearby. These children admitted taking the money, but had spent the greater portion.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF GREAT STATESMAN

Political Leaders Join in Nationwide Broadcast in Honor of Sir John A. Macdonald

Kingston, Ont., June 7 (CP)—Amid the green trees of the City Park where a permanent memorial to him has been built, Canada paid formal tribute today to the memory of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, dead 50 years ago yesterday.

Political leaders of present-day Canada joined in a nationwide broadcast, part of the ceremonies planned to mark the anniversary of his passing.

This morning flags and bunting in tribute to Sir John brightened the city which he represented through most of his parliamentary career. By 3 p.m., when the ceremonies were to begin Kingston's normal commercial and industrial activities was to be stilled by civic order so employees could gather with the throngs around the flag-decorated speaker's stand in the park.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Conservative House Leader Hanson, Justice Minister Lapointe and Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader in the Senate, were to speak briefly of the part played by Sir John in laying the foundations of the Canada of today.

Mayor Acta as Chairman

Dr. H. A. Stewart, mayor of Kingston, was to act as master of ceremonies. Navy Minister Macdonald, now Kingston's representative in the House of Commons, and Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner, were given seats on the platform.

Five men who sat in the House when "John A." was Prime Minister, received special invitations to attend and at least two—Sir William Mulock and Judge Emerson Coatsworth—had notified Dr. E. H. Coleman, undersecretary of state, who arranged the ceremony, that they hoped to be present. The other three are Sir Allen White of Montreal, Senator Rufus Pope of Cookshire, Que., and P. O. Chocette of Sault Ste. Ch'r, and the last may attend.

Sir John's 126-year-old grandson came from Winnipeg and was to be the only descendant of the great Conservative chieftain present.

Following the ceremonies in the park, a motor parade was planned to Cataraqui Cemetery where the city's first prime minister is buried. There a permanent wreath of oak and maple leaves, emblems of the nation, was to be placed on the grave, along with wreaths from personal admirers.

Notice to Water Users

The increased industrial activity and larger population in our city has necessitated greater quantities of water to be purified.

During the last seven days the amount of water passing through the purification plant has been greater by an average of 700,000 gallons per day over that in 1940. In the month of April 1941 it was six million gallons more than in 1940, and in the month of May it was ten million gallons more.

The Commission does not think it advisable to increase the plant at this time.

The plant records show that one of the reasons for the increase is that the consumers are using the water for lawn and garden sprinkling at other than the appointed times.

It would be unfortunate if it is necessary to take consumers to court to make them comply with the law, but it is unfair when some consumers ignore the law and others do not.

It is the intention of the Commission to see that the hours for use are lived up to and consumers not doing so will be dealt with.

Your co-operation would be appreciated and if you know of any user not keeping within the hours we would appreciate you reporting to this office.

The Hours of Use are

NO-HIT GAME IS PITCHED BY CANNIFTON LAD

Orval May Pitches No-Run No-Hit Game Over Shannonville in County League Fixture

The first no-hit no-run game of the current baseball season was hung up in the South Hastings League last evening when Orval May, chucking on the mound for last year's championship Cannifton nine, set the Shannonville "Hawks" down without the semblance of a hit being registered in the ball up to easy 4-0 victory. The win brings Cannifton up even terms with Latta, both being tied at the top of the league with one win each.

Showing a complete reversal of form from the exhibition which they turned in against Latta early in the week and with the addition of several players who failed to turn out for the opener, Cannifton had little trouble in subduing the "Hyaks" at Shannonville and with practically every member of the team clouting the ball in the pinches, established an early lead which would not be denied. Jn Crosley, elongated initial slicker for the winners and Lorne Jarvis were the big sticklers, getting a brace of hits apiece to help to cause, but the entire team played well offensively and defensive lapsed in a real defensive effort.

Shannonville could not get anywhere offensively and were at a down almost in order by May, the only "Hawk" who got as far a first base, being at the mercy of Cannifton errors. Juby, on the mound for Shannonville, was effective only in spots.

Batteries: Cannifton, May and Coutts.

PERLEY DEMANDS PARLIAMENTARY WHEAT PROBE

Member for Qu'Appelle Charges Things Not Right in Winnipeg Grain Exchange

PROMISED REPLY

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ottawa, June 7 (CP)—Parliament faces the prospect of a general inquiry into the operations of the Wheat Board and the grain trade when it resumes after the summer recess.

Charging "certain things are going on in the Winnipeg grain exchange with which the (wheat) Board has something to do, which will ask stand investigation," E. N. Perley (Con. Qu'Appelle), veteran Saskatchewan agricultural consultant critic of wheat marketing policies, demanded the inquiry in the House of Commons last night and Trade Minister MacKinnon said he saw "no objection whatever."

Mr. Perley said he would take that as a promise and went on to assail the recent shipment of wheat from Vancouver to Japanese-controlled territory in North China.

He said "Canadian exporters, James Richardson and Sons, Limited Grain and three others," refused to handle the shipment and that it was handled by three "International grain firms" which he named as Continental Grain Company, Dreyfus and Bunge Company.

Change Name

Mr. Perley said the name of Bunge Company had been changed to Laval Company but information from grain exchange sources in Winnipeg said it was the Dreyfus Company which had changed its name, to Laval Company.)

Mr. McKinnon, in whose estimates the Perley speech was made, promised a general statement in reply later, but he interrupted Mr. Perley to say the North China shipment was handled by a Canadian firm, Canada Grain Company of Vancouver.

Mr. Perley startled the House with his charges at the end of a long day's discussion on labor department legislation, private bills and post office estimates. The House passed a bill to amend the criminal code with a pecuniary interest in either side of an industrial dispute from serving as members of a board of conciliation to deal with the dispute.

Charges a "Racket"

Mr. Perley said "the whole wheat market system and the handling of it at this time is a racket".

Challenged on the implications of his words "crooked work"—he said that Liberals forced an inquiry in 1938 under the former Conservative Government when there was no charge of crooked work—Mr. Perley said he was not accusing any official of the Wheat Board, but he went on—

"There are certain things going on in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with which the Board has something to do, which are not clean investigation".

He demanded the closing of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and the taking over of all operations by the government, and challenged Mr. MacKinnon to produce "real evidence" that British authorities wanted the exchange kept open.

Options Changed

At present, said Mr. Perley, certain interests could not make delivery of wheat stored under their options. Options were being changed from month to month. He said he was informed negotiations were under way between the Board and certain firms to change July 1st contracts to 1,000-bushel contracts on the basis of 80 cents for the October.

If that deal were going on, he said, the terms should extend to the 1941 crop and the guaranteed price to farmers should be raised from the present 70 cents to 80.

Dealing with the wheat shipment to North China Mr. Perley said he was informed wheat was always shipped in bulk to China and Japan and the fact that it was shipped now in bags indicated it "was intended for Russia via Japanese lands, to be reached through Russia".

St. Michael's Band To Give Concert

Rated as one of the best children's bands in Canada, the St. Michael's Academy Band, under the direction of Miss Agnes Forbes, will give a special concert in the auditorium of the Academy on next Sunday evening.

Organization, which has given freely of its services to war and charitable associations in the city and district during the past three years, will be seen and heard at the concert to advantage and remuneration when it plays and renders its latest musical selections for the purpose of securing funds to purchase needed music.

Mr. Fred Jobson, leader of the Belleville Municipal Band, will act as master of ceremonies and a number of outstanding artists and musicians of the city have offered their services. A silver collection will be taken.

The band perhaps will be best remembered for its fine appearance in Kingston during the visit of the King and Queen a few years ago. So pleased was Her Majesty with the efforts of the young band that she instructed a lady-in-waiting to write the band a note of appreciation which is one of the band's most treasured possessions.

Band officials have prepared a variable program and the band will be heard in ensemble as well as instrumental numbers. A large crowd is expected to turn out to hear one of Belleville's most promising musical organizations.

"GOD BLESS OUR BRAVE DADDY OVERSEAS"

FOR EVERY CANADIAN who sails the deep, for every airman who flashes through the skies, and for every other man in the fighting forces, the prayers of the nation "rise like a fountain, night and day."

In times of crisis our people stand steadfast. In daily devotions they renew the flame of faith and arm with unseen powers their warriors in the field.

Oftentimes they discern the Unseen Hand. Witness the miracle of Dunkirk. Witness, too, in the darkest hours the emergence of great inspiring figures to steady the ranks of Democracy and fire its courage and confidence.

Church bells are ringing throughout Canada calling men and women to worship and sacrifice in defence of our freedom, the sanctity of our homes and the future of our children.

Translate your faith into works by buying Victory Bonds.

ENTHUSIASM FOR VICTORY LOAN

Forty per cent of the Victory Loan has been subscribed in five days, meaning about $240,000,000 up to Friday evening. Every day has been above the average of $33,000,000 required to raise the total of $600,000,000.

Everywhere is the evidence of the wholehearted interest in the sale and purchase of national bonds.

The success of the campaign so far is an earnest of the expected overwhelming success it is certain to achieve before the end of the period which has been set apart for the drive.

The response to this loan, more than either of the two previous loans, will show a true crossection of support by the entire Dominion.

The enthusiasm of subscribers and others for the purchase and sale of the bonds of their country is one of the most notable features.

There are endless stories containing evidences of this patriotic enthusiasm which is demonstrated by all classes.

The people have been prepared for the task of raising the large sum required and greet the salesmen with a smile and readiness to take a share of the loan.

This enthusiasm is an earnest token of the satisfaction these people will feel, not only now, but later, when the full effect of their devotion to the cause of their country and empire is showing itself in the strengthened forces of the nation.

AVIATION'S ADVANCE

In these days when the expansion of the flying range of airplanes and bombers continues steadily, and when the skies in battle can be filled with squadrons, it is almost impossible to look back to the day when there was no plane and then to the time when there was just the odd plane. Thirty-one years ago this week, Glen H. Curtis flew from Albany to New York City and won a thousand dollar prize for the 142½ mile success. In 1904 Wilbur and Orville Wright flew a distance of 284 yards. Since then the world has been girdled with flight.

The first Great War was the first struggle to find planes playing a part. Suddenly in that campaign they developed a great role, but nothing to compare in extent with the plane role now being. Today planes cross the Atlantic in ferrying operations to Great Britain and there are thousands of war planes in actual service.

The greatest demonstration of what the plane is to achieve is indicated in the Commonwealth Air Plan which trains many thousands of young men for service in the present struggle. Today air administration is one of the great business tasks and is bound to be for the future when the airplane will continue its development and the air service its part in the routine of modern life.

Today it is one of the greatest of industries, and the organization of flying one of the most highly developed arts in the world.

SUCCESSFUL TOURIST SEASON FORECAST

Canada recently had many United States visitors as tourists for a weekend. This indicates that there will be a very great increase in the number of visitors during the coming season which is very near. There are various causes, Canada is becoming more and more known through the greatness of her war effort. Those who have visited Canada have gone home to tell the story of this nation who has girded herself for the fight and is playing her noble part in the democratic struggle for the maintenance of liberty. A determined effort has been made this year by many agencies to bring Canada as a tourists' paradise before the American people.

Canada stands ready to welcome the tourists and can assure them and all who are thinking of coming that the best this country has is none too good for the people of the friendly Republic south of the 49th Parallel.

The value of the visit of the tourists is seen in the cultivation of the spirit of good neighbors, and in the wealth that the tourist leaves in United States dollars which are of importance for the exchange value in helping to pay for war purchases in the United States.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY Goodhusband

This Japanese war in China may have had some far reaching effects in so far as the Chinese are concerned.

But—, in so far again as Belleville is concerned, according to Victory Loan canvassers, the Chinese population of this city have gone all out in their efforts to help Britain in the war.

Approached yesterday by canvassers, Chinese residents of this city exemplified their faith in Great Britain and the democracies by subscribing to the Victory Loan Campaign 100 per cent.

There is not a Canadian that we know is actually a Canadian that would not do as much.

Listen, Hastings County, here's the story:

A Chinese friend in Cobourg, in 1916 was asked to help Canada. The canvasser approached him to buy Victory Bonds to help the Empire win the last war.

He bought!

He forgot!

But most of all he helped the Empire!

Let's get back to the story.

"Bill" Wong the manager of the PARAGON Cafe told us the story today.

The Chinese friend, according to Bill, his name was James Woo, who was in partnership with Bill's father, Charlie Wong in business in the lakeside town, bought Victory Bonds in the last war to the extent of five hundred dollars.

He, like other loyal Chinese of that period, realized the Empire's needs.

He bought bonds—and he forgot them.

Five hundred dollars worth of negotiable securities.

He gave that amount to the Empire. He placed what he thought were "receipts" in a spot which he thought was unapproachable.

He put them in the mattress of his bed.

They laid there, unnoticed, for twelve years.

He died.

But the spirit that James Woo exemplified when he bought those bonds lives in the Chinese that have followed him. They, by the very fact have signified their loyalty to the British Empire and the Dominion which they live, by their purchase of bonds which to date has been 100 per cent.

And here is a statement from Bill Wong himself:

"I am proud to know that by purchasing Victory Bonds it will help to keep the enemy away from these shores so that the British Empire and the democracies will have peace and security in the future—for us, for others and for generations to come. For a successful prosecution of this war to end Nazism I urge one and all to help all they can by purchasing Victory Bonds. We Chinese in Belleville and elsewhere realize that in order to crush Hitler and all he stands for, we must stand side by side with our fellow Canadians."

"Speaking for myself, and I am sure, for my fellow country-men, we appreciate the privilege to help in this present campaign."

Mike the copy boy comes up with this one: "Why is Greta Garbo like a Canadian five-dollar bill?"

And the sports editor falls for it and answers "Why."

"BECAUSE I WANT TO BE A LOAN. (All right, you figure it out.)

Approximately 350,000 women were registered in England's first conscription of feminine labor for war industries.

OTTAWA—Here's the menu for the food front:

Meetings are being held these days on ways and means of increasing cheese shipments to the United Kingdom....The need for more of this vitamin-rich food overseas is confidently regarded....Drastic action to restrict sale of cheese on the domestic market is under discussion....More than one expert has been asked what he thinks the public reaction would be if Canadians couldn't buy cheese at all.

The Minister of agriculture, diet conscious....Inspector D. C. Saul has been available of food rations from the Agricultural Department's consumer section....He wants to make a comparison between rations of the army, R.C.M.P. and general public.

And speaking of food: Dr. Pabst Ottawa, June 7 — (CP) — Senate Minister to Canada, is a hotelkeeper's delight. He spent an hour in the kitchen after he got settled, examining the stoves and how he likes his food prepared.

On Parliament Hill

Just try to find a table in the Centre Block....One of the stock answers at the door is "Mr. Saute's dog doesn't come in."

Gordon Fraser of Peterborough West) has been doing a bit of home advertising....Members in the press gallery found copies of the vacation edition of the Peterborough Examiner.

The Senate couldn't decide what committee should study an act to control interprovincial game shipments....Various members offered suggestions ....Then government Leader Dandurand smiled....'Oh, well," said he, "when one doesn't know what committee, one says banking and commerce and sends it where it went.

Senate audiences have been small all year....Only Labor Minister McLarty, Dr. H. A. Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) and his cohorts showed up in the galleries one night—and they were there for newspapermen, only one of them working.

There's no sign of a government move to fill the four vacancies in the Senate....And these two ministerial appointments to the proposed new legations in Argentina and Brazil are still hanging fire.

Resources Minister Crerar dozed for a few minutes with his head on his desk....Even Senator Lynch-Staunton (Northumberland) has worn his hat in the House on a few recent occasions—an unofficial parliamentary privilege....Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, often used to wear a cap in the chamber.

Odds And Ends

Take it or leave it: The Victory Loan Committee says one of its canvassers in the Kitchener district in British Columbia is "learning to speak Indian with a Norwegian accident"....And the Victory Loan is granted that he couldn't afford to pay the interest on a bond; he did a war dance when told he gets interest."

You don't see it in photographs, but it's rather striking: The view of the parliament buildings from the Interprovincial Bridge to Hull. Que. ....It's about the best place to see the circular library block.

There's talk of maintaining the military guard on the Hill through the summer for the benefit of tourists....The sentries paced back and forth on raised wooden platforms one day....They went well with the ritzy entry hosts that have "G Vi R" (for King George VI) over the entrance....But the platforms disappeared during the night....We hear too many people laughed.

The air force puts on the smartest display on guard duty....The touch of white on their uniforms helps....The Veterans' Guard takes things more casually....In old stuff for those fellows....But no matter what unit posts the sentries the Royal Canadian Mounted Police do the real protective work....One newsman, however, found a shiny bayonet near his ribs when he tried to go in the wrong door.

Guess What This Is

"National defence—furniture and furnishings; building operations and repairs; machine tools....Jardine Merlle; Canadian army .... Wasserman test; Food and drugs relations—air"....Such are specialties intelligence test—Just the index to contents in 1941 edition government by J. P. Poulin (Lib. Temiscouata) ....But Poulin wanted to know "When those returns will come out of the cemetery" and said that they were in preparation....One came out next day.

SKIMBLE SKAMBLE STUFF

Originally crinoline was horsehair or horsehair mixed with other fabrics used in the 16th and 17th century to distend men's breeches and women's farthingales and underskirts.

Modern crinoline is made of coarse woven linen or cotton sized with glue and is still used as a stiffening fabric and in linings and facings of women's skirts.

A few generations back hoop-skirts were called crinoline.

Only once in American history have both the President and Vice-President of the United States been residents of the same state—of the Mason Dixon Line. That was after the election of 1828, when Andrew Jackson, of Tennessee, and John C. Calhoun, of South Carolina, were elected President and Vice-President, respectively.

The little proposition "of" is the only word in the English language in which "f" has the sound of "v."

BERLIN ORDERED FALSE REPORTS SPREAD SAYS FOR

Roosevelt Has Copies Showing Orders Given Nazi and Fascist Sympathizers to Say Falsely Britain Willing to Talk Peace

By J. F. SANDERSON
Columbia Press Staff Writer

Washington, June 7 (CP)— The German government's propaganda bureau in Berlin has been given direct orders to Nazi and Fascist sympathizers in the United States to spread false reports of Britain's willingness to talk peace, President Roosevelt declared at his press conference.

The President, pointing to a steel basket on his desk, said he had copies of the orders and that he had an excellent idea of German propaganda methods in the United States.

Carefully choosing his words, the President said it was an amazing coincidence that on the eve of the return to Washington of John G. Winant and after his return, several of the American press carried reports that the United States Ambassador had brought back a peace offer from London.

No Peace Offer Brought

Actually, said Mr. Roosevelt, the American Ambassador brought back no peace offer. Similarly, said Mr. Roosevelt, the American Ambassador brought back no statement or hint that Britain would keep fighting only a few more weeks or months.

The President accused sections of the American press and sections of American public opinion of being duped by German propaganda bureau. Nazis, Fascists and appeasers who were obeying orders from Berlin.

Told by a reporter that there was an impression being spread that Britain had said she could not last more than a few months without increased American help, the President declared that this never had been said unless it was by Berlin. It did not come, he added, from a responsible source.

A reporter remarked that the people would be shocked to hear that Germany was sending orders to this country, and he asked how orders were sent out and how the system operated.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to go into details, because, he said, it might disclose how he got his information. But it does come, he said, from the German propaganda bureau in Berlin.

Asked about published reports that the Japanese Ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, had been discussing the possibility of a non-aggression pact with State Secretary Hull, the President said he knew nothing about it.

Winant Meets Hull

Ambassador Winant was in conference with Hull while the White House conference was in progress. He said he did not care to add anything to what the President had said.

Winant told newspapermen he had seen the President earlier today in the series of continuing conferences he is having with high officials. Previously, he said, he had talked with War Secretary Stimson, William S. Knudsen, Director of the O.P.M., and others and he would continue with such talks until he returns to London in a few days.

First, he said, the Ambassador came to report on 25, maybe 30, major topics and items, relating to the conduct of the war by Britain.

Second, Winant came to get information on 25 or 50 topics relating to defence to take back to England.

Then the President launched into a criticism of what he called a portion of the press. He said he was not talking about all of it but of certain types of papers in whose columns there appeared what he termed a most amazing coincidence. He said he characterized it only as coincidence, but he knew what the correct term.

Coincidence Orders is Sympathizers

The President went on to say that just before Winant came back he had been given the two memos which he showed to the press. Nazi sympathizers in this country and to what he termed certain elements of people in favor of appeasement.

The President declined to read or reveal how he did it, but that he got "a pretty darned good idea of what other people are coming from Germany to sympathizers in the United States."

In referring to an order to stress the idea Germany had no thought of doing anything against a western hemisphere nation, Mr. Roosevelt said this was carried again this morning by some newspapers.

The New York Times, for example, he said, printed an article by John Gunther, former Ambassador to Belgium and Luxembourg, relating an interview he had had with Hitler.

Then said the Times also had carried an editorial today, which he thought was good enough for the press of the United States to read, evaluating past German assurances and promises. The New York Times would not be a large number of persons duped in this country.

The Times editorial concluded with a line saying, "he (Hitler) is always the best friend of the next nation on his list for plunder."

Secretary of State Hull also was asked at his press conference about the reported talks with the Japanese. He said American policy in the Pacific remained unchanged and let a clear implication that any improvement in relations with Japan depended upon actions of the government at Tokyo.

The New York Times editorial cited by President Roosevelt follows:

On Misunderstanding Hitler

At the end of his interview with Mr. Cudahy in this morning's Times, Adolf Hitler complains that he is always being misunderstood in the United States.

"Time after time he has tried to emphasize that the position of Germany and his plans are not inimical to the United States, but his efforts have always proved futile."

They will always remain futile, unless we become a nation of dupes; for the utter "worthlessness of Hitler's explanations and assurances and promises is written in his record . . .

"It is no news that his present plans are not inimical to the United States. He is always the best friend of the next nation on his list for plunder."

Belleville Girl Assists in Research For New Treatment Of Gas Gangrene

A former Belleville girl, Miss Rita Anderson, M.A., daughter of Mrs. E. Anderson, 286½ Coleman Street, assisted in the research work which led to the discovery of the new treatment for gas gangrene, recently announced by two members of the medical faculty of Queen's University, it was learned today.

Miss Anderson is a former student of the Belleville Collegiate and Bishop Ridley College and graduates were increased to 200 men. Chief Secretary Peter McKeen left Sudbury and was expected to make an aerial survey of the district, large tracts of which were burned over by fires earlier this spring.

The new outbreak were being controlled in some parts but in others were fanning out, gas gangrene, which is expected to result in a sharp decline in the mortality rate arising out of gas gangrene, said to rank with streptococcus as the greatest cause of death among wounded soldiers.

Use of Horse Whips Approved by Court To Remove Trespassers

Lindsay, Ont., June 7 (CP)—Use of horse whips by women to remove obstinate trespassers was approved in the Haliburton police court by Magistrate Langley, of Peterboro, who dismissed assault charges brought against Mrs. Margaret Nixon and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Haliburton, by Isaac Winn, a laborer. "It was a very appropriate way," he commented.

Ill feeling arose between Mrs. Nixon, lessee of a restaurant and the owner, Sol Bernstein, when the latter, owner of the theatre next door tried to use property at the rear of the building for construction operations. Winn hired a ladder on the restaurant roof and climbed up to use a gin-pole for the walls of the new building. Mrs. Nixon and Betty told Winn to remove the ladder and when he refused, they attempted to dislodge him with a garden rake. Winn pulled the rake from their hands. The two women then got a horse whip each and applied them to Winn until he left.

New Forest Fires Described as Serious

Sudbury, Ont., June 7—(CP)—New forest fires in the Sudbury area today were described as serious, as the fire fighting forces were increased to 200 men. Chief Secretary Peter McKeen left Sudbury and was expected to make an aerial survey of the district, large tracts of which were burned over by fires earlier this spring.

The new outbreak were being controlled in some parts but in others were fanning out, gas gangrene, which is expected to result in a sharp decline in the mortality rate arising out of gas gangrene, said to rank with streptococcus as the greatest cause of death among wounded soldiers.

Further Installations Oil-Heating Equipment May Be Prohibited

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—G. R. Cottrelle, Federal Oil Controller, said yesterday on his return to Toronto from Washington where he conferred with United States Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes the "oil problem is now a matter of government policy and I am not able to speak further on the subject until such time as I have submitted my report to my Minister at Ottawa."

Meanwhile, Mr. Cottrelle said he was convinced that some form of Price control would be introduced.

"People who are considering installation of oil-heating equipment should be advised to consider some other means," said Mr. Cottrelle, explaining that he was setting under prohibiting delivery of fuel oil to new installations using more than 4,000 gallons yearly might be refused to prohibit all fuel deliveries to new oil burners.

"We don't want to interfere with oil heating but we have to prohibit new installations in order to protect those already depending on oil heat."

R.C.A.F. Seeks Cooks, Guards, Firemen And Nursing Orderlies

The R. C. A. F. is seeking certain specialized trades as urgently required. The following categories are those for which there is the greatest need.

GUARDS: Recruits are required for this category for guard duty at various Air Force Stations. Preference is given to men of previous military service.

COOKS: Applicants should be able to cut up carcasses into proper joints and weights; should have a thorough knowledge of cooking. Consideration will be given to experienced butchers who seem adaptable to cooking.

NURSING ORDERLIES: Applicants preferably should have two years' High School and who are capable of learning a fairly technical trade. Those in possession of a St. John Ambulance certificate or particular evidence of inclination for this type of employment will be given preference.

FIREMEN: Applicants should have at least six months' actual experience with stokers.

In all the above trades recruits are required to be medically fit: be between the ages of 18 and 50, and have education equivalent to High School Entrance.

Alleged Scheme To Smuggle Platinum Out of U. S. Bared

New York, June 6.—(AP)— An alleged scheme to smuggle platinum out of the United States on Pan American Airways clippers was bared yesterday with the arrest by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents of two stewards of the line and a Hungarian who allegedly posed as a refugee. More than $15,000 worth of the metal also was seized.

The stewards — Fred Marso, 36, and Rene Emanuel Mezenen, 36, naturalized citizen — were held on $5,000 bail each on charges of conspiracy and were scheduled to appear for arraignment before Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell today.

Held in $15,000 bail was Witold Urbanski, 28, who came here in 1939 on a visitor's pass via the Dominican Republic, but now is a refugee.

They were charged directly with violating the National Defence Act by smuggling out of the country platinum, considered vital to defence.

United States Attorney Harold M. Kennedy, disclosed the awards were arrested yesterday before a clipper was to take off for Lisbon, as Mezenen handed three small packets to Marso who was to have been steward on the flight.

He said the packages contained $5,000 in platinum. Agents said more than $15,000 worth had been seized.

BOMBERS TO REMEDY ABSENTEEISM AT MINES

London, June 7 (CP Cable)—The executive of the Mine Workers Federation, governing Britain's 750,000 coal miners, accepted today the owners' offer of a shilling per shift bonus for good attendance.

It is designed to remedy absenteeism which is estimated to cost 10,000,000 tons a year. The bonus is retroactive to June 1.

Seven Hundred Attend Victory Loan Rally at Madoc

Madoc — About seven hundred people crowded Madoc Armouries on Thursday for the Victory Loan Rally in connection with Canada-wide campaign. Previous to the meeting the Trenton Royal Air Force gave the citizens of Madoc and vicinity a fine open air concert on the main street. Upon arriving at the armouries another treat in store was more music and the band gave generously throughout the evening and also led in community singing. Reeve George Wess was chairman and in a few well-chosen words gave an outline of the campaign as regards Hastings County and District No. 12, which represents a new locality and asked all to give and give generously in order to go over the top. He also explained that on account of an urgent call elsewhere the speaker for the evening, Mr. Denton Massey was unable to be present.

Mr. G. A. Thain in a few words introduced Col. Roscoe Vanderwater who likewise accepted the invitation to speak. Col. Vanderwater, a native son of Madoc, is a real, a very interesting speaker. He paid high tributes to Hastings and Prince Edward Battery and also to Major Wallace Graham, D.S.O., M.C., veteran of the last war and in active service in the present conflict and what had happened to the countries in Europe. France, Belgium Netherlands, Norway, Poland and all countries overrun by Hitler, and our own country and what we might expect if we do not support. Hastings-Prince Ed. in all ways possible and he felt sure Hastings would go over the top. He thanked everyone to give and give generously. He also expressed his thanks to Col. Vanderwater and to Royal Air Force Band and all who had taken part in the rally in the success of the evening. The meeting closed with God Save the King.

Passenger Service On Rumanian Railways Reduced on Sunday

Bucharest, June 7 (AP)—A drastic reduction in passenger service on Rumanian railways, effective Sunday, was announced today.

The new plan provides that only 12 express trains, 70 other passenger trains and the local and motor trains, is necessary to intensify the transportation of freight, the announcement said.

(This dispatch, via Berlin, made no mention of the reports of heavy freight transportation. It was reported in Bucharest and Turkey today in Ankara said heavy German freight transportation facilities had been arranged on the Russian border. Authoritative Bucharest reports said Germans normally are recalled at this time of the year for training.)

Prime Minister, Hon. R. B. Hanson To Visit Kingston

Ottawa, June 6 — (CP)— Prime Minister MacKenzie King and the Hon. Ian Mackenzie today that he hoped many members would go with him and Conservative House Leader Hanson to Kingston for the ceremonies tomorrow commemorating the 50th anniversary of the death of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Because of this ceremony in Kingston Mr. King said the House of Commons would not sit tomorrow but on Monday the House would sit morning, afternoon and evening, continuing the effort, to get through this part of the session as quickly as possible.

For the same reason the House will sit tonight, Mr. King said.

Overseas Airways To Use Baltimore As N. A. Terminal

Baltimore, June 7 (AP)—British Overseas airways will use Baltimore as the North American terminal for its trans-Atlantic service and as a maintenance base for flying boats operating between Great Britain and Africa.

The first of the three Boeing-built flying boats which Britain purchased from Pan American is expected to arrive here from Britain some time next week. Thereafter, regular flights will be made between Baltimore and Britain and Africa, officials said.

Erik Nelson, heading the British staff here, said that the planes will operate under the British government business, diplomatic mail and material during rapid transit. There will be no commercial service, he said.

Says Giant Bombers Passenger Airliners May Make Landings Along U. S. Highways

Washington, June 7 (AP)— The largest airplanes—the huge bombers and huge passenger airlines — eventually may make emergency landings alongside the thousands of miles of highways throughout the United States.

Senator Patrick McCarran (Dem., Nevada) disclosed today that a section of the proposed national defence highway bill requested by President Roosevelt would authorize construction of "landing strips" along the nation's highway.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

WEDDING IN MOURNING FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I had planned to have a large formal wedding this Spring, but two weeks after my engagement it was announced, my father died, and so in the wedding will, of course, be a small, informal one. I do not care to have a reception.

1. I will write notes of invitation to my relatives and friends, inviting them to the ceremony. Is it necessary to mention in the notes of invitation that there will be no reception? The accepted practice in our church is to issue a general invitation to the congregation from the pulpit. Would this be proper in my case?

2. Should I send announcements to relatives who live so far away that sending them notes of invitation would be useless?

3. Does the organist play the wedding march? Who walks down the aisle? Do we use the bell-less flags or a fan-like vase? I am having one attendant.

4. I am to wear an afternoon dress and hat. Where do I leave my gloves and bag? Is it best to wear a corsage, or carry small flowers?

5. With these plans, do you think a five o'clock wedding would be appropriate?

Julia

1. It is not necessary to mention in your notes of invitation that there is to be no reception. However, if you think there might be misunderstanding, include this then include this information.

Under your circumstances, think the lasting of a general invitation to the congregation from the pulpit would be entirely appropriate.

2. Write to your relatives who live far away you should write notes of invitation. A telephone is a friendly gesture; an announcement is far less personal. You could also should word your invitations to those far-away relatives so that they will know that they are invited with you on the great day. The fact that you dress a corsage is unimportant.

3. You may, if you wish, have the organist play the wedding march and the recessional. During the "hesitation step"; this gives a more unattractive effect. Dad will walk naturally, to the beat of the music.

4. Leave your gloves and purse in a room at the back of the church, or in one of the back pews. With flowers, either dress a corsage would be appropriate.

Son's Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My son is to be married soon, and there will be a large wedding and reception to follow. I have remarried since my divorce. How should the invitations be worded?

2. In the receiving-line will my husband take his place next to me or next to me?

3. Since the wedding invitations are sent out by the parents of the bride, should the envelopes bear the names of the bride and groom or those of the bride's parents?

4. Customarily both the mother and father of the groom stand in the receiving-line — not just the parents of the bride, and next to them the parents of the groom.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Widower Objects to Fun of Second Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A radiant young creature of 23 has taken charge of my home as my husband. I'm 44 years of age and my hair is more white than black. My girl wants what she calls a "simple wedding," but I say no. I'm an out-of-doors affair, with six bridesmaids, ushers, and all the rest of it.

Considering the difference in our ages, I should like to be quietly married and not call attention to the fact that I am taking a better only a year younger than my wife.

I wish you would write one of your sensible articles telling the sensitivity of this kind of show in a marriage which is not of youthful ages. After the wedding she can boss me as much as she likes, but I want to start out this fuss-and-feathers nonsense.

Widower

Please don't begin your married life by thwarting a young girl of her first wedding. Every possible bean dreaming about this day, and she left off playing with dolls.

Get yourself a smart, well-cut white flannel suit, and enter into the spirit in a youthful wedding. You may be 44, but don't act 60.

Long Courtship and Short Engagement Are Views

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am fond of a girl 20 years old, and I'm a little older. Can a boy of that age know his own mind? I think I do. Some people say that a person can find out what love is only in late years, but my friends say it's better to have a long courtship and a short engagement. They say that during an engagement, when you're wearing a boy's ring, no one else has a right to him, and while during a long courtship you really can't state your love nor his friends too, and your choice will have to be jealous or leave.

D. E.

I've never heard of any hard-and-fast rule laid down about this question. An equal number of marriages happy as the result of courtship as to result from both "schools of thought." When either courtship or engagements run into years, there usually is a lack of enthusiasm, experience for the woman. The boy friend who has been hanging around for his other middle-aged or elderly, looks about for something younger and fresher than the girl who's waited time he has wasted.

The boy is somewhat older than the boy of 30 who wants to marry you. Your friends, however, seemed to me rather young for a boy to make the responsibilities of marriage, but there are always exceptions to every rule.

Wants Only One Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm almost 24 years old and have been looking for my living ever since I was 14 years old. I had a terrible disposition, so I left home and began to work for my room and board as a sort of house helper. I succeeded in finishing my education by going to night school, and now am occupying a secretarial position in a very fine business office. Not bragging about it, I think I'm doing all right without help from home.

There's a young man in the same organization as myself, to whom I'm devotedly in love, tho's three years older than I am, and there's no one else in the world I'd care to have. I don't think he knows how much I care for him, and sometimes I think it would be a good thing for me to go out with other young men.

The fun I'm in love with is of excellent character. He doesn't smoke and is a fine boy. He has no bad habits. Girls don't seem to bother him. He's a fine pal right along at his work which is highly important. Do you think I can make him interested in me?

Ruth

If this man is one of those people who ploddingly attend to their things, even under his nose, you'll have to show some special interest in him to attract him. Some such men are like that. They seem to pass their lives in a sort of trance until some girl like you gets hold of them.

By all means, go out with other young men and show a little personal interest in the one whom you're interested.

Weddings

FLINDALL—SHOEBRIDGE

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at two-thirty this afternoon at Holloway Street United Church Parsonage when June Arlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Shoebridge, 44 Frank Street, became the bride of Charles Ernest Flindall, Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Flindall of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Dills.

The bride made a dainty picture in her gown of sea shell pink georgette with matching accessories, white accessories and bouquet of tea roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Theda Shoebridge, wearing ensemble blue crepe with matching hat, while accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. Hilton Flindall, brother of the groom was groomsman.

The bridal party room left immediately after the ceremony on a wedding trip to northern points, the bride travelling in a beige ensemble with red accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Kingston.

BLAKELY—FRASER

The marriage of Helen Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Fraser, of Westmount, to Mr. Frederick Lloyd Blakely, son of the late A. F. Blakely, of Belleville, Ont., and of Mrs. Blakely, of Montreal, took place on Saturday at the Dominion-Douglas Church, Montreal, Rev. Dr. Wilfrid Bruce Pearce, D.D., uncle of the bride, officiating assisted by the pastor, Rev. A. Lloyd Smith, D.D. White blossoms were used as decorations throughout the church, the chancel being candlelight was banked with the white flowers, arranged with tall standards of peonies and bridal wreath. Tall vases of white flowers, tied with white ribbons intermingled with tall branched candelabra, were placed at intervals in the church. Mr. George Brewer was at the organ throughout the ceremony and during the signing of the register Miss Gerald Schuberth "Ave Maria".

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a French model of Bianchini white flamisé made on long graceful lines, and fitted closely at the waist. The circular train fell from the shoulders. She wore a tulle illusion, reaching beyond the elbows, which was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, valley lilies and the-valley.

The bridal attendants, Mrs. Peter McIntyre, as matron of honor, and Miss Jean Fraser, sister of the bride, Alasdair Fraser, sisters-in-law of the bride, were gowned alike in frocks of white cotton lace over taffeta bodies, long tight sleeves and full skirts ending in a deep flounce. They wore small flower hats of white cotton lace and carried cascade bouquets of white gladiola and carnations.

Mr. Reginald A. Blakely acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Alan Blakely, brother of the bride, Mr. Shepherd McIntyre, Mr. Alasdair Fraser, the Black Watch (R.H.R.) and Mr. Peter Fraser, brother of the bride, Mr. Shepherd McIntyre and Mr. Stewart Mowat.

Mrs. Fraser, the bride's mother, was in a model gown of Madonna blue lace, embroidered in blue sequins, having a draped bodice, and long full skirt with a short chiffon train. She wore a small hat of blue lace, trimmed with a small bunch of sweet peas in pastel shades. Mrs. Blakely, mother of the bridegroom, chose a model in black jersey sheer, fashioned on Princess lines, with long sleeves and full skirt. She wore a grey baku hat trimmed with shaded roses, and a corsage bouquet of mauve orchids.

The reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, 3 Murray avenue, Westmount, where the rooms were decorated with pinnonium and pink and blue lupins in crystal and silver containers.

The bride's table, lighted by tall white candles arranged with low bowls of white carnations, sweet peas, dragons and sycophollis, was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake covered with bouvardia and gypsophila.

The bride and groom left Montreal by the Canadian Rockies, and the Pacific Coast, before travelling in an ensemble of dandringham blue lightweight wool with matching hat and navy blue accessories and wearing a corsage bouquet of white orchids.

They will reside in Montreal.

WILTON—McCURDY

A very interesting and pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. F. Darnell at the Baptist Church, Bigelton, on Saturday evening, May 30th.

The bride, Miss May McCurdy, was becomingly attired in blue abercrombie suiting and carried a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Olga Bangay, gowned in pink sheer which was to match.

The groom, Mr. Clayton Gerald Wilton of Bigelton, was attended by Mr. Norman Hannon of Belleville.

During the signing of the register Miss Eva Bangay sang "Because" in a very pleasing manner.

The young couple will reside in Belleville.

HOBBS—HOWARD

The marriage took place at 104 W. Moira St. Thursday night, at nine o'clock of Miss Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howard and Hilliard Roscoe Hobbs, son of R. C. Hobbs of Mountain View, Rev. J. D. P. Knox officiating. The attendants were the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard and Miss Gladys Howard.

The first shipment of asbestos of any consequence ever made from Canada recently went to the United States.

Stroke, Hudson, Finland Forever.

Under this defiant title, the author has written this experiences and observations during a trip Finland last year. The social, economic, as well as historical background of Finnish life is described with a bright variety of interesting detail. Through the fate of Finland is stamped with sorrow, the author has imbued his narrative with humour and warmth. Monks, Nest, Squadrons Up.

A first hand story of the R.A.F. is told by this war correspondent with the London Daily Mail attached to the Advance Air Striking Force during the campaign in France. The book is above all a description of the personality of fighter pilots, notably the New Zealand ace "Clobber Kain".

Sherman, Alistair, Lt.-Col. in Battle.

More stories of drugs that have revolutionized medicine are told in this interesting and entertaining book by a scientist with a doctor's degree on the staff of a great newspaper. The more shocking side of drug traffic is also described. Some of the dramatic incidents in the struggle to control the drug traffic take place on Friday evening in Memorial Hall. Many of these books are in the Public Library.

Dr. T. C. McMullen, Dean of the College welcomed the audience on behalf of the staff and students. He conveyed Dr. Howard's regrets that he was unable to be present owing to having been called to Toronto to attend the funeral of Dr. Dyer a former member of the staff.

"The Eagle Boat"

The evening's program was opened by the junior students in that favourite fairy story of Beauty and the Beast, this adaptation being given in the form of a play. Those who play the story supposedly took form from the many books filled in relation to which two children, victims of circumstances, found a home. With the minds of any children listening to fairy tales, they entered into the play. The clear voices of the youthful actors and their easy manner on the stage showed careful thought and training. As in the best of fairy stories the characters were beautifully costumed, with the lovely beauty being played by Christine Finkle and the enchanted Beast by Phyllis Dickens. The cast was composed of:

Beauty ..... Hugh Cameron
Sylvia ..... Anne Marie McCullough
Merchant ..... Philip Flagler
Beast ..... Phyllis Dickens
Esmeralda ..... Muriel Hibbard
Lavinia ..... Phyllis Trudale
Hops ..... Hugh Cameron
Beauty ..... Christine Finkle
Rose ..... Catharine Cameron

Ladies and gentlemen:

The Queen of May has been an active one with larger circulation both adult and Children's books over last month. A total of 2030 were made of the Reference Dept. The withdrawals were 1,681 adult, 2260 children's and 508 reference books completed the total for the use. This is an increase by 576 over the month of May last year. The increase is due to the extra use of the Library's reference books at the time of the Mountain View Air Observation School. Material for 14 lectures was prepared during the month including books, pamphlets, clippings and magazines covering such topics as Economic Warfare, Youth Movements in various countries, Control of the Blockade, War Trade with the United States at the start of the war. The officers expressed appreciation that the Belleville Public Library was able to supply the needed information, rather than calling on the resources of the Toronto Reference Library or larger centres. Although a great deal of research was necessary to supply all the material within two weeks we were glad to feel we had the materials at hand.

Membership for the month totalled 71, of these 48 were adult and 23 children. There were 20 adult withdrawals and 10 children.

Special displays for the month included Gardening, House Decoration and Cookery. The last display included all books, dealing with recreations, as golf, swimming, tennis, skating, etc. as well as the sections featuring sports.

During the month with Miss Delaney, I made an extra drive on the magazines stored away in the basement.

This necessitated sorting and arranging magazines as far back as ten years. Certain magazines are being kept for reference and others were put aside for clipping, discard or presentation to military camps. This is a work that will require our constant vigilance in order to ensure prompt and efficient reference service.

The Horticultural Society again generously donated plants for the Library windows.

Respectfully submitted.

Corby Library Board Holds Regular Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Corby Public Library Board was held last evening, with the Rev. President, Mr. J. E. Bateman presiding. The secretary-treasurer read a letter was read from Wing Commander C. R. Lloyd, O.C. Air Armament School, Trenton, thanking the Board for the donation of books.

The report of library activities for May was presented by the librarian, Miss Kathryn Gallagher, as follows:

One Act Plays Delightfully Given By Drama Dept. of Albert College

With three short plays whose diversified themes made the program a most continued interest the Dramatic Art Class of Albert College took place on Friday evening in Memorial Hall. Many of these plays themselves are the stories of the Great War, several of which fought through struggles and disappointments to scientific achievement.

Back, Frank, All in a Lifetime.

The life story of the man who "brings" Hitler to his knees, and from his Texas boyhood to his life in the jungle wilds in quest of rubber. Mr. Back's personality was enough to make one forget the way the play was arranged. The stories of animals, notable people and famous men.

Barton, F B It's fun to keep fit.

In this guide to games and sports the author maintains that it is a good sense for people to learn to play well. Among a variety of amusements for the department head down to the messenger boy.

RUN OVER BY JACKRABBIT

Abilene, Texas, June 7 (AP) — Charles Barkley, 70, veteran Abilene police and firemen were fire-perpetrated and underwent test tests last night for membership in the "Asailing" Jackrabbit Club. The rabbit hopped across the driving soldier's face, its claws leaving deep scratches and welts. Medical authorities vouched for the story, but withheld the embarrassed victim's name.

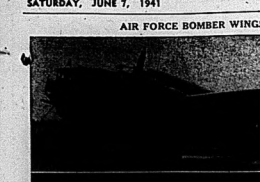
AIR FORCE BOMBER WINGS WAY EAST



The above pictures show the Royal Canadian Air Force bomber and invasion plane which soon will be carrying Canada's Victory Loan Torch across Canada. The plane left Victoria, B.C., on Monday following an impressive dedication ceremony. On its way to Halifax the Torch will stop at many Canadian cities where Canadians will rededicate themselves to the cause of freedom for which the Empire fights. Later it will be flown across the Atlantic to be presented to Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Reading from left to right, members of the crew are: Pilot Officer Gordon Leader D. E. Galloway, Toronto; 2nd Pilot, Pilot Officer G. M. Black, St. John, N.B.; Engineer Officer, Flying Officer K. N. Brownell, Halifax, Air Observer, Merchant, Pilot Officer Newton, Vancouver.

"Torch of Victory" Will Arrive In City at 6.30 P. M. on Monday; Elaborate Ceremonies to Welcome Token

On Monday afternoon, June 9th, a huge bomber will drop quietly to a landing on the tarmac of the Trenton base of the Royal Canadian Air Force. The twin-motored Lockheed plane will circle the landing field before descending to the ground and the crew will be greeted by base officers and civil and other dignitaries.

The Lockheed will bring with it the famous "Torch of Victory" which is being flown across Canada and being displayed at various points where ceremonies are being held. The "Torch" will eventually reach an eastern Canadian port from which point it will be flown across the Atlantic to Britain and formally presented to Prime Minister Winston Churchill as a symbol of Canada's determination to stand by Britain until victory is assured.

Immediately following its arrival at the Trenton air base the "Torch" will be taken by motor cavalcade to Cobourg where ceremonies will be held. Here as at other points along the population will take the "pledge" of fealty and loyalty to His Majesty the King.

From Cobourg it will be brought to Trenton where similar ceremonies will be held. Civic, municipal and other officials will attend and large crowds are expected to be present.

The Torch will arrive in Belleville at 6.30 o'clock where an elaborate program has been arranged by Victory Loan officials here. There will be a parade of War veterans, cadet corps of the schools of the city, scouts, girl guides, other organizations and bands of the city.

Program at Fair Grounds

Highlights of the program and ceremonies which are being held at the Fair Grounds will be an address by Dr. Robert C. Wallace, of Queen's University, Kingston. The chairman will be Judge Charles A. Cameron while Adjt. Smith of the Salvation Army and the Rev. Dr. J. Semple will offer prayers.

Following the address, there will be a grand Torch Parade in front of the grandstand, and His Worship Mayor Glen. Thompson will sign the Scroll. The Torch Day Pledge will be read by the Rev. D. R. Chatreau, and the assembled throng will repeat its words.

Order of Parade

Public school pupils will assemble at the Queen Mary School campus and will march from there to the Fair Grounds, arriving at 6.14 p. m. Collegiate cadets, girl cadets, scouts, guides, veterans, bands and singing groups will assemble at the discretion of their leaders and arrive at the Fair Grounds at the same time as the public school pupils.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the parade will move off and parade through the Yeomans Street entrance, along Bridge Street west, turn left at Church Street and reassemble on our Collegiate campus. The order of parade is motor cycle escort; Torch with escort and guard; Torch of honor; the Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force; District Chairman, Officials, Mayor and Council; veterans; cadets; girl cadets; scouts and guides; Midland Band; Queen Alexandra School; Queen Mary School; Queen Victoria School; King George School; other units and another motor cycle escort.

Another feature of the ceremonies, will be the singing by the Collegiate Institute chorus under the direction of George Mayhew. This organization has been rehearsing faithfully for the event and its performance is being looked forward to by many.

Active Year Reported at District Meeting of North Hastings' Institute

Madoc (Special) — The thirty-third district annual convention of North Hastings Women's Institute was held in Trinity United Church on Thursday. Delegates and visitors were present in the ten branches comprising North Hastings District.

The morning session was in charge of the president, Miss Rosebrugh, and opened with the National Anthem and Institute Ode. Following the district secretary (Mrs. K. Bateman), reports which showed a very active year throughout the different branches and address of welcome was given by Mrs. Chas. Whytock and replied to by Mrs. Clifford Milne of Tweed.

The president gave an address, giving a year's work in brief outline. Stressing the war work of the W. I., she also reported a new branch at Gilmour and a cordial welcome was given to them. She closed her address reminding the members not to lose sight of the general work of the W. I. along with the much needed assistance in war work. Reporting Committees

Reports of standing Committees were given and were very gratifying. Mrs. C. Holmes of Belleville and Provincial Director addressed the meeting and said the W. I. membership for Ontario was 40,000. Five hundred dollars was given in jam-making for overseas last fall.

Miss Bridges, a representative from the Agricultural School at Kemptville addressed the meeting and spoke on Home Economics and the girls' and boys' clubs.

A very fine dinner was served by Madoc W. I. with almost one hundred visitors present.

The afternoon session was opened with community singing, with Mrs. Hulin in charge. Following this, Miss Slester from the Institute Branch Dept. of Agric. spoke to addressed the meeting at some length. Arrangements were made for local leadership classes in uses of whole wheat products to be held in the fall at Ivanhoe and the Officers' Rally to be held at Marmora in November. Reports of Resolutions Com. were given by Mrs. Meikle and Mrs. A. Bell. A report of Girls' work prepared by Miss Scott and given by Mrs. C. Holmes of Belleville. Community singing by the girls with a chorus "The King Is Still in London" was sung by Phyllis Bruce, Betty Faulkes, Phyllis Tanner and Barbara Nicol accompanied by Aileen Tanner was very much enjoyed. The sessional committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference met at a lunch in the Grange. The meal was offered by the convener and the committee was composed of J. M. Shaw, D.D., as chairman and Rev. H. A. Wyllie, B.A., secretary.

The committee begs leave to report as follows:

Resolution

1. Believing that in this world war the Bible has become the rallying point upon to a new realization and proclamation of the greatness of the Evangel as an Evangel not only for the individual but for society at large also and in particular at the present time—for national and international life, the committee urges all Ministers and lay leaders in opposition to a pagan totalitarianism which makes the nation or state and one particular nation or state, the supreme and absolute authority in thought and life, to proclaim and promote with new emphasis and power the Christian totalitarianism which crowns Christ and His way of life as Lord of all, and declares that nation and state, all nations and states, ex-

A comprehensive report on the activities of the religious education was also presented, which in part embodied a recommendation that Presbytery meet each fall at the late Dr. Langford. It was decided that the convention through its agency convey its warm sympathies to the bereaved family and the Rev. Langford and Mr. Hall and has worked so diligently.

An expression of appreciation was also tendered Rev. Roy Rickard, prior to his leaving Canada for a Bay of Quinte Conference to another field of activity. This, in recognition of his splendid work in connection of this committee. Plans for a coaching conference to be held at Albert College were also set forth and a general report on the work among schools, family camps and leadership training camps.

Committee

Nominations for the Christian Education Committee 1941-42 resulted in the following workers be elected at the meeting presided for the coming year:

Children's Work, Mrs. N. White, Roslyn; Boys' Work, Rev. M. Fisher, Gore's Landing; Girls' Work, Miss Beatrice, Trafalgar; Young People's Work, Rev. R. D. Conveners of Presbytery Committees; Education, Rev. P. R. Vanderburgh, Oakwood; Secretary, Rev. R. M. Patterson, Omemee; Treasurer, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, Yarker.

Nominated to the Board of Christian Education Rev. R. F. Vanderburgh and Mr. Stephen Sewell, Gananoque and Sheila Service.

The sessional committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference met at a lunch in the Grange. The meal was offered by the convener and the committee was composed of J. M. Shaw, D.D., as chairman and Rev. H. A. Wyllie, B.A., secretary.

The committee begs leave to report as follows:

Believing that in this world war the Bible has become the rallying point upon to a new realization and proclamation of the greatness of the Evangel as an Evangel not only for the individual but for society at large also and in particular at the present time—for national and international life, the committee urges all Ministers and lay leaders in opposition to a pagan totalitarianism which makes the nation or state and one particular nation or state, the supreme and absolute authority in thought and life, to proclaim and promote with new emphasis and power the Christian totalitarianism which crowns Christ and His way of life as Lord of all, and declares that nation and state, all nations and states, ex-

Spanish Cruiser Finds Sea Littered With Bodies of Bismarck Crew

Madrid, June 7 (AP)—The 10,000-ton Spanish cruiser Canarias, another ship that came to the aid of the crippled German battleship Bismarck during the engagement that sunk the British battle cruiser Hood, sped through heavy seas and arrived for rescue work at a battle scene literally covered with bodies of the sunken Bismarck's crew.

This epilogue to the new 35,000-ton German warship's last battle was disclosed today in a Spanish communique which said the Canarias retrieved a number of bodies from the sea and later buried them with full military honors in the Atlantic.

Twenty-odd hours before—or about the time British torpedo planes and pursuing warships were closing in upon the Bismarck for the kill—the Spanish cruiser received from an auxiliary of the Bismarck an urgent message asking for rescue work.

The Canarias, riding at anchor in the Spanish harbor of El Ferrol, about 400 miles away, put out immediately at full speed, and fought high seas all the way.

"After hauling a number of bodies from the water, the commander of the Spanish cruiser messaged Berlin for instructions," the communique said.

"On receiving a reply, all the bodies were wrapped in Swastika flags and buried with full military honors.

(The communique did not indicate whether the Canarias had in its supply of Nazi Swastika flags.)

"Only dead crewmen were found during the rescue work," the communique claimed.

British seamen rescued about 100 survivors, of the Bismarck.

The above report concluding this portion on Evangelism was ably presented by Dr. J. M. Shaw, professor of Queen's University and chairman of the committee.

Social Service—Temperance.

We commend the temperance educational movement known as the Youth Temperance Federation of Canada in all our congregations and moral leaders. Already hundreds of temperance pots have been instituted with an enlistment of thousands of young people. Why not this work everywhere? Let us plan a great advance in this field.

We would pointedly recall to our federal government the very reasonable request of the deputation which waited upon them in July 1940. They proposed that for the period of the war and demobilization:

1. The beverage rooms, wine shops, and taverns should be closed throughout Canada.

2. That liquor stores should be open only from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. on week days.

That advertising liquors should cease except at the point of sale.

4. That when this had been done, the sentiments in favor thereof should be closed.

We assert that this request was decidedly moderate. We note that the deputation represented officially the nine major Christian denominations of Canada, both Protestant and Catholic. We believe that in the grave emergency of the hour it is the duty of the church to make strong appeal to our people on patriotic grounds to give up the use of liquor which material resources to the utmost, and at the same time to eliminate within the economic framework of our country a traffic which degrades and enslaves our citizens, and which at the same time wastes the substance of the people to the hundreds of millions of dollars. No soldier, no sailor, no, airman, no citizen should be a drunkard, and we can be at his best, when drinking.

Let us not be afraid to call upon them for the defence of our country and our democratic way of life in our own homes. It is reasonable that we demand of our rulers that these beverage rooms, wine shops and taverns invariably associated with the liquor traffic.

We would call the attention of our people to the existence in the city of that Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec have established government stores of the liquor traffic. In Ontario, no! Ontario has the right, and does demand that in the true interests of temperance this shall not continue Be Gambling.

In view of the increasing use of gambling methods such as raffles, lotteries, etc., in raising money for church and other worthy purposes, and whereas, in a day of increasing Bingo, and other gambling methods of financing appeal to selfish motives, rather than to the spirit of service, we express our conviction that such things, whether prompted by churches, or other organizations, are antagonistic to the Christian spirit, to the moral welfare of the people.

Marriage.

The conference endorses the principle that any condition which interferes with the happiness of the home, or the welfare of the child is a menace to the State.

As a preventative of such mental and moral defects we call for legislation on homes which result from the marriage of individuals who are mentally or morally defective, to produce or to rear normal children. We recommend the medical examination before marriage.

Therefore we urge that legislation upon the statutes already of twenty-four states of the American Union, and in the Province of the Dominion, we would draw to the attention of our legislators particularly the necessity of amending the Marriage Act of Ontario by requiring a certificate stating that adequate tests as recommended by medical authorities have been made, been made for such diseases as syphilis and gonorrhoea, and that the results of such tests be made known to the contracting parties.

The following were named as a standing committee of the conference: Chairman, Rev. Dr. Hamilton and secretary of the sessional committee, Rev. Gardner, convener; Rev. H. L. Morrison, Rev. G. M. Chidley and Mr. F. W. Hall.

As the conference representative to the board of directors of Kingston Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Rev. R. A. Whatham:

Ordinance Introduced.

The young people's session of the conference opened with the introduction of the ordinance to the members of conference. An address on behalf of the Bay of Quinte Young People's Union delivered by Miss Ruth Hall and short speeches by the ordinance proved of great interest. With Rev. Prendergast in the chair, G. D. Kilpatrick, B.A., D.D., of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, addressed the evening. Special music was provided by the choir. This climaxed the fifth day of the Bay of Quinte Conference, with the peak attendance attained.

Report of Missionary Education and Young People's Work

In the reports of the Committee on Missionary Education and Foreign Missions presented by Mr. T. Gardner, Rev. Gardner and Rev. Gardner Gardner were embodied the following recommendations which were adopted along with others: "That the Executive Committee for the coming year consist of Mr. T. C. Smith, Chairman, Rev. Gordon Smith, Secretary, Convener of Presbyteries Committee, President of the W.M.S. Conference Branch, Presbyterial Presidents, Missionary Convener of Young People's Conference. Rev. L. S. Wight of Belleville and Mr. R. G. Lawlor, Norwood.

Names of Ordinants Submitted

In the report of Colleges and Students presented by Rev. Geo. A. Brown and Secretary Rev. A. D. Cornell, the names of the following candidates for the ministry were recommended for ordination having completed the required academic status and other requirements.

Boyd Keith, B.A. B.D., graduate of McGill University and the United Church College of Theology, Montreal. Allan Ross Mackie, B.A. B.D., graduate of Queen's University and Queen's College of Theology; Kenneth Allen Norton, B.A., graduate of Queen's University and Emmanuel College; David Charles Osborne, B.A. also graduate of Queen's University; William Wallace Patterson, B.A., graduate of Victoria and Emmanuel College; Gerald William Payne, B.A., graduate of Queen's; Oscar Eric Wagar, B.A., graduate of Queen's; Gordon Arthur Armstrong Wilson having completed the prescribed course of study at Queen's University.

Dr. Jessie H. Armop Addresses Conference

In the report of the Industrial Relation Committee the Committee as a whole commended to all students of social subjects the second volume of the Rowell-Sirois Report. Pletcher with Dr. G. O. D. Kilpatrick, Principal of Queen's Theological College of Theology, bringing his final session of service to the college. The largest attendance of ministers and laymen since Conference opened was noted for the splendid support; and the fine address delivered by Rev. Dr. Jesse H. Armop.

With the first seal for which he was ordained. Dr. Armop spoke on the difficulties being met by workers in the Foreign Mission fields of China and Japan. The rumors that the Japanese authorities ask for the withdrawal of our missionaries or that any antagonistic view exist between government officials and our missionaries is entirely without foundation," said the speaker. "There is the necessity of amending the Marriage Act of Ontario, and petitions to certificate stating that adequate tests as recommended by medical authorities have been made, been made for such diseases as syphilis and gonorrhoea, and that the results of such tests be made known to the contracting parties.

Vander Meer Proves Himself Capable of Taking up Slack In Red's Pitching Staff

Cincinnati Hurler Shows Form He Displayed in 1938

GIANTS BEAT TWICE

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

There doesn't seem to be any question that this is going to be the best year for Johnny Vander Meer since he reached his double no-hit pinnacle in 1938.

He pitched a one-hit game last night in shutting out Philadelphia Phillies 7-0 for the world baseball champions, Cincinnati Reds. The only hit against him came in the second inning, when Danny Litwhiler beat out an infield smash. He fanned 12, allowed but two men to reach first and retired the last 22 batters in order.

However, there have been other signs that Vandy is "right" again. Last night's triumph was his fifth of the year and, on his last time out, the young southpaw star stopped the then pace-setting St. Louis Cardinals.

Slowly but surely he is taking up the slack left by the back-sliding of Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters and others of Cincinnati's pitching corps.

Investment Proves Sound

Kirby Higbe, the $100,000 question mark of Brooklyn Dodgers, also proved a good buy for the Ivestment in him was a sound one. He held Chicago Cubs to four hits and socked a double himself for two runs to help Max Wyatt gain relief, that won the game 4-1 and maintained Brooklyn's half game lead in the National League standings.

All things considered yesterday was quite a day for pitchers. Jesse Feller chalked up his fifth triumph as Cleveland Indians shut out Philadelphia Athletics 2-0. He allowed four hits, struck out 11 and for the second time in his entire career, did not issue a base on balls.

Warneke Wins Again

Lon Warneke kept St. Louis Cardinals in a challenging spot in the American circuit with a six-hit performance that beat Boston Braves 2-1.

Pittsburgh Pirates captured a doubleheader from New York Giants 5-4 and 4-3 with Max Butcher reaching all the way for both straight victory in the first game and Truman (Dip) Applegate shut out Philadelphia Athletics 2-0. He allowed four hits, struck out 11 and for the second time in his entire career, did not issue a base on balls.

Painful Warts On Soles of Feet Common

Warts are one an individual walking carefully, perhaps with one foot turned slightly outwards or inwards, or a slight limp. Not noticeable, it is due, in many cases, not to arthritis or to a fallen arch, but top one or more tiny warts buried deep in some sensitive spot. Only when cutting down on the callous that small reddish or brownish black dot may be seen. These dots are really tiny absolvesels.

It is now known that these plants that these tiny warts on the soles of the feet—plantar warts—are due to infection from a virus too small to be recognized, can live and be transmitted from one individual to another and one wart may cause the formation of one or more other warts on the same foot.

For the past few years radium and X-rays has been considered the best method of treatment. However, Drs. J. H. Marks and C. C. Franseen, Boston, in New England Journal of Medicine, state that while this is the best method of removal, there are some cases in which the after effects of this treatment are more serious than. In a series of 15 cases treated by X-rays, 10 showed a complete cure, 1 required removal of toe by surgery, 1 still had a remnant of the wart, and 3 failed to obtain a cure but were later cured by electricity which "dried up" the warts.

Of six patients treated by X-rays after failure by other methods, only one obtained satisfactory results, one had to have toe removed, and 3 required surgical treatment to obtain results.

Drs. Marks and Franseen outline the amount and method of using radium, because, in their opinion, over-dosage with radium or X-rays is responsible for poor results.

The method of treatment usually fails to cure the method should be discontinued." Electrocoagulation, when properly carried out, gives excellent results. The chance of late after effects and the certainty of sure removal of the wart if done under a local anaesthetic easily make up for the slight inconvenience involved. In the case in which radium has failed, electrocoagulation has undoubtedly aided in removing the wart.

The lesson for us then is that a plantar wart is really a "buried" wart and requires care in removal. Radium and X-rays are effective but overdosage is possible. Treatment by use of electricity under a local anaesthetic is method of choice when radium and X-rays have failed.

Painkilling and Fever Reducing Drugs in Home Treatment

When a patient is suffering intense pain and his temperature is found to be above normal, it might be thought that the physician should prescribe immediately some drug or drugs to relieve pain and reduce temperature. Why should a patient undergo severe pain when a painkilling drug will ease the pain and preserve his strength?

The pain is what the physician must investigate. He must find its exact location; whether it has shifted since it first started; what type of pain is present—dull, throbbing or what. Next, does pressure increase or decrease the pain; does the pain come and go or is it continuous?

It can thus be seen that if a painkilling drug is given before the physician has learned something about how the pain acts, he is not going to learn much about the cause of the pain.

This means, then, that when a physician is called, the fact that he wants to "ask a lot of questions" before relieving the pain, is only good sense.

The same may be said about the high temperature. Very often the family have discovered before sending for the physician. Knowing of certain drugs, such as aspirin, quinine, and others that will reduce temperature, they will be inclined to give one of these fever reducing drugs and, because the temperature comes down one or two degrees, feel that the patient is safe and there is no need to call the physician. Thus valuable time in learning the cause of the illness is lost.

As a matter of fact, this rise in temperature is Nature's way of fighting off the disease or infection. Today, antiphlogistine and other drugs are used to actually increase the temperature, the intention being to relieve the organisms causing the symptoms. Temperature is also raised by the aid of artificial heat in the form of electricity and by other methods.

The point, then, for a mothers who have the "thermometer habit" and give their children some temperature reducing drug when the slightest rise in temperature occurs, is to remember that the "fever" is helping the child to fight off the ailment. If temperature is high the physician should be consulted.

It would be well for us all to remember that.

BUSINESS LINERS

BABY CHICKS

ALL SIGNS POINT TO A GOOD poultry year. Be prepared. Ordering Bray May Harrison pullets now. Or June heavy breeds. Bray chicks are profitable chicks.

If you're in the mood for laughter (and who isn't, in these excitement-charged days?) hie yourself to the Capitol Theatre, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday and take a look at Utah Kennel's "Pals of the Pecos" and "Men Who Lost Himself". You'll find it is one of the hottest packages to hit town.

Built along farcical lines, "The Man Who Lose Himself" presents Brian Aherne and Kay Francis in the starring roles of a picture based upon H. DeVere Stacpoole's famous novel of the same name.

Aherne plays two roles, Evans and Scott. Evans is a sober business man, Scott is an eccentric rounder, man about-town and general playboy. Scott finds himself so involved with women, debts and other annoyances that he commits suicide, but not until he has installed Evans, who looks remarkably like him, in his own home.

In supporting roles are seen Henry Stephenson as the equally startled family attorney; S. Rankl as the bewildered butler; Nils Asther, Mrs. Scott's sympathetic admirer; Mary Lawrence as a blackmailer, and Dorothy Tree as Scott's exasperated fiancee.

"Dreaming Out Loud"

Bringing one of radio's favorite teams, Lum and Abner, to the screen in a timely dramatic comedy, RKO-Radio's "Dreaming Out Loud" comes to the Capitol Theatre along with "The Man Who Lost Himself". Featured in top roles with Lum and Abner in the story of life in Pine Ridge are Frances Langford, Frank Craven, Bobs Watson and Phil Harris. Also on the screen is a film for a patient, how young lovers find their happiness after a tragedy, how a death-driver is trapped all alone between life and death as only Lum and Abner could reasonably handle.

But there is the brand of humor, too, for which Lum and Abner are famous. Humor that has been provided by Abner with his "one man circle" and by the "one legged gentlemen" find time in their adventures to help the homesick small blues-provoking situations in a different way to count cops", "inventing a la Steven Holmes" and "a new way to wrap packages".

Frances Langford, in addition to her dramatic contribution as the pretty heroine, brings her voice to the title song, "Dreaming Out Loud".

On the same program will be shown a Popeye cartoon, "Eugene the Jeep".

AT THE BELLE

"Men of Boys Town"

For three years, ever since the release of "Boys Town", thousands of motion picture-goers have been in for a sequel to that fascinating true-life film, telling further tale of Father Flanagan's fight for homeless boys and now "Men of Boys Town", again starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooner, comes as the realization of anticipation, playing today for an engagement of four days-starting today.

It is a dramatic punchy, two-fisted story of Father Flanagan's battle against all forms of cruelty in the corrective treatment of youth. For Father Flanagan believes that there is no such thing as a bad boy, and has proved it in the Land of Little Men where there are neither bars nor locks.

The film tells of Father Flanagan's financial struggles, creating debts of $80,000 in debt to make room for the hundreds of boys who seek his help. But with the return of economy problems, he always has time to go to the aid of a boy who needs him. When Whitey is adopted by a wealthy theatrical family, he is accused of a misdemeanor when he tries to help another boy, Father Flanagan, always exerting to get his side of the story and expose the brutalities of a reform school.

Several parallel stories run through the film, one of a twenty-year-old boy murderer, another of a seven-year-old bandit, both of whom find haven and richly teaching under Father Flanagan's care. In the end Father Flanagan wins through, although it takes a miracle to do it, and the thrilling climax.

Director Norman Taurog and Producer John W. Considine, Jr., the makers of "Boy Town", brought the story to life on the screen from an original story by James K. McGuinness.

Heading the supporting cast again is Bobs Watson in his beloved role of Pee Wee, while other features players are Larry Munn, Darryl Hickman, Henry O'Neill, Mary Nash and Lee J. Cobb.

The Belle latest world news evening and a color fun cartoon, "Little Mole", will also be exhibited. Continuous shows will be presented today and Monday starting daily at 2.30.

Myrna Loy is suing for divorce in But don't misunderstand her. The kind of divorce that Miss Loy is seeking is a divorce from her. Book Publishing Co. of Montreal. Although she is spared the martial woes in her new picture with Clark Gable, "Too Hot to Handle", which opens Monday at the McCarthy Theatre.

"I have not wearied of the marriage roles but I have reached the decision that too many of them is detrimental to a motion picture career", declared the popular actress in a recent interview.

"It was the 'perfect wife' characterizations that saved me from near oblivion so I am very grateful for them. But there are not enough so many vampire roles that I thought it time I returned to play nothing else. Then Director W. S. Van Dyke made "The Thin Man" with William Powell and me, and I was saved from the vampires.

"As a diversion, I enjoy roles that permit me to be a little naughty and wicked, so when I came to me with Clarke Gable in "Too Hot to Handle" seemed me to be. In it I play a tempestuous, devil-may-care woman flier who enjoys a good fight and gives as good as she gets before the picture comes to an end".

"Bowery Boy"

Dennis O'Keefe, Jimmy Lydon and Louise Campbell are the first run hit "Bowery Boy" will also be seen in "Too Hot to Handle" due to the holiday on Monday the program will be changed and this feature will be in charge of children patrons during the entire afternoon.

740 Employees Remain on Strike

Toronto, June 6.—(CP)—A strike of 740 employees of two Canadian General Electric plants here remained in effect today while the strikers, members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, awaited word from a delegation of 12 that went to Ottawa to confer with government officials. The delegation will ask Federal Labor Minister Mitchell Hepburn to compel the company to enter direct negotiations with the Union.

The strikers, whose workers seek an increase of 10 cents an hour in wages and the right to be recognized as the sole bargaining agency.

Labor Minister McCarty yesterday declared that all labor disputes are required to submit their differences to a Board of Conciliation before calling out strikes that the workers decided at a mass meeting to continue the strike until these were guaranteed direct negotiations with the company.

K. Corkery, manager of the Ward Street plant of C.G.E., declares that a good number of workers returned to work today.

Honeymoon Gold

By Peggy Dern

CHAPTER EIGHT

"Blake!" said Markham in a voice that was none more than a whisper. "So he's back. It's come at last."

Mr. Markham is too tired to see anyone, and Burton firmly to the main. "Tell Mr. Blake he'll have to call for an appointment."

"No, no, Burton — I'll see Mr. Blake," said Mr. Markham, and now there was a faint tinge of color in his face.

"But, sir—I've called the doctor. I'm sure he wouldn't want you to exert yourself need to have to sir," pleaded Burton, anxious and uneasy.

Mr. Markham's smile was slight and there was a curious gleam in his eyes that Burton was to remember—afterwards.

"I'll have a nice long rest after I've seen Mr. Blake, Burton," he said. "A nice LONG rest."

Burton wheeled him unwillingly into the living room where Blake, almost gaspery well-tailored and well-groomed, but with a face dark with fury and eyes that burned with vengefulness, was waiting.

"Well, Blake," Mr. Markham said cordially, "back already? How was South America?"

"Very nice," said Blake shortly. And then to Burton, "You can go."

"Mr. Markham has had a trying day, sir," began Burton with spirit, properly resentful of an order given him by anybody except his beloved master.

"It's all right," said Mr. Markham gravely. "I'll ring if I need you."

"Yes, sir, and I'll bring Dr. Ennise in as soon as he gets here," said Burton, and went out.

Blake turned on Mr. Markham as the door closed, his voice thick with fury as he demanded:

"And now, Markham, what is all this I hear about the island? What is it you're trying to do there?"

Mr. Markham's expression was gently quizzical as he stared up at Blake's contorted, angry face.

"Why, what's so strange about it? I'm merely carrying out our plans for a real estate development there," he said gently. "There are five cottages, a comfortable guest house that will be adequate as a community club—"

"Don't stall!" Blake cut in savagely. "I know about the building, of course. We've kept me posted while I was away. But what the blazes is all this about the honeymoon couples and all that?"

Mr. Markham smiled. "Oh, that!" he said pleasantly. "That's a little publicity scheme I worked out to acquaint the public with the beauties of Halcyon Island and of its safe refuge for a honeymoon vacation—"

"Publicity!" snapped Blake. "You know darned well we don't want that sort of publicity."

Mr. Markham's smile was still gentle.

"Don't we, Blake?" he asked quietly.

FOR A LONG moment Blake stood glaring down at him, his hands knotted into hard fists, his eyes murderous. When he spoke at last his voice was low, controlled, but there was a deadly menace in it.

"Why, you old fool!" he exclaimed. "I actually believe you think that by giving the island a terrific amount of publicity and keeping it occupied by happy couples honeymooning there, you'll upset the plans that you and I have made!"

"Well, to be quite frank with you, Blake, I'm afraid I did have some such idea in mind," admitted Mr. Markham, and in that gentle, almost untroubled voice. "You'll have to admit that I'm going to be rather difficult for you to land a fortune in cash on the island and keep their presence there a secret until your boats can bring them into this country—while there are a dozen or more young people on the island."

Blake's powerful looking hands opened and closed convulsively for a moment before he nodded, and there was a white, angry line about his mouth.

"You've checked us," he acknowledged at last. "Mind you, you haven't STOPPED us. You've only CHECKED us. But you don't think for a moment that we're going to let you get away with it, do you?"

"Frankly, no," admitted Mr. Markham. "I have every reason to believe that you will arrange to have me destroyed as soon as you are certain of being able to do it without leaving any clues that will lead toward you and your men. I expected that when I made the plans. I'm quite prepared for some such action on your part."

"That's good. Then it won't be any surprise."

There was a knock at the door and Burton opened it to admit Dr. Ennise, short, stout, middle-aged, brisk and businesslike.

"Come in, Doctor," said Mr. Markham cheerfully. "This is Mr. Blake."

But Morton Blake didn't pause to acknowledge the introduction. He simply walked out of the room, and there was something about his manner that made the room seem dark with anger and hate and frustration.

"Friendly sort of cuss," commented Dr. Ennise in a queer sort of playmate for you, Jordan, my lad."

"A business associate — unfortunately," agreed Mr. Markham, and chuckled almost dryly.

In the morning when the maid came in to straighten the library, she found Mr. Markham dead in his chair. He'd been shot, once through the heart and again in the head. The pockets of his clothes were turned inside out; drawers of the desk had been opened and their contents disarranged, and a number of valuables were missing. It was quite obvious, the police agreed after an exhaustive examination of the premises, the work of a burglar, who, surprised at his job, had killed to silence the giving of the alarm.

The reading of Mr. Markham's will was an astonishing thing to a number of people. In addition to legacies for each of the faithful servants, bequests to a number of charities and to a few old friends, the rest of the estate was left to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Furman, as at present residents of Halcyon Island, on condition that that island was to be maintained as a honeymoon retreat under their guidance "until such time as the United States is no longer in danger of war or invasion either from within or from without."

It was that curious phrasing that aroused speculation. Of course the newspapers promptly "analyzed" that phrasing by pointing out that the location of the island made it quite valuable as a base for any enemy who wished to enter the country illegally; the smuggling of aliens, for instance, the newspapers pointed out, could be managed very readily from this point, and thus the island's present use as a honeymoon retreat was easily understandable.

But if this fact was pointed out by the papers, it seemed to Tom and Betsy a rather idiotic idea. They believed that Mr. Markham's designation of the island as a honeymoon retreat was simply a sentimental tribute to the girl with whom he himself had hoped to find memorial to the Nancy who occupy the place. A sort of perpetual loved him and whom he had lost.

Neither Tom nor Betsy could accustom themselves to the idea of being rich. In point of fact, Mr. Markham's estate, when it was finally settled, was smaller than had been expected; after all the bequests and legacies had been attended to, the estate would provide an income for the young Tom Furmans of between ten and fifteen thousand dollars a year. A sum that seemed small to some people, but to Tom and Betsy it seemed riches beyond their fondest dreams.

It had been Mr. Markham's wish that the plans for the honeymoon retreat go on uninterrupted, and so a few days after the funeral Tom and Betsy returned to the island to await the arrival of the first group of honeymooners.

"Something old and something new—" Mary Sutton chanted blithely and somebody laughed. A rather disagreeable laugh.

"Darling, don't be quaint," drawled a thin, acid voice. "The dear bride's entire trousseau is painfully new—and the groom is something old. Last year he was Ginny Marsh's beloved; six months ago he belonged, everybody thought, to Lucy Stevens — until the Stevens family lost its money, and he found a chance to tie himself up with Natalie's millions."

"Put up!" hissed a voice sharply as the door opened and Natalie came in.

Her bridesmaids were clustered about the room in their pastel-colored bridal finery; six of the prettiest girls of this and last year; girls in exquisite chiffon frocks, wide-brimmed hats, carrying great armfuls of roses and lilies — her bridesmaids! Her "closest friends!"

Natalie's soft red mouth thinned and curled a little in contempt, though there was a deep hurt in her eyes. But it was like Natalie to carry the unpleasant situation off with a laugh and a shrug, because it was the fashion in her crowd to pretend that nothing was important—not love nor marriage, nor pain nor heartbreak.

"It seemed to me I heard a faint, hurt sound as I came in," she drawled, looking straight at Harriet Kinsolo, who flushed darkly and would not meet her eyes. "Something about the old and the new. What's the matter, Harriet. Wouldn't Brooks go for you? What a shame! You surely tried hard enough, didn't you, darling?"

Harriet lifted her chin and her eyes were hostile, though her voice was brittle, insolent.

"But, darling, I couldn't afford him. You poor lamb, didn't you know that all along," she cooed sweetly. "A husband like Brooks is SUCH a responsibility—like a diamond bracelet. You simply have to keep an eye on him every moment."

"Well, of course—but then he's worth it, don't you think?" answered Natalie, and smiled, though her face felt stiff and she had a terrifying feeling that there were tears crowding behind her bright, amused eyes. She'd be disarmed for life if she dared to cry before these malicious, sophisticated women—her "friends!" She could have cheered at the thought. Friends! Laughing at her for a fool because she had lost to her by her husband because her beauty and charm and loyal had made no impression on Brooks — though the millions her father and grandfather had left her did!

"I wouldn't know," answered Harriet sweetly. "I knew I couldn't afford him, and I was wise enough not to let myself know him well enough to want him—"

"Then you've missed a lot," said Natalie, as sweetly. "Remind me to ask you for a week-end when we come back from Palm Beach, so you can get to know him better."

It wasn't clever, she knew. It wasn't smart. It wasn't the sort of "comeback" that would be repeated and lauded over long after she had departed. She'd come off second best in the encounter, and she knew it. But it had been the best she could do. Something deep within her—could it possibly be her heart? was she unfashionable enough to have anything so quaint!—hurt her desperately. She turned an almost sudden pain of relief when there came a knock at the door and word that the scene between Natalie and Brooks—at the entrance of the wedding party.

Eggs Recover Early Losses

Toronto, June 7—Quiet trading early in the week despite offers to shippers on grades A-large and A-medium spread ½ cent to 1 cent a dozen. Later these losses were more than recovered when market action quickened as dealers started storing supplies to meet fall export commitments. Two cars went forward for shipment overseas, while exports to Eastern points were normal. The week's arrivals of fresh receipts proved sufficient to fill all requirements.

Trading slackened toward week-end on the butter market, but Ontario prices held their ½-cent gain, although yesterday an easier undertone was evident. It was believed that the nine cities' report showing an increase on the first of June of nearly 2,000,000 pounds in stock holdings dulled the buying edge. Friday, Ontario No. 1 grade creamery solids moved stubbornly at 31½ cents a pound.

WOMAN GIVEN 6-MONTH TERM

Mrs. Olive B. Prouse, Former Call Relief Officer, Given Definite Term

Kitchener, Ont., June 7 (CP) — Mrs. Olive B. Prouse, former call-relief officer, Friday was sentenced to six months each on three charges of false pretences, to which she pleaded guilty, and on two charges of forgery on which she was found guilty by a jury yesterday. All terms to run concurrently. Two other charges of false pretences were withdrawn by the Crown.

In passing sentence, Judge T. M. Costello of Goderich, said there had been much said about the notoriety of the case and the "uproar caused in Galt and this locality."

"I am not concerned about that," he stated. "I am only concerned that you have admitted a series of serious offences. They were not committed in one moment of weakness; they were not an impulsive action, but I am sure if you had the last two years to live over you would not do it again."

Judge Costello stated he had given "very serious thought" to the fact that Mrs. Prouse is 32 years of age, recently married, and that her infant child must be cared for by relatives.

He said he could impose an indefinite term, a definite term, or a term and fine.

REVEALS SWEDEN'S TROUBLES

Prof. Ernest Cassler and Mrs. Cassler returned to New York on the mdership Remmaren, first Swedish ship to arrive in the U.S. in several months. He is to teach at Yale university. Passengers told of reports that 50,000 to 100,000 German troops were concentrated in Finland. Sweden, herself, was termed a bubbed of German-British explosive age. The country is suffering from a stringent food rationing and a shortage of coffee, tea and gasoline.

Dominion Gov't Prepared to Give Consideration to Any Joint Proposal

Ottawa, June 7 (CP)—The Dominion government today agreed to give "immediate consideration" to any joint proposal from the provinces that a conference be called to compose any differences between them and Ottawa.

In a telegram to Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario last night, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said that without general agreement among all the provinces on the desirability of holding another Dominion-Provincial meeting, a conference now might only accentuate differences raised at the last conference in January this year.

"Were such to be the case," Mr. King said, "it would certainly prove particularly rather than helpful to Canada's war effort.

"If however, the Premiers of the several provinces should unite in a request for another Dominion- Provincial conference, the Dominion government will be prepared to give immediate consideration to any such request."

There was no immediate reaction from the provincial capitals.

The January conference, called by the Federal government to consider implementation of the Rowell report, broke up suddenly after two days, before it began studying the Ilsley recommendations.

Mr. King said that from the ending of the January meeting until a telegram was received from Mr. Hepburn late Thursday the Dominion had received no suggestion for another conference.

He said there had been no evidence, so far as the Federal government was aware, of failure by any province to co-operate in Canada's war effort or to present a united front to the common enemy, "nor less the exception taken solely by the government of Ontario to the increased Federal tax upon income derived by foreign investors from provincial government bonds could be regarded as such."

This tax was increased from five to 15 per cent in Finance Minister Ilsley's April 29 budget, but a few days ago the increase was abandoned is relation to provincial securities.

Berries Sell For 30cts. Box On Local Mart

Fresh home-grown strawberries were still at a premium on the local produce market this morning despite the fact that initial offerings of the present spring crop were displayed on last Saturday's market. Again only a few vendors offered berries for sale, growers declaring that the season will be one of the shortest on record. One vendor stated that Friday's pickings was the first on his patch and if rain did not come next Monday's picking would be the last.

Thirty-five cents per box was asked by most vendors for berries although a few were to be obtained at 30c. At eleven o'clock, however, all supplies had been bought up by purchasers.

Prices for other lines of produce were essentially the same as those quoted last week with Grade "A" eggs selling at 23 to 25 cents, and at 20c and 30c for other grades. Butter was 32c per pound and fowl ranged at 26c per pound or slightly higher. Chickens were sold at 30c per pound and ranged all the way from 65c per pair to $1.50 per pair.

Transplanting stocks and flowers of almost of almost every description were also offered for sale on the outside market and at prices the same as those in the stores. Cabbages, rhubarb, onions sold at 5 cents per bunch, head lettuce at 15 cents or two bunches for 25 cents and asparagus at 15, 20 and 25 cents per bunch according to grade. Potatoes were 40 per bag and cooking apples were offered at 25 per bushel. Several vendors offered 5by apples at 5 cents per peck.

Lalo and Mallefish were the only kinds of fish offered on the market with vendors asking straight 25 cents per pound for both varieties.

Young porkers were fairly plentiful with prices ranging from $5 each to $7 each and 6½ cents per lb. for second age. With prices for finished hogs at Toronto remaining at the peak week or so, vendors claimed that young pigs would show a corresponding increase if it were not for the lack of rain which farmers say is now reflected in a small grain crop thisautumn.

SCHOOL HOLIDAY UNTIL TUES. NOON

Due to the fact that school children of the city will take part in the Victory Loan parade which is the Fair Grounds on Monday evening, Tuesday, June 10th will be observed as a half-holiday, members of the Board of Education announced at Cadet Corps inspection yesterday.

The pupils will parade to the Fair Grounds, arriving there at 6.15 where they will take their part in the ceremonies attending the arrival of the Victory Loan Train. day also will be observed as a full holiday.

Conservative Leader Speaks

Conservative House Leader Hanson and Mrs. Edgar D. Hardy, President of the National Council of Women of Canada, made broadcast addresses last night in support of the loan drive.

"I know that no slightest doubt but that this Victory Loan will be full subscribed," Mr. Hanson said, "but what I urge you to do is to do your part swiftly, cheerfully with a smile, so that a message of encouragement and more than that, so that tanks, and guns and planes and shells and ships will flow in increasing numbers across the Atlantic lane to the most valiant band of people God ever made."

Mrs. Hardy said Canadian women are ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with men in the war effort and "face a life stripped of all but sacrifice."

Many Large Subscriptions

Biggest subscription in a partial list of large subscribers issued up as the $10,000,000 order from Canadian Pacific Railway Company, first made public yesterday. Swift Canadian Co. Ltd. of Toronto and Dominion Interests and Distillers Corporation, Seagrams of Montreal, provided two $2,000,000 orders.

Here are sidelights from the campaign in Canada:

In Brockville, Ont., a canvasser left one home with $5,000 in actual cash, entering subscriptions for five members of the family.

Hudson, Ont., jumping-off place for airplanes in the northern mining district, has a population of 600 and an objective of $15,000. The town reached 378 per cent of its quota. Deloro reached 425 per cent, a record for Canada.

Chinese Enthusiastic

An elderly Vancouver Chinese had saved his money to go back to China but now will have to stay in Canada because he has put his savings into bonds.

The latest provincial totals available last night showed Quebec had subscribed $81,500,650 or 38.5 per cent of a $180,000,000 objective; Ontario $353,000,288; Prince Edward Island, more than one-third of a $1,500,000 objective; Manitoba $15,119,-000; Saskatchewan $14,400,000 of a $45,000,000 quota; and British Columbia between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 practically one-third of a $80,000,000 quota.

And these were the latest Ontario unit figures:—

Ontario—Toronto, $47,907,300 or 40.66 per cent; Ottawa, $6,005,950 or 20.9 per cent; Port William, 36.95 percent; St. Thomas, 30.87; Welland, 21.81; Brantford, 26.96; Owen Sound, 26.1; Sudbury, 36.3; Niagara Falls, 34.67; Woodstock, 24.58; Belleville, 23.5; St. Catharines, 20; Barrie, 17.3; London, 18.96; Galt, 12.02; Kitchener, 20; Matchewan 136.5; Peel 31.5; Normetal, 43; Amprior, 109.4 per cent.

Dies Recommends Action Against Communists

Washington, June 7 (AP)—Chairman Dies (D-Tex) of the House committee investigating un-American activities said today he would recommend that the committee ask the House to cite for contempt Earl Browder, former Communist party leader, and Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader.

Dies said he would make the recommendation because Browder refused to answer questions about his passport and Bridges refused to answer questions about his citizenship.

Inspecting Officer Widdis Pleased By Efficiency Shown by Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra School Cadet Corps

Parades of the cadet corps of Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra Schools Friday afternoon brought to a close the annual inspections of the corps of the city by Capt. Alain R. Widdis, inspecting officer for Military District No. 2, offered Widdis was pleased with the general efficiency of the ethire corps of the two schools and paid tribute to instructors and students as a whole.

Queen Mary School

"Your marching is excellent. I have seen many cadet corps but the marching of Number 2 platoon of this school surpasses anything I have seen. Your rifle drill was excellent with a precision and accuracy that was a treat to watch. Any instructor who can impart knowledge and training with wooden guns deserves the congratulations of both his corps and his school," Captain Widdis told the Queen Mary School. He paid tribute to the girls of the school, a large squad of whom appeared natilly attired in white uniforms and blue skirts and who with the cadet corps gave a fine exhibition of marching under under Mr. Harry Bates.

Display Marching and Drills

During the inspection the companies of the corps under Cadet Captain Arthur Casey gave a fine display of marching and drills. Company commanders, too, gave distilled their respective companies while a large crowd looked on. The Public Schools Band under Mr. Alfred Groves supplied music during the inspection.

Following the inspection brief addresses were given by Capt. Col. E. A. Geen and Carl Crosby representing the Board of Education. Col. Geen drew loud applause when he announced that the girls of the city would be given a half-holiday on Tuesday morning. Officers of the corps are: Cadet Captain Arthur Casey, company command, Bob Strachan; platoon commanders, Harry Wheeler, Bob Vaughan, Jack Dix.

The Strathcona Silver Medal for proficiency in drill was awarded to Cadet William Bryant by the inspecting officer.

Queen Alexandra School

Cadets of Queen Alexandra School were inspected shortly after the close of Friday afternoon and were the objects of many favorable comments from interested by-standers as they marched past the reviewing stand.

"I especially liked your marching," stated Captain Widdis, following the inspection as he spoke a few complimentary words to the cadets. "Your ability to pick up quickly what you have been taught and to apply yourself to the job at hand has been exemplified in the manner in which you conducted yourselves on the parade ground."

"Public"-school cadets are the "integrators of the army," Captain Widdis continued. "Old cadet corps in the past been given the enthusiastic support they deserve, the difficulty in recruiting for our active service forces would not be so obvious. The public schools are to be congratulated on the interest shown in cadet training and in their efforts to improve the scope and standard of training.

Advocates Signal Training

Referring to the school band which rendered martial music during the march past of the cadets, Captain Widdis said, "The encouragement given school bands is refreshing. They should be encouraged by all civic organizations." Mr. Alfred Groves, bandmaster for school cadet corps was advocated by the inspecting officer.

Members of the boys' and girls' cadet corps are to be congratulated on their prowess in physical training exercises as shown to the inspection of the cadets. The exercises were directed by Mr. George Donald Beavis, physical instructor under whose efforts the cadets have been trained. The inspection was attended by H. B. Petterly and by members of the Trustee Board, a half holiday for the children on Tuesday morning being announced following the review.

Following are the officers of Queen Alexandra School Cadet Corps

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT

Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The South African army whose arrival in Egypt is announced today is there under the southern Dominion's policy of contributing to the defence of any part of the Empire can continent. Fresh from their victory over the Italians in Ethiopia, the South Africans will bolster Gen. Wavell's army facing the Axis forces on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.

The time arrival of the South Africans in the Egyptian danger zone at this most critical juncture of the battle of the Mediterranean represents a triumph for the policy of the Union's Prime Minister, Gen. Jan Christiaan Smuts, who overcame formidable political obstacles to put South Africa in the war at the side of Britain.

When Italy entered the war in June the South Africans were ready to act in defence of their country and the Union forces moved north to Kenya, where they were placed under the command of Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham and the air force shared the facilities of the R.A.F.

Italy's offensive soon spent their force and in January, as soon as weather conditions were suitable, the counter-offensive began in earnest. Italian Somaliland, Eritrea, and Ethiopia were steadily overrun, and British Somaliland brought back under the Union Jack.

When German intervention in Libya placed a cloud over British successes in the Eastern Mediterranean, Gen. Smuts did not hesitate to pledge South Africa's full support in Egypt, and today his troops are there alongside the British and Anzac forces.

On May 24, his 71st birthday, Gen. Smuts was promoted by the King to the rank of Field Marshal in the British army, the first Dominion leader to be so honored. The modest Smuts, in announcing the promotion, said he was too old to change his name, but he could and would prove contin'e calling him General, the rank he achieved at the age of 30 as one of the Boer leaders in the South African war.

BRITISH AND FREE FRENCH DRIVE INTO SYRIA

U.S. ARMY TROOPS TAKE OVER AIRCRAFT FACTORY

Capital of Syria First Objective Of Two Columns

Invasion Intended To Forestall Nazi Domination of the Levant States and Oil Pipe Line

20,000 ENGAGED

Cairo, June 9—(AP)—Allied forces penetrating Syria and Lebanon have crossed the River Litani in the coastal sector where Beirut is the main objective, while deeper inland the advance has carried beyond a line between Ezraa, Sheikh, Miskine and Kuneitra, the Middle East Command announced today.

"The penetration of the allied forces in Syria is progresing", the communique said.

"By this morning they were beyond Tyre and later effected a crossing of the River Litani . . . on the right they had advanced beyond the general line Ezraa-Sheikh-Miskine-Kuneitra".

This line, at its deepest point—Kuneitra—is about 26 miles within Syria from the trans-Jordan frontier. In the west at the Jebel Ed Druz region.

London, June 9.— (CP)—British and Free French forces, with converts from the Vichy cause swelling their ranks, have captured age-old Tyre and have driven to a point about 50 miles from Damascus and Beirut, it was authoritatively reported today.

Reports from the fighting zone indicated Italian, as well as Germans, by the defenders of French-mandated Syria and Lebanon.

Those reports contrasted with a Beirut communique which claimed there was fierce resistance.)

In Cairo British headquarters announced the Royal Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force "gave continuous support to our troops".

The advance marked by capture of Tyre falls allied feet on the Lebanese Coast was that of the coastal column pointed toward Beirut. A part of this same sortie was reported to have entered the village of Meerdjayoun, just north of Tyre.

Tyre towns lie north of the Sea of Galilee, where Christ sought disciples among the lowly fishermen.

Meerdjayoun is about 40 miles southwest of Damascus and equidistant south of Beirut. Tyre is mid-way between Haifa, Palestine, and Beirut.

Close In on Capitals

Threading through some of civilization's oldest battlefields, where Saracen, and now fought Crusader, the Allied forces were closing in relentlessly on the two capitals, that of coastal Lebanon and Damascus of Inland Syria.

The progress of a force moving directly from Palestine through the forbidding hills of Jebel Ed Druz was uncertain since Vichy fast reported the troops had engaged it south of Soueida, 80 miles south of Damascus.

Little was known also of a third spearhead through up the valley of the Euphrates—from neighboring Iraq and pointed toward Deir-Ez-Zor important outpost nestled in

ESSEN, DORTMUND FEEL WEIGHT OF BRITISH RAIDERS

Operations Not on a Large Scale But Very Successful Says Communique

NAZIS ADMIT DAMAGE

London, June 9 —(CP)— The Royal Air Force achieved "successful results" during bombing operation over western Germany overnight, especially at Essen and Dortmund, the Air Ministry announced today.

(Nazi sources in Berlin acknowledged that the R.A.F. bombed several places in western and northwestern Germany and said damage was caused.)

An Air Ministry communique said that the operations, which were not on a large scale, were successful, especially at Essen and Dortmund, where large fires were started. All British aircraft returned to their bases.

The German air force made isolated forays into Britain overnight. Then raider killed a small number of persons in an attack on Bethnal Green, London. Inland there was scattered activity with few casualties. The government said one German plane was destroyed.

The Air Ministry news service said that in the attacks on Germany, factories, docks and railroads "up and down the Ruhr" were bombed.

The observer in one plane which bombed docks along the Dortmund-Ems canal was quoted as saying he could see fires a quarter of an hour after turning homeward and that there were "many other fires elsewhere in the Ruhr."

Rome Communique

Rome, June 9—(AP)—The daily Italian war bulletin said today that intense fighting is going on in the Cirilo Sidamo region of Ethiopa and artillery has been in action on both sides in a fight in the Gondar sector.

On the north African front Italian artillery was reported to have shelled two steamers entering the harbor at Tobruk, Libya, in an effort further to cut off besieged British forces there.

The communique said British bombers raided Bengasi, Derna and Tripoli.

Vichy's Army Fighting to Head off Allied Spearheads Aimed at Damascus And Beirut

PETAIN PROTESTS

(By Taylor Henry)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Vichy, France, June 8 (AP)—It was announced tonight that Vichy forces have blown up sections of the coastal road leading from Palestine through Acre and Tyre to the Lebanese capital, Beirut.

British naval squadrons which yesterday were reported to have lost a small landing party to prisoners on the coast south of Beirut, were said today to have anchored before Beirut and Tripoli but had not yet opened fire on the cities.

Tripoli, in northern Lebanon, is terminal of an oil pipeline from Iraq.

Negotiations on demands for surrender of the cities possibly were under way if British warships lay there.

Reports that sections of the Rayak-Beirut road had been blasted also were heard in Vichy's ambassy combined land and sea action south of Beirut.

The Vichy government chief, Marshal Petain, called for resistance against what he termed "profoundly unjust aggression".

Within 24 hours of the pre-dawn Sunday attack from British Palestine and trans-Jordan, Vichy delivered a formal protest to Britain. It was handed by Vichy's ambassador to Spain, Francois Pietri, to British Ambassador Sir Samuel Hoare in Madrid.

Denied British Contentions

Petain denied the British contentions the Nazis had made Syria a base for operations. In a message yesterday to his forces in Syria Petain asserted they knew there were no Nazi troops in Syria or Lebanon, and said:

"You then are the object of profoundly unjust aggression in the face of which we are resigned. It is only today that French Sovereignty in Syria is menaced for the first time. You can believe me."

He recalled other attacks on the French—at Dakar, French West Africa, and at Mers El Kebir, Algeria.

Canadians Will Not Take Torch Pledge as Empty Idle Gesture

As Canadians enthusiastically carry the Torch from city to city towards Winston Churchill, citizens by the hundreds of thousands are solemnly re-dedicating themselves to the task of providing the tools for which Mr. Churchill has asked.

Aloud, they are repeating, "I pledge myself and my all to hold the Torch on high, and to march shoulder to shoulder with the Motherland and the Empire in our righteous cause through Victory and enduring peace". These are not empty words. They constitute a promise to the millions of battered people in Great Britain and the horde of other liberty loving peoples in Europe whose necks feel the hobnailed heel of Hitler's boot, that we in Canada will leave nothing undone to slay the tyrant;

On us now rests the grave responsibility of fulfilling the spoken pledge. No selfish interest will bar the path of the honest Canadian as he goes to do his part in this Victory Loan campaign. That applies all the way from the man or woman who can scrape only enough for a $50.00 bond to the Corporation which can loan a cool million dollars.

Tonight at the Fair Grounds, thousands of residents of this city and district will reaffirm their loyalty to King and Empire by repeating the pledge. It should be no idle gesture. No mere lip-signs that are forgotten as soon as made....The pledge should come from the heart. We must realize that grave responsibility that the spoken pledge carries with it. And by realizing it, we must do more than just speak. We must act, and act now. Tomorrow may be too late. Wars and battles do not suffer postponement because someone procrastinates. Hitler, once he gives the order to march, does not stand in his way. A human life to the European tyrant means nothing, if it is a stepping stone to his achievements.

Your dollars are every dollar can be fighting stepping-stones to ultimate victory. But they are needed now. Canadians will once again rally to the call of Empire. And Canadians means Hastings County, too. Let us all put our shoulder to the wheel, and show with our dollars that Canada can and will do her share in ridding the world of the foul cancer that is eating at the very vitals of civilization. BUY THAT BOND . . . NOW.

ELEVEN LIVES LOST IN ONTARIO DURING WEEKEND

Four Killed in Highway Accidents, Three by Drowning and Two by Falls

(By The Canadian Press)

Eleven lives were lost over the week-end in Ontario, four in highway accidents, three by drowning, two by falls, two by fire and two by accidents.

Mortimer Clarke, 53, of Norval, was killed yesterday when he attempted to jump on the left running board of a truck and fell beneath the wheels, four miles south of Norval.

Peter Slobodian, 33-year-old Oshawa, Ont., section hand was killed instantly Saturday night when struck by a light train while walking on the Guelph-Rockwood highway at the five-year-old son of Aiken of St. Catharines died in hospital Sunday of injuries received an hour before when hit by a car driven by W. J. Moran of St. Catharines.

Twenty-six-year-old Alfred Moore of Powassan, died in hospital yesterday from injuries suffered Saturday when the car in which he was riding was involved in a collision with a tractor on the road between Perry Sound and Nobel.

Two of the drowning fatalities occurred in Eastern Ontario and the other in the north. Lloyd Carr, 19-year-old son of the province-wide "fatal bombing" said" as the city prepared for a blackout tonight.

The committee, in its list of individual subscriptions, listed one of $100,000 by Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, Limited of Montreal.

George W. Skinner, Chairman of the Loan's Dominion Executive, announced last night that 23,227 individual investors subscribed during the campaign's first week for $276,-

HALF OBJECTIVE OF VICTORY LOAN TO BE RAISED

$276,222,800 Subscribed in First Week Not Counting Large Conversion Issue

254,237 INVESTORS

Ottawa, June 9 (CP)—The 1941 $600,000,000 Victory Loan Campaign started its second week today, away to a flying start of $276,222,800 in investment by the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada at Waterloo, Ont., the National Loan Headquarters announced.

The second week started with a little more than half of the objective—$323,777,200—still to be raised.

Other large over-the-week-end subscriptions announced by the Loan Committee this morning were $100,000 by the National Life Assurance Company of Canada, Toronto and $1,000,000 by the Dominion Tar and Chemical Company, Montreal.

Among the larger cities on which the committee reported today were Winnipeg with total subscriptions of $19,311,000 or 81 per cent of its quota and Brandon, Man., with 41 per cent or $238,700. Hull, Que., had $162,000 or 23 per cent.

Montreal during the week-end saw the biggest parade in its history. The parade inaugurated a province-wide "fratel bombing" said" as the city prepared for a blackout tonight.

The committee, in its list of individual subscriptions, listed one of $100,000 by Hollinger Consolidat-

TWO ARE KILLED WHEN RCAF PLANE HITS BOATHOUSE

Believed One of the Plane's Occupants Also Killed in Accident

HITS HYDRO WIRES

Kingston, Ont., June 9 —(CP)— James Free, 55, and his grandson, Harold Beamish, 12, of Oshawa, were killed today when a plane believed to be from the Royal Air Force training centre here crashed through several boathouses at nearby Seeley's Bay. It is believed that one of the plane's occupants also was killed.

H. Dryan, Seeley's Bay resident, said he saw the plane come in low, strike some hydro wires and crash through the boat boathouses at the end of the lake.

Free, who was a guide and carpenter, was found in his boat inside the boathouse with his grandson, who had been visiting him since last December. They were said to have been instantly killed.

After crashing through the boathouse the plane hit the shore and wreckage was strewn on the docks and on the shore. No trace was immediately seen of any of the occupants.

2 DESTROYERS, CRUISER LOST

British Admiralty Announces Losses During Evacuation of Crete

London, June 9 (CP)—Loss of the anti-aircraft cruiser Calcutta and the destroyers Hereward and Imperial during the evacuation of Crete was announced tonight by the Admiralty.

The Calcutta was a 4,200-ton ship with a complement of 400 men; the Imperial was 1,360 tons and the Hereward 1,340 tons, each carrying normally about 145 men.

The Admiralty communique said the Hereward was last seen heading toward the coast after having been damaged by an Axis air attack. It added that the Italian high command had announced 229 survivors from the ships had been landed and were prisoners of war.

(During the evacuation 16,850 troopers carried many more than their normal crews.)

The communique said the commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet had reported that "when the operation of evacuation from Crete was completed just under 17,0'0 men had been taken off the island."

The Imperial, the Admiralty said in its report, had rescued nearly the British fires after heavy damage by Axis bombers.

The communique brought Britain's casualties in the battle of Crete to four cruisers and six destroyers, making the total losses in the Mediterranean campaign to seven nine cruisers and 49 destroyers.

The other cruisers lost in the Cretan campaign were the Gloucester, Fiji and York and the other destroyers Juno, Greyhound, Kelly and Kashmir.

Take Strike Bound Plant on Orders Of the President

Tear Gas Bombs Hurled as Some of 12,000 Men Tried to Enter Plant to Resume Work

WORKERS CHEER TROOPS

Los Angeles, June 9 (AP)—Three thousand United States troops, bayonets drawn, and carrying machine guns, took over the strike-bound North American Aviation plant today under presidential proclamation after two riots in which tear gas bombs were hurled between police and a C.I.O. picket line, 1,000 strong.

Sir persons were taken to hospital after flying bricks from the pickets and workers who tried to enter the plant. Strikers generally yielded as troops of the 15th Infantry advanced on the big plant factory in long skirmish lines, but one who stood his ground was battered and taken to a hospital.

The soldiers moved in a short time after fighting broke out and tear gas bombs were hurled as some of the 12,000 men tried to enter the plant in response to a government request to resume production of war planes at the plant.

A convoy of fifty trucks, loaded with troops, moved down Redondo Boulevard in front of the plant.

The troops were greeted with cheers by the lines of workers across the road from the plant main entrance, who had been prevented from entering by the picket lines.

Army control of the huge plant, which has a backlog of $200,000,000 in plane orders, came five days after the workers struck, demanding a minimum wage of 75 cents an hour and an increase of ten cents an hour for all workers now paid 70 cents an hour.

Action Follows Ultimatum

Today's action followed an ultimatum by the President that the army would take over the plant unless the men returned to work this morning. The strikers, however, remained firm in their demands, despite the presidential statement and the requests of their own C.I.O. Council Leaders for them to resume work.

In taking over the plant, Lt. Col. Charles D. Barrows, C.O. of the Western District office of the Army Air Corps, issued a statement saying:

"My instructions from Washington are to take immediately all steps necessary to protect workmen desiring to enter and leave, entering the plant and in their homes, and to place such other additional measures as may be needed in the interests of National Defence.

Will Be Opened For Work

"Effective immediately the plant will be opened for work under government control. Employees desiring to return to their jobs will be given protection necessary to insure free and safe entrance to and exit from the factory.

"Civil and military authorities are giving full co-operation to the extent that they have been ordered."

TWO MORE NAZI SUPPLY SHIPS SUNK BY NAVY

Ships Were to be Used For Supplying Battleship Bismarck Says Admiralty

SEARCH FOR CRUISER

London, June 9.— (CP) — The Admiralty announced today that two more supply ships for the German battleship Bismarck had been sunk, making a total of five supply ships and a tanker sent to the bottom in operations following the battleship's sinking.

The Admiralty said that as soon as it was learned the Bismarck was loose on a raiding expedition, a search was organized for the auxiliaries without which the battleship would have been unable to continue its activities for any extended period.

"These operations have been successful", the Admiralty said in announcing the further toll of supply ships.

No word has been given out as to the search for the cruiser Prinz Eugen, which accompanied the Bismarck and escaped when the battleship was engaged by the British fleet.

Menace of Nazi Subs Says Ketterng

By EDWIN STOUT

Cleveland, June 9 (AP)—Charles F. Kettering, a leading American inventor predicted today that German submarines would be driven from the seas by development of a device to catch them on the surface at night.

The engineering genius who gave the automobile industry the self-starter and a score of other inventions predicted a "device that the anti-submarine device would be completed and in operation "within a reasonable time."

"We have been working with the navy for six years," he said, referring to General Motors research division, which he heads. "It's not going to be too hard to beat the sub."

Kettering also said that the problem of interception of night bombers "is being greatly improved by the detection devices "now in production."

He did not indicate whether the devices are being improved to the extent that they would guide fighter planes to German bombers in their three to moonlight or not. Detectors now in use in Britain are said by observers to direct pilots to within several thousand feet of enemy planes, "depending on the darkness or light conditions."

Explaining his work of combatting submarines, Kettering said it was the province of German U-boats to "come to the surface to recharge their batteries and then wait in the path of a ship in the position and course of which had been reported by their listening devices.

"When the convoy comes along the submarine moves right with it," he said. "It sinks the ships nearest from the nearest ship and can't be seen. Then, just at daybreak, it submerges to cover the coming tower and makes its attack. After it puts torpedoes into several ships it executes destroyers are too busy rescuing people in the water to stop it from getting away.

"All you have to do is locate him when he's on the surface at night and you've got him. Detectors will find him when he's under water."

The device, he said, "is not going to be too hard to beat the sub."

British Deery Gibraltar Bombed

Gibraltar, June 9 —(AP)— Authoritative sources denied today that Italian High Command claims that Gibraltar had been bombed by Italian planes June 5.

Dispatches from Algeciras, Spain, across the bay from Gibraltar, said unidentified aircraft dropped bombs on Estepona, Spanish town 25 miles from Gibraltar, twice, that night, causing casualties and damage to private buildings.

Hotbed of British Patriotism Located in Heart of S. Germany

By ANGUS THUERMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ravensburg, Germany, June 9 (AP)—There is a hotbed of British patriotism here in the heart of southern Germany.

Here, within this little walled town 330 British women and six children are interned for the duration of the war.

They are living in a former jail building on the grounds of a convent of a German order of Catholic nuns.

Some have been in internment at various places in the British campaign late in 1939—but thru'out the camp the spirit of "thumbs up" prevails.

The women were brought here from Belgium, The Netherlands, Poland and parts of the Reich itself—arrested by the German police. The internees range from girls of five to women over 65. Some have been quarantined in the camp for a month because of scarlet fever.

One girl taught Netherland officers how to ride horses. Two sisters are Princess Irene and Elizabeth Bibesco, daughters of Princess Asquith and Prince Antoine Bibesco of Roumania.

Among the internees are film singers and dancers who had been entertaining at continental clubs.

Some of them, too, are Mary Booth, grand-daughter of the famous Salvation Army leader. She was taken into custody on a battleship in the Mediterranean she was calling for her charges.

In the camp, in the beautiful Wurttemberg Hill country, with the Alps visible on the distance, Miss Oliva Paquin of Montreal, said:

"Yes, they treat us okay, but I sure would like to get out."

Asked what the worst annoyance is, she answered: "Men, women, women. When I get out I don't ever want to see one again."

PROVINCIAL POLICE GET NEW UNIFORMS

Ontario Provincial Police constables, stationed at No. 8 district headquarters in Belleville, Inspector F. Gardner, at Belleville, appeared in their new summer uniforms for the day for the first time. The new issue of O.P.P. uniforms for summer wear consists of open-neck tables with lapels and a cap with gray banded top. The coat conforms are of a blue-grey coloring, somewhat similar to those used by the New York State Troopers.

HIP IS INJURED WHEN HIT BY CAR

While repairing a tire directly inside the main doors of a Pinnacle St. service station early today, J. E. (Ted) Gartley, 36, of 171 Pinnacle Street, was struck by a motor car entering the premises and sustained serious injuries. Gartley was removed to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from an injured hip and bruises. He was attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk, who ordered an X-ray of the right hip bone.

The motor car was driven by Miss Ella McWilliams, of Corbyville, who was about to turn into the service station doorway as her view was blocked by a large motor transport that had been refuelled with petrol. Miss McWilliams assured Sergeant Lawrence Bowen, investigating, that her car was up-on Gartley, who was leaning over repairing a tire, before she saw him. The large transport obscured her view, the woman added.

WAR VETERANS ASKED TO USE DOOR

War veterans are asked to fall in at the Dundas Street entrance to the Pair Grounds to "Get in Step with Service" at the "Green Light" at the Pair Grounds commencing at six o'clock this evening. Bill Ford of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Ont. 201, announced today. All Veterans, whether they are members of the local branch of the A. & N. Veterans or not are asked to join the parade. Berets and medals are to be worn.

HIGH WIND PLAYS HAVOC WITH VICTORY LOAN DECORATIONS

The strong wind which assumed almost gale proportions in the Belleville district on Sunday caused a bit of inconvenience to owners of stores and other buildings where decorations had been erected in connection with the current Victory Loan Campaign. In several instances large streamers hanging on the face of buildings were torn loose and this morning were seen hanging loosely in the breeze. The local fire department received emergency calls to replace the streamers in their former positions.

TAG DAY NETS $205 FOR BOYS' CAMP

A sum of $205 was realized as the results of the tag day on Saturday which was sponsored by the local Y.M.C.A. as part of their goodwill tour of Ontario. They will be accompanied by representatives of the reporters and the entire party will commence their journey eight people.

The cavalcade of newspapermen and women will leave Brighton on the that date and will pass through Belleville on the way to Stirling-borough where an elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged.

Owing to the fact that City Hall officials here were holidaying today it was not possible for the cavalcade will do otherwise than temporarily halt in Belleville.

FIRST COMMUNION AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Fifty-seven boys and girls from St. Michael's Academy and a number of students from the Ontario School for the Deaf received their first Holy Communion at St. Michael's Church on the Sunday morning at eight-thirty Mass. The sanctuary and choir loft were beautifully adorned with white and pink peonies for the occasion. The children's choir also rendered several during Mass. Rt. Rev. J. F. Whidden, D.D., spoke to the children on the significance of this day in their lives in the afternoon and the children were enrolled in the Scapulars. The children received their first repeated by Carol Frechette and Garry Schrieber. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament concluded devotions for the day.

GASOLINE TANK ON CAR PUNCTURED

Two motor accidents, of an identical nature, occurred on Pinnacle Street Saturday when motor vehicles were struck from behind, as the lead vehicles were halted by congestions.

A gasoline tank on a motor car driven by Purill Howes, Corbyville, was punctured when another automobile being driven southerly and following Pinnacle Street with the rear of the lead car. The second motor car was driven by Lester Chambers, of Picton, P. C. Thomson investigated and reported damages had occurred. Howes was not in possession of his driver's permit.

Shortly later and also on Pinnacle Street a similar accident occurred when a motor car driven by Gil Leagler, Toronto, collided with the rear of a light truck driven by James Mackey, of Kent. The latter driver having stopped at the Bridge Street intersection Leagler collided into the rear of the truck. Here the only damage resulting was to Mr. Leagler's car, the fenders and headlights being dented badly.

Eight Young Men Ordained At Final Conference Service

Bridge Street United Church Crowded for Impressive Religious Rite

ORDINATION SERMON

A congregation of fifteen hundred worshippers filled Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning for the impressive ordination service conducted by Rev. W. E. Fletcher, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada as eight candidates for the United Church having completed their course of theological training and other requirements were received into the ministry. Every available seat in the main auditorium and gallery were filled.

The strength of the United Church in this section was demonstrated by the large number of worshippers who had come from Belleville and rural churches in the Belleville district. There were hundreds of visiting members in attendance.

Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church extended the hospitality of the congregation and for the commissioning of Paul and Barnabas to the work of the Church. Acts, their setting apart for their divine mission and stated that those ordained were to be "Christ's ambassadors extraordinary of Jesus Christ" and not as ambassadors ordinary, all witness for the power of God.

Meditation self-Discipline. He spoke of the value of prayer, meditation and self-discipline.

Referring to the outside world of ceaseless endeavour, which keeps enervating in its constant action, he pleaded for women to bear in the divine love and urged that "we should never be ceasing because of the world about us." He pleaded for the preservation of the sense of wonder and expectation "as we dwell in this new century and we should keep our souls open to every indication of God," as nature, Rev. Mr. Fletcher declared, is in the rush of everyday life it is very easy to lose the sense of wonder for reading and reflection. He remarked that the world of pop and life of our forefathers who surely had more time than we do. He pleaded not for bookishness but for the acquisition through study and reading of that which will bring a sane philosophy of life.

Rev. Mr. Fletcher has come after the revolt against Puritanism. He said that "it is not the monastic conception of life", but the conception which sees the outer extreme and sometimes people step aside under the influences of indulgence of many kinds.

Britons Praised For Steadfastness

He paid a glowing tribute recently to the steadfastness of the British people. "The need of the present hour is for rigorous self-discipline. If we are to win we must go back to the little island across the Atlantic which is the hope of the world, people scorn leniency and indulgence not only of the body but also Mrs. Herod's mind. Rev. Mr. Fletcher left for the greater glory of us and the conference were gone.

"The world is exceedingly sensitive to character," he said, "and not to the ordinands. "We must, first of all, be right in the midst of men souls and keep it continually under subjection."

The preacher told of the supreme joy of having individuals "find in my heart a friend, and also the joy and shadow of a great rock in a weary land." He also an example. That I covet for yo: in the life of prayer and self-discipline."

"We have the example of the Master. We identify have expressed His grace and sacrifice. All His life was an outpouring of conviction that grace film unique among the children of men. He not only uttered certain divine principles but He believed that which He uttered.

"We shall become resurrected with Him and be the salt of others with great power."

Mr. Cliff held up the ideal "to be not by myself but by the power of Him."

"If that is done nothing will remain undone in the return to God's vineyard," said, the preacher in conclusion.

Impressive Ceremony

In the solemn order of service set forth by the General Council of the United Church for ordination, candidates to the ministry the president of the conference was assisted by Rev. W. Cliff, of Kingston Rev. Dr. James Semple, Belleville, Rev. G. C. B. Mcquade, Almonte, Rev. J. A. Glover, Rev. J. G. McKee, Chairman of the Belleville Presbytery, Rev. J. F. Plant, Norman, Rev. W. J. Fedlis, Kingston, Rev. W. B. Thompson, Kingston, Rev. H. L. Partridge, Bearbrook, Rev. H. E. Hills, Little Britain. Rev. N. E. Honey, Rev. J. J. Black, B.A., B.D., during Pinnacle Street, disappeared from the family Peterboro, Rev. David Gray, Rev. States.

Roy Rickard, Rev. Mr. Sterling Shannonville and Rev. James E. Beckel.

With the solemnity characteristic of all religious functions performed in accordance with such a court of the church, the high purpose and calling undertaken by each of these young men were even more impressive as the large congregation waited in silence, heard the charge read and the sacred vows given. The ordinands were Rev. Lloyd Keith Cronk, B.A., B.D., Victor Henry Piddes, B.A., B.D., Ernest Carr, Byron Street, David Charles Osborn, B.A., William Wallace Patterson, Rev. Gerald Wilson Payne, B.A., Oscar Eric Wagar, B.A., Gordon A. A. Bridge.

Special music by the large choir added greatly to the impressive service which will long be remembered all that present.

On Sunday evening a Young People's service was held in Bridge St. Church with a sermon delivered by the Rev. W. B. Hall, B.A. The three Belleville congregations combined in this service at Bridge Street and a number of ministers of the conference took part in the service, which was the religious ceremony in connection with the close of the conference.

Rev. Dr. Semple Chairman of Settlement Com.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple, minister of Bridge Street United Church, is the chairman of the Settlement Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference for the year 1941. Rev. Cecil Smith of Bellmore is secretary, names of these two appointees were wrongly given in Saturday's issue in the report on the Settlement Committee.

Small Boy Decamps With Two-Dollar Bill

James Pine, Codrington, was partaking of a meal in a local Greenview restaurant on Saturday evening when a small urchin who approached his table and sought to purchase a confection for a five cent magazine. Pine looked at the apparent small urchin and he also agreed to purchase the magazine and presented a $2.00 bill in payment, as he had no small change.

The lad readily agreed to get the proper change and started on his way to the front of the restaurant and clutching the bill firmly in his hand. However, the lad either is still small change for the "up and spot", or just plain made off with the money, as he did not return to the Pine premises in Codrington to city police.

"I've always heard two dollar bills were unlucky," was his only comment.

Loses Purse

Mrs. Mildred Herod, 136 Patricia Street, Oshawa, told police she had inadvertently left her purse in the washroom in a local restaurant. Later when she missed the handbag Mrs. Herod returned to the store and picions were confirmed—the purse and $50 odd contents were gone.

Groceries Left By Mistake

Mrs. K. Barrige, 312 Pinnacle St. reported to police over the week-end that two parcels of groceries had been left by mistake on her front door. Mrs. Barrige took the groceries into the house after the store on Saturday night and reported the matter to police.

Several Arrested Drunks

Several drunks ran afoul of the law over the week-end and were taken into custody. As today is a statutory holiday, in observance of the King's Birthday, no session of city police court was held. The men apprehended for alleged violations of the L.C.A. will apear in Tuesday's court. Chief Kidd revealed after reporting upon the police activities of the week-end.

Got His Goat!

Somebody's got William Fulton's goat, and that's not literally speaking either.

Sometime over the week-end a three-months-old goat, the property of William Fulton, 29 Bleecker front yard, disappeared from the premises, Mr. Fulton added.

MAY VISIT PRESIDENT

London, June 9 (CP)—It was reported reliably today that Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands have accepted an invitation from President Roosevelt to spend a day at the White House during their visit to the United States.

Oshawa Times Publishes Special Edition Despite Composing-room Strike

Oshawa, Ont., June 9.—(CP)—The Oshawa Times, whose composing-room employees have been on strike since June 2, will publish a special Victory Loan edition today, Times officials said.

It was reported that there have been no negotiations between the company and the men on strike, and that there has been no effort toward mediation or arbitration of the differences between the Non-Union members of the printing trade now employed by the Times and dresses by Union leaders and dismiss organization.

Thirty-seven have left their work demanding a new agreement with the Oshawa Printing Pressmen's Publishing Co., p.c. The Rotary Printing Co., two related published firms.

"Million Dollar Rain Welcomed In this District

What is said to be a "million-dollar rain" fell over this immediate district early Sunday morning during and following one of the heaviest storms of the year.

Heralded by a sudden downpour which lasted for a short time and with unusual severity directly over the city, the torrid lightning illuminated drenched streets and thunder echoed in staccato fashion as the storm moved northward in an easterly direction.

Thereafter the deluge. Rain fell steadily in a heavy downpour for many hours and today the lawns are turning parched gardens and lawns in the rural part of Sidney district are to hay and grainfields of this particular district.

According to reports from outlying districts, the city bore the brunt of the rain storm, Frankford, Corbyville and other immediate communities in the Trenton area north of the city, however, received little there, but the storm apparently were itself out over the city.

In Ameliasburgh township, northern parts of Prince Edward County were hit by the storm experienced while in South Bay and other points in that part of the southern county only a few drops fell, according to visitors in the city yesterday.

Tweed District Benefited

Reports from the northern part of the county reveal that no rain fell in Madoc township and district north of that village, but Tweed benefited by Mr. Harry Wilson's dairy which had originated when the motor backfired. The owner was traversed to put the fire out with the aid of a motor rug which was in the car, but was unsuccessful in his efforts to smother the flames. With the exception of the motor rug and a few wires under the hood, no damage to the car was suffered, it was reported by firemen.

Victory Loan Objective Nears One Million Mark

Off to a slow start despite the fact that large sums by individuals and organizations in the Victory Loan Campaign certain up with a bang, the drive is slowly gaining momentum and today the Campaign Thermometer marks the amount of $880,960 or nearly one-half of the objective for Hastings County. This amount is the total subscribed up to Saturday night.

The gradual upswing in subscriptions is apparent throughout the county and officials are confident that by tonight the million dollar mark will be reached in the county.

Canvassers are gradually getting into their stride, although the work of some of the fifty-five men who are covering the county has already been outstanding.

Small Purchaser Important

Many purchasers of small bonds bought to-day are important in a cosmopolitan section of the county. Large organizations and industrial concerns have been and wealthy individuals have mingled their subscriptions with those in the lower income brackets. Behind the sales of the fifty-dollar bond are many stories of human interest and here lies the secret of the success of the campaign, officials feel. It is the small purchaser that will be one of the main contributing factors in sending the loan over the top.

An Investment

Many purchasers are not aware of the fact, according to canvassers, that they are buying and simply a loan. Each investment is a direct loan to the government and as one man remarked, there is always a good market for them. Stories of human interest are here also to obtain as was the first, official Victory Loan call today by urging canvassers and the general one of the main contributing factors in sending the loan over the top.

FRUIT-A-TIVES

HAYING HARVEST NOW GENERAL

Dry box winds, and the lack of rain during the month of May have hurried the hay harvest along, operations having commenced several days earlier this year than in normal season. Several farmers in the district began cutting their alfalfa early last week and in some cases the hay has been cut and drawn to the barns. Near the last week's rain, however, a number of the crop was cut and left in the fields to dry out. Some farmers, however, are of the opinion that the rain has done more good than harm, as it has softened the ground and will make the cutting of the second crop easier.

Wallbridge — The June meeting of the L.A. and W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Edgar Lane on Wednesday, June 4th, with a good attendance of members and visitors. Among the visitors friends were very glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Johnson of Douglas, Ont. Rev. Mr. Johnson was a former pastor here and those who were present at the meeting were very glad to see him again. Mrs. E. Lloyd of Belleville and Mrs. W. Holmes of Stone Church were also present.

The L.A. meeting was opened with the president, Mrs. L. Badgely presiding. The opening hymn was 270 followed by repetition of the Lord's Prayer in unison. The Treasurer's Report was given by Mrs. Fred Phillips. During the business discussion Mrs. Hancock was appointed to oversee the decoration of the church for a Masonic service to be held there on Sunday afternoon, June 30th.

Owing to ill health Mrs. Badgely is not able to act as President and Mrs. P. Shorey was chosen to act in Mrs. Badgely's place for the next two meetings and Mrs. Jas. Sine for the September and October meetings. The meeting was closed by singing and the Mizpah Benediction.

The W.M.S. meeting led by Mrs. R. Elliott was opened by singing and repetition of the Apostle's Creed followed by short prayers by the members of Group 4 who were present and also by Mrs. Elliott. Mrs. Elliott then read a very appropriate poem which was followed by a worship service read responsively. At the next meeting each member is to answer the roll call by telling something that has helped her in some religious service. In the absence of the secretary and treasurer, their reports were not given. A reading on Mohammedanism was given by Mrs. W. Sine which was followed by Hymn 353. Mrs. Elliott gave a reading "The Rural Woman, the Church and the Community," pointing out the many ways in which women can help the church and the community both spiritually and socially. Each community has its own problems and the women have a mission field right at their doors in ministering to these needs. The meeting closed with singing and prayer.

Gore

Gore.—The Sectional Rally of the Presbyterial of the United Church was held at Centre Church on Thursday with a splendid attendance. Dinner was served at the noon hour by members of Centre, Victoria and Redneredale W.M.S.

Rain is greatly needed in this district.

Roslin

Roslin—The June meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at Mrs. Norman Alexander's home with an attendance of 11.

The meeting was directed by the vice-president, Mrs. Arthur Bates, and was opened with the singing of a hymn. Rev. P. C. Beazer led the devotional period. Mrs. W. Clapsaddle read the portion of Scripture, the 23rd psalm. Plans were made for a quilting in the hall.

Mrs. Slingerland was leader for the programme. Mrs. Clapsaddle read a poem "Gardens." Rev. Mr. Beazer sang a solo. Several hymns were sung and the meeting closed with the Benediction.

Dr. H. E. Welsh and Mrs. Welsh and Rev. P. C. Beazer and Mrs. Beazer attended the funeral service for the late Canon T. Austin Smith which was held in Trenton on Monday.

Miss Marion Fargey, nurse-in-training at Belleville Hospital, is spending her vacation with her parents Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Fargey.

The Ladies' Guild of Moneypore held a quilting at the home of Mrs. Clarence Carleton on Thursday.

The district annual meeting of the Women's Institute held at Roslin on Wednesday was well attended. Over 60 were present at the dinner in the church hall furnished by the ladies of the Roslin branch.

BILL IS ENDORSED

Washington, June 9 (AP)—State Department endorsement of the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway was announced Saturday by Chairman J. J. Mansfield of the House of Representatives Rivers and Harbors Committee, who made public a letter from Secretary Cordell Hull.

Mansfield had written Hull, asking his opinion of a bill to authorize the development. Hull replied that "I am in full accord with the proposed legislation, and I trust that the bill will receive prompt and favorable consideration."

HOLDS HIGH THE TORCH!

Over there is turmoil—the shock, the soul-searing agony of the worst war in World History.

For a long time, every wave that has reached our shores has brought a plea for help from our race and our kin across the seas. These people have said to us: "We cannot share your safety and comfort, will you help us to endure and conquer?"

And Canada has responded nobly. We have sent thousands of men to defend our civilization. We are training more men in tens of thousands. We have invested eagerly in War Bonds and War Savings Certificates. Our money has built great industries —to turn out planes and ships and munitions of war that cost staggering sums.

We have lent our money gladly, and we shall go on and on, realizing that no effort we can make can equal that of those who are bearing the full brunt of the war. We shall accept every call for additional funds as an opportunity to do our part in saving lives, in hastening victory.

We shall gladly forego, for a little while, some of the comforts and luxuries that are ours, to the end that Canada's part in this battle for freedom and Christianity may be a glorious part.

Canada holds high the torch!

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD

The late Sir John A. Macdonald who has been dead for fifty years lives as a great influence upon the course of Canada. On Saturday tribute was paid to his memory at Kingston as the first Prime Minister of confederated Canada and as one who had done much to weld together the various provinces of the Dominion at a time when there was dissension of all kinds. This man was destined to direct the destiny of Canada not only for long years as prime minister but to leave so indelible an impress upon the country that Canada as a national unit is what it is to a large extent as Macdonald and the great men of Confederation days made it.

A man of many qualities of greatness, Sir John A. Macdonald was a great statesman. What most marked him out perhaps was his great faith in and his vision of the Canada to be. This was associated with a most remarkable gift for leadership, backed up by many qualities, a strong will, tact, the gift of oratory, wit and humor, political sagacity and patience.

Fifty years after his death he remains before the Canadian people as one of the greatest men Canada has had. Seventy-five years ago was a time when Canada sorely needed the welding genius of men like Macdonald. Out of the turmoil came this Dominion.

Today Canadians feel just as Macdonald felt when he uttered the memorable words, "A British subject I was born, A British subject I will die." He realized the great democratic principle which is British civilization, he fought to govern freedom in meant to the British peoples and what an example it was to other nations and a benefit to the world. It is a long time since the voice of that great orator was heard but those words he uttered so long ago ring as if they were made in this very day and age:

"Under the folds of the Union Jack we enjoy the most ample liberty to govern ourselves as we will, and at the same time we participate in the advantages which flow from association with the mightiest empire the world has ever seen."

That great empire which Sir John knew is now the world's hope.

LYING NAZI RUMORS

The Germany which declares it has no ulterior motives with respect to the Western Hemisphere, is the nation whose propaganda bureau causes to be spread lying rumors in the United States to the effect Britain is talking peace.

On Friday President Roosevelt charged that a certain propaganda agency in Berlin had given orders, not to people in Germany but to Nazi sympathizers in the United States to spread these false rumors. Mr. Roosevelt stated that there was "not even the tenth cousin of a peace offer or anything like that or any other discussion of peace." He scored some persons and newspapers for becoming dupes for the unfounded propaganda ordered from Berlin.

The President has the documents in proof of his charge.

This is the Germany which manufactures lies at will and as needed to suit her evil designs. When Germany has needed some excuse for an invasion and aggression she manufactures it out of whole cloth.

The Hitler or the Goebbels way does not understand democracy. These Germans are foolish to think that they can so draw the United States away from defence and from increasing aid and co-operation with Britain. So long the world has known the sinister quality of the acts of Hitler and his machine in their battle for world domination that the world knows this is a piece of plot to lull the United States into a sense or feeling of security and so make it more easy for the Hun to set up the German empire on a basis of world domination of races and of economics and industry.

The British world and the free world feel grateful to the President of the United States for his watchfulness and outspokedness. He has never feared to face Hitler and denounce him and aggression.

Mr. Roosevelt has directly charged the German Propaganda Bureau with engineering this plot of lies and false rumors to be spread by Nazi sympathizers in the United States and has exposed their tricks.

OURSELVES AND THERS...

BY Goodfellow

WITHIN the dignity of Shire Hall upon which many grand old men of the county who loyally administered its business in the days when highways were beaten paths, the automobile was a dream of the future, and the greater part of the district was the primitive forest, look down, the Hastings County Council will hold its important June session this week.

THERE thirty-one men, representative of the cities, towns, villages and rural districts of the far-flung county, their work intensified by the fact that the county, Dominion and Empire are fighting the greatest menace to civilization the world has ever known, will once more conduct the business of a district which is one of the wealthiest in Ontario.

THERE thirty-one men will administer the money of the taxpayers of this county. There in the shadow of such outstanding ex-wardens as Billa Flint, E. D. O'Flynn, A. F. Wood, W. R. Aylesworth, H. G. Bleecker, W. H. Nugent, Peter MacLaren, and others, they will, as their predecessors did, discuss the pros and cons of rural government. They will argue "on the floor." They will discuss important matters in the ante-rooms. They will state their opinions on matters that are vital to the county with an ability and knowledge of what they are saying and doing with the aptitude of men of higher governing bodies.

THEIR opinions will differ. But from the melting pot of argument and verbal difference will emerge a whole that will be not only of benefit to the municipalities but to the county as a whole.

THE Council is a cosmopolitan organization. Horny-handed sons of agriculture from the rocky wooded fastnesses, will rub shoulders, perhaps, with doctors, business men, executives from other parts of the county. Their vocation makes no difference. They will gather for one purpose, and that is for the betterment of the county and the people who live in it.

SINCE its inception in 1863, the County Council of Hastings has been outstanding in its administration of the county affairs, and bears a proud reputation to this effect in the province. That the men down through the years have handled the county's business with an ability and skill that has been worthy of emulation in other counties, is seen in the fact that Hastings County today enjoys the name of being one of the richest communities in Ontario.

AND that has not come about entirely through the wealth of its resources. Administration of its affairs by highly capable men has been one of the main contributing factors. These men have been carefully selected by the electorate, and their work in their own municipal councils is reflected in that of the county. They are men of vision and foresight, who readily see the needs of communities of the county other than their own, and in realizing them generously lend their support, knowing that the county as a whole will benefit.

NEARLY all of them are scions of the pioneer families of the district, whose forebears hewed a living out of the forest. They come by their knowledge of the county's needs through actual realization and experience rather than by reading and hearsay. That they will, as did the former councils, maintain Hastings County's ideals and her well-being, goes without saying. Other forms of government would do well to study the methods of Hastings County Council.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 9th, 1921

Two citizens crossing the lower bridge last night about nine o'clock intended to do a public service, but messed things up a bit. The gas lamp on the south side of the bridge was not burning and one citizen shot up to light it. At the railing the second break occurred as the lamp itself broke loose and fell in the river; the standard remained upon the walk. The citizens reported the matter to the police. This morning Manager Marden of the Gas Company took some helpful fish ed the damaged lamp from the river.

No Hostile Intentions

A sensational, world-shaking, unique piece of news broke this week through John Cudahy, former American Ambassador to Belgium. The news is that Hitler has no hostile intentions against the United States.

Hitler uttered these words in the room that has now come to be known all over the world as the 2-has-no-hostile-intentions room. It is the same room in which he had no hostile intentions toward Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Holland, Norway and Britain. We have become very familiar with this room and I wonder if the priorities are not declared against table talk that left about it, the glass window and the Alps. In fact, I wonder what news it reveals.

I also wonder what answers Mr. Cudahy received to the questions he asked.

But I expect Hitler to say, "Yes, of course, I have hostile intentions toward the United States. I am a great friend and ally. Mussolini has remarked, all my friends are your's."

Let's pretend that Hitler had been really chummy with Mr. Cudahy. He might then have said:

"Your question, Mr. Cudahy, is a very old-fashioned one, and indicates that you know nothing of the modern technique of war and revolution. I have, of course, already invaded the United States. I began investing it as early as ten years ago, when I sent my first agents over to begin organizing cells of German descent. I organized them region by region, along an exact model of the National Socialist Party in Germany. My agents have established contacts with all the frustrated individuals and groups leading or attempting to lead anti-Jewish mass movements. These people are furnished with funds, and with immense amounts of propaganda.

"They, in turn, in Cudahy, I spend about eight million dollars a year for subversive activities in my foreign service. This is much cheaper than sending in an army of two hundred thousand men, and very much easier. This propaganda does not attempt to make direct Nazis of Americans approve of Nazi ideas. You have only to observe the success of this respect. It is designed to influence the outcome in any international politics, and by dividing you to make it impossible for you ever effectively to resist me.

"Since I signed up with Stalin, I have made enormous strides in your country, because the collaboration between us is universal. I inherited from Stalin, for instance, a remarkable system of espionage, all cells inside your most important trade unions. With the Nazi cells that my agents have created among the men of German descent in America, and Communist cells with which they are now collaborating, I am in a position to control your defense industries.

"Stalin and I together, for instance, called the Allis-Chalmers strike. It was just dress rehearsal for what we intend to do once we have gotten Britain off our hands. There has got to be a new order, you know—a new order for the world—and Germany must have security. We cannot tolerate that a great and powerful country like yours should remain a standing challenge to the National Socialist Weltanschauung. But I should not dream of sending an army across three thousand miles of ocean to attempt to invade you. I shall, on the contrary, see to it that I am invited to come, bringing merely an honor guard with me, to be welcomed on the White House steps by a President who will have already switched the United States into line.

"I, Mr. Cudahy, never do anything myself that I can get others to do for me. Taking Americans from inside will not be at all difficult once Britain is finished. First of all, you will have to trade either with me or with Japan, or with both. There will be no trouble else left to trade with. Japan may say that our policies will be mutually co-ordinated, in peace as in war, so you will have to trade with us on our terms.

"But I do not see why you should worry about this. As my agents have already explained to a great number of Intelligent Americans who have flattered with open letters to me, I manage large amounts of surplus agricultural products, such trade could be very profitable for the United States, especially for those interests which actively will collaboration with me. We would, of course, favor those firms that will further our policies. We would not wish them to advertise in any newspapers that criticized Nazi ideas. We would want to do something to say about their Boards of Directors. That's fair enough, isn't it?

"And, of course, since business and work and government are all very closely integrated in the United States it would be absolutely necessary for you to have a government satisfactory to me.

"I cannot understand why I have constantly been forced to make war, greatly against my will, merely because misled people have insisted on governments of their own choosing. If only Britain would have let me pick its government, there would have been no war, Mr. Cudahy. Is that not a very small price to pay for peace?

"Everything I do, Mr. Cudahy, I do for peace. If you have read my book, you will recall that I made perfectly clear the only way that peace will ever come to this suffering planet, I said, 'The pacifist humane ideal must be a very good one if first one man had made himself master of the world.'

"I am undertaking a great work of liberation. For instance, Cudahy, I think I like Roosevelt. India. I am sure that he will bring it a great and modern culture. I have openly offered Canada to the United States and if you will put into office a government satisfactory to me, I am willing to give peace over Mexico and Central America. Of course your policies will have to coincide with mine at every point.

"But don't worry about invasion, Mr. Cudahy. My people are there already. I did not send them. I found them. All that you need by new leadership.

"But don't quote me, Mr. Cudahy, in your articles. We could not stock interview. The one entitled, 'No Hostile Intentions' is enough."

LIFE'S STORY

Mothers and daughters, fathers and sons:
This is life's story and here's how it runs:
First chubby babies and then children small;
The hope of the parents wrapped up in them all.

What is the dreaming, and what is the plan
What is the best that can come to a man?
Fortune and glory, high honor and fame?
No, it's a son adding pride to his name.

What is it mothers world over desire?
Rubies and diamonds and silken attire?
No, if their secret ambition be told,
'Tis that their daughters shall all marry well.

Place and position and wisdom to learn
Turn at last homeward and ever they yearn.
Here is life's story and here's how it runs:
Mothers and daughters and fathers and sons.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

THE MID DLE EAST

The spread of the war eastward in recent weeks has attracted attention to those parts of the globe commonly known as the Middle East, the Near East, and the Levant.

In official British usage the Middle East is applied to a vast region in southern and particularly southwestern lying between Constantinople and the borders of China.

For some purpose even Egypt is included in the Middle East.

Near East, on the other hand, is a popular term and is also a generally applied rather loosely to a large geographical region in southeastern Europe, southwestern Asia and northeastern Africa.

Frequently mentioned, the Near East comprises Turkey in Europe, Asia Minor, Armenia, Georgia, Azerbaijan, the South Russian Republics, Syria, Palestine, Iraq, Iraq, Trans-Jordania, some of the islands in the Mediterranean and often Arabia, Egypt, Greece, Bulgaria and Albania.

Levant is a generic name for the eastern Mediterranean countries from Egypt to Greece, but pertains largely to the Greek and Syria.

The term is derived from the participial form of Latin "levare," meaning "to raise," and figuratively "sunrising" or the Orient.

Sometimes the Levant is the region washed by the eastern part of the Mediterranean and the contiguous waters, but occasionally it is applied to the entire East.

In the 16th and 17th centuries the Far East was known as the High Levant.

Throughout the Mediterranean region the east wind frequently is called the Levant wind and the west wind the Ponent wind, the latter being derived from Latin "ponere," to set, and referring to the setting sun or the Occident."

Mediterranean is derived from two Latin words meaning "middle" and "land" and the name dates back to the time when western civilization was largely restricted to the lands bordering on that sea.

Likewise "Mesopotamia is from two Greek words meaning "land between two rivers" and alludes to the territory lying between the Euphrates and Tigres rivers when that region was the centre of the ancient Babylonian and Assyrian empires.

Barbary or Barbary Coast, probably named from the Berbers, is a general name of the Moslem countries on the northern African coast, especially Egypt.

Notice to Water Users

The increased industrial activity and larger population in our city has necessitated greater quantities of water to be purified.

During the last seven days the amount of water passing through the purification plant has been greater by an average of 10,000 gallons per day over that in 1940. In the month of April 1941 it was six million gallons more than in 1940, and in the month of May it was ten million gallons more.

The Commission does not think it advisable to increase the plant at this time.

The plant records show that one of the reasons for the increase is that the consumers are using the water for lawn and garden sprinkling at other than the appointed times.

It would be unfortunate if it is necessary to take consumers to court to make them comply with the law, but it is unfair when some consumers observe the law and others do not.

It is the intention of the Commission to see that the hours for use are lived up to and consumers not failing will be dealt with.

Your co-operation would be appreciated and if you know of any water net keeping within the hours we would appreciate you reporting to this office.

The Hours of Use are

7 a.m. to 9 a.m.

and

6 p.m. to 8.30 p.m.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME.

VICTORY LOAN Highlights

The Loan thermometer today reached the $250,000 mark, but it expected to take a decided rise over the weekend . . . Hastings County, aside from the village that broke all Dominion records for subscriptions, is off to a fine start . . . Only one person in every one hundred has subscribed thus far to the Loan . . . This county is second from the bottom in the 46 counties tabulated . . . The Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company is the first organization in the city to go "over the top" in its employee quota . . . Practically every Chinese—in the city has bought a bond, establishing a mark for their white cousins to shoot at . . . Subscriptions amounting to generous figures have been coming in, and will be announced at a later date . . . Fred Lewis, canvasser, stated that the Chinese population of the city accorded him a welcome that native Canadians will have to go all out to beat.

One person in every fifty-eight have subscribed to the Loan in Prince Edward County. . . . From other parts of the country come reports that villages and towns are exceeding their quotas. . . . While it is expected that Hastings will go over the top, officials urge all Canvassers to redouble their efforts and put this county in its rightful place near the top of the Loan League. . . . A lady in this county when approached by a canvasser, after him that she had paid all her available cash to the family physician who had performed his last few minutes prior to the canvasser's arrival. The quick-thinking canvasser lost no time in seeing the physician, with the result that the "doc" invested the entire amount in bonds. . . . The City of Belleville has signified its intention of subscribing to the loan and will do so as soon as the necessary arrangements have been made.

Four British Officers Escorted Back to Frontier by French

Jerusalem, June 9 (CP)—Four British officers crossed the desert frontier into Syria in armored motor buses from the British-Free French move, it was disclosed here last night.

They were escorted politely by French troops back to the frontier after being given a cordial welcome.

"Bring more of your men into Syria," one of frontier guards said jokingly.

A few hours later the invitation literally was accepted.

While the general public for days had been expecting a march into Syria the actual move was well concealed.

News of the advance became known publicly only after the troops were well on their way.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at his paper and ma was looking at the evening. I see old Cyrus V. Kilpshaw has had another birthday. He's supposed to of made 5 million dollers out of Kilpshaw county dung, dung, dung. As usual all the reporters gathered at his house and asked him every inconceivable subject and as usual he had an answer ready for every one. I bet that time when he thought the world will be at peace again, and he told them that he will continue to fight as long as he's got commanding officer duties as a medium of exchange, he said.

Why should that old boss be existing, perfectly content all that's the world awe more than anybody else? pop said, and ma said, well, isn't it perfectly natural for a man who could make all that money out of an insatiable thirsty like soap should have a many sided mind?

It's natural that his mind should have as many sides as a bar of soap pop said, and ma said, O yes, I suppose you are right. But still those questions just as glibbly. Just listen to some of them, they're a varied as day and night. What will happen to gold if the demiracozies are beaten? How important are vitamins? Will mankind be extinguished by extreme cold or by a collision of the planets. What is the west influence in modern education? No doubt you can answer all those on the tip of your tongue, ma said.

Well naturally, pop said, if the democracies are beaten gold earth will again become so popular that a crowd of 5000 people all smiling at once in this bright sunlight will be visible for 2 miles. Vitamins are less important than duckless glands but more important than athlete's foot. The worst influence in modern education is a certain brighten attitute lords liver and onions, and mankind will be extinguished by foolish questions, he said. Being the end of the subject.

Russian-German Relations Not Good Stockholm Reports

London, June 9 (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Stockholm said yesterday the Berlin correspondent of the Social Demokraten had cabled that Swedish newspaper that "evidently something has gone wrong with Russian-German negotiations."

The correspondent was quoted as saying German political circles are betraying anxious interest in the flight of the British ambassador, Sir Stafford Cripps, from Moscow to London to make a report to his government.

A Reuters dispatch from Ankara said Saturday that German troops were moving from Bulgaria in Moldavia, the eastern province of Rumania, and taking up positions along the Russian frontier.

A Hungarian radio report, heard in New York by NBC, said considerable railway traffic in Rumania had been cancelled due to the "necessary transport of goods" not arriving on railroads leading the Black Sea port of Constanta but also into Moldavia.

The radio said Rumania was taking unusual military measures, especially in Moldavia, where troops were being mobilized and air raid shelters built.

AT THE BELLE

"Men of Boys Town"

"Men or Boys Town" coming three years after the notable screen achievement of "Boys Town" was worth waiting for. No, it isn't a sequel, because this drama stands on its own merits as one of the most dynamic, heart-warming entertainments of the season, the new picture, again starring Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney, opened Saturday at the Belle Theatre.

An Academy Award winner for his performance of Father Edward J. Flanagan, the first story of the priest's city of Little Men, Tracy is once more at his very best, which is the best there is in acting. He cloaks his difficult role with gentle simplicity, but behind it is the strength and power of his two-fisted-ness when he fights against brutality to corrective treatment of boys.

The story is woven around Father Flanagan's increasing financial problems as he expands his care for the increasing hundreds of boys who appeal to him for aid. But such troubles mean nothing to him when a boy needs him. Tracy is best pushed for honors by Rooney as Whitey Marsh, Mayor of Boys Town, now more mature, who has become Father Flanagan's right hand.

The film reaches its stirring climax when Whitey is adopted by wealthy people, gets into the hands of the law when he tries to help a boy criminal, and is sent to a reform school. Father Flanagan's bringing to light the true state of affairs provides suspense, excitement and dramatic impact.

Director Norman Taurog's hand is evident in the work done by two boys, Larry Nunn as Ted Marsh, a crippled boy who murders a reform school guard and is placed in Father Flanagan's custody, and seven-year-old Darryl Hickman as Pip, a bandit.

The Belle latest world news, with "Little Mice" a color attraction.

"The Man Who Lost Himself"

Brian Aherne plays two entirely dissimilar roles in Universal's new and hilarious comedy, "The Man Who Lost Himself", tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre.

Aherne, who co-stars with Kay Francis, is seen as a young Sydney man involved in scandal heavily in debt and estranged from his wife in one of the roles. In the other, he is the exact opposite, an honest, temperate business man.

The comedy situations arise when Aherne, as the young business man, awakens after a night of carousing, to find himself installed in the penthouse apartment he is unable to convince anyone, including the latter's wife, that he is who he says and not whom they insist he is.

"Dreaming Out Loud"

In "Dreaming Out Loud" on the same program Lum and Abner display, in the screen their characterizations of the two kindly, grandfatherly storekeepers of Pine Ridge, Frances Langford plays "Alice", the young and charming postmistress of the sleepy, little town. Frank Craven as "Doc Wiley", the town's only physician, has a son "Ken", played by Robert Wilcox, who is in love with the postmistress. Boss Watson as the young brother of the postmaster, tempts Ken's ne'er-do-well, Clara Blandick as the dictatorial aunt, and Donald Meek as a scheming young attorney furnish an outstanding supporting cast.

This program tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday includes a new Popeye cartoon, "Eugene the Jeep".

"Strawberry Blonde"

The Capitol Theatre's new picture, scheduled to open on Thursday, is "The Strawberry Blonde", with a triple line-up of stars headed by James Cagney. With him are Olivia de Havilland and Rita Hayworth, and an all-comedy featured cast, all of whom conspire to whisk us back to the gay days when women was a girl and "modern bikes were all the fuge. Audiences who have previewed the picture have reported that "The Strawberry Blonde" hits the comedy peak of the season.

Russia Speeding Construction of "The Stalin Line"

Geneva, June 9 (AP)—The Tribune De Geneve, in a dispatch from Helsinki, Finland, said yesterday that Russia has speeded up construction of the "Stalin Line," a series of defences extending from the Gulf of Finland to the Black Sea.

The same paper, in a dispatch from Moscow, reported a series of Red army manoeuvres and added that peasants of the Ukraine, White Russia, and especially those from the former Polish territory, are being transferred to Siberia.

A dispatch from Riga said that a number of Latvian factories were being removed to the Soviet proper.

Nova Scotia Miners Return to Work

Sydney Mines, N.S., June 9 (CP) —Miners of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company's Princess Colliery, on strike since last Tuesday, decided to return to work for at least three days.

A meeting of the pit's United Mine Workers of America Local instructed that the miners work for three days and that the men after that should determine the next move.

It was decided, too, that the men would abandon their "curtailment production" policy for the working days. Up to the time of the strike, the Princess miners, with others in Cape Breton, had been engaged in a slowdown movement to emphasize demands for higher pay.

The strike itself was called because of a dispute over underground timbering operations.

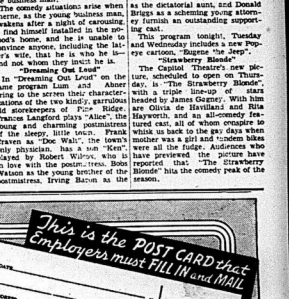
They'll Do It Every Time— By Jimmy Hatlo



The first duty of every employer is to register by filling in and sending the official Postcard to the Unemployment Insurance Commission through his local Post Office. A form containing the postcard has been mailed to employers. If you have not received one, apply to the nearest Post Office.

Contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund are payable from July 1st, 1941.

Contributions are made by the purchase of Unemployment Insurance Stamps by the employer from the Post Office.

These stamps must be affixed to a special book issued by the Commission, for each employee, which is called "The Insurance Book."

The employee's share of the contributions will be deducted from the employee's wages by the employer, who adds his share, using a stamp for the total contribution.

The Dominion Government adds 20% to the combined employer-employee contribution, and in addition, pays the administration costs.

If you desire any further information please seek it early through your Postmaster—because compliance with the Canadian Unemployment Insurance Act is compulsory.

Employers must complete registration prior to June 14th, 1941.

Dress Features Cape Sleeves

Pattern 4778

By ANNE ADAMS

This very slenderizing, mature-lady frock predicts a "fair and cooler" summer for its wearer! Everything about Pattern 4778 by Anne Adams accents the new cool look so important this year. Most outstanding feature is that popular cape sleeve that plays up the new natural shoulders and that lets all the breezes. So graceful and feminine! If you prefer a real sleeve, a scallop-edged version is included. Notice how gay and flattering the rounded neckline looks, especially "with a prim little bunch of posies just below it. The two full-length inserts in the front and the back of this delightful dress make you seem taller; slimmer, and seams slant in at the hips to give a youthfully waisted effect.

Pattern 4778 is available in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 36, cape sleeve dress, takes 3 3-8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to The Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 106 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

June Weddings

REID—VITLER

A pretty wedding took place on Thursday evening, at seven o'clock, when Marjorie Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Vitler, Thurlow, became the bride of Phillip Fletcher Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Reid, Front Road. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. D. Harrison at his residence, William Street.

The bride wore a charming frock of sky blue lace with white accessories and corsage of pink roses. Her sister, Miss Beatrice Vitler, was bridesmaid wearing dusty rose with corsage of pale pink roses. Mr. Clifford Reid, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the bride's home which was lovely with pink and white peonies and irises. Mrs. Vitler, in powder blue crepe with corsage of roses and Mrs. Reid in black and white figured crepe with corsage of roses received the guests.

Later the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a rose suit and hat with white accessories. Upon their return they will reside on the Front Road.

GARDINER—WARDHAUGH

A very pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Michael's Rectory, Saturday, June 7, 1941, when Miss Edna Wardhaugh, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wardhaugh became the bride of Edward Gardiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Gardiner, of 180 James Street, Belleville.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father C. E. Baker. The bride looked charming in a street length dress of brown lace with white accessories with corsage of yellow roses.

Miss Erwin Wardhaugh, the groom's sister, as matron of honor, wore street length dress of wine sheer with white accessories. She wore a corsage of cream roses. Mr. Edwin Wardhaugh, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

The groom's mother looked charming in wine crepe dress with black accessories.

Immediately after the wedding a buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch. The gift to the matron of honor was a silver tea set. The young couple will reside in Belleville.

HERRINGTON—FIDDICK

Miss Iva Miss Fiddick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Fiddick of Brighton, and Mr. Edward Maurice Herrington, Hilton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Herrington of Brighton, were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. C. A. Anderson officiated and Mrs. H. Ireland played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a frock of robin's-egg blue crepe with white turban, and carried pink roses. Miss S. Fiindall, her attendant, was gowned in pink triple sheer, with pink turban and bouquet of American Beauty roses. Mr. D. Little was groomsman. After a reception at the White House, the couple will leave on a trip and will live in Hilton.

McGRIMMON—CURRY

A quiet, but lovely wedding took place in Christ Church on Friday morning, June 6th, at 11.30 a.m., when Mary Phoebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Curry, became the bride of Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. McGrimmon, both of Belleville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Wright in the presence of immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The bride was attired in powder blue lace with white accessories. Her corsage was pink and white carnations. Miss Milleen Curry was her sister's bridesmaid. She wore dusky rose crepe with white accessories and corsage of sweet pea. Mr. Wilson Tanner was groomsman.

After a buffet luncheon served at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left amid a shower of rice and confetti for a honeymoon in Smith's Falls. On their return they will reside in Trenton.

GARDNER—GROVES

A beautiful June wedding took place at Christ Church at two-thirty o'clock on Saturday afternoon when Alice Caithrine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Groves, Isabel Street, became the bride of Thomas Donavon Sargent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sargent, Highland Avenue. Rev. G. Wright officiating. The church was lovely with a profusion of peonies.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in her gown of white slitfinished marquisette embroidered with tiny bows, over white satin. Fashioned in flowing lines, the skirt ended with a slight train effect. The gown had long fitted sleeves, finished in points over the wrist, and sweetheart neckline. Her chapel veil fell from a picturesque Mary Stuart headdress edged with lilies of the valley. The bride's only ornament was a pearl necklace and she carried Sweetheart roses and bouvardia.

Miss Marjorie McLean, as bridesmaid, was gowned in a floor length frock of pale pink net, with inserts of matching lace. She wore a picture hat in the same soft tone and carried Colonial bouquet of Briarcliffe roses, pink sweet peas and forget-me-nots. Mr. George Edwards was groomsman and Mr. Arthur Groves, brother of the bride, was usher.

Mr. George Mayhew presided at the organ for wedding music and during the signing of the register played "Moonlight and Roses" and "Moonlight Madonna."

A reception was held at the Country Club after the ceremony. Mrs. Groves in Queen's blue crepe with lace, Bower hat with touches of wine and corsage of Talisman roses and Mrs. Sargent wearing rosewood sheer with delft blue picture hat and corsage of dark red roses, received.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a Bulova wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a pale pink heart shaped enamel compact with her name inscribed thereon, to the best man a pen and pencil set, and to the ushers gold cuff links.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Sargent left on a motor trip, by motor, to western cities, the bride donning for travelling an aqua blue and white printed crepe dress, jacket, white draped turban and white accessories. Upon their return they will take up residence at 179A Charles Street.

DAMPERD—BARRIAGE

A pretty wedding took place at St. Michael's at eight o'clock on Saturday morning, June 7th, when Lucy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Barriage, became the bride of Alva Damperd, Foxboro. Rev. T. T. Dainerd and the late Mrs. Dainerd were married by Rev. C. E. Baker.

The bride wore a smart ensemble of maroon crepe with matching hat and white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Clifford Smith was matron of honor, wearing a costume of white and blue, with white corsage. Mr. Clifford Smith was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. E. Preston, Sanford Street.

The bride's table was most attractive with its centrepiece of roses and carnations. The bride and groom were the recipients of many lovely gifts. They will reside in Belleville.

Mend Your Facial Manners

By HELEN POLLETT

IT IS surprising what a woman can do with her face to express opinions she can assume. Suppose you say yourself "Is that one that shows good mental weather? Is it smooth and calm?"

Embittered women lug around embittered faces. Contact with the presence is depressing. We steer clear of them. Have enough worries and disappointments of our own, thank you. Courageous women look brave; they are an inspiration to others.

One type who should mend her facial manners is the one who looks around with a sickly, half baked smile. There are a lot of this type. They are victims of dire tolerating you, waiting for you to get out of their sight. Not flattering. Then there is the type of lady who is always looking in the nearest mirror, even when she is talking to you. Likes herself pretty well, huh?

There are women with faces so radiant when they see you that they catch your breath. You realize that you are beholding beauty even though the features may be plain. Those women are kindly, sympathetic, friendly; they love their fellow human beings.

Sophisticated Young Things assume the bored look, which makes them appear pretty much as well tuckered out and does not woo admiration. There are those who carry a fixed expression of surprise, causing wrinkles to form across their foreheads.

It is a good idea for the woman with tense muscles to rest her face by laving with hot water, then massaging in some cream and covering the flesh with an ice cold moist compress.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

SLOWNESS IN BEGINNING TO WALK NOT SURE SIGN CHILD IS ABNORMAL.

I have a letter from a grandmother who is very much disturbed because her grandchild, an apparently healthy baby of twenty months, can't walk unaided and cannot say a single word. However, the child seems to understand what is said to it.

It seems like an extraordinary case because the child has never been ill; hasn't even had a cold, in fact. She is well formed, has all the teeth a child of her age should have.

The grandmother seems to have worked herself into a distressed state of mind, because she is convinced her grandchildlike is suffering from a birth injury.

Well, I haven't seen the child and a diagnosis by mail is not possible. But from the description the grandmother has given of the baby, I'd be willing to bet that the child just happens to be slow about doing certain things and that one day she will suddenly begin to walk and talk and will soon overtake in proficiency other babies who had these talents before she had.

It's always a source of argument among even the experts, what age a child should walk and talk. I have found that it all depends on the child itself. Some children will walk and talk extremely early, others are late. I have known children who didn't either walk or talk until they were three or even four years old. Yet when they did start, they quickly developed and in a few months or a year were just as proficient at these things as other children their age.

Sometimes we find that a child is born with certain conditions of the brain that require an extraordinary long time adjusting themselves. There doesn't seem to be the same co-operation between the various parts of the brain that there is in ordinary children. But when the adjustment does take place, they are quite normal.

Of course, birth injuries aren't at all uncommon. Believe me, when they do happen they are very seldom a reflection on the doctor. Some women have an extremely difficult time when they bear a child. The birth canal may be unusually small or the baby unusually large. When you have both these factors, as is sometimes the case, then you have trouble and a head injury is quite apt to occur.

This is one of the reasons women should have prenatal examinations by a doctor. He may be able to detect it if she is likely to have a difficult delivery, and he will be ready for it.

In any case, I advise the grandmother to take her grandchild to a specialist. Take her to one of the baby clinics operated in every city, and she will very soon find out whether the baby is just slow about development or whether she is suffering from a birth injury sustained at birth.

Value of Health of Abdominal Muscles

For a number of years I lectured to university graduates taking a course to prepare them as high school or preparatory school teachers. These teachers had, in turn, to teach health habits to the students of teen age. In addition to a general but simple outline of anatomy and physiology, short talks on diet, sleep, exercise, and play were given.

I pointed out the all round benefits of the development of the abdominal muscles, particularly the muscles running up and down in front abdomen. By development of these muscles the boy and girl and the man and woman would have better digestion, larger lung power, a better posture, being free from round shoulders and a protruding abdomen. I pointed out also that the organs in the abdomen, particularly in thin individuals, could be kept up in their proper positions by well developed abdominal muscles, even if much of the fat which should help hold them up had been lost.

It is interesting, then, to read of a research worker in Europe who carefully examined the state of the development of abdominal muscles in 100 bodies. Special attention was paid to the relation between the weight of the abdominal muscles and the position of the abdominal organs.

In cases where there was real development of the abdominal muscles, the organs in the abdomen, stomach, intestines, kidneys and others were in their proper positions. Even in those cases where there was a general loss of body weight, if the abdominal muscles had been developed, that had been in proportion to the muscles of the rest of the body, the organs were also in their proper position or nearly so.

More than three muscles are developed so that digestion, breathing, heart action, posture can be improved.

Practically all forms of play or exercise that calls into action the use of the legs and the bending of the body will develop these front abdominal muscles.

Exercises in which the bending of the body is done while knees are kept straight have a direct action on the abdominal muscles; exercises such as trying to touch toes with knees straight, or lying on the floor and raising legs to a right ankle with knees straight.

Voice a Factor in Charm

Selena Royle, radio star, advises reading aloud for voice culture.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT the eye observes in a woman may be pleasing—a lovely figure, the velvety complexion, becoming sartorial draperies—but if the ear is offended by a voice that is loud or harsh, the feminine composition is out of tune. Why women of today do not attend to voice cultivation, your beauty teacher can not guess.

Much can be done without professional training. The woman with a rasping, throaty voice should keep it up in her head and out of her throat. Does that idea sound silly? It isn't. The vocal cords are in the throat, to be sure, but the sounding board is in the "mask", back of the nose and the cheek bones.

Read Aloud

The too casual woman is likely to have a voice that is not expressive, but trails on in a monotone. When one is pleased, enthusiastic, the quality of the voice is more alive. Enthusiasm lends charm to tone.

It is a good plan to read aloud—now and then, shakespeare's rolling passages are especially adapted to voice culture.

The commonest fault is using too much volume. One loud speaker in the family circle can keep others in a body jittery. There are families of shouters. They live in the nervous systems of adults, as well as little children who are affected adversely by noisy, excited voices.

One of our pet peeves is the whining voice. Some girls can't ask you to pass the butter without whining. Mumblers are pretty bad, too, and so are those who talk rapidly. The human ear can scarcely stand the strain.

Unnatural voice for the high pitched voice is found in practicing lower tones. In cultivating voice, breathing. Speaking with sudden emphasis is literary business and it is trying on the vocal cords. because it brings them together with spasmodic force and injures them.

"Never and ever." Let that be your slogan. Don't shrill or shout, dear children.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Old Love Letters

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm going to be married soon and I would like to have your opinion on what I shall do with some old love letters, written to me by boys I am not going to marry. Should I destroy them or would it be all right for me to keep them? I would hate for the man who is going to be my husband to find them.

Wondering.

Better to burn all bridges before marriage. Not knowing your fiance, I can't say how hard'a'rest to them, but the safe thing is be burn the letters.

She'd Rather He Had a Job

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in love with a girl of 23 years, and we had expected to be married in the near future. My father and I have a small business a few miles out of town. I wanted to get married now and then live with or near my family, but my fiance won't hear of it. She has visited my folks and likes them, and they are fond of her.

I had a small job in town to add more money to the business, but gave it up. And now my girl won't see me at all until I get another job in town. This business brings in ample to make a good living for all of us.

My parents aren't young any more, and there's nothing else for them to do. I think my fiance is very unreasonable in not wanting to help me at the start we can build up a good business instead of working all our lives for a salary. Don't you agree?

She's also jealous and a bit selfish. If I take my mother out riding too often, she objects to that. Should I decide in favor of my parents and our own business, or a wife and a job working on a salary? I'm almost 30 years of age.

Unhappy.

If a man is industrious and ambitious, h's much better to work for one's self and establish a business. Probably your fiance doesn't realize this and is just prejudiced against in-laws in general. Do you love her enough to wait till she decides that it's best to try your way? If you don't, I suggest you try to find a nice girl who will see your side.

Sulky Husband

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married twenty years and have two children who are now established in good positions. My married life has been most unhappy, but I've tried to keep peace for the sake of the children. I don't think now that I can stand it much longer. My husband is cross to me, and nags at me all the time, telling me how stupid I am.

We were sort of well-to-do at one time, but lost about everything because of his poor management. All we have left now is a little farm, and I've been helping out in the fields besides doing the chores. I never had anything to say about the business of the home, and no one could ever tell my husband anything. He always thinks he knows it all.

Sad Wife.

The best way for you to get out of this monotonous life, which your letter so plainly reflects, is to try and get a little diversion. You say your children are grown up; they probably would have more sympathy with you than your husband. Get them to take you out to a movie sometimes, perhaps to a church social. Visit with the neighbors, and ask them to come and see you.

Monotony and the daily grind kill more women than downright illness, and these things plus a sulky husband are too much for anyone. A little recreation is what you really need.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

A malodorous garbage pail is a sign of poor housekeeping. If washed thoroughly and frequently with hot soapy water, the pail will not smell and will be serviceable for a long time. If lined with a paper bag or with old newspapers, it will be easier to keep in good condition.

Write Prompt Thank-You Note For Every Wedding Gift

This, you brides-to-be, is your golden rule for thanking for your wedding presents.

For every wedding present, write a thank-you note, and write it promptly—the day the gift is received, if you possibly can. You've just opened the gift, your appreciation is fresh and warm in your heart, and it will, therefore, be easier for you to write a warm-hearted and enthusiastic note of thanks. There's a special glow about a thank-you note written immediately after a gift has been received.

There are two kinds of brides-to-be. There is the girl who, happily, has the gift of courtesy and appreciation. She is the girl who looks at her wedding presents from the point of view of the givers. She knows, that wedding presents are important gifts, planned and chosen with special thoughtfulness, by her relatives and friends to make her and her groom happy. For these gifts are symbols of the giver's devotion and generosity.

This courteous bride-to-be is not casual in her point of view toward such thoughtful plans for her happiness. She does not take her wedding presents for granted—she makes the givers' hearts warm and glad by writing them prompt, gracious, enthusiastic notes. In these friendly little notes of hers she chats with the giver, thanks for the kindness, mentions the gift specifically, say happy things about the gift that rejoice the giver, includes the groom's thanks, and gives her note a crowning glory by telling how she and the groom plan to use the gift in their new home.

Then, also, there's the other kind of bride-to-be—the take-all, write-nothing kind. She is casual, careless, discourteous, shows no appreciation of the kindness and generosity of her relatives and friends. She writes no notes of thanks; the givers wonder and their wonder is amazement grows." What a pitiful return for their goodness to her.

In the meantime this girl's days are clouded with excuses. "They'll realize I'm busy. You may these days to write thank-you notes"... "I never could write a decent thank-you note; I'll wait and thank Betty when I see her" ... "I'll write when I get back from my wedding trip; that will be time enough."

This isn't a pleasant picture, because there is no thinking or appreciation in it. Please don't be this kind of bride-to-be. Get yourself some good-looking stationery, a comfortable pen and write your thank-you notes at once and with panic.

"Happy the bride that the sun shines on" with her thank-you notes all written. Happy, too, her relatives and friends with her warm-hearted notes of appreciation glowing in their hearts.

HOUSEHOLD TIP

Experienced picnickers know how much pleasanter a day's outing can be when they take along the requisites for cleanliness. In many families it is customary to carry a rubber-lined beach bag that is always kept stocked with a soap container, wash cloths and small towels. When small children are in the party, it may be wise to have an extra day suit or shirtwaist for each, and to change the tots into the clean clothes before starting home.

Bartell Knocks Cardinals Out of National Loop Lead Single Handed With War Club

Former Detroit Shortstop Pounds Out Single and Homer to Defeat Cards, Twice

DODGERS LOSE

By GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Remember Dick Bartell, the scrapping, chirruping little short-stop who qualified as the fall guy of the last World Series by holding on to the ball while Buck McCormick of Cincinnati Reds went charging home with the tying run in the deciding game?

Well, things haven't gone so hot for Bartell since that fateful day. Detroit tigers must have been sore long ago and he just barely caught on as a free agent with his old club in the other league, New York Giants.

Since then he has been riding the Giants' bench, two days ago Dick finally slipped into the line-up as a pinch-hitter, and they let him start against the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of a double-header yesterday.

Ruins Cards Single-Handed

He practically ruined the Cards single-handed. He singled two runs home in the ninth inning of the first game as the Giants booted five times in the scrape, and then in the 10th he pounded a home-run to win the contest, 7-6. He clouted a double and a single in the night-cap, which the Giants also won, 12-7.

The double defeat dropped the Cards into second place in the torrid National League race, despite the fact that the Brooklyn Dodgers were losing a single encounter to Cincinnati 3-2. The Reds annexed all their runs off Whit Wyatt in the ninth, Paul Derringer winning his own game with a telling double.

Finish in Dead Heat

The league's also-rans finished the day in a dead heat, unless to speak Pittsburgh Pirates hammered the Phillies 12-2 and then were set down by the Phillies' unpronounceable Johnny Podgajny, 5-2. Chicago thumped Boston Braves 5-1 behind Bill Lee's tight pitching, and then got slaughtered 19-4.

Over in the American League Boston Red Sox applied the skids to news by bouncing Chicago White Sox twice, 5-3 and 3-0, and climbing into second place behind Cleveland's Flying Indians. Old Lefty Grove won the 300th decision of his career in besting another original hurler, Fred Fyrosa, in the opener, and the rookie Heber Newsome tolled brilliantly to blank Chicago in the second.

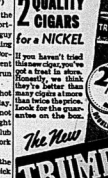
Cleveland proved it could win without Bobby Feller as it trounced Philadelphia Athletics back twice, 7-4 and 6-4, and took a little firmer grip on first place. Rollie Hemsley's slugging in both games made up for some wonky Indian pitching.

On Home Run Rampage

The Yankees went on a home run rampage, with Joe Dimaggio blasting three of the circuit clouts. Browns 9-3 in their first game and 8-3 in the second, which was called after seven innings because of a gathering storm.

Washington fell on Dizzy Trout and Buck Newsom for eight hits and seven runs in the first inning to scuttle Detroit 9-2.

In Saturday's games a temporary upheaval was caused in the National League standings when Cincinnati beat the Dodgers 8-3 while St. Louis was whipping the Giants 6-3. The Phillies shutout Pittsburgh 2-0 and the Cubs beat Boston 5-1. In the American League Chicago eked out a 5-4 victory over Boston, Detroit refused to let Senators 10-6, the Yankees hammered the Browns 11-7 and Cleveland defeated the Athletics 6-2.



KINGSTON STILL GAME AHEAD IN BASEBALL LOOP

Smiths Falls Defeated 10-7 When Kingston Scores Three in Eighth

HULL NOW THIRD

(By The Canadian Press)

Kingston combines still hold the top ring of the inter-provincial baseball league ladder today but the brilliant pitching of Wally Driscoll of the Hull B and B squad stole the show in the league's week-end clashes.

Buckingham, Que., only real one his from Driscoll at Hull Sunday, and didn't put a run on the score sheet, as Hull, last year's Quebec champions, scored a 5-0 victory to remain within one game of the Kingston crew. Buckingham is at the tail-end of the league.

Driscoll struck out nine batters and walked only two. Henry Matte, Buckingham pitcher, spoiled his chances for a no-hit game with a single in the second inning.

Kingston held the League lead by handing Smith's Falls a knockout in their first defeat on home grounds when they took a 10-7 decision at Smith's Falls Saturday night. Outhit most of the game the combines came through with a three-run splurge in the eighth inning where it counted most to keep their lead over Hull.

Hull Volants changed the standings with an 11-4 victory over Ottawa Royal Canadians Sunday, in the second game of the Hull Ball Park's double feature. Their second straight victory in which put them in third place, leaving Ottawa and Smith's Falls out for fourth.

Pitcher Rosario Giroux won his own game for Volants when he homered with the bases loaded in the third inning. Before that, Volants were trailing 3-0 when they were aided by Giroux's circuit clout, scored six markers to put the game away.

Dykes Making Name As Salvage Expert But His "Luck" Is Mostly Good Judgment

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Lodigiani and Hoag Are Examples of Chi-Six Bous' Good Guesses — Has Ability to Spot Players in Right Positions

By Central Press Canadian

James J. Dykes is beginning to get a little out of sorts with the experts because of the way in which they view his work as boss of the White Sox.

Dykes is referred to as the Old Clothesman, the Salvage Worker, the boss of all baseball's Dazed Harum, etc., because he picks up stray items here and there and proves them to be better than average big league baseball players.

All the references to Dykes, course, are supposed to be complimentary and she looks upon them in that light, but nevertheless insists the experts have missed the point. They give him credit for making bad players out of nothing whereas he claims only that he has picked up ball players not detected as such in other places, and proved his judgment. In other words, he doesn't perform miracles after they arrive. He knows what he's getting when other managers succumb to his sales talks.

A Dozen for Dykes

If you stop to ponder the matter you can't miss seeing that Dykes must be correct when he disclaims responsibility for the miracle feats. A manager might take one or two players of no value elsewhere and by some sort of magic detect what might have been wrong with the player. But Dykes now has a dozen or dozen he has picked up without indicating any of his team strength. Everything, whether pitcher, outfielder, infielder, checks in the right direction. The only answer is that Dykes spots the men in advance, ascenting what they might do under suitable surroundings, and goes to the limit in the matter of getting them. Since he is a patient fellow he follows a scheme of his own for a couple of years.

The experts, with their contention that Dykes gets these odd pieces of no apparent value, make the whole affair look as if the Sox have no business being on the various lofty perches they have occupied since Dykes became the boss. The fact that Dykes by his devious dealing has assembled quite a ball team is completely submerged.

Dykes Names the Spot

Dario Lodigiani is one of Dykes' most recent pickups. Dykes wanted a fellow to substitute at third base and that's what he got from Connie Mack in exchange for Pitcher Jack Knott. Even before Lodigiani put on a Sox uniform for the first time Dykes declared the San Francisco Italian would work. If he worked at all, at the far corner. When he took him from the Athletics he had designated Lodigiani a second baseman, but subsequently he obtained Bill Knickerbocker from the Yankees for that particular post. Thus switching to third became simple.

Dykes knew all along that Lodigiani, if anything, was a third baseman unless conditions were bad at short or second. He had seen Lodigiani play the two latter posts as well as third and what he saw convinced him the hot bag was the Italian's natural spot. Lodigiani has shown that Dykes didn't miss on a detail overlooked elsewhere.

When Mack agreed to give Lodigiani for Knott he remarked to Dykes, "You probably will make a ball player out of him and the old man will be glad, but Dykes did just what Mack feared, and it was done only because Dykes figured the spot in which the little fellow belonged.

Then There's Mr. Hoag

Then there's Myrll Hoag, for whom Dykes had made offers to the Browns for two years. Hoag did much in the recent Sox surge by which they kept themselves in second place. Hoag arrived just in time to take over for Julius Solters, who not only went in a slump, but had an injured hand. Hoag got obtained without giving up anything more than cash and now solters is out and come back with his man.

You can go halfway or so through the roster and uncover similar cases. He dished Eddie Smith and Bill Dietrich at the waiter price. He got Thornton Lee in a three-cornered deal. Lee is the sole survivor of that transaction. By getting Taft Wright and Joe Kuhel from Washington Dykes took from that club about 90 per cent more than he gave. From Detroit he obtained Mike Tresh, at straight catcher as there is in the league today. Those cases and a few other belie the experts' claim that Mr. Dykes merely is lucky. He usually is a year or more farsighted than rival bosses.

GOSSIP ◎ NEWS ◎ COMMENT

Looking over the Senior City League standing as of this date, the disappointing team in the loop is none other than Bobby Gaulin's Point Anne squad. Of course the Cementmen haven't used their ace moundsman, Percy Huffman, as yet this season, Barnhart and Bennett, two first-year pitchers carrying the mound chores for the Cementmen. However, when infielders like Whitney Whitehead have to be used in the outfield, the Cementmen should have more than two games on the win side of the scoring ledger. Good pitching and timely hitting, a winning combination on any ball field, is the answer to Corby's undefeated record, while Red Townsend's pre-season predictions regarding his Esquire kids is still pretty true to-date. However, the outstanding club in the loop is the Reliance, where there seems to be more managers than players, that is players with a driving force of diamond punch.

So you remember when temperamental Babe Ruth walked out on baseball and United States amateur golfing team, resigned to support from the Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club? Well, it seems that the Babe had an argument with Coach Dave Fairbairn and refused to row in the Olympic team. Campbell made his own way to Germany, but failed to win.

Admirers of Paul Derringer will present the Cincinnati pitcher with a new 26-foot fishing boat, built during a ceremony to be held at Crosley Field at an early date. Derringer visited the boat factory at Akomer, Mich., and selected the model he desires. He plans to ship the craft to his winter home at Sarasota, Fla. Paul is an ardent fisherman during the off-season.

After having run around 'em in the Kentucky Derby, through and over 'em in the Preakness, Warren Wright's Whirlaway staged a new track wrinkle on Saturday to win the Belmont Stakes, as he went out in front from the barrier and ran the mile and one-half to bound home a winner by more three lengths and become the fifth triple three-year-old winner in the past 20 Yes, "the bum of the tracks last winter" will now go down in history as one of the best ever to win the Derby, Preakness and Belmont stakes in the same year, as the saying goes. The last horse to win the triple crown was War Admiral in 1937, then there was Omaha and Gallant Fox and Sir Barton, the first of such winners to come along. Whirlaway boosted his earnings to $258,000 which ain't bonanza for a three-year-old, but should be "a lotta bay." Jockey Eddie Arcaro who rode Whirlaway in the Derby was again up.

WHIRLAWAY EASY BELMONT WINNER

Assistant Trainer Says Horse Needs a Lot of Work to Keep Him on Edge

(By Sid Feder)

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, June 9 —(AP)—One of the Jones boys finally cleared up the mystery of Whirlaway today.

Not explanation of why he was such an dunking a doughnut. The only thing wrong with the Kentucky cannonball, back there when they were labelling him "bum" all the way from Arizona to Nova Caledonia, was that he just wasn't getting enough work.

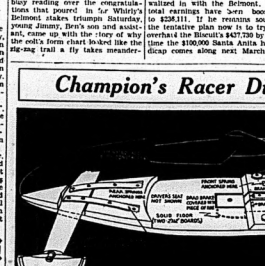
Since Trainer Ben Jones still was busy reading over the congratulations that poured in for Whirly's Belmont stakes triumph Saturday, and Jimmy, Ben's son and assistant, came up with the story of why the colt's form chart looked like the zig-zag trail a fly takes meandering across a bald head.

"The chief thing wrong with Whirly lately," Jimmy was pondering around back there, said Jimmy, was that as soon as he got given a vacation of a couple weeks he wanted to make a basin of it. But when he got back to training his old clock regularly, he won his two-year-old championship, followed it up by climbing into the "Horse Hall of Fame" as the fifth triple crown winner in history, and now looms as a distinct threat to Equipoise's all-time money-winning record.

"It's not that he's 'cry', Jimmy pointed out, "but we've found that when we took him away from the barn for a few days or a week and let him idle, he forgot all about how to run. Then it takes him time to straighten out again and learn about racing once more. He's that whacky".

Since the first of May Whirly won the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, whipped such crack handicap campaigners as Midland and Hash in an overnight race, and just Saturday, the Belmont. His total earnings have been boosted to $236,111. If he remains sound, the tentative plan now is to try to overhaul the Biscuit's $437,730 by the time the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap comes along next March.

Champion's Racer Diagrammed



The winning racer in the 1940 All-American Soap Box Derby finals, built by Tommy Fisher, age 12, Detroit, Michigan, is an intermediate model, the features of which are shown here in this accurate phantom drawing, Body construction is of laminated strips of wood. Tires can be built heavier to boost weight total, or can be cut down to lighten weight if needed. The champion's car depended for weight largely on a heavy, solid floor, made of two 3/32" plywoods. Complete plans for building the winning racer may be obtained free by writing to the national headquarters of the All-American Soap Box Derby, A-223 General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich.

BONURA RECEIVES ARMY DRAFT CALL

First Baseman for Minneapolis Will Not Seek Any Deferment

Minneapolis, June 9.—(AP)—Zeke Bonura, Chicago White Sox first baseman and storing his big bat for a real war-club.

He's been called in the draft and refuses to seek deferment. His loss to the minors is another blow that was to the majors, for Zeke has been setting the American Association afire.

Bonura, stepping down a peg or two after a slugging career in the American and National Leagues, has played so well with Minneapolis that, he said, he got two offers to return to the big show and he rejected them because of his business here and the convenience of the draft call.

Mike Reilly, Club President, said that never in his 41 years in baseball had he found a better player.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Dick Bartell, Giants — Hit a 10th-inning homerun with one on to defeat the Cardinals in opener; made two hits in nightcap.

Johnny Podgajny, Phillies — Gained his second victory in seven days by beating Pittsburgh 5-2 in second game.

Paul Derringer, Reds — Hit a double in the ninth to win his own game from Brooklyn, 3-2.

Did You Know — Craig Wood never took up golf seriously until after he had won the U.S. Open title? The Kingston Frolics won their fourth game in the Intermediate League, beating Smith's Falls 12 to 7 Saturday. Bob Mosier, of St. Michael's Academy, won the 100-yard dash in the Eastern Ontario track and field meet at Kingston Saturday. Bob was also a member of the winning relay team. Jimmy Demaray, Pittsburgh catcher, the most hit-men. Some people have the idea that baseball standings alter a hectic week or two. The Red Sox, for instance, have been in second place all season. Yankees won three and are tied for first place with Cleveland. The Dodgers lost to the Reds yesterday, and dropped to third place behind the Nationals, as the Cardinals took a double-header and regained the top. Glenn Gilberts' Blue Jays defeated Kingston Frontenacs after a hectic week of baseball. Bob Feller has a new car and Virginia Wilson will drive it around the Indianapolis speedway

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting the condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning that proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, which quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use; is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when relief and a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

Try it at Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Twin-Motored Bomber Believed Lost on Long Non-Stop Flight

Salt Lake City, June 9 —(AP)— The United States Army Air Corps sought word today of a B-18 twin-motored bomber which left here yesterday afternoon with a crew of six on a non-stop flight to Chicago.

The ship, due at the Chicago Municipal Airport about 10 last night was unreported throughout the night.

Aboard were Capt. D. N. Mothersell of the 16th Reconnaissance Squadron as pilot; Lieutenants T. F. Holstein, J. V. Gallagher and E. H. Hyatt, and Staff Sergeants D. E. Hawley and T. McGurran.

Storms and thunderstorms slashed across their route, with the worst flying weather indicated east of Cheyenne during the period the ship would normally have been in that area.

TO OPERATE CO-OPERATIVE RESIDENCE

Kingston, Ont., June 9 (CP)—A student co-operative residence will be operated at Queen's University here when the Fall term starts, it was announced today. The alumnus has purchased a house near the University which will be rented to a group of science students, who conceived the plan. Sixteen undergraduates will be accommodated.

The students plan to hire a cook, but will arrange other details of management themselves. The house is expected to result in substantial savings in living costs.

GOLF OFFICIALS AMPLY SATISFIED WITH TOURNEY

Craig Wood Oldest Player Ever to Win U.S. National Open Title

TWO BROKE PAR

Fort Worth, Tex., June 9 (AP)— The time has not come to take statistical stock of the 45th United States open golf championship, won yesterday by Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N.Y., over the Colonial Club course here. However, officials of the U.S. Golf Association are amply satisfied with the tournament of bringing the blue-ribbon tournament to new favorites.

Harold W. Pierce, U.S.G.A. President, turned over his accustomed chair at the size of the crowds which turned out every one opening day Tuesday.

"It's the closest thing I've ever seen to the golf interest in Scotland," Pierce said. "Over there men, women and children follow with their babies in perambulators would line the course. They enjoy motoring to well into the evening. These people were just about as enthusiastic."

Though the final's galleries—the 10,000 who saw Wood match par for his closing 36 holes to post a winning 284—were the usual advance predictions, they nevertheless were the largest ever to see a U.S. open.

Only Two Broke Par

The tournament set another record in that only two players broke par during the three days. One was Denny Shute of Chicago whom Wood defeated by one stroke for the title, and the other, Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who led the field over par by 36 holes—66-70 on the last two.

Hogan and Johnny Bulla of Chicago tied for third place with a total score of 289, followed by Paul Runyan and Bernard Harper, both of Plainfield, N.Y., each with 291.

Wood lost little time starting to get rid of his $1,000 prize money. The first $100 went for a U.S. defense saving bond, and the next $500 to his caddie, who had picked Craig in advance of the tournament. The boy got off the best score of the week.

When Wood handed him his cheque he took one look and said—boy, call me a taxi!"

Because of a gasoline shortage many automobile owners in Britain are operating their cars with coal gas from city mains carried in rubber bags on top of the cars.

It has been estimated that by the end of the year the Canadian Pacific railway locomotives and buses will be operated by substitute fuels with burners supplied by Japan.

Baxter Wants 4 Men to Direct Empire Strategy

London, June 9 (CP)—Formation of a "supreme directorate of strategy for the entire Empire" is suggested by Beverly Baxter, Conservative born Member of Parliament, in an article today in the Sunday Graphic.

Members of this directorate he suggested Prime Minister Churchill, Prime Minister Menzies of Australia, Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand and Mr. Mackenzie King of Canada.

CHAPTER NINE

IT WAS a beautiful wedding, of course. Why wouldn't it be? She was Natalie Schuyler, who had inherited an incredible number of millions from a long line of stuffy, money-making ancestors. She had been the Number One Glamour Girl of her debutante year, and since then, during the years, nobody had been quite able to dislodge her from that place. Whenever she appeared in public, photographers rushed to pop out of the ground; her name was a byword all over the country.

And Brooks Marchbanks? Of English ancestry, a well-located and very solid title not too far out of his reach, for all that he had been born and brought up in America and was as American as beefsteak. He was tall, lean, dark, handsome in an almost breathtaking way; with a gay, white flash of a smile and a cocky spirit that mounted a little higher than its mate when he was pleased or amused — which was often for Brooks was of a happy disposition. He danced like a dream; swam, played polo, golf. Oh, he was just about perfect. Brooks was. Natalie decided shakily as she stood beside him, a slim, exquisite girl with honey-colored hair, her arms laden with lilies and deep blue iris, great-great-grandmother's all but priceless lace veil clinging to her sunny curls—

It was the season's most elaborate and socially important wedding. There was a terrific crush of people all over the place, yet somehow Natalie managed to slip out of her wedding gown, and into her traveling costume and get out to the car before, down the street, where Brooks awaited her. The limousine, decorated with ribboned and white roses, waited at the front; she and Brooks had climbed into his specially built roadster, and were halfway to the George Washington bridge before their guests discovered their absence.

Natalie set her teeth hard for a moment. She mustn't let him know how excited she was. He expected her to be poised, cool, self-possessed. And so after a moment she shrugged a lovely shoulder and grinned. "Oh, it's nice to have it over with—what a brawl!"

Brooks' face lit a little and his hands tightened on the wheel. But he only answered quietly: "I thought it was a swell one. You, at least, were gorgeous, my treasure."

"A trick done with mirrors," she told him briefly. "And a rather superlative frock — and an atmosphere made all syrupy with 'The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden'— and the scent of lilies, and all that sort of barbaric rite, don't you think? All it needed was the dancing maidens and the roasted oxen and other sacrifices to the gods."

"Oh, well, it was quite a show. It'll be some time before another dame manages to overshadow it, darling." Brooks assured her.

Her heart was very low. A show! To hardly mention anything so like a bond that. It had been almost a business arrangement, a partnership. He would lend her his name, his social position that was a little better than hers, even though there hadn't been any money to go with that position. On her side, she would supply the enormous funds necessary to maintain their social position. She stole a glance at him, and once again her heart did that crazy, fantastic nose-dive that it always did when she looked at him. She loved him a little and would have given everything she owned to have him bring her car to a sudden halt, take her in his arms, and kiss her breathless.

And yet when they stopped for the night at the impressive hotel they had selected, and were alone in their tasteful suite, she couldn't bring herself to meet even the slightest of the gestures toward lovemaking. When he stood just back of her, his fingers caressing her neck, she but faintly avoided from him. When he bent as though to kiss her, she drew away. She wanted his kiss more than she had ever wanted anything in all her life, but not the sort of kiss he was offering her now—the dutiful, expected kiss. She wanted him to want her kiss as she wanted his—not to kiss her simply because it was the expected thing. And when she evaded him and he drew a tiny shrug and walked away, her heart lay in her very throat for a good, silly slippery.

They had dinner served in their suite. Neither of them ate. Each pretended to the other a terrific appetite, but simply picked at the food. Later, when it had been cleared away, and Natalie could no longer endure the tension that was growing between them, she rose suddenly, avoiding his eyes. "I'll see you in the morning, good night!"

If he had looked hurt, surprised, resentful; if he had touched her, made one single protest — but he didn't. He simply stood up, gave her a polite bow, as though she had been the most casual acquaintance, and repeated her good night.

She told herself as she walked almost blindly to her own room and closed the door behind her that it was not unlikely shooting the bolt as well, that he had seemed relieved a little relieved. And the thought of that bit like an acid.

Long after she had crept into bed she lay looking into the darkness, dressing herself because her heart cried out to him — and her pride kept reminding her of the stories she had heard about Brooks and the Broadway actress he had wanted to carry, but who had refused because he was poor.

Of course, Natalie reminded herself carefully, she had only herself to blame for the present situation. She had known all along that Brooks didn't love her; that it had been her money that had brought him to her side. He hadn't made love to her except when she had all but forced it. She flushed guiltily to remember that she had practically proposed to him, married him with shame as she remembered the night when they had been out so very late at somebody's party and it had been almost dawn when they got home. She had laughed at him in the fresh dawn light and said teasingly, "And now that you have ruined my reputation, you'll have to make an honest woman of me, darling. I'm afraid you're trapped. I'm a designing female, or had you already guessed that?"

"You're a lovely one, anyway," Brooks had said, and kissed her. A shy, amused, teasing kiss. Only all of a sudden she had melted into his arms and the kiss had stopped being gay and teasing and had become demanding, urgent—

"Will you marry me, Brooks," she had whispered, her voice shaken. "I'll probably sue you if you don't!"

Brooks had kissed her again and put her away from him, and had said almost sternly, "No. You don't want to marry me, Nat."

But she had refused to see his point of view. She had clung to him, lifting her face, for his kisses. And she had said, her voice tender, "Who says I don't?"

Brooks' arms had tightened about her. Natalie—DO you? Will you? No foolin'?"

"I do! I will! No foolin'" she had told him breathlessly. And that had been that.

The engagement had been announced. The wedding date set. Parties started: people began to call up and ask all sorts of questions — and her friends began to gossip, of course. Brooks was all over-solicitous one two thousand a year, or some such begarly sum; and she was terribly rich. She hated herself suddenly because she was lying here in her lonely bridal bed with her face muffled against the pillows, crying as though her sore heart would break.

But she had herself well in hand the next morning when they resumed their journey. There were no traces of her tears, no trace of her heartbreak. She was cool and collected and smooth as a duck. Brooks greeted her with some light, amusing remark that set the tempo for their day.

CHAPTER TEN

IT WAS LATE afternoon when they found the wrecked car. A battered little flivver, turned over on its side, its wheels still spinning feebly. From the accident couldn't have happened more than scant minutes before. A girl lay face down, a few feet from the car; a man's body beneath the wheel.

Brooks and Natalie ran to them. The girl was still alive and tried feebly to sit up as Natalie knelt beside her; but for a long moment when Natalie and Brooks had managed to get the man from behind the wheel of the car—dead, they felt quite sure that he was dead. Brooks' first cause into the Middle of the stinging liquid was forced down the boy's throat. He moaned and turned his head away. The girl looked on the ground beside him, unable herself to walk, but forgetting her own pain in her frantic anxiety for the boy. Other cars had come along now and Natalie and Brooks saw that the boy's limp body laid gently on the back seat of a car, the girl held in his arms. huddle beside him, trying to ease with her own tortured body the agonizing jolting that he must receive on the way to the hospital in the nearest town.

"We've got to go along, Brooks. I've got to know how badly they are hurt," said Natalie, looking down at the pitiful little wrecked car, the two cheap suitcases, one of them tied with rope, that was all the baggage the car held.

"Of course, darling," and as he put those two suitcases in the rumble of the limousine—Natalie knew where his and her expensive handmade luggage seemed to stare in mocking disdain.

When they reached the hospital, the man was on the operating table. The girl waited outside the door, refusing any attention for herself until she could know what was being done for the boy.

Natalie went swiftly to her and ran an arm about her, saying gently, "You must come and let them see how badly you're hurt!"

The girl put a shaking hand to her tumbled, dark curls and said unsteadily, "No—no—I'm all right. He's hurt so much worse. I'll be all right."

She looked swiftly about the hospital corridor, the nurses moving on silent feet, the baskets of flowers that could be glimpsed through open doors, and her face was paper-white as she whispered, "They—they're terribly expensive—and Johnny and I haven't got but twenty dollars."

"Oh, didn't you know?" Natalie said in soft, consoling tones. "You and Johnny are emergency cases. Hospitals never make charges in emergency cases! There won't be any charge at all."

But at such abject relief touched the girl's white face that Natalie set her teeth hard against the little gasp of pity. To be terribly ill to be among someone that desperately hurt, and not be able to pay for the needed medical attention—what a ghastly thing. Natalie told herself, appalled that such things could be.

"Are you sure—are you — sure?" whispered the girl faintly, looking up at Brooks for added reassurance.

"Certainly sure," answered Brooks with a heartening grin. "Why don't you two go along and let somebody find out how much damage you suffered? I'll stick here and bring you the first news about Johnny that anybody gives out."

"Could I go right here across the hall?" pleaded the girl.

"Of course you can," answered

Splendid Program Is Given By St. Michael's Band

A capacity audience heard with much pleasure Tuesday evening a concert given in the Academy Auditorium by St. Michael's Band. This talented group, which now includes about twenty-four boys and girls, progresses steadily in musicianship. The addition of new members of the band and other instruments has augmented the band's fine tone and in which the youthful performers master their instruments, being capable of solos in a very short space of time, is a tribute to the skill in training of their teacher, Sister Mary Mercedes under whose guidance the band has earned such a high place in musical circles.

Mr. Harold Barrett acted as master of ceremonies last evening and performed his duties in his usual capable manner. The program of ensemble numbers by the band, instrumental solos, and duos, also included selections by guest musicians whose contributions were received with great enjoyment by the audience.

The band itself performed in a manner that showed careful and loving efforts. The small children in their smart uniforms made a striking display against the beautifully arranged background of flowers and fronds. Sister Mary Barbara Forhan conducting, the band played a fine selection of stirring numbers. The performers, showed themselves adept in solo and ensemble work, those taking part in solos and duets showing much talent. The program included as well, songs and readings by band members and others, which added to the interest of the entertainment. Mrs. W. Grant, as accompanist, contributed greatly to the success of the evening by her very fine work.

Uniform Presented

A feature of the program was the presentation of uniforms to a new member of the band, little Miss Beverley McVeigh. Mr. Bandmaster Reno was made Bandmaster Lockyer of Picton, who also presented to Sister Barbara the certificate from the Bandmasters Association of which she is an honorary member. Mr. Lockyer paid sincere tribute to the Picton Band and its director, Sister Mercedes, and spoke of the important part music plays in education.

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson conveyed congratulations to the band at the conclusion of the program, thanking the sentiments of the audience in his words of appreciation to the band, Sister Mercedes, and the guest artists. He thanked the Harold Barrett and Bandmaster Lockyer for their part on the program, and the public for their interest, shown by their presence at the concert.

Monsignor Nick Jean presented to Miss Betty Flynn a cup for doing the best work in her class. Betty lost by one mark, and is proud of obtaining a medal at Waterloo.

The program follows:

Huge Bomber Reaches Airport Carrying Victory Loan 'Torch'

'Torch' is Taken to Cobourg and Returned to Trenton for Ceremony This (Monday) Afternoon

Trenton, June 9. The huge bomber carrying the "Torch of Victory" across Canada landed at the Trenton airport this morning shortly after ten o'clock. Royal Canadian provincial and R.C.A.F. service police were on hand to protect the torch which is the symbol of Canada's Victory Loan effort.

After making visits in the district, the Torch will be carried by easy stages eastward to the coast and then flown to England, where it will be presented to Winston Churchill indicating that the Canada Victory Loan campaign has gone over the top.

Immediately upon arrival the Torch was taken to the Administration Building of the Airport, where the Officer Commanding, Group Captain T. A. Lawrence and other officers received it. Later it was taken to Cobourg in an R.C.A.F. staff car with a police escort of Provincial police in the district.

At three o'clock this afternoon, the Torch will return to Trenton for a ceremony here before proceeding to Belleville.

Cavalcade of Floats

The cavalcade of floats which is moving across Ontario in aid of the Victory Loan campaign, will pass through Trenton at six o'clock this evening but it will not be the official visit.

The cavalcade of 50 vehicles and 160 men will stop on Marmora Street for a rest. The men are to be fed by the women of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Following the stop, the cavalcade is to move on to the Airport. Later in the week, the cavalcade will make its official parade through the town.

Street Accidents

Two accidents occurred at the intersection of Dundas Street West and Dufferin Avenue over the weekend, resulting in one person being injured and considerable property damage.

The first accident occurred when a car driven by Harry Green, Carrying Place R.R.1 was making a left-hand turn from Dundas Street to Dufferin Street and collided with the eastbound car driven by Lavilla Dee, 321 Seaton Street, Toronto.

Orser was charged with reckless driving and driving while intoxicated and was released on his own bail to appear in police court tomorrow.

The second accident happened last night in a similar manner. A car driven by Bert Steele, 418 Bunn Ash Street, Toronto, was making a left hand turn from Dundas Street to Dufferin Avenue and came into collition with an automobile belonging to Corporal Paul W. Whitman of Flint, Michigan, Mrs. Marguerite Waghman, a passenger in the second car suffered injuries to her face.

Both cars suffered considerable damage. Steele was charged with reckless driving, following the accident. Three passengers in the Steele car escaped uninjured.

Lion's Club Jamboree

The Lion's Club Jamboree, held at Governor Simcoe Park, in aid of the underprivileged children, proved to be an outstanding success. Many valuable prizes were handed out by the club.

Airmen Parade

On Saturday night, almost two hundred airmen marched out of the Royal Canadian Air Force under Squadron Leader Denton Massey, and marched through the heart of the Victory Loan campaign.

The parade was led by the Airforce band formed up at College Street School and moved down Dundas Street, through the main business section. The airmen put on a good show as they marched with clocklike precision and swinging shoulders high, while always keeping in perfect step.

Turkey had 7434 kilometers of railway lines in operation at the beginning of this year, of which 1,000 kilometers are owned and operated by the government.

U. S. Naval Air Station Being Carved Out of Nfld. Wilds Despite Problems

(By TOM HORGAN)

Gooseel, Nfld., June 9—[AP]—Despite the unusual difficulties, a new United States naval air station is being carved out of a Newfoundland wilderness at a speed that has placed the project far ahead of schedule.

Both the building of the Atlantic outpost in Newfoundland's Argentia peninsula and the vast, permanent home for a naval air squadron at Bay de Verde, Newfoundland naval station:

Point aux Basques, on the headland-guarding tip of the Canadian island.

Argentia, 45 miles from head-quarters here, under the guidance of Cmdr. R. V. Miller, Fall River, Mass., engineer, United States Navy.

Here are some of the difficulties being met by those building the Newfoundland naval station:

Transfer from the site, a unit, of a colony of 125 families;

Drainage of a marsh, and water supply;

Construction of housing facilities for all workmen, including natives.

Importation, with scant transportation facilities, of men and material.

The navy found as residents of the three-square-mile peninsula the descendants of Irish settlers who came here before 1700. Their small number furnished a cue to difficulties of wresting a living from the limited opportunities offered by Newfoundland's rocky soil.

Rather than break ties established through three centuries, the little community will be moved as a unit to a new location, as good or better than the present, he provided—better probably, because they will be near enough to the new base to find employment.

Myrna Loy and Clark Gable co-stars of the thrill hit, "Too Hot to Handle," now showing at the Metropolitan theatre in addition to "Beverly Boy," featuring Dennis O'Keefe and Jimmy Lydon.

new. About 60 per cent of the workmen already have been picked in navy vehicles to temporary barracks pending selection of a permanent site. The United States will pay the bill.

The navy early ascertained that almost the entire Argentina peninsula was covered with several feet of peat—but not the firm variety which would be used for the Constructors tell of a resident's horse that wandered off one of the few roads in the region—and promptly disappeared.

Samples of the peat have been sent to Washington for tests to determine if the material may be used when operations have reached the stage where the roads are made of its lack of consistency, the peat has been found to make a satisfactory of any structure requiring a firm base.

Construction barracks, with efficient heating plants, already have been built for some 1,500 workers, but more must be built rapidly because the working force soon will be greatly expanded.

As far as possible, say the men in charge, local labor will be employed, and about a two-thirds of those now at work are Newfoundlanders.

The Newfoundland station will have facilities for both land and sea planes and, presumably, for supporting surface craft.

Because the region offers little diversion, necessary recreational facilities will be provided. Motion picture equipment has been forwarded. Plans are under way to organize competition in basketball, baseball and other games.

HALF OBJECTIVE

222,800 worth of bonds.

These figures do not include the $30,000,000 conversion of Dominion of Canada five-per-cent bonds maturing next November.

Officials said that celebration of the Saturday-night victory "will add further inspiration to the effort of the thousands of canvassers, who to-morrow is expected to bring warm response from subscribers.

They said that since the day is a bank holiday the day's gross receipts might be affected, as many vassers look upon the bank holiday as their own personal opportunity," since they will not have bank competition at such a time.

Many Broadcasts

In a statement issued last night, Mr. Skinner acclaimed to investors and canvassers alike to redouble their support and efforts in order to end the campaign with a whirlwind finish.

Four Canadian church leaders united in one Canadian Broadcasting Corporation program while another spoke over the French network. Finance Minister Ilsley spoke at a local rally in Cornwall, Ont.; while Lord Beaverbrook, British Minister of State, in a message to Canada appealed for the utmost help, both financial and moral, from the Dominion; and Mme. Pierre Cloutier, wife of the Secretary of State, spoke to French Canadian women.

An estimated 100,000 persons gathered in Riverdale Park, Toronto, in a Victory Loan service at which they pledged themselves to give and work for Victory and renewed their loyalty to the King and Empire.

Saturday's loan subscriptions amounted to $43,104,100, "surprising for only a half day's business," Mr. Skinner said. A daily average of $53,000,000 is required to put over the loan.

It was announced last night that the Quebec Province total for the first seven days of the campaign was $61,690,600 or 42.8 per cent of the $100,000,000 objective. The province's total was $5,726,950 of a $10,465,000 quota; Ontario's total, $8,297,900, past the one-third mark in the quest for $18,000,000.

Total Victory Loan subscriptions to Friday night were $112,457,000 or an objective of $360,000,000. Prime Edward Island to Friday had subscribed for one-per-cent-of-objective or $1,500,000 quota and British Columbia investors, $18,000,000 and that, $60,000,000.

Manitoba's contributions to Saturday noon were $22,226,000, more than half the province's $43,000,000 objective.

Reports last night showed Summerside, P.E.I., leading all cities with subscriptions of $220,750 or 88.1 per cent of its quota. Kingston was close behind with $568,550 or 86.1 per cent. Montreal headed the larger cities with subscriptions of $58,000,000 or 50.1 per cent. Up to Friday night Toronto had sold bonds worth $58,188,000 of a $180,000,000 quota.

Haldimand County was first in the Ontario peace time objective selling bonds worth $300,250, 31 had a subscription.

Among large week-end subscriptions were $5,000,000 from Ford of Canada, $2,000,000 from United Corp. Ltd., Montreal, and subscriptions from Harry P. McLeish, Oakville, Ont., engineer, both personal and on behalf of corporations controlled, totalling amounting to $500,000.

In his weekly statement Mr. Spinney, to show how wide and effective the Victory Loan appeal was, disclosed that 250,880 individual subscribers, as distinguished from corporations and institutions, had bought $115,000,000 worth of bonds. The average individual subscription $450, was high.

"This is a splendid combination", he said.

"It could take great satisfaction from our first week's result, but instead, let us take only moderate satisfaction from it and renew our drive. . . .

"Let us be at the first week's subscriptions are, we are not yet near our goal; we have a lot of work to do before we come within sight of it.

Butter Easier, Egg Prices Firm

Toronto — Light trading weakened the butter market on the Toronto open produce market Saturday, but prices continued firm.

Offerings were not heavy on the butter market, as most of the surplus ground as available supplies proved to be taken up. Creamery prices for Ontario No. 1 grade creamery solids changed hands at 31 cents to 31 1-4 cents per pound, presumably one car of the product was reported sold on the basis of 31 1-4 cents a pound and some broken lots were through at the latter price.

Small arrivals of fresh receipts met a good demand on the egg market, and these supplies cleared well at firm prices.

Hundreds Killed In Alexandria Raid

Alexandria, June 9 (AP)—Hundreds of persons were believed killed in the heaviest bombing raid of early Sunday by Nazi bombers which attacked British naval units in the heaviest raid Alexandria has yet experienced.

The main attack developed in the port area where a number of planes plunged through a wall of anti-aircraft fire from British and Greek fleets.

It was reported that they failed to hit warships or any military objectives, but considerable damage was reported in the European and Arab residential quarters where many fires started.

Only local dawn did the roar of anti-aircraft fire subside.

More than 100 persons were killed in an attack last Wednesday night and canvassers alike to redouble their support and efforts in order to end the campaign with a whirlwind finish.

Four Canadian church leaders united in one Canadian Broadcasting Corporation program while another spoke over the French network. Finance Minister Ilsley spoke at a local rally in Cornwall, Ont.; while Lord Beaverbrook, British Minister of State, in a message to Canada appealed for the utmost help, both financial and moral, from the Dominion; and Mme. VICHY'S ARMY and at Dar, Tunisia—and declared that once again the attack "was led, as at Dakar, by 'Frenchmen under a Nazi yoke'."

Picture Given of Fighting

Reports here and from the command at Beirut gave this picture of the fighting at the end of the first day of fighting:

Australian, British and Free French troops with motorized units moved by trucks and lorries pushing into the volcanic mountains of Lebanon toward the Syrian capital of Damascus from Palestine and Jordan.

They were in battle contact with French defence forces within two hours after they crossed the frontier at 2 a.m. yesterday, pushing northward through the wild, little-known wastelands of the warlike Bedouin, mixed by ravines and jutting with mountains towering as high as 3,000 feet.

The German radio report heard last night in New York said the Allied advance from Palestine was 26 miles to Sousida, capital of Jebel Ed Druse, 56 miles south of Damascus.)

To the west, another force was striking north of the Sea of Galilee in an attempt to flank Australian Crusaders' stronghold of Besharia, guardian of a road northeast to Jebbul Nasreyh by the ruins of the castle of the Hospitallers, Krak des Chevaliers. Despite hijcks klop, a rock rising 1,000 feet above the sea.

Attack Coast of Lebanon

There is also a coastal road through Acre and Tyre, but no direct information from these cities was reported in this vicinity although the British command announced that one day a British naval squadron of a battleship, cruisers and five destroyers had attacked the coast of Lebanon between Tyre and Sidon and that one cruiser had landed small forces armed with submachine guns. No landing party was claimed to have been captured.

In addition to fighting along the Lebanese coast, British and Allied motorized forces were reported engaging on southern land, at the Iraq toward the French outpost in Eastern Syria, Deir ez Zor.

British planes were thrown into the fight Saturday, the French command claimed some of these were shot down during bombing and machine-gunning attacks on units moved northward.

French, from a Beirut communique claimed, captured a detachment of troops which had left Lebanon coast by the British Navy south of Beirut. The communique also claimed that British air fighting planes were shot down during R.A.F. bombing attacks on Beirut and on airfields at Merse, Nerab and Hayak, where was no British comment on these claims.)

Speed Encomce of Campaign

Speed was considered the essence of the campaign to prevent the seizure of Damascus, Beirut, Tripoli, Aleppo and Palmyra essential to keep the Nazis from establishing a base in Northern Syria.

Reports after the invasion began at 2 a.m. Sunday (Vichy said 3 a.m. Syrian time, which would be 2.45 a.m.), there was little official news from the Allied command, but Allied troops pressing north from Palestine and trans-Jordan were believed operating in three main columns.

One of these was reported massing for an attack in the vicinity of Jerusalem, another in the region of Beirut and the Sea of Galilee, another column, farther east, was said to be advancing from Amman, capital, along the edge of the Jebel Ed Druse country toward Deras, on the trans-Jorda-Syrian frontier.

Sir Archibald Wavell, Middle East Commander in Chief, appealed in the Arab world in vain to help the Free French or at least not to hamper the movement for liberation.

"We remember the common victory over the same Boche of long ago," he said in a leaflet scattered far and wide by the R. A. F. over Syria and Lebanon. "Let's beat them again. We would like victory to be shared equally by all those on our sides again, not against us."

Cairoux Issues Appeal

Gen. Catroux, long an expert in Middle Eastern affairs and now the Free French leader in that theatre, issued a similar appeal and in the name of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, supreme leader of the Free French movement, proclaimed himself the liberator of Syria and Lebanon.

The British government issued a formal statement declaring that it had ordered its troops forward to "German infiltration into Syria has begun and the Vichy authorities are continuing to take measures whose effect must be to bring Syria and Lebanon under full German control."

It has been established that Nazi planes which flew into Iraq recently to help Rashid Ali el Gailani wrecked revolt against Britain used Syrian airfields for refueling.

Charges that the fields are being turned into Axis air bases for a push on Suez were denied by Vichy as were assertions that Nazi troops are filtering steadily into Syria and Lebanon.

Conie sources said this alleged infiltration had been stepped up in the past few days and the situation had been pictured as a race between Britain and Germany to gain the initiative.

The soldiers moved into the plant quietly. Leaders of unions in the convoy came down the road and the occupation of the vast, modern manufacturing centre took place with the simplicity of a routine military manoeuvre.

The Eastern Syrian Desert about 100 miles northeast of Damascus.

The Allies indicated there was no whole-hearted resistance by their forces.

Military circles said the operation—which pitted Frenchmen against their former brothers-in-arms—was one of the most important of the war because of its vital importance to the projected Axis attack on the Sues Canal.

In Contact with 40,000

Jerusalem dispatches said Allied columns advancing from Palestine and Trans-Jordan—the Vichy government estimated the total strength at 30,000 men—were pushing the Syrian and Lebanese defenders. 40,000 troops back wherever they met and R.A.F. headquarters in Cairo said British planes were encountering little opposition.

The Allies launched their attack at Kuneitra, French outpost in Syria's Golan Heights, and the French resistance in Syria and Lebanon was described by the Beirut communique claimed the French were defending themselves in "brilliant" against what the Vichy Chief of State, Marshal Petain, called a "cowardly unprovoked aggression.")

Counting on Leaflets

The attackers were known to be counting heavily on the success of leaflets appeals to the Syrian and Lebanese native populations and to the French soldiers urging them to fight their brothers.

The attackers, under command of Gen. de Larminat, and Gen. Catroux Gen. Georges Catroux, were said to be counting on mountain, land, air and sea power such as carried the British forces into Libya against the Italians last winter.

British warships were reported in Vichy dispatches to be active in the Eastern Mediterranean as the war-protected commerce and the Germans moved northward.

French, from a Beirut communique claimed, captured a detachment of troops which had left Lebanon coast by the British Navy south of Beirut, The communique also claimed that British air fighting planes were shot down during R.A.F. bombing attacks on Beirut and on airfields at Merse, Nerab and Hayak, where was no British comment on these claims.)

TAKE STRIKE

The strike entered its fifth day with no settlement reported and entering the plant in response to a government request for the resumption of plant operations.

Twenty-five minutes after the first disorder, quiet was restored when word spread "the army is coming." A military truck moved down the business district, filled with soldiers. It was followed by some fifty more.

Cheers broke out from the lines of workers who had been walking across the street from the plant's main entrance in hopes of getting jobs.

The big gates of the plant swung open and the workers streamed in.

The motor convoy in its approach to the plant was preceded by a marching columns from another direction.

The foot troops immediately took up positions along the field opposite to the North American plant.

Workers moved out of the way of the troops, and placards were raised reading:

"Welcome army. Keep out the scabs."

The power of an Ohio river District employees' union was increased nearly 30 per cent by enclosing its property with a barricade topped with barber circulates.

CANADIANS STAGE MIMIC BATTLE AGAINST 'ENEMY'

Central, Eastern Ontario Units Figure in Tactics Against Mythical Enemy 'Airborne' Troops

'BATTLE' REALISTIC

(By Douglas Amaron)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, June 9.—(CP)—The broad heaths of England are battlefields on which Canada's soldiers are learning further tactics of war.

On these heaths Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Corps Commander, inaugurated a series of unit inspections by which he hopes to come into clcre contact with his men and see for himself how far their training advanced during the winter.

A 1st Division Eastern Ontario infantry regiment attacked "enemy" airborne troops on a well-defended hill in one of the first of these exercises. Men from a Central Ontario infantry unit played the part of Germans.

At zero hour the attackers, commanded by a Lieutenant-Colonel from Belleville Ont., began their push—the objective a ridge 2,000 yards away between a church and an old windmill. Two companies led the advance, with two other following 500 yards behind.

Troops in Manoeuvres

Supporting troops were a battery from a Central Canada Field Regiment, a troops from an Eastern Ontario anti-tank battery, a reconnaissance troop and a machine-gun platoon from a Saskatchewan infantry unit.

Snipers and anti-tank gunners covered the road from which the attack started. Pte. G. D. Stephens of Belleville, and J. Dully of Howe Island, Ont., manned anti-tank guns, while close by were two snipers, Pte. H. C. Prior of Picton, Ont., and R. H. Barnaby of Ottawa.

Soldiers Ske Pte. P. F. Jackson of Marmora, Ont.; R. T. Wilson of Sulphide, Ont., and O. A. Weese, Glen Alda Ont., were in one of the forward company sections, commanded by Maj. T. S. Ketcheson o' Trenton, Ont.

For 1,000 yards they advanced at a rate of 100 yards a minute, their khaki uniforms scarcely visible against the scrubby background.

The battle was realistic. Soldiers rushed forward and dived for cover as the puff and crack of thunder flashes indicated enemy fire. Then they moved forward again, 20 or 30 yards at a time, 3ren gun carriers bumped along at the rear of the companies.

Loosi 3den in Carrier

Cpl. A. E. Foster of Belleville, Ont., and Pte. J. A. Alair and C. O. Weese of Picton were in the carrier on the extreme left of the attack. Foster stopped and shared a down times or more as wig-wag streams from other carriers.

Still further behind, the Saskatchewan machine-gun platoon followed in sorjey.

The second 1,000 yards of the attack was a different pace, with the last few hundred yards over open ground and drew a target. The carriers swept around the "enemy" flanks in the final push on the objective and the attack ended with Hamilton infantry soldiers in possession of the hill.

Gen. McNaughton met officers of the division after the attack and exercise and discussed the attack with them. He emphasized the importance of speed in a move of this sort, but drew a distinction between speed and haste, which he said should be avoided.

The General criticized some details of the exercise but said that "by and large the plan has shown clearly that we have a battalion capable of doing what we want." The attack, he said, would no doubt have succeeded.

Sydney Herald Demands Direct Representation on British War Cabinet

Sydney, Australia, June 10—(Tuesday)—(CP Cable) — The Sydney Morning Herald renewed its demand today for direct Dominion representation in the British War Cabinet.

The Herald suggested the war has reached a stage comparable to the First Battle of the Marne in 1917 and urged wider sharing of responsibility for high strategy and more intimate consultation.

Though a full imperial cabinet may not be possible, the paper concluded, there is a clear need that one of the new men combining, possibly in rotation, be continuously represented by a senior minister in London.

BERLIN JUST "WATCHING"

Berlin, June 9 —(AP)— A Nazi spokesman said today Germany for many foy the moment, "merely is watching political and military developments in Syria with intense interest."

"There are no German troops in Syria," he claimed, "and it is a matter entirely concerning France and England."

What Germany's ultimate attitude might be or what action she might take, he said, cannp; be discussed.

Canada's Political Leaders Meet in Kingston to Honor Memory of Sir J. A. MacDonald

Kingston, Ont., June 9—(CP)—Canada's political leaders today declared momentarily their heavy responsibilities arising from the war to honor one of the greatest leaders of them all—the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

On the 50th anniversary of Sir John's death Kingston and the whole city of his boyhood before a monument erected to his memory, the Right Conservative Christian was eulogized by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative House Leader and their respective party followers.

In all the speeches reference was made to the ideals of Sir John, under whose guidance Confederation came into being and the lessons that could be derived from his actions of putting national welfare ahead of party interests.

The Prime Minister said it had been Sir John's dream to see "a country of two races merged into one nationality, governed in the well - tried ways of the British constitution, a pride and glory to the new world."

Mr. King said that while the late leader lived long enough to see his dream realized, he thought at times that "time Canada of today has even surpassed the Canada of Sir John's dreams."

"The union of two historic races into one young and vigorous nation, united in arms with other nations of the British commonwealth in the preservation of freedom," he continued, "is a noble example to many other parts of the world."

Sir A. Meighen Heard

"This valorous role is, today, Canada's greatest gift to mankind. Part of, if too, Sir John A. Macdonald should be a part. is the supreme tribute we pay to his memory today."

Sir Arthur Meighen said the "true and deep Canadians" of Sir John "was to him a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night."

"There was never a time when he lost sight of or subordinated to a selfish Canadian purpose, the oneness of our interest, the oneness of our security and the oneness of our destiny with the British Empire."

"We turn aside for a mere moment to pay tribute where tribute is due and to gain inspiration if we can, courage if we need it, wisdom if we can, at the fountain of history."

Others who participated in the ceremony which was carried on a nationwide broadcast were Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice and the Conservative Senate Leader, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Among those present were Sir William Mulock and Judge Emerson Coatsworth, both retired lieutenant-governors of Toronto, who sat in parliament with Sir John; J. Perrington, United States Minister to Canada; Rt. Hon. Malcolm Macdonald, British High Commissioner to Canada, D. D. Wall Meyer, accredited representative of South Africa and Hugh Gainsford, Winnipeg, 22-year-old great-grandson of Sir John's.

EX-KAISER BURIED IN TINY CHAPEL

Coffin Sprinkled With Earth Taken From Sans Souci Park in Potsdam

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Doorn, Germah-Occupied Netherlands, June 9—(AP)—Wilhelm II, former Kaiser of Imperial Germany, was buried at noon today with rites he arranged 40 years ago.

He died here Wednesday at the age of 82 after almost 23 years of exile following his flight from Germany in the last days of the First Great War.

Rev. Bruna Doehring, once Wilhelm's court, preacher, officiated at the rites and sprinkled the former Kaiser's coffin with earth from the temple of Sans Souci Park at Potsdam where his first wife, Auguste Viktoria, lies buried.

As early as 1901, Wilhelm's family learned on reading his will, he had specified what Bible verses should be read and what prayers said at his funeral.

The coffin was entombed in a tiny chapel on the Doorn manor grounds.

1,200 ITALIANS ARE CAPTURED

Four Thousand Previously Captured in Southwestern Ethiopia

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, June 9—(CP)—Another 1,200 prisoners have been taken by the British forces in the continuing advance against Italian remnants in southwestern Ethiopia.

An army communique today said 200 Europians and 1,000 Eritreans, as well as 20 army trucks, were taken by British and Imperial forces which had crossed the Omo River at two places.

These raised the total of prisoners aken in this drive to 3,200.

Third and Final Warning Given Striking Employees

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—A meeting of more than 600 striking employees of two Canadian General Electric plants, in Toronto was held today to discuss what a union official said was "a third and final" warning from Labor Minister Mitchell to return to their jobs by noon.

C. S. Jackson, Vice-President of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' Union, said the telegram from Mr. McLarty was received last night and the Union had replied for the workers, asking the Minister "to use his good offices to bring about an immediate conference between the Company and the Union for the purpose of finding a satisfactory solution to the dispute."

Jackson added that it now is "Ottawa's move." He said no reply had been received from the Company to a telegram sent yesterday offering to meet with it and seek a settlement of the holiday in conference at any time convenient to the management." The strike is in its sixth day, with the union issue remaining the Union's claim that the Company will not deal with the employees.

Mr. McLarty's telegram was rejected by the union executive which said that they will face prosecution for illegal conduct if they do not sign contracts unless they return to their machines this afternoon.

Loan Sidelights

Ottawa, June 9 (CP)—A 70-year-old man at Dorchester, N.B., didn't feel he could buy a bond of the $600,000,000 1941 Victory Loan but he wanted to do something towards reaching the objective. So, the War Loan Committee reported today, he mailed in $5 as a gift. All he wanted was a receipt.

From scattered points canvassers reported these incidents.

Capt. Earl Clemis of Lethbridge, Alta., now on active duty overseas, wants to serve on the home front too. In a letter to his father he wrote: "Please clear out my savings account, Dad, and buy bonds and then borrow all you can against them and any more. I will try to pay the loan out of my soldier's pay."

Politics went by the Board in the Fraser Valley. There the Fraser Valley Liberal organizer drove the Mission City Conservative chieftain around in his Victory Loan speaking tour.

The Mayor of Abbotsford, B.C., coulless and with his shirt sleeves rolled up, personally erected a 20-foot Victory Thermometer to record Victory Loan sales.

When a Vancouver salesman rang a door bell a female voice called "Come on up." The lady was in the bathtub. The salesman gave his talk from the hall and she took a $100 bond.

"How the application was signed is undisclosed," Committee members added.

An Esquimalt, B.C., woman who lost her husband in the First Great War and lost a son in the present one bought bonds with her son's $2,000 insurance, saying, "Now my boy is still doing his bit."

A canvasser in King's County, Nova Scotia, interviewed a farmer who was poor but owned a cow he was willing to sell if he could get $36 to invest in a bond.

The canvasser gave the farmer the money to invest in a bond, took the cow to Kentville, and agreed to pay for its upkeep for the duration of the loan. He will donate the milk and cream to the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

A Kitsilano, B.C., salesman gained $900 by a wisecrack. Satisfied with an investment of $100 from a watchmaker, he jokingly said, "I thought it would be a thousand." The watchmaker raised the ante to $1,000, saying, "I might as well invest first class."

A cotton oil filter element has been invented having a metal convexo-concave element to make it fit filters of all sizes and shapes.

ALLIES PRESS NORTH IN SYRIA TOWARD DAMASCUS

'Token Opposition' By French Troops But Defence Weak

Military Circles Believe Allies Not More Than 30 Miles From Damascus, Beirut

NAZIS ORDERED OUT

Cairo, June 10.— (AP)—British columns driving into Syria were less than ten miles from Damascus last night and were advancing smoothly, authoritative British sources said today.

London, June 10.—(CP)—Three British and Free French columns were reported pushing steadily deeper into French-mandated Syria and Lebanon today with only slight losses, threatening the capital cities of Damascus and Beirut with swift capture.

British spokesmen said Allied casualties were slight. There was no indication that heavy resistance had been encountered.

"Token opposition" was said to have been offered at several points by French troops, but they were reported to have surrendered or withdrawn under swift thrusts of mechanized forces.

Units of the British Mediterranean fleet, co-operating with land forces, were said to be off the Lebanese coast—motive to any French attempt to hold Beirut to the last ditch.

At the rate the British forces and their Free French Allies have been advancing since they launched their drive at dawn Sunday, military men said today they should be not more than 30 miles from both Damascus and Beirut—perhaps less.

3 Quebec Cities Hold Blackouts

Silvery Moon Fails to Alter Consensus That Tests Are Successful

Montreal, June 10 (CP)—A silvery moon which bathed the three darkened cities in light failed to alter the consensus that the first blackout trial in Quebec's largest cities had been a success.

The full Moon, coupled with the necessity of keeping war essential lights operating normally, served only to emphasize the lack of unnecessary lights last night and control, Quebec City and Three Rivers had almost simultaneous blackouts for a 15-minute period.

Posted on an extraordinary observation spot during the Montreal trial, the Provincial Civilian Protection Committee's fair chief, Col. D. R. McCuaig, termed the result "excellent" for a first effort. Both Quebec and Three Rivers also reported first-class results.

Held as part of the Victory Loan Campaign, Montreal's blackout started at 10.30 p.m. after the warning sirens and factory whistles had sounded the alert. Lights were snapped out in hotels, businesses and homes.

Warned in advance by press and radio how to act, traffic and pedestrians came to a halt. Nearly 10,000 police and G.P.C. workers in the three cities circulated about the streets, warning forgetful smokers to put out their cigarettes and ringing on doorbells with a warning whenever a careless light showed in a home or building.

WOMEN FROM THE WAR ZONE

Two members of Great Britain's Women's Mechanical Transport Corps, Mrs. Pat Mead, London, and Miss Winifred Ashford, are pictured getting a view of New York city from the roof of the Hotel Pennsylvania after their arrival from Canada, to which they travelled by convoyed ship. The structure is the Empire State building, world's tallest." On three months' leave, they came into New York uniformed, gas masks and steel helmets in place of pocketbooks. They expect to spend much of their time in the U.S. conferring with Red Cross officials and giving a picture of the work the British women are doing in home defence.

Escape Described As Miraculous

Kingston, Ont., June 10 (CP)—Officials at the Hotel Dieu Hospital described as miraculous the escape from death of two-year-old Bobbie McCade, who fell on his head from a speeding car and suffered only cuts.

The parents of the child, Mr. and Mrs. Milburn McCade, who live near Watertown, N.Y., were motoring through this district Sunday night when the child fell out of the car. They rushed the boy to the Hotel Dieu Hospital here. Doctors found he had suffered deep head cuts, but no other serious injuries. The parents continued to their home with the baby after the injuries had been treated.

Wavell's Middle East Army in Libya Ready for Any German-Italian Thrust

(By Godfrey Anderson)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With British Army in the Western Desert, June 5—(Delayed) —(AP)—The left flank of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's Middle East army, holding advance posts along the Libyan frontier facing Libya, is ready for any German-Italian thrust designed as a counter-move to the British-Free French invasion of French-mandated Syria and Lebanon.

Word that British and Free French forces had entered Syria and Lebanon spread like wildfire along this desert front.

Tank crews, aviators, and South African troops nearly-a-year from East African battles greeted the word with—

"It's time we moved before Jerry."

It is believed the Nazis took advantage of the Royal Navy's recent preoccupation with Crete to move reinforcements of men and armored materials into Libya but what I have seen myself leads me to be ready to give a sharp answer to any fresh attack on this front.

The British forces, whose pride is in the Royal Navy, find in the desert, fighting a purely mechanical approach on land to conditions of the war at sea.

Desert armies have no flanks to protect; no fixed position to defend. Their tanks manoeuvre like battleships, steering by compass reading unshackled by coasts and land. Patrols frequently pass within a few yards of each other like ships in the night. Fast-moving screens of light tanks take the part of scouts and destroyers.

VICTORY LOAN IS NOW OVER HALF-WAY MARK

Total Subscription up to Monday Night Was $309,897,400

292,566 SUBSCRIBERS

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—Canada's 1941 Victory Loan boomed past the half-way mark as Canada observed the King's birthday today, with pouring $33,974,700 into the loan chest, the National War Loan Committee announced today. Yesterday's payments brought the total to $309,897,400.

The daily average required to put the $600,000,000 loan over the top by June 21 when books are scheduled to be closed is $30,000,000 and the loan committee expressed satisfaction at yesterday's with banks closed for the King's birthday telephone subscriptions topped the daily average requirement.

Of the total of $33,974,700 subscriptions yesterday would take a dip but canvassers reported that they had closed prospects in the last day with 38,329 different individuals bringing total subscribers to 292,566.

Despite this total exceeds those of the first and second war loans by a substantial margin, it still falls far short of the achievements marked up in the Victory Loans of the first Great War," said the loan committee.

The committee announced the London Life Insurance Company of London, Ont., had placed its order for $10,000,000. The Empire Life Insurance Company of Kingston, Ont., purchased $400,000 and the Independent Order of Foresters company of Toronto made a purchase of $300,000.

Fund Lists $2,000,000 of Loan

The Fund Motor Company announced subscriptions for its $2,000,000 and other large subscriptions were reported over the holidays were: Canadian International Paper Company, Montreal, $1,500,000, and Steward Smith Paper Mills Ltd., Montreal, $500,000.

Among the larger cities reporting today, Winnipeg was well in the lead with subscriptions of $12,000,000 or 82 per cent of the quota.

Following was Ottawa $11,182,122, 302,000 or 70.7 per cent. Others reported were: Calgary $13,438,200, 61.13 per cent; Three Rivers, Que., $963,500, 61.6 per cent; Saint John, N.B., $1,407,700, 57.3 per cent; Saskatoon $3,000,000, 54.8 per cent; Edmonton, $2,906,000, 54.5 per cent; Quebec, $4,646,950, 41.2 per cent; Regina, $3,500,000, 41.2 per cent; Hull, Que., $182,900, 26.1 per cent.

Wide variations in Small Cities and Towns quotas are considered as can be seen by what has been reported from the following:

Mussolini Pays Dearly For Part in Conflict

By JAMES LONG

(Associated Press Cable Staff)

Italy's first war in the air has given Mussolini a junior partner's share in two wars—conquest at the cost of his Regia Aeronautica, a quarter-million men and much of his battle fleet.

Twice after he shouted to his Fascist followers a year ago today "We are descending into the battlefields . . ." has Il Duce had to send his armies into military ventures of their own.

Twice, after reverses that cost him heavily, has Hitler, Italy's buried the weight of Nazi arms into the balance and pulled an Axis victory from the fire of battle.

Italy gained a thin strip along the French Riviera, won and lost British Somaliland, tacked onto her Abyssinian Empire most of the Epirus section of northwestern Greece, and took under her wing Croatia, Europe's newest kingdom, torn from northwestern Yugoslavia. The gains amounted to about 36,000 square miles.

But she lost more than 550,000 square miles of her African Empire of Somaliland, Eritrea and all of Ethiopia except a few islands of resistance.

Berlin radio, estimated yesterday that Italy's first-year losses in men totalled 240,075—22,000 killed, 56,617 wounded and 161,458 captured or missing.

Italy's naval losses were so great as to cripple the striking power of her fleet. Four of Italy's eight battleships have been put out of action by serious damage, at least five of her 19 cruisers sunk, and a heavy toll taken of her 127 destroyers and 115 submarines.

British sources said that up to mid-May Italy had lost 1,100,000 tons of other shipping—315 ships sunk, scuttled, captured or seized in Western Hemisphere ports.

U.S. Army Breaks Strike At North American Plant

Protection Promised Workers — Picket Lines Are Pushed Back

9,000 EMPLOYED

Los Angeles, June 10—(AP)—United States army officers promised to start war plaines rolling off lines of the 11,200 strikers, five Police radio cars patrolled an even larger area.

"We are going to work this factory, piecemeal, to capacity—don't make no mistake, we are going to work it," said Col. Milton Arnold Steinmetz, Army Air Corps officer directly in charge of production. Protection for the plant was promised and he said some planes would be ready to fly within a week—last Thursday's walkout the plant was producing ten ships a day — approximately 25 per cent of the nation's output—for Britain and the U.S.

45,000 SQ. MILES TAKEN BY BRITISH IN 'LAKES' AREA

At Least Four Italian Divisions Destroyed or Dispersed in These Battles

OPERATIONS PROCEED

Cairo, June 10—(AP) — British headquarters announced today that "as a result of the battle of the lakes area in the province of Amba Oma (in southern Ethiopia) a further 45,000 square miles of Italian territory has fallen into our hands."

In spite of great difficulties due to the mountainous country, bad roads and heavy rains, at least four Italian divisions have been destroyed or dispersed in these battles," a communique said.

"All enemy opposition in front of Jimma has been overcome and operations are proceeding favorably."

LOSSES COMPARED IN CRETAN BATTLE

London, June 10 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today Britain lost 15,000 to 16,000 killed, wounded missing and prisoners, exclusive of Greeks, in Crete, when the drive against 5,000 Germans drowned, 12,000 killed or wounded, 180 fighters and bombers destroyed, and 170 troop carrying aircraft destroyed.

The Prime Minister made the charge that the Germans had driven the New Zealand and Australian wounded before them in the Crete fighting.

He retracted his earlier charge, however, that German parachutists had worn New Zealand uniforms.

Vichy Ambassador Quite Indignant Over British Invasion

Washington, June 10 — (AP) — Gaston Henry-Haye, Vichy ambassador, appeared in State Secretary Hull Monday what he called the "indignation of the French people at this unprovoked attack" by British and Free French forces on French-mandated Syria.

The ambassador told reporters that the conversation was very cordial and said he judged there was no indication at this time of a severance of relations between the United States and Vichy.

He asserted that the French people in this unprovoked attack by the British move into Syria. He asserted that there was no Axis military forces in Syria or Lebanon.

IL DUCE PRAISES ITALIAN NAVY

Claims War Assumes Character of War Between Two Worlds

Rome, June 10—(AP)— Mussolini declared today that the war has assumed the character of a war between two worlds" and is now at "one of its most decisive moments."

His statement appeared in the navy ministry's paper "Prore Ar-mate" on the eve of Italy's Navy Day, which coincides with the first anniversary today of Italy's entry into the war.

"The Royal (Italian) navy is descending on its birthday to one of the most decisive moments of the war which now has the character of a war between two worlds," Mussolini wrote.

"What a long way from the new and yet heroic navy in the kingdom of Italy's beginning to ours today which knows and overcomes distances and difficulties and aids in beating the enemy on the waters.

"It is not rhetorical to affirm that the daring and sometimes rash enterprises of our navy, the mobilization of the wounded and the high number of fallen illustrate the Royal Navy with the sun of glory."

"Believe, obey and fight, the fertile Italic stock, appears to unite as a sacred symbol of combat and victory for the sailors of Italy!"

2,900 PRISONERS TAKEN

London, June 10.—(CP)—Authoritative sources said today 2,900 prisoners were taken in the advance of two British columns on an Italian stronghold in the Jimma section of Ethiopia, southwest of Addis Ababa.

A column from the south pushed on 12 miles beyond the Omo river and one from the north reached Gore, 15 miles southwest of Abaiti, these sources said.

U.S. GOV'T PROBES SINKING OF U. S. SHIP ROBIN MOOR

State Department Receives Word Vessel Reportedly Torpedoed By Nazi U-Boat

THIRTY-FIVE MISSING

Washington, June 10 (AP)— The United States government waited with concern today further information on the sinking of the American merchantman Robin Moor in the South Atlantic, reportedly by a German U-boat.

Concern was heightened by the fact that 35 persons had previously aboard the ship were missing. This includes 26 men of the crew and all eight passengers—among them, women and children.

The only official information received by the State Department thus far came from Ambassador Jeffers son Caffrey at Rio Janeiro. He reported last night that the 5,000 ton vessel "was sunk" in the South Atlantic May 21 but did not state the cause of the sinking.

Earlier however, the Navy Department had been given messages, intercepted by communications officials, which said the ship had been "torpedoed by a German submarine."

The Maritime Commission said its information was that the Robin Moor had a general cargo of automobiles, steel and other materials, but no munitions. The ship cleared New York May 4 for Capetown, South Africa.

The New York office of the Robin Line was without word of the vessel's fate, but said there had been no previous trouble with the vessel.

The information the State Department received from Caffrey was brief.

The Brazilian steamship Osorio on the radiogram from authorities at Portalexa that she had picked up 11 members of the Robin Moor's crew adrift in a lifeboat at 4 p.m. Sunday at latitude 00.46 north and longitude 27.27 west.

48 of Crew Safe After Torpedoing

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—Ten officers and 38 men, survivors of a British freighter torpedoed in the Atlantic, are safe in Canada.

Frank Walsh, formerly of Saint John, N.B., was the only Canadian among the survivors.

The men said their ship was westward bound to pick up a cargo of ore when torpedoed by one of the submarine struck. They said the torpedo struck it was "dead on" but was manned by an Indian crew.

Three of her 39-man crew were lost. They originally died in the explosion and one man died aboard the lifeboat. Two others are in a Canadian hospital.

For Walsh, it was the second time he has been torpedoed. He is returning in the past six months. He was rescued when his ship was sunk down off the Irish coast last January.

Mussolini Virtually Defies U. S. To Declare War Against the Axis

Rome, June 10 (AP)—Mussolini virtually defied the United States today to declare war against the Axis.

Addressing the Chamber of Fasces and Guilds on the anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, he declared Japan would be loyal to her pact with Germany and Italy in the event of a "American aggression against Japan."

"Japan's attitude is in perfect line with the tripartite pact," he said.

"The Japanese are a proud and loyal people who could not remain indifferent in the face of American aggression against the Axis."

He boasted that "Greece re-enters into Italy's vital space in the Mediterranean," charged Turkey had allied Greece in the Greco-Italian war, and said:

"It was a diathermatical certainty in April that without any Balkan distinction the Italians would have broken through the Greek defences."

'Ferocious Battle' Very Important in Nile Valley Defence

Churchill Accepts 'Full Responsibility' For Certain Campaign

DISCUSSION ON CRETE

London, June 10—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, facing the House of Commons to discuss the loss of Crete, declared today that this "terrible and ferocious battle" was "well worth fighting" and that it would play an "exceedingly important part" in the defence of the Nile Valley.

Mr. Churchill asked what there was in "this principle of error" and without a fight say place you can't not be sure of holding."

"Suppose we had never gone to Greece?" he asked in characteristic language. "And suppose we had never defended Crete? Where would the Germans be now?

"Suppose," he continued, "that we had simply resigned territory and strategic points to them without a fight, might they not at this early stage in the campaign of 1941 almost have reached Syria and Iraq and preparing themselves for an advance into Persia?"

"The question," said Mr. Churchill, "was whether we should try to defend Crete or yield it without a fight."

Takes Full Responsibility

In a voice throbbing with passion, Mr. Churchill accepted "full responsibility" for the Cretan campaign and he said that the lessons of Crete would be applied in the defence of Britain against air-borne and sea-borne attack.

Mr. Churchill declined to make a detailed statement on the war in the Eastern Mediterranean and he asserted that any prolonged criticism of his government would be "calculated to challenge the security of administration."

Weakness In Air Cause of Crete Defeat

The Prime Minister attributed Britain's defeat in Crete to her weakness in the air.

He said that Britain lost 15,000 in killed, wounded, missing and men taken prisoner in the battle of Crete and Cretans, in the Crete campaign, as against 5,000 Germans drowned and 12,000 killed or wounded. The Germans also lost 180 fighter planes and bombers, 150 troop-carrying aircraft, Mr. Churchill said.

No one responsible for the decision to defend Crete was ignorant of the fact that "only the most powerful air support" was available for the army and navy, Mr. Churchill told the House.

He said, too, that there were 23,000 to 30,000 good troops— I am certain that 25,000 — in Crete, artillery and tanks and the aid of the Cretan people would be able to destroy the enemy as he landed."

The army, he said, was to tackle the air-borne Germans and the navy was to guard against sea-borne attacks.

There was a time limit for the navy, however, he said, as we could only stand a certain proportion of losses before the army's guard fleet had to be withdrawn."

Mr. Churchill said that there was also new danger in Crete. Moreover, he said, has "no territorial designs in the Eastern Mediterranean."

Churchill Rejects Baxter's Suggestion For Empire War Cabinet

CLOSER WAR EFFORT

London, June 10—(CP) — Prime Minister Churchill today rejected a suggestion in the House of Commons that he form an Empire War Cabinet to include representatives of the dominions.

The Prime Minister replied "Not when a suggestion to this effect was made by Edgar Granville, National Liberal, who had raised the question in the House on several previous occasions.

The member also suggested that the statute of Westminster be amended to enable dominion prime ministers to attend sittings of the House of Commons during visits to Britain for consultation with the British Cabinet.

Mr. Granville, who said the amendment would facilitate close and more direct co-operation in the empire war effort, referred to a recent precedent at Ottawa when Prime Minister R. G. Menzies of Australia addressed the Canadian House of Commons. He asked Mr. Churchill if it would not be a good precedent to copy in Britain.

Departure in Principle

"This answer is no." the Prime Minister replied. "Anyone who has had any experience of the House of Commons will realize that such a step would be a complete departure in principle and everyone we have followed for many generations."

Mr. Churchill replied "I do not when Mr. Attlewaite asked if he thought the suggestion would be "a very good way of getting over difficulties in the dominions with regard to this."

Beverley Baxter, Toronto-born Conservative, criticized the War Cabinet for not having made known his recent suggestion in a newspaper article that there was to be no place under a "directorate of empire," consisting of Mr. Churchill, Mr. Menzies, Prime Minister J. G. Smuts of South Africa and Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps.

"The dominions must be represented in its present form." Mr. Baxter said that Britain was "not ready at any rate to victory in time to survive" without the advantages of a dictator."

The member claimed there were 2,000,000 people in Britain of like minded.

Mr. Baxter said the Empire War Cabinet, he continued, was that of "a committee" alone can speak for the country to America or to the dominions. "There is no Empire War Cabinet," with responsibilities more than nominal, he declared. This criticism, Mr. Baxter contended.

Hastings County Subscribes $1,037,550 to Victory Loan

Campaign Now in Second Stretch to Objective—Hardest Part of Work Ahead

WILLIAM STRANGE TO SPEAK HERE

One week of the Hastings County Victory Loan Campaign has passed with the thermometer outside campaign headquarters today pointed at $1,037,550 or well over the half-way mark to the objective of two million dollars.

Now into the home stretch with the objective goal looming above the distant campaign horizon canvassers and officials are tightening their belts for the hard drive that it is hoped will bring them under the wire a winner.

But they realize the final spurt will be one of the hardest of the campaign and ready with the cooperation of the residents of the county, to put Hastings in its rightful place as one of the first counties municipalities to achieve and surpass its quota.

Officials are losing no time in bringing outstanding speakers here to send out appeals to the public through broadcasts, the overall slogan being "Victory Loan Campaign in Canada and the Empire and the urgent necessity of the subscription and over-subscription of the loan.

According to officials today, Mr. William Strange, well-known citizen of the most dynamic speakers of the present time, will be here being brought to Belleville on Monday next.

Mr. Strange recently returned from Britain where he was given carte blanche by the British Government to travel anywhere in the British Isles so he could get a first hand view of conditions as they exist at present in the embattled Island. He saw the night-bombers rain down their hail of death on English cities. He saw the glare and fires of fire as it swept prominent buildings in the city of London. He saw the dead and the dying, and the little children, and thumbs up, smiling in their hours of pain.

The speaker has been connected with the CBC and is well-known for his radio and dramatic work. He has spoken before in this city and will be welcomed back at any time he can make it convenient to come.

Parade One of Largest

The parade, under the command of Col. A. E. Bywater, was one of the largest ever held in this town, and was headed by the Victory Banner carried by three members of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Following the banner was the Trenton mounted on an air force truck.

Judge Charles Cameron, Chairman of the Hastings County Victory Loan Committee, headed the canvassers and the municipal official at the rear of the Trenton truck. The R.C.A.F. band followed playing the peppy marching tunes of the air force and heading the parade were hundreds of airmen from the Trenton air station headed by Squadron Leader Denton Massey. The airmen were at their best swinging their arms in perfect precision.

Air cadets and cadettes of the Trenton High School marching with them and following the airmen also received the applause of the crowd during the parade. Other marchers were the veterans, Orange Lodge bands and men and the Salvation Army.

The parade formed up at College Street School and moved over a route which took it west on Dundas street to Bridge, thence back to Dundas southeasterly on King to Dundas and to the starting point.

Enlists With Royal Canadian Navy

William Ireland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Trenton, has enlisted with the Royal Canadian Navy and left for Kingston to commence training.

Lieutenant W. LaFontaine, of Frankford, Officer Commanding Headquarters Company of the Second Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has issued an appeal for ten men for active service. Those who enlist in this army men are required for summer training with the non-permanent militia.

Following the singing of "O Canada" and "God Save the King" the chairman gave prayer, urging prayer for various things.

Onward Christian Soldiers' was sung and Capt. Cecil Bonar of the Army Overseas Unit, C.W.A.C. Forces. Dr. S. H. Hobin gave the address. Signing of the Scroll which will be sent overseas to Prime Minister Churchill was in charge of J. M. Hartwick, vice-chairman, executive Committee, with Rev. Forsyth officiating. Signing for standard of the veterans were, Judge R. H. McLean, Reeve Hollis Rollins, Mrs. Ethel M. Small, secretary-treasurer of the Women's Institute, Warden D. Ferguson, Mayor McGibbon to come forward and sign.

The Concert Given

A fine concert by a forty-piece band composed of pupils of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational schools, addresses by P. C. McLaurin, Belleville, Sec. R. J. Fleming, and Group Captain C. H. Keith, R.A.F., Station Commander, and the standard of the thermometer to record Victory Bond sales at the hands of Mayor J. D. McGibbon, were features of the Saturday night Victory Loan rally in front of the City Hall commencing at 8 o'clock.

During the reading of the thermometer by Mayor McGibbon, the band played "O Canada" and during the addresses were interspersed with patriotic selections. Alfred Cooper is conductor and instructor of this promising group of young musicians and their concert on Saturday was greatly appreciated.

There is yet another such rally next Saturday night and the thermometer will be moved again to record sales to Belleville's objective. Let's make it $1,037,550 and R.C.A.F. parade is headed by Trenton R.C.A.F. band.

'Torch Day' Parade at Picton Attended by Several Thousands

Parade Long and Colorful With Special Speakers for the Occasion

VICTORY LOAN CONCERT

Picton, June 10.—The Torch Day parade and National Day of Prayer service in Picton Sunday afternoon was attended by several thousand people despite threatening weather and a high wind. It was one of the outstanding events in connection with the Victory Loan Campaign in Prince Edward County.

The parade was a long and colorful one, including a detachment from the R.C.A.F. Station, Camp Ed Bell, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (R.P.), a flight from the Royal Air Force, Picton Band, civic officials, Boy Scouts and Victory Loan Committee Executive, Collegiate Ladets and group of P.C.V.I. Senior Cadets under Capt. J. R. Sheriff, Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs Girl Guides and Overseas War Veterans, Canadian Legion and Legion Ladies' auxiliary, Salvation Army, Public Schools, several of the latter carrying flags.

Scouts Distribute Programs

Scouts gave out programs and the children were admitted to the grandstand on the fairgrounds, a side formed on the grass on either side of the grandstand.

The platform on which the ministers, mayor, chairs were erected, was colorfully decorated with Union Jacks flying in the breeze, Victory Loan banners and bunting and posters.

Rev. F. R. Foreman presided, three patriotic songs preceded the opening of the religious portion of the service, these being 'O Canada,' 'The Maple Leaf' and 'There'll Always Be an England.'

Following the singing of 'O God Our Help in Ages Past,' Rev. Foreman gave prayer, urging prayer for various things.

'Onward Christian Soldiers' was sung and Capt. Cecil Bonar of the Army Overseas Unit, C.W.A.C. Forces. Dr. S. H. Hobin gave the address. Signing of the Scroll which will be sent overseas to Prime Minister Churchill was in charge of J. M. Hartwick, vice-chairman, executive Committee, with Rev. Forsyth officiating. Pledge of Victory Taken By Thousands at Trenton

Trenton, June 10—Every family in Trenton should purchase at least one fifty dollar Victory Bond, said Mayor Harry Cory, speaking to the hundreds of Trentonians who participated in the parade and service held here Monday afternoon.

"We are proud today to be part of the Empire," said Mayor Cory. "We are proud of our men in uniform who have given up their homes, their friends and their families in order that they could help preserve our own life if necessary in the struggle for democracy.

"What are we doing over here?" he asked. "Are we living under a soft life far from the battle front? Are we not aware that in England the people are all in the front line and have suffered bombing raid after bombing raid. They have lost their homes, their churches and in some cases their everything. They are the ones who are suffering.

"Time to Tighten Belts

"It is time for us to tightened our belts and did a little to aid British army, navy and airforce. England needs tools, the tanks, the machine guns, the ships, the submarine chasers, the transportation and we in Canada should supply them.

"Who are more indebted and has more right to, furnish the tools than Canada," asked Mayor Cory. "We have basked under the guns of the British navy long enough. Canada is asking its people to lend their money to the government at an excellent interest. Can we not do even this little thing?"

"We are indeed honoured to have the torch brought to this town," the mayor stated. "In signing this pledge we are pledging ourselves to carry on the Torch until victory has been won."

The Pledge

Taking the pledge, hundreds of people, airmen, officers, cadettes, cadets, cadettes, solemnly repeated the words, "I pledge my life to Almighty God and reaffirm my loyalty and allegiance to His Majesty, the King and further declare my support to British institutions. I pledge myself and my all to support the Torch on high and to stand shoulder to shoulder with our Motherland and the Empire in our righteous cause. We are sharing in England's and the Empire's anguish and enduring peace."

Capt. F. R. Ireland pronounced the prayers for victory and "God Save the King" was sung to conclude the service.

Prior to the service held in Governor Simcoe Park, the church parade was held from College Street School, shortly after 12'ers closed the Torch arrived at the school from Cobourg, under escort of the Provincial constables and three Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

BAY OF QUINTE CLERICAL UNION

The spring meeting of the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union was held in the basement of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Napanee, on Thursday, June 5th. The Rev. J. B. Creggan, President of the Union, opened the meeting with the Litany of Remembrance. After a short business session, the Rev. J. B. Creggan gave a review of Canon Barry's book, "Faith in Dark Ages." This was followed by a paper, "Present Day Problems" by the Rev. R. Vesey.

MANAGER OF AGNEW SURPASS STORE MOVED TO COBOURG

Alex Clarke, popular manager of the Agnew Surpass Shoe store received word from his head office today that he was being transferred to their new store at Cobourg. Mr. Clarke came to Belleville from Woodstock five years ago. He is succeeded by E. Rancier, formerly connected with the Agnew Surpass stores at Oshawa and Midland.

Mr. Clarke will be missed by his many friends in Belleville as he has been extremely active in affairs of local interest.

FISHING PARTY GETS FINE MESS OF TROUT

The creeks in the north country are still yielding some fine specimens of speckled trout. Tuesday three Church Street fishermen took advantage of the holiday and patrolled the streams north of and in the vicinity of Rancroft and came home with nineteen beauties, the largest of which tipped the scales at over a pound and one-quarter.

Other fishermen, however, were not so fortunate. The cool weather apparently had some effect on the appetites of the fish, and several of the fishing fraternity came back empty handed.

STRAWBERRIES SELL ONE BOX FOR 25c.; LIGHT OFFERING

The possible shortness of the current season's strawberry crop was reflected in the slim attendance by vendors on the local produce market this morning when only a few farmers had strawberries for sale. Prices held at twenty-five cents per box for single boxes or for four-five and ten cent boxes. Crate lots were being held at the $2.50 mark, although vendors were not particular about selling their lots off in that manner as they felt the demand would warrant the holding for the higher price.

COUNTY COUNCIL NOW IN SESSION

With Warden W. J. Davis, of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure Township officials, the Hastings County Council, some thirty-one strong, convened this afternoon for the inaugural session of the annual sitting. Much important work is slated for this session on agenda, including discussion and consideration of assessment of the various municipalities; striking of the tax rate, weekly rates, etc. and other business.

The sitting will last Friday.

ROTARIANS TAKE PLEDGE OF VICTORY

With Rotarian Dr. James Semple in the principal role, members of the Belleville Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon yesterday, took the pledge of victory that is being taken by thousands of Canadians during the tour of the new famous "Torch" across Canada.

Standing, with their right hands placed over their hearts, the clubmen repeated the solemn words after Dr. Semple.

Later it was announced by President Percy McGuire, that the club would inaugurate payments on a Victory Bond at the regular meeting on Monday next.

FLOAT CAVALCADE PASSES THRU CITY

The cavalcade of floats which spent the night outside the city limits before proceeding to an exterior point, caused mild excitement among Front Street pedestrians when some of the brightly decorated vehicles came in contact with banners strung across the street this morning.

The cavalcade, which is scheduled to put in an official appearance here on Friday, June 13th, was finally extricated from its predicament and proceeded on its way.

Owing to a misunderstanding of a route broadcast yesterday, which stated the cavalcade would visit Belleville on Monday, crowds of people waited in the downtown sections last night, but went home disappointed when no floats put in an appearance.

Official announcement of the time the cavalcade will pass through Belleville on Friday will be made later.

CYCLISTS WARNED BY CITY POLICE

Belleville police have repeatedly warned cyclists against the riding of bicycles upon the city footbridge across the Moira. Many offenders are taken to the police station and given a severe reprimand. However, such mild treatment has not succeeded in the future and any person apprehended riding a bicycle on the footbridge or its approaches can expect no sympathy from the police.

Last evening when walking across the footbridge, Mrs. Clara Bourette, 27 Church Street, was hit by a bicycle and knocked down. The bike was ridden by a young girl about 13 years of age, who rode off without as much as showing concern or rendering assistance. Mrs. Bourette sustained leg lacerations and suffered slightly from shock as the result of being hit by the bicycle. Police officials report today that no additional warnings will be issued and that those apprehended in violation of this city ordinance will be hailed into court and prosecuted.

SPITZ POMERANIAN TAKEN TO POUND

A Spitz Pomeranian dog, bearing a 1940 Thurlow Township dog tag, was found wandering at large on St. Charles Street by Chas. Thorne, city poundkeeper, yesterday, and was taken into custody and held. Mr. Thorne stated that the dog tag attached to a collar was registered in Thurlow Township last year.

POLICE BLOTTER

Mischievous boys playing in the vicinity of the rear of the Fruit Machinery on Front Street are blamed for the destruction of numerous panes of glass on the west side of the premises. Mr. Frank Foley, manager of the plant, told police today that the lads were in the habit of playing behind the building after supper hours at which time they broke the windows.

Bicycle Reported Stolen

Theft of a bicycle was reported stolen in the city during the past 24 hours. Fred Hillier, 70 Benjamin Street, told police he parked his bike on the old No. 1 fire hall late yesterday, and when he returned it was gone.

James Mills 16 Chatham Street, left his bicycle opposite the Post Office while watching the "Torch Parade" last evening. During his absence the bike was taken away, but in the second time within a month the Mills' bicycle has been taken. Previously it was recovered.

Provincial Police Report

Provincial Police reported the theft of a 1927 model Chevrolet coach bearing Ontario licence plates number 1-N-327. The vehicle was stolen from Brewers' Mills, north of Kingston.

Two Young Men Given Jail Term for Theft

James Miller, Belleville, was sentenced to serve one month in the common jail, while his crime partner, 18-year-old Frank Campbell also of Belleville, received a 21-day term after both young men had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft. Sentence was passed by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court.

Miller and Campbell were jointly charged with the theft of a motor car valued at $100.00 from an automobile, the property of A. C. Reynolds, manager of the Bell Telephone Co. Coleman Street. According to evidence presented by Detective Frederick Ellis, the theft took place on the night of June 3rd and the car was found in the Interlocutor Issard apprehended Miller and the city police. Subsequent investigations later apprehended Campbell. The two readily admitted the theft when taken before the Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. who was also present.

Mr. Reynolds informed the court the car was valued for $600.00 when new.

"I don't think Campbell is quite as experienced in crime as Miller," stated Mr. Donnan, inferring that more clemency should be made in the matter of punishment. His worship after having previously warned Miller in a juvenile court, was thus the more lengthy sentence was imposed upon Miller, His Worship explained.

Motorist's Licence Suspended

An Air Force N.C.O. had his motor driver's licence suspended following a conviction under the H.T.A. to conclude the proceedings.

Obituary

MRS. W. J. MAGRATH

(Formerly of Belleville)

Old friends in Belleville of Mrs. W. J. Magrath will regret to learn of her death which occurred in Richmondon Alberta, on Friday last, June 6th. Mrs. Magrath and her late husband were prominent residents of Belleville for many years and resided on Hillside Street. During their residence here they were active in the work of Holloway Street Church the Y.M.C.A. and other worthy undertakings. They left Belleville in the year 1905.

The following regarding the death of Mrs. Magrath appeared in the Hanna Journal of June 9th:

"Ada Thirsee Magrath, 78, widow of William Magrath, died at Hanna Edmonton real estate man, died Friday at the home of her son-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, 11136 62 st.

Born at Belleville, Ontario, the McDougall Church" and later of Wesley Methodist Church, Edmonton, and was prominent in various social welfare agencies.

Ada boulevard in the Highlands was named after her. It was in that street in 1913 that her husband built a beautiful house valued at more than $100,000. Known ever since as the "Magrath house" and the city's finest private park.

Mr. Magrath died Nov. 7, 1930.

Mrs. Magrath was born in Tamworth, Ont. She was married in 1884 to Mr. Shadrach Magrath. For some years they lived at Belleville, then went to Manitoba. He was in the cheese exporting business. They came to Edmonton in 1906 on the first C.P.R. train to reach Strathcona.

She was a member of the first Edmonton board of directors of the Y.W.C.A.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. Ada Thirsee, and one son, Adrian, in Edmonton."

The funeral took place on Monday, June 9th, to Highlands United Church where the service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Cleland. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

DAVID WRIGHT

Mr. David Wright, Coleman Street, passed away on Sunday afternoon, June 8th in Belleville General Hospital. Deceased had been a patient for the past ten days. Born in Ada Isle, Ont., 74 years in his 68th year, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, a son of the late John and Mrs. Andrew Wright.

A cabinet maker and finisher by trade he operated a shop on the old Coleman Street for a number of years. Mr. Wright was a member of Andrew's Presbyterian Church and was a member of Orange Lodge.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. (Funeral notice later.)

MRS. WILLIAM N. FERRY

Mrs. William N. Ferry died suddenly at her residence, 32 Queen Street on Monday evening, June 9, at the age of 72 years.

Born in Ida Isle, Ont., in the late 70th year, was born near Port Hope. She was the former Miss Ida Mae Mary Ashton Canal, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Cann. For some years she resided in Port Hope and for the past twenty-eight years she made her home in Belleville. She was a resident in this city Mrs. Ferry made many friends, in whose regard she held a high place and to whom her sudden death has brought sincere regret. In religion Mrs. Ferry was a faithful member of the Bridge Street Presbyterian Church and took an active part in the work of the congregation. During a member of the Women's Missionary Society. She also gave her support to the work of the United Cross and to other worthy objects.

Surviving her is one sister, Mrs. Florence Ashton, Belleville. Her husband died about years ago.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, St. Church Street, until Wednesday noon, then at her late residence. Funeral notice of interment is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. ROBERT MARTIN

(Frankford) Contributed

In the death on Friday of Robert Martin, Ivanhoe has lost one of its most highly respected residents. Mrs. Martin passed away at her home on May 26th, after an illness of a few weeks, in her early 70th year.

Mrs. Martin's maiden name was Annie Gawley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gawley of Marmora Township. She was a member of the Methodist church. On June 3rd, 1891 she was married to Robert M. S. She was well known for her kindness of heart and lived a life of service and devotion to her family and many friends.

Her husband, the late Robert Martin, predecessed her five years ago and a son, Jean Martin, veteran of the World War, predeceased her in 1936.

Surviving to mourn her passing are three daughters, Mrs. Ethel Reid, Ivanhoe, Maggie, at home and Mrs. Walter Gawley, Malone; one son, Charles, one sister-in-law, Mrs. Jas. Martin, Campbellford.

"Papa" Vandreuil Revisits Belleville After 10-Year Absence
A grizzled veteran of the last Great War walked into the office of Ontario Intelligencer, tugged a pedometer from his pocket and declared that he had walked a total of 1,000 miles since leaving Brussels in 1921. He was Mr. Jean de Vaudreuil of Quebec City, here on his second walk across Canada in the interest of cooperative work.
"Papa" Vandreuil, as he is popularly known, has an arm while fighting for Belgium in the Great War of 1916-18, and also suffered a leg injury from a shell explosion on a walking tour of the world in 1927. Despite this, he spent the first month from the Belgian Government stopped with the Canadian Government stopped with the Canadian Government stopped with the Canadian Government stopped with that country. But he still goes on walking tours of the world despite his half paralyzed leg.
"I see many people", he said. "Some good, some not so good, but they are all the same as before. She not so friendly now".
He carried with him a packet which he called his "Passport" and books that are mementos of his pioneering across the world. Pictures picked up in China, in India and in the land a monochrome air to his treasures, while testimonials from responsible authorities of towns which he passed through are among the prize possessions.
It is ten years since he was in Belleville before and he is en route to Halifax. From there — "Who knows, possibly United States, possibly Mexico", he says. Wherever it is, Papa Vaudreuil never accepts a ride, but walks all the way. Following is a testimonial he received from the postmaster:
"To whom it may concern:
Mr. Jean de Vaudreuil of Brussels, Belgium, called at my office today after an absence of ten years. I supplied him with a letter of certification. I find that he looks a little older, but not in spirits, and I sincerely trust that he will continue in good health and that he may have a pleasant journey through Canada, and a safe conclusion to his travels. Up to this time he has travelled 66,999 miles.

Canada's People Provide the Tools and the Men for a Free People's Job

"Never in the history of war have eleven million people given so freely and pledged so fully their treasure, their resources and their manhood."

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada.

STEEL • ALLOYS • BASE METALS

RALLYING to the defence of free institutions, the Canadian people are putting forth the greatest effort in their history. Each day, Canada's war effort is costing her about $4,000,000.

A quarter of a million of her sons are on active service; 175,000 more are enrolled in her reserve army. In ninety centres, the great British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is turning out airmen. For this direct war effort, Canadians will be called upon to provide during the next year about $1,450,000,000.

Besides equipping and maintaining her own troops, Canada has become a major source of supply for Britain. An aircraft industry has been built from the ground up. Naval vessels, motor transport vehicles, universal carriers, machine guns, mortars, bombs, shells and ammunition, chemicals, electrical and radio apparatus, base metals, alloys, steel, are pouring from Canadian mills and factories. Tanks, cargo vessels, field and naval guns, anti-tank guns, rifles, are on the way. It is planned to build destroyers.

To build or extend plants, capital advances of $380,000,000 have been made by the British and Canadian governments. Britain will be provided in the next twelve months with some $1,500,000,000 worth of munitions of war, raw materials and agricultural products. To help pay for this, Canada will furnish over $1,150,000,000 in credits.

To do all this, Canada needs your savings . . . NOW! Make your dollars work and fight for victory. Put them into Victory Bonds!

LOAN FOR SECURITY

The security that the Dominion of Canada offers is like no other security Canadians can have. It is the ultimate security, the greatest security possible.

Security today has a wider meaning than it formerly had in general use. It means all that Canada and the British Empire stand for. It means all that the ages which have gone to the upbuilding of British democratic liberty mean. It means more than that. It means the continued expansion of that liberty and security into the future beyond the end of this war.

The money that the people of Canada are asked today to invest in the Victory War Loan offers this greatest security. Canadians are not asked to give this money they are asked to loan it to the Government and receive therefor interest at more than three per cent and at maturity they have their principal back.

In the interim what will have been done? The Government will have been enabled to gear up still faster and more completely Canada's war machine, to add recruits to the army of the Dominion and to build and build and build war equipment, so as to place her full strength in the battleline against the Hun and Fascist. And best of all it will preserve this Canada, this Empire, this Motherland, rescue the races from the heel of Hitler's savage hordes and lead the revival and the expanding life of democracy in the future days. And in those future days democracy, meaning what it does, will make it certain that no nation or combination of nations can again waylay civilization and try to hold up the world at the end of a gun and a command from the Hun.

All these are forms of the security which investment in Canada's third war loan, the Victory Loan, brings to us. Britain, the Empire and Allies will win. Canadians get their money back with interest and besides, have the knowledge that they have stood by their country in danger's hour, that they have helped to make possible a permanence of liberty and freedom in the world, that they have liberated the overrun peoples from the thraldom of the worshippers of Hun pagan gods.

Nothing but victory counts. Without victory life would be a nightmare of the Huns, destroying everything that is precious and acting in ways more savage than imagination can picture.

With victory will attend all the precious things of life, all the developments and possibilities of which human life, individual and social, is capable.

British and Empire soldiers deem the cost not too great even if it means their lives. Certainly Canadian dollars will help to win.

The response of Canada to date is most gratifying. It shows Canada is alert to the needs. She will raise beyond the six hundred million dollars. For liberty and the satisfaction of knowing that they are doing a good deed, Canadians will support the loan.

Canada possesses the sinews of war. She is fortunate in that she has vast resources, unexhausted. She has wealth which she can pour into the Government to make the bullets, the shells and the bombs to end the Hitler threat and abolish Nazism and Fascism.

With her Victory War Loan Canada will fire a shot heard round the world—the confident outpouring of the Dominion's faith in the successful outcome of the war, the confidence and expression of her own steadfastness.

Around Germany are trampled races which the Huns have overrun. They cannot of themselves alone recover their liberty. That task is to be performed with the resources and men of Britain and the Empire with the great aid of the United States.

Every Canadian will be proud to have a share in the victory. The fight for victory is an all-out, one-hundred-per-cent effort. It is the privilege and the duty of all to have a part in preserving all that is treasured of liberty.

If you do what you should not, you must bear what you would not.—Frankiin.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS . . .

By Gordon Sinclair

The Torch of Victory has come and gone. The beautiful golden symbol of Canada's determination to assist Britain with her very all was viewed by thousands in this city and county. Tall, straight as the fine-looking representatives of the fighting services who are guarding it during its trans-Canada flight, the Torch appeared to radiate from its golden sheen that confidence in the Empire, and willingness to help, that permeated all who saw it.

It bears within its slender base above the square pedestal upon which is emblazoned Canada's coat of arms in colors, a scroll of honor. On that scroll will be inscribed the names of ranking officials of every city and town and hamlet in which the Torch has been the centre of ceremonies that were as colorful as they were sincere. Every signature upon that scroll will be a beacon light of hope to an embattled British people. It will aflame anew the determination of the dogged heroes of the combatant nations, and, to the end and for all the curse of Nazism. It will bring a new surge of pride in this far-flung Dominion.

And it will carry to Hitler and his satellites the firm belief of this Dominion in the ideals of British liberty, freedom and democratic principles, in a manner that should dispel once and for all any ideas he may have had about Canada breaking away from the Motherland.

Lindbergh, alleged Wendell Willkie, in an address the other day stated that what the United States needs is another leader. Let's see, what are the words of that song so popular in the days of the last war:

"If you don't like your Uncle Sammy,
Then go back to your home o'er the sea.
To the land from whence you came,
Whatever be its name,
But don't be ungrateful to me.

If you don't like the Stars in Old Glory.
If you don't like the Red, White and Blue
Then don't act like the cur in the story
Don't bite the hand that's feeding you."

The meek and mild call Lindbergh's talk "bosh." There is another word for it that is pronounced the same but is spelled slightly different.

There is one lesson the schoolchildren of this city taught in the program at the Torch Parade in the fair grounds last night, and that was how to cheer. When the Torch arrived hundreds of small Union Jacks waved in the breeze and hundreds of childish throats emitted shrill "Hurrahs." This city has been decidedly cool in demonstrations or military parades since the war began. Hastings County's finest can march through city streets and get the immediate impression that they are going to a funeral. Not a sound is heard not even a funeral note. That's not the spirit m'lads, give the boys a cheer ,and make it a loud one as the troops march by.

A new naval shore establishment was recently inaugurated in England at which all the personnel were women, members of the W.R.E.N.S. These shore stations are officially known as ships and this, so far as is known, is the first occasion on which one of His Majesty's "ships" has been commissioned with an entirely female crew.

Now that food cards for dogs are issued in the Netherlands, penalties will undoubtedly be provided for burying bones.—Calgary Herald

THE INDIVIDUAL CHOICE

He thought to live his life alone,
"The days and years are mine," said he
"And every right to them I own,
Their joys belong to me.

"My life is mine to live and lose.
Mine to feed and clothe.
And what to do with it I'll choose
Let other tongues be still."

Nor did he learn until too late
Each life is but a thread

Run through the warp and woof of fate,
And all delight and dread.

That none wherever he may fare
Holds pride or shame alone
Or from all pleasure and despair
Can separate his own.

In triumph many hearts rejoice
In failure many sigh
Upon the individual choice
The hopes of many lie.

What to Send To England

What are the best foods to send to rationed relatives and friends in Britain? A well-known Montreal provisioner yesterday had an answer. Onions today are worth their weight in gold in Britain, so write up on the list cases of dehydrated onion or onion powder. A little goes a long way in giving that tangy onion flavor to stews and salads which otherwise might taste "flat."

Cheese also appears on the list. Britons, who love cheese, under ration regulations today, are allowed only three ounces per person per month. Citrus fruits, according to reports from Overseas, have closely approached a state of non-existence in the British Isles, so concentrated orange juice is a bright item for the list. A one pound tin of concentrated orange juice makes a gallon of orange juice.

That typical Canadian product, maple sugar, will please many a famishing soul in Britain, for sugar is a good idea. Many chocolate peppermints already are crossing the Atlantic in Overseas mail parcels side. Concentrated coffee and chocolate are also good.

Tinned butter is destined to receive a warm welcome. So are tinned ham and tongue. The much-loved marmalade, which appears both at breakfast and at the tea hour in British homes, will be received with rejoicing. So also will be the very practical gift of canned milk. Apricot juice and pineapple juice are happy gift thoughts. So are dried apricots and prunes.

"Tinned pork, going by the name of Spork, will not only make a fine sandwich spread but can also be served at breakfast. Tinned sausages and chicken have a well-deserved place on the list. Cooking raisins will also be appreciated.

According to recent reports from Britain on rationed foods the meat ration is fixed "very short" with much of the ration used up on week-ends so that parents and children may have a big Sunday dinner; sugar, very little; margarine, rather short but helped by using unrationed nut-oil for cooking purposes. The meat ration is enlarged by unrationed sausages but they are "difficult to get in proper quantity." It is enlarged further by half the bacon ration changed to gammon (smoked pork) which supplies another meat dish once a week.

Entirely disappearing from the market are onions, lemons, oranges and bananas.—Montreal Gazette.

A GREAT LANDOWNER

Uncle Sam is one of the greatest landowners in the world.

Through its various real estate holdings the federal government now owns one-fifth of the land in the United States.

This land comprises the public domain, national parks and monuments, sites for postoffices, courthouse and other federal buildings, army camps and military posts, naval and marine stations, national cemeteries, national forest purchase units, and lands held in trust by the federal government as the result of foreclosures.

The public domain alone comprises about 1,800,000,000 acres.

There are about 20,000,000 acres in federal parks, monuments and wildlife reserves.

Indian land holdings comprise about 56,000,000 acres.

The land holdings of the federal government are increasing rather than decreasing.

In the days when the West was being developed the federal government gave 158,000,000 acres of land to railroad companies to build 215,000 miles of railroads.

Some 8,000,000 acres of this land passed to the railroads but never disposed of by them has been restored recently to the public domain.

The railroads are returning the land to the federal government community interest.

Because they want to free themselves as much as possible from their obligation to transport government property and personel at reduced rates.

About 8,100,000 acres of the public domain is now being used by the Navy and War Departments for training purposes in connection with the national defence program.

As federal territories were admitted into the Union as states, the federal government reserved title to the public domain, much of which is gradually disposed of to individuals.

But Texas was an independent republic when she joined the Union and she preserved title to her own public lands, accordingly the federal government never has owned all such land in the largest state compared with many other states.

The federal government may acquire lands owned by individuals by simple purchase, by gift or by eminent domain.

Under the Constitution the federal government has the right to take private property for public uses without the consent of the owner, provided just compensation is given.

Eminent domain is based on the principle that an individual's private interest should not be allowed to stand in the way of the Part of U. S. Debt to Britain

By W. H. GREGORY

American cattle raisers, and in fact, cattle raisers of the entire world, owe a debt to the British husbandman.

No matter how many of us, when we eat a steak, remember that but for the centuries of breeding done by the Scotch and English, this would be a tough steak of the American longhorn cattle, such as the Texas Longhorn steer, which the Conquistadores of Spain brought into the new world.

Already the breeding stock of one of our four major dairy breeds is in grave danger of extermination. The great black and white Holstein cattle of Holland are doubtless being slaughtered to feed the German army, as well as the farmers and civilians of the Channel islands off the coast of France.

Only in the County of Ayr, in southwest Scotland, where the Ayrshire breed of dairy cattle comes from, has not been conquered.

The three major breeds of beef cattle in America are, of course the Shorthorn, the Hereford and the Aberdeen-Angus, all three of them from Britain.

The Shorthorn breed is a native in northeast England. The breed was developed in the early 1700's, and still Shorthorn breeders all over the world look to this county of England for blood to make their cattle better.

The second great beef breed in America, the Hereford, known by its red coat and white face, originated in Herefordshire on the western border of England, an area noted for its gently rolling hills and wide flat valleys.

Through the years, Hereford cattle have changed from the extremely large cattle, weighing from 2,000 to 3,500 pounds to the smaller and smoother cattle, weighing around a ton when mature.

Herefords have been exported from this part of England to the Argentine Republic, to Uruguay, Brazil, Chile, United States, Canada, Mexico, Australia, New South Wales, Queensland, New Zealand, South Africa, British East Africa, Rhodesia, and many other countries.

The farmers in all these countries are still looking for Herefordshire to produce blood strains to improve their herds.

The third great beef breed in America, and also originated in the Aberdeen-Angus, the black, hornless cattle which come to us from the Counties of Aberdeen, Kincardeen and Forfarshire, in Scotland.

In addition to these three main beef breeds, there are other breeds of beef cattle which we have imported from Britain. They include the Galloway, the West Highland, the Red Poll, the Devons and Milking Shorthorns.

We are indebted to Britain for the Clydesdale horse, as this we are for our beef steaks, because all of our modern type sheep came from this island.

The thoroughbred horse also originated in England and is the only breed stock of practical all breed, of light horses, including the American trotter, the American pacer and standard bred. The American saddle horse, called the Kentucky saddle horse, was bred up from thoroughbreds which are descendants of the thoroughbreds of England.

Even the children's Shetland pony traces to us from the Shetland islands, to the north of Scotland.

Colorful Ceremony and Parade For Pledge and Victory Torch Enthuse Belleville Audience

Dr. R. C. Wallace of Queen's University Delivers Address at Fair Grounds.

6,000 ATTEND

"We all must realize that this struggle is one to a finish and that victory will not come unless we, as Canadians put our all in it, set our teeth and pull together for the things worthwhile," Dr. Robert C. Wallace, M.A., principal of Queen's University, Kingston, told a Torch Parade crowd of six thousand in the Fair Grounds last night.

"If we do not do that," he said, "we show that we are not satisfied with life, that can only come under a system of government as we know it. We will have better things when the war is brought up. Victory will come and life will not be worth living without it.

"The men at the front have proved that they are equally as good as the enemy and a bit better in fact, if they only are given the tools with which to do the job," Dr. Wallace declared. "These men are praying for our help and they know we will not fail them, for this country is deep-rooted in loyalty. We must give all that is asked and see that everything we can spare is given to the government in order that victory be secured. Guns, shells, ships, munitions, men must be sent if we are to achieve that victory."

Must Make Up Mind To Help

"But that victory will not come," he added, "unless we have in our hearts the will to make these things possible. If we are not determined to help, then we are not worth that victory. Canadians must make up their minds each in his own individual way to assist in making it possible."

"This I know," the speaker said, "Belleville and other districts of the Dominion will do this in a rich measure so that we, our children, and our children's children can live the life we love, deep-rooted and eternal in the values of life."

Every nation on earth faces a crisis at some time or other, Dr. Wallace asserted, and Great Britain is facing her crisis now. Everything worthwhile is in danger of going under. People in Canada are living a peaceful life without hindrance and with none to say them nay. As we survey through the peaceful countryside today, he said, he thought of the many advantages Canadians have. He thought of the happy minorities here; the homes with their boys and girls; of religion; of church; of the opinions Canadians hold of things that are sacred; of working in their own way; the schools, universities, of home and freedom and liberty.

"These are the warp and woof of life," he said, "and if we do not bring this war to a successful conclusion, all will be taken from us. The things we are fighting are evil things. They will take away the decent things of life, the decent people and all that goes to make life smooth. These will all disappear under the Hitler regime."

"If people here hold that Britain fights for territory, the answer should be easy," the speaker declared. "We are not fighting for territory we would have been prepared for the war. The very fact that we were not prepared is evidence that we did not desire war. We desired peace, but we are now fighting because that peace is not possible under the heel of the conqueror," he concluded.

The Torch

With the brilliant June sun radiating a golden fire from its handsomely designed figure, the "Torch of Victory" symbolic of Canada's determination to assist the Empire with her all, occupied a place of honor on the flag-bedecked speakers' dais. As it was carried to the dais by his official party, Sub-Lieutenant J. D. McRae, Royal Canadian Navy; Lieutenant Eagle of Stanbury, Royal Canadian Artillery and Flight-Lieutenant Ian Bremner, Royal Canadian Air Force, thousands of throats echoed cheers. Small Union Jacks, carried by attending schoolchildren, flashed in the evening sunshine. Shrill voices of the children echoed the cheers of the older people. Parading service men and cadets stood at attention.

The Torch was brought from Trenton where similar ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon by a special R.C.A.F. plane, draped with the famous double blue and red of the Dominion.

Special Guard of Honor

It was accompanied with a special guard of honor of Royal Canadian Mounted Police and was escorted by Highway Traffic Officers Hatch and McKellar.

It arrived shortly after 8.30 p.m. at the Fair Grounds where an eager crowd of school children, grown-ups, veterans and others awaited it. The Torch procession moved through the grounds to the track in front of the grandstand where curious thousands strained to get a glimpse of the Torch.

Later in the program, to the mingled cheers of the crowd, the guard of representatives of the fighting services carried the Torch around the track in front of the grandstand in order that people could get a closer view.

The climax of the ceremonies was the signing of the Pledge by His Worship Mayor Glen E. Thompson, the Honor Judge Charles A. Cameron, General Chairman of the Committee for the Pledge and D. D. Arnott, K.C., M.P.P. Their signatures were to be a permanent illumination of the people of this county to do all and every effort to assist Britain to win the war. Mayor Thompson and his accompanying aides, which bears the signatures of officials of each city and town in the county which has taken part in its journey across Canada, will later be framed and hung where it will be presented to Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain.

Colorful Parade

Prior to the ceremonies the colorful parade composed of a large turnout of Army and Navy veterans, the Canadian National Railway veterans in maroon blazers and white flannel trousers; the Belleville Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps, Girl Cadets from the same institution, the girls in their white uniforms; girls' and boys' Cadet Corps of the City Public Schools; Boy Scouts and Girl Guides and the detachment of the Ontario Volunteer Constabulary marched individually through the fairly streets to the grounds. Here they were joined by the Belleville Municipal Band, the 49th Belleville Pipers' Band and the Belleville Public Schools' Band.

Awaiting the arrival of the Torch at the mammoth bonfire at the leadership of Lieut. Fred Jobson, regaled the crowd with spirited marching from a spot in front of the grandstand. Later the band of the Royal Canadian Air Force arrived and assisted in the parade through city streets which concluded the Torch parade ceremonies. A colorful feature of the parade was a Red Cross truck in which were seated four members clad in the blue uniforms and white headgarbs of the Red Cross. They exhibited as they slowly wound their way along the route of parade. The truck was loaned by Trudeau Motors.

The Pledge

A dramatic moment in the ceremonies occurred when the Rev. D. A. Chatrau, minister of Emmanuel Church here, read aloud the pledge of loyalty. His thousand heads were bowed and six thousand voices echoed the words of the new Empire pledge: "I hereby declare my belief in Almighty God, and reaffirm my loyalty and allegiance to His Majesty, the King, and further declare my support for British Institutions. I pledge myself and my all to hold the Torch on high and to march shoulder to shoulder with the Motherland and the Empire in our righteous cause through victory and enduring peace."

Singing of verses of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and "Rule Britannia," marked the opening of the ceremonies which was followed by prayers by Adjutant Smith of the Salvation Army and a prayer for His Majesty's forces and victory by Padre Harry Lumley, padre of Stanbiry, Royal Canadian Artillery and Flight-Lieutenant Ian Bremner, Royal Canadian Air Force, thousands of throats echoed cheers. Small Union Jacks, carried by attending schoolchildren, flashed in the evening sunshine. Shrill voices of the children echoed the cheers of the older people. Parading service men and cadets stood at attention.

WALKER STORES, LIMITED BELLEVILLE

Victory Loan Cavalcade Leaves On Tour of Eastern Ontario

Having returned from a triumphant tour of Western Ontario, the now famous Victory Loan cavalcade rolled eastward out of Toronto Monday morning.

On its eastward tour the cavalcade will proceed to Ottawa via Oshawa, Port Hope, Kingston and Belleville. It will return to Toronto from Ottawa via Carleton Place, Smith's Falls, Belleville, Peterborough, Barrie and Aurora.

In the first 1,000 miles of its tour the cavalcade was viewed by 750,000 persons. Major J. C. Eliard, District Supply and Transport Officer of Military District No. 3, reports an enthusiastic reception in all cities, towns, villages and hamlets on the Western Ontario tour.

The cavalcade is made up of 40 trucks mounted with floats, 10 motorcycles and six other vehicles. Its personnel includes a military band of 30 pieces. Concerts by the latter have attracted large crowds in a number of places.

Floats making up the cavalcade are poster picture style and are mounted on trailer trucks. They are designed and arranged in such a way as to tell the story of war and of war finance, what we must avoid, what Canada is doing, what Canada needs in the way of military equipment, and the necessity of buying bonds in order to achieve victory.

Floats are arranged in sequence with a slogan printed along the side. The first one is the "King and Queen" float, donated by the Ontario Government, which bears the slogan "In the Front Line." Other floats in the cavalcade have been donated by leading industrial firms and service clubs and the R. C. A. F.

Everywhere we went we were met by large and enthusiastic crowds," Major Eliard states. "The streets of cities and towns were lined with thousands of citizens, overflowing the sidewalks on to the street itself. People from the surrounding territory poured into the towns so that in many cases we were met by a crowd larger than the population of the town itself. School children were given time off to see the parade. In some localities even the factories shut down for a few hours so that their employees would not miss seeing the cavalcade.

Eagerly Viewed by Thousands

"As we rolled along the highway, farmers in the field stopped work and ran over to the highway in order to get a good view of the show. Motorists pulled off the highway and indicated their enthusiasm by honking their horns.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly that the Ontario Victory Loan Publicity Committee deserves a lot of credit for its enterprise. From my conversations with people throughout Western Ontario, I know that the cavalcade did a great deal to impress people with the necessity of the Victory Bonds. Every one of the 750,000 people who have seen the cavalcade must be regarded as potential Victory Bond subscribers."

In Windsor it is estimated that between 80,000 and 70,000 people turned out to see the cavalcade. In London, a local parade of military units, bands and various organizations were incorporated with the cavalcade, the latter being reported to be the longest London has seen since the days of the First Great War. Furthermore, the crowd was the largest turn out since the Queen and King visited London two years ago.

New Publication By Ford of Canada

Facts of public interest regarding the civilian and military products of one of Canada's largest industries are presented in a new all-Canadian publication, Ford Facts, the first issue of which is now being circulated.

This publication portrays the answer of one Canadian company to Winston Churchill's "Give us the tools". It shows how the more than 12,000 workers in the company's plant at Windsor, Ontario, produce mechanized transport of many types in such numbers that Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, has become the largest single source of this equipment in the British Empire.

Ford Times is reduced in the style of the modern picture magazine and with many photographs presents an interesting story of the activities of the company's employees and dealers, particularly in regard to the war effort of this large industrial unit.

One section of particular interest depicts "Men and How" stories of company employees and dealers who left the Empire forces in the war of 1914-1918, with photographs of them as comrades in arms and current photos of the men who are now busy providing essential equipment to a new generation of fighting men.

Mr. Gooder then of Selby on June 6, 1916. The groom is the youngest son of the late James McMath and Mrs. McMath. They have one son, McGillivray McMath.

The bride and groom received many congratulations and best wishes also many beautiful gifts of silverware, round mirror, and lace cloth. The evening was spent in social intercourse and games, solos, songs, and music, violin and guitar. An address was then read by Mrs. C. J. Akey.

It was signed on behalf of the community by Robt. Tucker, and Chas. Akey made the presentation. The groom made a suitable reply thanking their friends for their kindness and beautiful gifts. A delicious lunch was then served after which all departed to their homes having enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

When Complexions Kick Up

A good quality witch hazel is very healing to the complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAVE you a temperamental complexion? Does it suddenly appear to take its mind and its manners from the mental influences? Miss Ardith B. Everett, Belleville; Miss Jean Anne Bateman, Jean N. Whytock, Madoc; Evelyn A. Campbell, Picton; Miss Ruth Donald, Harold; Margaret E. Martin, Madoc; A. Dugan and Jean E. Wartman of Napanee.

Sometimes there is rebellion against soap. Any cheap brand will do. If there is still trouble, use a cooling cream, of light consistency. If tautness continue try washing the face with oatmeal.

Wash With Oatmeal

Dip a washcloth in warm water, squeeze the water out of it, go over the skin surface lightly. Yes, it is rather a messy job, but the starchy element in the meal is soothing and the flaking cuticle may come to its senses. Another recourse is cleaning oil lightly, remove with tissues, applying one of those transparent, semiliquid hand lotions made of tragacanth.

Of course, the trouble may not be local at all. You may have eaten something that has jangled your digestive works and your epidermis is wrong, which, after all, are using a new rouge compact. Watch that out for a time. Be fussy about powder puff. Clean one more frequently or chuck them and use a powder puff each time.

Beware of Creams

When the skin feels sensitive avoid water that is very hot or very cold. Both stimulate the circulation, which, in turn, irritates a rest. Sometimes it is wise to forego the use of powder, substituting borated talcum, which is soothing and comforting to a skin that is sick.

The best hand aid is healing, as it is a good friend to the girl who is afflicted with enlarged pores or unsightly blemishes. Apply after the face has been washed and dried, stopping it on with gauze pads.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Other Men Take His Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a man 30 years, intelligent, and financially independent. I have been in this city over a year, but have been unable to find a girl to take out dancing, or to the movies.

I have joined organizations, but haven't been able to get into any of the so-called "cliques," which exist in almost every club. Other men gang up on me and take the girls away from me because I'm still a stranger to them. Please let me know what to do.

C. B.

Often it takes a little more time than a year for a young man, a stranger in a big city, to take root socially. Don't be discouraged.

I'm sorry I can't state your name and the work you're doing, also that you'd appreciate meeting a nice girl; but this column never gives introductions or acts as a go-between among correspondents. Just have a little more patience, and you'll meet the type of girl you're looking for.

Double-Ring Ceremony

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17 years old, rather a country girl, but am going to marry a young man of this city, who is very active in social affairs. We will be married the last of September. I've street clothes, and the wedding is to be held at the home of one of our friends.

I'm a double-ring ceremony, does the bride-to-be buy the ring for the groom? Does the bride also buy the license? I'm clean cut and fairly pretty, but I'm not very popular.

Is the bride supposed to wear her diamond during the ceremony?

"Con"

If there's to be a double-ring ceremony, the bride buys the ring for her prospective husband, and he buys hers.

It is entirely optional whether a bride gives the groom a wedding present or not.

The bride wears her engagement ring on the right hand during the wedding ceremony, and places her wedding ring on the left hand.

A nice way for a bride to give a present to the groom is after they have started housekeeping, to give him something, to be used in the home, perhaps, an easy chair, a desk, a radio, a humidor, if he smokes; a card table, or book, if he's fond of reading.

Mistake for Girl to Appear Mercenary

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My fiance, who lives 1500 miles from here, came to see me a week before my birthday. Going back home he had car trouble which cost him quite a sum of money for repairs, but he never told me this. He had promised to send me a nice gift for my birthday, and a couple of days after the date I received a letter saying he was not sending me the gift. Nothing more.

Of course, I was terribly angry so I wrote him a mean letter. Then I heard about the car trouble from another one of my friends to whom he had written also, so immediately I sent another not apologizing for the first letter and saying I wouldn't have written in such a way if I had known. And I have been two weeks now and I haven't heard a word from him.

Do you think and know he loves me and we were planning to be married in the fall, or should I look elsewhere?

Worried

When a young man travels 1500 miles to see a girl, it seems to me that's a sufficient display of affection and interest. Personally, I'm often amazed at the mercenary spirit many young girls consider gifts.

Perhaps your fiance's car trouble was more serious than he realized, and he didn't want to worry you. He probably intended to send you a present later.

Better wait for a couple of weeks before writing him. I think more humble pie if your fiance does not write. If the engagement has hit the rocks, there really is nothing gain or to be lost by a correspondence.

Albert College Music Students in Recital

Pupils of the Albert College Conservatory of Music were heard in recital last evening when an interesting program was presented in Memorial Hall. A large number of parents and friends of the students were present and a welcome was extended by Steven Hicks, principal, Dr. Bert Howard. Dr. Howard addressed words of encouragement to the students, stating each participant in their first public program. The principal said he was entirely sympathetic and appreciative of the feelings of the small musicians.

Piano pupils of Miss Beanie Nandorf and Mr. William Conner, and vocal pupils of Mr. S. M. Anglin took part in the program. The beginners in Mr. Conner's class took part in one of the program and the manner in which they played showed the careful training they have had. The skill of the pupils of pupils in piano was a tribute to the excellent instruction they had received and their own natural talent was also revealed among accomplished pianists.

Fine Talent Displayed

The singing was also most enjoyable, bringing before the audience several promising young vocalists, gifted senior students of voice. The selections, which were rendered in addition to the enjoyment of the program, and Mr. Anglin may well be proud of the attainments of his pupils as demonstrated last evening.

The program follows:

Mr. and Mrs. W. Ross Honored by Friends

On Wednesday evening of June 4 a large gathering of friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson and Belleville, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wicky Ross and family, to bid them farewell, before their departure to their new home in Oshawa, also to present them with a beautiful coffee table and rose bowl as a token of the esteem in which they were held in the community.

A lovely address was read by Mrs. Wm. Ross and Mrs. Ralph Dulmage, Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Cook, after which Mrs. Ross on behalf of Mr. Ross and family graciously thanked her friends and neighbours for the gifts and address.

At the close of a very pleasant evening the guests enjoyed refreshments and all departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Ross family much happiness and success in their new home.

June Weddings

WILSON—McCOY

Modoc, (Special)—A pretty summer wedding was solemnized this noon on Saturday, June 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McCoy, Madoc Township, when their daughter, Mary Helen, was married to James W. Wilson of Madoc. The ceremony took place on the lawn under a profusion of white asters as a background and with the Rev. W. A. Hunter officiating.

The bride was lovely in a gown of heavy white sheer with white accessories and carried a bouquet of roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Frudence Hamilton wore a gown of blue crepe. The groomsman was Gordon McCoy a brother of the bride.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Ford Tumelty.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served to the guests and girl friends of the bride, Misses Dorothy Wilson, Ann Hoskinson, Edith Miller and Dorothy Gasbel serving.

Later in the afternoon the bride and groom left for a short honeymoon trip, after which they will reside in a rose gown with navy accessories. On their return they will reside in Huntingdon Township, where the groom is a successful cheesemaker at the Irish Settlement Cheese Factory.

O'SULLIVAN—BARR

A quiet, but pretty wedding of wide interest was solemnized on Tuesday morning, June 3, by Rev. T. E. Mowry at St. Andrew's Chapel, Kingston, when Margaret Jean, daughter of Mr. Frank Barr and the late Mrs. Barr, of Westport, became the bride of Wilfred Leo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Sullivan, Marysville.

The wedding party entered the church at 9 o'clock the bride attired in a serenade blue dress and wearing a white hat, both with navy rose trimmings and white accessories. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Finella O'Sullivan, Marysville, wearing turquoise blue dress and hat and white accessories.

Mr. Wm. Gabourie, Stoco, cousin of the groom, acted as best man.

The gift of the groom to the attendants were a gold compact and a gold tie pin.

After the ceremony the wedding party motored to the Grand Cafe, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast awaited them.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Sullivan left later amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a motor trip to eastern cities. They will reside at 150 Clergy Street, Kingston.

GANNON—CALBURY

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. D. C. Mc-Intyre, B.A., B.D., at the home of the groom's parents, on Saturday evening, June 7, when Dorothy Faith, daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. Calbury, became the bride of Robert James Gannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gannon, both of this city.

The bride was attired in a dress of sweetheart blue with white accessories while she solemnized Miss Clara Close wore a dress of navy blue with white accessories.

Mr. Warren Gannon acted as groomsman.

A buffet luncheon was served to about twenty-five guests by Miss Ida Calbury, sister of the bride. Miss Audrey Severne and Miss Marion Gannon.

The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts.

The young couple will reside in Belleville.

Reception for Newlyweds

A reception for Mr. and Mrs. W. G. O'Sullivan was held at the bride's former home at Westport on Thursday night and also a reception was held at the groom's former home at Marysville. They received many beautiful and useful presents among them being a set of silver, cooking utensils the gift of the groom's employer, Mr. Roy O'Neill, and staff of the Kelvinator Co., Kingston, of which the groom is a valued employee.

CONSIDER BUDGETS OF BRIDE WHEN GIVING SHOWER

Showers given in honor of the bride-to-be may be only "sprinkles" — attractive and useful and inexpensive affairs — or they may be deluges of important and fairly expensive gifts for the new home. Before you decide on the kind of shower to give, give a thought to the budgets of the guests who are to be invited, the kinds of showers that may already have been given for the bride-to-be, her tastes, and especially, to the home-plans of the couple.

There are several newcomers to the list of showers, notably the Garden Shower. You can find charmingly-designed devices of all kinds and descriptions for all the price ranges, which will not only delight the bride-to-be, but also intrigue Her Man.

High in popularity is the bullet accessories shower, accessories in silver, modern pewter, brass silhouettes, wood, china, glass, aluminum, copper. This kind of shower lends itself admirably to a wide price range, much to be desired in planning such a consequential shower.

Fortunate the bride who has an electric accessories shower given for her by the number of guests is to be here, it might be well to assign several groups, each to join forces in the purchase of a more important item.

This is the moment when the bride-to-be is beginning to be recipe-minded, and she will, therefore, welcome a recipe-shower. You can find family-collections of recipe-boxes, and recipes printed or typed on cards for the boxes. Then, for some of the recipes, have the guest gathers together and types several of her favorite recipes.

Another inexpensive shower is a Pantry Shower with jars and tins

Increase in Consumption of Cheese Will Help Dairy Industry

I think we can credit some of the improvement in national health in the United States and Canada to increased consumption of dairy products. Not only do we eat more ice cream and cheese; for we do not have to drink milk to receive the benefit from its great value as a food and source of protection. Milk is now the biggest crop of the American farmer.

One of the big factors in increase in milk consumption has been the wider marketing of good cheese. It used to be that the ordinary grocery store carried only one kind of cheese, the type commonly called "rats' cheese" made in a local product, which had the consistency of rubber and was almost as indigestible.

Then the stores began getting good cheese and cheese dishes. Our agricultural colleges began turning out cheese instructors. They produced qualities equal to the best in Europe, and then their product until it properly aged. They produced cheese that aged and packaged it properly.

The result is that we are consuming about five pounds of cheese per capita a year. However, there isn't nearly enough of this excellent food in menus. The Swiss, for example, eat nearly 18 pounds of cheese a person a year. It isn't because their cheese are better than ours, either. I've been a cheese-eater for years and I've discovered that Canadian and American varieties of cheddar, the common type of whole-milk cheese, are as good as the Swiss product. We imported a lot of good cheeses from Switzerland in the past, but we also got a lot of poor ones. Those days are gone.

Since they were very young, the Dionne Quintuplets have been getting mild cheese in their diet because of their high nutritive value. The cheese contains the best part of the milk. It has large quantities of protein, which is one of the fuel foods which isn't burned up in the body in the form of fat. It also contains calcium, phosphorus and iron.

The "sharp" and second cheeses are not advisable for children. It is well to keep in mind that cheddar is whole milk cheese, and cream and neuchatel cheeses are rich in fat. Cottage and pot cheeses are made from skimmed milk.

It is all to our good that butter is another of the dairy products that are being increasingly, it is easily digestible and very quickly absorbed into the body. Butter is high in Vitamin A and this vitamin is needed by us all. If we don't get enough of it, our vision is apt to become impaired, and we become increasingly susceptible to colds and upper respiratory infections. The vitamin is essential for growth in children.

Of course the vitamin can be obtained by eating quantities of green vegetables, but you would certainly have to eat a large amount of them to get considerably if you gave up butter.

Bengasi Bombed Twice by R. A. F. During Weekend

Cairo, Egypt, June 10 — (AP)— Bengasi, a port for reinforcements and supplies for Axis armies in North Africa, was raided twice by British bombers Saturday night, the Royal Air Force reported today.

In widespread air assaults elsewhere in Libya, the R. A. F./ Middle East communique said, the Airdromes at Derna, Gambut and Sappuso were bombed.

Fires sprouted up at several places in Bengasi and British bombs touched off explosions in the Central and Cathedral moes along the waterfront.

At least two Axis planes were destroyed on the ground amid "big fires and explosions" at Derna, it said, and extensive damage was done to the landing ground at Gambut.

Several Thousand Reported Killed, Wounded in Blast

Rome, June 10 (AP)—The Stefani (Italian) News Agency today reported several thousand persons killed or wounded when munitions stores in the fortress of Smederevo, near Belgrade, exploded yesterday. Stefani quoted the newspaper Newsetor Vjiddek as authority.

The explosion, cause of which was undetermined, destroyed an "enormous" quantity of munitions and wiped out the castle fortress.

Cincinnati Reds Beginning To Win Like Champions But Are Not Playing Real Good Ball

During Past Two Weeks They Have Scored Many Lucky Victories

DROP DODGERS

(By Judson Bailey)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati Reds are beginning to win like champions, even if they don't always look like baseball's ruling class.

Taken game by game over the last couple of weeks the Reds have been the beneficiaries of more lucky victories than you could have a bet at. But they all add up to a sudden spree that has brought the world champions eight triumphs in their last ten games and lifted them within half a dozen of third place in the National League.

The Reds have been in a batting slump all season. For the first five innings yesterday Claude Passeau of Brooklyn Dodgers held them hitless. Their first single in the sixth was weak. Then in the last innings they made nine blows, including a home run, four doubles and a triple to blow the game wide open.

Cincinnati came off with a 9-7 victory and dropped the Dodgers out of the first St. Louis Cardinals trounced New York Giants 8-2.

Frey Big Gun in Victory

Lonnie Frey, a one-time Dodger, was the big gun in the Reds' victory, driving in four tallies with a homer in the eighth and a double in the ninth but a two-base error by shortstop Pee Wee Reese in the latter inning made both Cincinnati's winning runs unearned.

The Cardinals' conquest was a notable one for the Giants because it was achieved on the four-hit hurling of Harry Gumbert, whom Bill Terry traded to the St. Louis last month for Fiddler Bill McGee, Max Butcher, Cass and Paul Dean. Since then Gumbert has won five games for the Redbirds and McGee hasn't triumphed a single time for New York.

Another fine pitching performance of the day was a six-hitter by Rookie Alden Wilkie of Pittsburgh Pirates, who shut out Philadelphia Phillies 5-0.

Chicago Cubs set off a 21-hit fireworks display at Boston to beat the Braves 13-6 and give 42-year-old Charley Root the 197th victory of his long career.

Yesterday was an open date for all the American League Clubs.

Ken Overlin Gains 10-Round Decision Over Ezzard Charles

Cincinnati, June 10 — (AP) — Taking his time and matching his experience against his youthful foe, Ken Overlin of Washington rapped out a 10-round decision last night over Ezzard Charles, young Cincinnati Negro middleweight.

Overlin, weighing 162 1-2, had Charles, 161, staggering in the late rounds, although the early part of the bout was on more even terms. The former middleweight champion, who lost his title just a month ago in a disputed decision to Billy Soose, scored a no-count knockdown on Charles in the second round. It was Charles' first defeat in 101 fights of his professional career.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Harry Gumbert, Cardinals—Held his former teammates, the Giants, to four hits.

Alden Wilkie, Pirates, —Scuttled Phillies on six safeties.

Lonnie Frey, Reds—Drove in four runs with homer and double against Dodgers.

Charley Root and Don Dallesandro, Cubs—Former pitched route control ball against Braves for 197th victory of career with help of 21-hit assault led by latter with home run, double and single.

FIRST DOWN A NO ONE TO GO

Jim Robinson, Philadelphia heavyweight, is on the canvas while Lou Nova, who put him there with a right on the button, scurries toward a neutral corner in the third round of the scheduled 10-round brawl in Minneapolis. The third was the last round as things happened. Robinson got up at the count of nine, but, before you could say "Jim Robinson" he was dropped again—this time for keeps.

ESQUIRE KIDS TROUNCED BY POINT ANNE 9-6

'Cementmen' Score Five Runs in Seventh Frame to Cinch Pastime

SECOND PLACE TIE

Point Anne "Cementmen" moved into a tie for second place with the club they beat, at Coleman Park last night when they scored five big runs in the seventh to trounce the Esquire Juniors 9 to 6.

"Red" Townsend's junior kids held a slight margin over the Cementmen until the fatal seventh when the Ox Point nine pushed a quintette of runs over. The Esquire nine came back to score three in the bottom half of the same frame when Mansfield homered and Reid, Cook and Callaghan followed with base hits. Pete Anne established from Point Anne again broke out in the ninth when Whalen and Robinson scored to cinch the place at 6 to 6.

B. Bennett with a triple and two singles, Ricky Sero with a seventh inning home run with two aboard and a double and single and Whitehead paced the winners on the attack, while Mansfield's homer and single, Reid's three hits and Powers' two safe knocks accounted for much of the Esquire kids' batting punch. Point Anne and the Esquire kids are now tied for second place in the league standing with three wins and an equal number of loses each.

The line-ups: Esquire Juniors—Whiting 3b;"Guay ss; Mansfield 2b; Reid lf; Powers c; Cook cf; Callaghan rf; Peacock 1b; Bradden c; Powers p. Point Anne—Whalen cf; Reid 2b; Whitehead lf; Sero ss; Green c; Whalen 3b; Robinson rf; D. Bennett 1b, and Barnhart p.

Point Anne 1 0 0 1 0 0 5 2—9 runs
Esquire Jrs. 0 2 1 0 0 0 3 0 0—6 runs

STRONG BELIEF GOLFING FANS HIGHLY CHEERED

People Who Pay Freight Kicked Around by Officials and Players

NO RULES SET

By BILL BONI
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Louis, June 10 (AP)—Golf fans, the people who pay the freight for the National Open and the Bast The former as the victims and the abused spectators in the sports entertainment field.

Not the privilege of paying as $3.30 (top price for last week's open) they get about as fancy treatment as the man who pays his nickel in a New York subway rush hour.

The sight of stampeding gallerys, breaking their necks to get in the front line, the heel on the superofficious marshals and tripped up by gallery flys, posted in the eye by bamboo poles, has become an accepted feature of any major tournament.

Should Have Basic Rule

But Horton Smith, who studies golf's angles as thoroughly and exhaustingly as he does his own golf shots, sees no reason why any of these things should be. Horton believes a system of popular educational rules, based on the present rules instead of the prevalent "don'ts", not only would be able to carry out but would make tournament golf more enjoyable for everyone—even the player and spectator.

"Two fundamentals would be," he said, to keep the galleries outside the white lines drawn around the greens, and make them stay 10 yards back of the shortest ball when driving a match down the fairway. If walking ahead of the match, the spectators should stay in the rough at all times.

Horton believes the players can co-operate to much an officials or spectators in making tournaments more enjoyable.

Hagen Always Considerate

"Walter Hagen always was extremely considerate of the gallery. He said: 'Don't worry bit the ball until the galleries were settled into place and knew what to look for. Too many of today's stars rush up, holler 'fore' or stand back on the right' and make their shots while half the crowd is in a panic because it doesn't know what's going on.

The paying customer isn't entirely blameless, either. His principal faults, according to Horton, are:

Supplying the players on the course with information or advice they don't want. Not concentrating all the time and the least little thing can distract us. So, if you can't do any more than just say 'Eowdy,' no matter how well we know you on the course, don't say anything at all."

Failure to give every player an even break. "Quite frequently you'll find an unknown youngster paired with two established stars. He should get just as fair a shake from the crowd—in other words, he should be given just as much time and room to play his shot. The gallery should wait for him to putt out just as they would for the open champion.

CLOSE FINISH MARK S 440-YARD SPRINT

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 10—(AP)—Dark days are ahead for minor league ball clubs, one way or another.

The Atlanta Crackers tried playing daylight ball just to see how things would turn out in case they have to give up the floodlights—and the crowds fell off so badly that President Earl Mann is wondering what ever became of the fans who used to watch afternoon games.

Contributors' corner:

The whole world knows and loves to read
How Casey fanned that day.
Good gosh what fame he would have had
If he'd knocked that ball away.
—Howard Upton, Tahlequah (Okla.) Citizen.

Out of season:

Frank Leahy already has Notre Dame face fritchered by being unduly optimistic about his team's chances next fall. Frank says he isn't worried about the opposition until the Indiana game, which is second on the schedule, and if the Irish get by that one they may go undefeated until the navy game in November.

One-minute interview:

Fred Perry: "I don't want to tear down the game that built me up, but everyone knows the cost of an amateur tennis tournament. It's $1,400. The top three players have a certain price, the next three another price and so on. Why, it's like a laundry list." . . . Which may explain why Don Budge, Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, etc., tackled the laundry business as a sideline.

HOLD FIRST GARDEN PARTY

Ottawa, June 10. — (CP)—The Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice marked Canada's observance of the King's birthday yesterday by holding their first garden party at Government House since the visit of the Royal Couple to Canada two years ago.

Close to 4,000 persons, including Cabinet Ministers and their wives, attended the three large-scale wartime social function.

HEADING FOR A TRIPLE CROWN

Warren Wright's Whirlaway, RIGHT, Jockey Eddie Arcaro in the saddle, is shown heading for victory in the historic Belmont Stakes (73rd running) as the horses take the last turn and enter the stretch at the Belmont Park, N.Y., race track. The victory gave Whirlaway the distinction of being the fifth horse in history to win the triple crown of turfdom. Robert Norris, who finished second, is beside Whirlaway. The time for the mile and a half was 2.31. Whirlaway previously won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness with Arcaro in the saddle.

THEY SWING BATS, TOO

All batting over .300, these four St. Louis Cardinals represent an important factor in keeping the team battling for the National league lead with the Brooklyn Dodgers. LEFT to RIGHT, with their averages through June 2, are: Coaker Triplett, .333; Enos Slaughter, .348, and Catcher Don Padgett, .333.

JERSEY GIANTS RUN WIN STREAK TO THREE GAMES

Team Heading Second Division and May Move Higher

TORONTO LOSES

(By The Associated Press)

One of these days (or nights) Jersey City Giants may start hitting and then watch out.

In view of one record, that seems rather unlikely. It's been two weeks since the Little Giants got as many as ten hits in one game. Only one of their regulars, Dusty Cooke with .301, achieved a .300 batting average last season. And still Jersey City heads the second division of the International League and threatens to break into the first division.

The Jerseys ended a protracted batting drought by whipping Toronto twice last Sunday and they made it three straight over Buffalo last night, mixing the fourth-place Buffalo Bisons' pitching to the tune of 11-3. Jersey City's 2-1-2 games behind Buffalo and seven behind the League-leading Newark Bears still look good.

Roy Henshaw, little veteran southpaw who pitched the first complete game of the season May 29, came through with a three-hit job as the Bisons while the Giants made the most of their seven errors off Frank Hershenow.

Baltimore Orioles had a close call but held their grasp on a game and a half behind Jersey City, when they pulled out a 5-4 decision over the third-place Rochester Red Wings while Syracuse Chiefs, another good bet, trimmed Montreal 5-3.

A home run by Hal Sieling with one out in the ninth inning won for Baltimore.

Toronto outhit Syracuse 14-10 but Rookie Lee Grissom was effective in the clutches and the Leafs were highly ineffective in the biggest part of all. . . . Chiefs added to their scoring in the 34th inning, hammered Don Prester for two hits along with four Toronto errors.

32 Feminine Golfers Enter Western Open

Cincinnati, O., June 10 — (AP)— Thirty-two feminine golfers, ranging in scoring ability from par 71 to expurgating 96, and in age from 18 up to those who don't count birthdays, launched match play competition here today on the Cincinnati Country Club course in quest of the 36th annual western women's open championship.

Pacing the parade were two professionals and the National Amateur queen, tie only three in the starting field of 32 who broke par on yesterday's qualifying round.

Patty Berg, the smallest miss from Minneapolis, snared birdies on four holes, and a one-under par, to romp around in 71 strokes, two under par, to set a course record and tie the tourney mark set in 1936 by Mrs. Opal Hill of Kansas City.

Five strokes back was another professional, Helen Dettweiler of Washington with 76, while Betty Jameson, the National Amateur ruler from San Antonio, had 78 for par three.

With Mrs. George (Babe Didrickson) Zaharias, the defending champion and participating Indianolans were that the Misses Berg, Dettweiler and Jameson would dominate the match play rounds which continue through Saturday.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Cincinnati; Ken Overlin, 162 1-2, Washington, outpointed Ezzard Charles, 161, Cincinnati (10).

New York: Abe Simon, 254 1-4, New York, stopped Pete Tamalonis, 218 1-2, Buffalo, N.Y., (2); Jake Kogan, 135 1-2, New Haven, Conn., outpointed Jimmy Tych, 137, Philadelphia, (8).

Red Townsend's Esquire Juniors have beaten the Reliance juveniles five out, the Reliance has beaten the Cementmen in their only game but the Esquire kids can't beat Bobby Smith's Ox Point aggregation so matter how hard they try. Last night at the Flats Bobby Gaulin's Cementmen took the long end of a 9 to 6 win over the Esquire kids for their second win over that club, with Mike Powers batting the Cementmen nicely until the seventh, when an error and a few hearty base hands, including Ricky Sero's circuit blow, changed the entire picture when the winners scored five runs. Art Mansfield hit a homer for the juniors in the seventh to start a rally, but the Cementmen carried too much punch and came back with a brace of counters in the ninth to sew up the show and now these two squads are all-even and tied for second place at two wins and a trio of losses each.

Do you remember when Paul Berlenbach stopped Jack Delaney in a round decision over Young Stribling in defense of his light-heavyweight boxing title at New York 14 years ago tonight. A crowd of 25,000 saw Berenbach lose out the title a month later to Joe Delaney, force the fight in nearly every round to gain an unanimous decision. Stribling was killed in an automobile accident Oct. 3, 1933.

All over the United States golf tournaments are being arranged with the gross proceeds going directly to aid British war victims. Canadian golfers might well take a leaf out of their American cousins' book and no matter how small the amount, it will be gratefully received and faithfully applied. Bill Little, golf pro at the Bay at Quinte County Club agreed to bring four recognized professionals to Belleville for such a fund. The idea has its merits, and should be given some consideration by the two local golf clubs beneath their proverbial noses. province snatch the proposal from beneath their proverbial noses. Here's an opportunity to be first for a change, fellows.

The Toronto guys around the American tracks don't think of the opinion the only thing the matter with Whirlaway is he was a two-year-old was the lack of work. "The big fellow wasn't getting enough racing, that's the answer to the whole mystery," stated Trainer Ben Jones, the only man who had faith in "Whirlaw" last winter when others were calling him a bum. It seems when Whirlaway is taken away from the tracks for a two week rest, he really enters into the big business and he just forgets all about racing. "It takes him that much more time to straighten out again when we return him to the track," revealed Trainer Jones, who had Whirlaway at Churchill Downs over a month before the Kentucky Derby and has kept him amid racing surroundings ever since and working out regularly. That's why he's one of the five horses ever to win the triple racing crown of the American turf today.

The Cincinnati Reds have hit their stride and are playing .500 ball today. Yesterday the Redlegs snatched another from under the noses of the Dodgers, although out-hit 12 to 16, the Cincinnatis managed to make their hits count in the pinches and came out 9-7. While this was going on Harry Gumbert, who was traded by the Giants to the Cardinals recently, got in some sweet revenge as he limited the Polo Ground nine to four hits and the Cards drove out 12 hits as he let the ball roll the Mound City club is exactly where it started out in trouble in the slipping Dodgers.

SPORT SPICE—Zeke Bonura, former major leaguer now with Minneapolis Millers, was called up by the Washington Senators of the United States army yesterday . . . Benny McCoy, Detroit amateur high-school infielder, will be inducted into the army on June 16 . . . Chuck Cox, Cock brothers and Frank Boucher, the original Toronto Leaf "kid line", Primeau, Conacher and Joe Thomas as well as the "kraut line" from Boston of Bauer, Dumart and Schmidt, will all appear on a Dominion-wide radio broadcast at 8.30 p.m. Friday night over local pick-ups of CBM and CKCL for a Canadian-wide Victory Loan program being arranged by Lionel Conacher, Chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission . . . Hockey in the good old summer time, will be the feature of Friday night's Victory Loan broadcast. . . . No shortage.

Letter to The Editor

SCI cadet
Editor, Ontario Intelligencer.

Sir:—

As a member of Canada's Active Force for the past nine months may I be permitted to assure the people of Belleville of the pride they should feel in the smart turnout on Friday of the cadet corps of the Collegiate Institute.

The boys of the school turned up in good performance not in my opinion only but in the opinion of the parade work by the excellent performance of the boys. Not alone were steady on parade and their marching a thing to draw praise and compliments from the may citizens who lined the streets, but especially.

The commander of the girls' cadet corps and officers and men by the smart word of command and in my opinion the same girl can put many instructors to shame for word of command. The excellent showing of both the boys and girls speaks well for P. C. MacLaurin the principal of the collegiate institute and his staff.

The boys cadet corps were handicapped somewhat by the heavy rifles which they carried on parade, many of the rifles were greater in length than the height of the lad, who carried it. However, it was a proud moment for these students and the presence of the officer commanding the Argyll Light Infantry unit in addition to officers of the Active Force who attended inspection added to the greatness of the occasion of the students on parade.

The present time is a time when every consideration should be given to students of our collegiate institutes throughout Canada. The training they receive in the cadet corps not only assists them in their physical development but also is of great help in teaching them at an age when they are best suited to exercise self-discipline. The citizens of Belleville should feel proud of the showing made on Friday and the boys of the cadet corps and their instructors were the first to admit that the girls stole the show so far as the public was concerned. This admission will no doubt help the boys to determine that at the next inspection the girls will really have to be good to win the honors.

Thanking you sir, for the space in your paper.

Yours very truly,
"Sci Bill"
Peterboro.

Bancroft and District

Bancroft, June 10 — (Special)—Wednesday evening Mr. Jack Kavanaugh's two children were playing around in the kitchen, their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Kavanagh when they thought they heard a rustling noise in the kitchen stove. Mrs. Kavanagh finally lifted one of the lids and saw an object within but was too timid to investigate further so the children's mother investigated, bringing out a small bird which proved to be a chimney swift, unknown to these parts of the country. The bird had descended the long chimney, passed through the string of pipes through two ovens in the range and finally came to rest in the fire box. A close examination of the tiny bird revealed a metal band on one of its legs with the following inscription on: "Notify Dept. Biology, Washington, D.C." The bird was later liberated by Mr. Kavanagh intended replying to the request of the bird.

GERMAN NEED OF FATS, OILS URGED DRIVES

Eastern Route the "Oily Route" and Nazis Were Badly in Need of Things Balkans Could Supply

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)—German war strategy in the last six months—the drive through the Balkans to Greece and the Middle East—was dictated by the Nazi's fear that sometime they might have to face an oil shortage, an authoritative source suggested.

"Hitler choose to invade Rumania instead of Spain because Spain had no oil," this source said. "The Eastern route has been the oily route."

The Germans gained not only oil in their swift push but also acquired substantial stocks of vital war metals and facilities for improving their metal position in Greece and Yugoslavia

German Shortages

While this authority refrained from claiming a present shortage of oil in Germany—although some sources have said the Nazis need lubricants badly—he listed three necessary conditions for the Germans to feel the pinch of oil scarcity.

1. British interception of tankers proceeding to Trieste from the Eastern Mediterranean.

2. Depletion of German resources by constant pounding of their synthetic oil plants by the Royal Air Force.

3. Reduction in supplies through the Nazis being forced to fight heavily with their mechanized equipment.

So far the fighting has not been sufficiently sustained to make a serious drain on Nazi oil supplies. There have been no heavy R.A.F. raids on Nazi oil plants since last December because of other air-commitments — German invasion bases in France and submarine depots.

Meanwhile the Germans are reported to have repaired damage to oil plants bombed last autumn and to have brought several new works into operation, one at least being in Switzerland and comparatively safe from British bombing. Therefore British naval control of the Eastern Mediterranean was stressed as essential to halt the oil traffic.

The Germans are believed to be short of rubber and copper and gained little copper in their Balkan conquests, if they are able, however, to reopen copper mines destroyed by the Yugoslavs they will obtain about 80,000 tons a year.

Other Necessities

Chromium has been the major Nazi metallic gain from the Balkans. Greece and Yugoslavia can provide 200,000 tons annually, enough to meet 50 per cent of the Germans' needs, Turkey, the world's largest producer, can give them some but much of the existing supply has been obtained by Britain through her policy of pre-emption.

Fats are reported scarce for domestic use in Germany. Information in letters seized from German prisoners during the Lofoten Islands raid last March led British sources to reiterate their constant contention that the Germans experienced such a shortage. One of the most frequent subjects in these letters was the complaint that fats were lacking.

One Wiesbaden woman asked her son, stationed in Norway, to send some sardines because "it is very nourishing to taste something in oil."

For Education Of War Guests

London (CP)—A special correspondent of the Sunday Times tells in that newspaper of a plan evolved to help meet expenses in educating British children evacuated to Canada "for the duration."

The writer suggests that contributions be asked for in Canada to cover the expenses of a British school established in the Dominion. Parents in England would contribute the equivalent amount of money in sterling for the purchase of a Spitfire.

The correspondent said the proposal would not weaken Britain's exchange resources. It would enable parents to pay their way while instead of the school being a burden on Canadians it would enable them, in effect, to buy a Spitfire.

Former U.S. Navy Yeoman Outwits Japanese Spies

Los Angeles, June 10 (AP)—Al D. Blake, 50-year-old former yeoman in the United States Navy, is charged with conspiracy in a plot to conspiracy in an alleged espionage plot against the U.S., but the Federal official called him a hero today.

An investigator for the U.S. District Attorney's office said Blake obtained confidential on-the-ground information which led to the arrests.

U.S. Attorney William Palmer filed charges of "conspiracy to obtain information and documents to be used for the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign power" against Blake and—

Itaru Tsiibana, 39, a lieutenant commander in the Imperial Japanese Navy, registered as an alien student at University of Southern California.

Toraichi Kono, 56, for many years major-domo in the home of Charles Chaplin, and Kono's wife, said to be known as the most prominent Japanese in Hollywood.

Tsiibana was released under $50,000 bail provided by Japanese Consul Kenji Nakauchi after unsuccessful efforts to have the amount reduced. Kono, unable to post $25,000 bond, remained in jail. They were arraigned today.

The information against Tsiibana and Kono charges their goughi confidential reports regarding the movements of the U.S. S. Phoenix in Hawaiian waters. Palmer said, however, that more than a truckload of information about the U.S. Navy was seized at Tsiibana's quarters.

A spokesman in Palmer's office related this story:—

Blake made two trips to Hawaii at expense of the Japanese to obtain information concerning the Pacific Fleet in Hawaiian waters.

Blake told Naval Intelligence officials, who instructed him to work with the Japanese. For several months Blake did, so ably that he was not suspected of engaging in counter-espionage. He received several thousand dollars from the Japanese and turned it over to American officials.

Produce Unchanged

Toronto — Owing to a holiday spirit, trading on the Toronto open produce market was half-hearted with prices steady for eggs, and butter firm.

The tendency was for lower prices in the butter market as a result of the prevailing quiet demand. With the considerable production shown in the nine cities" cold storage holdings, many buyers are inclined to take only enough for current needs in preference to storing supplies at the latter figure.

Supplies are in fair demand on the egg market and fresh receipts in the shells are in short supply. Prices on all graded in both sections are steady and firmly held at Saturday's closing levels.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, June 10— (CP)— Produce market prices here, as reported by the Montreal Department of Agriculture, follow:

March in Syria Forced by German "Poison"

The march into Syria was forced by German "poison" through the Vichy French puppets, said British Empire's bulwarks in the Middle East, and the Sun Canal, Mr. Churchill said.

As for Britain, the Prime Minister said, the German plan was for Hitler to meet an air-borne and sea-borne attack, but when Hitler saw that this effort will be made" to profit by the lessons in Holland.

Increase in Production

As for the war on other fronts, Mr. Churchill said that the monthly average production of guns and tanks was far greater and greater in the first quarter of 1941 than in the last quarter of 1940.

May, he continued, was Britain's best month since the battle of the Atlantic and he said that production in Britain had not been disturbed by air raids but on the contrary was increasing.

Mr. Churchill said Tonnage in May in the British war on German submarines, Mr. Churchill said that Britain in May "sank, captured or destroyed" 257,000 tons of German ship ping.

This added, "had a bearing in any sea-borne Invasion."

Proudly Mr. Churchill declared that Britain had forces from Matruh, British outposts in the western desert, to Palestine and that their "our forces are stronger than ever."

As he concluded the Prime Minister assured them that if Britain's six months were in no worse position than today and "remained faithful and unbeaten guardians of the Nile valley, a famous chapter that would be written in our martial history."

British Casualties

Mr. Churchill answered what he called German propaganda charges that Dominions and Colonial men were dying" in the battle of Britain's war by announcing that 95 per cent of those lost so far came from the British Isles.

"Out of 90,000 lives lost so far in this war by us at home and abroad, at least 85,000 came from the Mother Country," he said.

Mr. Churchill said that in Crete Britain was short of "very essential and particularly of those special classes of weapons—anti-aircraft guns, anti - tank guns and tanks—which have proved themselves peculiar to modern war."

At this point Mr. Hore-Belisha broke into object.

"I do not know why the Prime Minister should say I left the army in a state of unpreparedness," he declared.

That is quite out of accord with what he said after the retreat from Dunkerque, that we had lost the finest lot of equipment we ever left these shores."

The Prime Minister retorted that he was not dealing with the equipment of the divisions who went to France and "who naturally drained the rest of our forces" but with "the fact that the equipment of the army at that time was of a most meagre and inferior character."

"I am not throwing all the blame on Mr. Hore-Belisha," he said, "but when he sets himself up as a judge of others who have followed him, the real legacy it is only fair to point out he is one the last people to criticize."

The House cheered the Prime Minister's remarks.

The general tenor of criticism was that the British soldiers, heroes in the Battle of Britain has fail, but that the army and navy in the Crete campaign.

Foremost among government critics was Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader in the House, who vigorously defended the record of the army.

Sir Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, heard him condemned Britain's failure to support Mediterranean, heard him condemned.

"I deem it my duty to warn the country that it is only by handling our problems with courage, energy and imagination that we can obtain victory."

Questioned Basis

The former War Secretary preceded this statement with criticism of Britain's war strategy and questioned the basis of Mr. Churchill's judgment.

"It is evident," he said, "that in strategy there has been on our side no adjustment to the new role of the resources of the enemy.

"It is doubtful if all sides to strengthen the Prime Minister's hand, he has not left the higher command situation in terms of optimism.

Mr. Hore-Belisha quoted the Prime Minister as saying strengthening of supplies in the Mediterranean was limited entirely by the problem of shipping and then in a questioning voice, added:

"I do not know if it is the satisfaction the Prime Minister has expressed with the state of affairs."

He quoted W. B. Black, deputy director of production and secretary in the United States, as saying "there is no room for a shred of evidence that Britain's industrial and military strength plus what we have been provided with enabled to send at the present time is strengthened—not weakened."

Just Needed Few More

One Australian division fighter planes in Greece would have provided the margin for successful defence, Mr. Hore-Belisha said in criticism of the R.A.F.

In Crete, the member went on, the all R.A.F. view "persisted" that an air-borne invasion was impossible."

He lauded Air Commodore G. C. Goddard as saying on May 22 that Hitler, despite great crash-landed troops could not by themselves capture Crete and observed this "was two days after our air support had been withdrawn" in the face of Nazi dive-bombing attacks.

"Without overhead protection," the navy suffered casualties greater than inflicted on Italian seapower at the battle of Cape Matapan, Mr. Hore-Belisha declared, even though, he said, the lesson that the navy learned in co-operating air force should have been learned in Norway.

Must be Recognized

"Aircraft must be recognized as an integral part of the navy and army," he said, and he also asserted, adding that "present arrangements have been satisfactory" on the ground that they work; the answer given in Crete is Black-Belisha.

Mr. Hore-Belisha argued that the British people have always shown greater importance to having machines for long distance bombing whereas the army wants dive bombers and tanks and guns.

The Fleet Air Arm, the navy's own force, has shown itself worthy of expansion, he said.

Russian Ambassador Present

Lord Addison, with conservative, said he hoped Mr. Churchill would tell them "the real reasons" behind the debate.

"There has been a mystery," he said, "as to what because the government has won a debate we have had a debate," Addison said.

Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair said that the "morale of Crete will be drawn upon for further training and for the air defence" in Britain itself.

One interesting fact was the debate was the Prime Minister's wife, Mrs. Churchill, sitting in the Ambassador's box, the proceedings from the diplomatic gallery of the emergency Parliament.

Satisfied With Training

The Air Secretary said he was satisfied that the training of pilots for Britain and in the Empire would keep pace with increasing British and United States plane production.

Lord Winterton accused the Air Ministry of failure to use the declared youths too young and men too old for active service in the working in munitions production and earning wages which he declared they should be conscripted for construction of airdromes.

Mr. Alexander, Labor Conservative, declared "the country is in a state of dangerous complacency and defeats, coupled with failure to enemy in Crete and Libya" he said.

"Mr. Churchill is not merely the greatest Prime Minister since the days of Pitt, Chatham or even the Younger Pitt", Capt. Nicholson said, "but he was born to cut up the dead wood, both in the War Cabinet and in the Service Ministries."

H. B. Lees-Smith, Labor, said that Britain's strategy was a new and dangerous feature of German air-borne invasion and declared the people of Britain "prefer that invasion of Kire could be accepted as a calculated risk to a matter of days, but of hours".

VICTORY LOAN

$180,000,000 Toronto thus attained 35.2 per cent of its quota.

$180,000,000 company of the John Inglis Company of Toronto, engaged on war work, each purchased $1,000.

Average daily subscription last week was $46,000,000 with the week's cash sales of the issue's two and three-per-cent bonds set at $278,- 283,800 or 46.08 per cent of the objective.

In addition there was a $20,000,- 000 conversion of old Dominion of Canada three-per-cent bonds maturing in November, raising total subscriptions, in both categories, to $206,283,800. The bulk of the conversion was recorded in Ontario district Monday, raising the city total to $22,829,050, 69 per cent of its $32,000,000 quota.

Three Provincial Campaign offices announced totals last night. Quebec reached 46.4 per cent of its $180,000,000 objective, with subscriptions of $74,181,860 reported. Ontario contributions totalled $136,- 283,800 in the first week of the campaign. The Province's objective is $360,000,000. Manitoba's subscription total was given as $23,410,400 of a $45,000,000 quota, to noon Monday.

—Hard Work Still Needed

Canadians were urged to buy bonds in a radio program on which Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, chairman of the General Conference Committee of Standard Railway Labor organizations, and H. H. Harrison, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, participated last night.

To date, subscriptions have been received from 254,227 individuals, surpassing the record of both the first and second war loans.

Montreal Loan headquarters reported a total of $2,000,000 early today. City canvassers had taken $651,800 of this amount in 1,300 bonds—54.6 per cent of the $117,- 000,000 objective—up to last night.

The Toronto total Subscriptions were $43,564,550 of a $180,000,000 objective in Saturday's returns from Ontario counties, Haldimand, Hurron and North Wellington. They achieved their objectives. The United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry had contributed $1,050,000 of a $1,800,000 quota.

In Toronto A. E. Arnold, chairman of the Ontario Executive Committee said 110,000 Ontario workers had subscribed to the loan in the campaign's first week and that the objective of individual subscribers in the province had been set at $80,000,000.

Official versions of the Allied drive made no mention of contact with German troops, which had been reported differing into the French defence line to the south, but unofficial sources yesterday said that 193 Nazi parachutists—including a colonel commanding the 7th Parachute division—had been captured.

Nazis Ordered Out Is Report

Authoritative quarters in Ankara, Turkey, said a German Consul in Cornwall had ordered Nazi airmen and army specialists scattered throughout Syria to withdraw from the Damascus to withdraw from the Damascus to withdraw from the Damascus.

British observers suggested that heavy losses suffered by the Germans in the conquest of Crete and the unexpected strength of the British-Free French push into Syria and Lebanon might have been responsible for the reported German decision to withdraw.

They said that abandonment of Syria, however, probably would be accompanied by Nazi efforts to gesture in a new direction—perhaps a renewal of the drive from Libya into Egypt.

Some form of Vichy Government reprisal for the move into Syria and Lebanon also was expected—probably an assault on Free French Forces in Equatorial Africa.

Hutter, News Agency said small numbers of French troops had been captured in the Tyre area after fighting in which 12 Nazis and 3 Australian brigade.

Reports from the French were reported to have torn up the road at one point, and a measure which Berlin said to have exchanged shots with the Australians.

Reports from Vichy claimed that the French were offering little fight on several sectors, but some to grips.

Reports from Vichy claimed French Forces were putting up "tenacious resistance" to numerically superior forces.

Nazi Experts Recalled

Ankara, June 10 (AP)—Nazi advance reports reported today into Syria to lay the groundwork for air and army bases have been ordered from French Mandate at once, a high source said today, and a German diplomatic source declared "the German soldiers will be sacrificed in Syria."

This latter spokesman said the attitude of Berlin was built up to the French to defend the territory.

Other observers expressed pessimistic regarding the chances of the Vichy forces holding the line started territory.

Belief was expressed here that speakers would have no difficulty in removing advance personnel said to be scattered throughout Syria by ship, train and plane, but it was considered that the last remaining able quantities of equipment would have to be left behind.

Ships Sunk May 31

The ship sunk on May 31 while navigating in latitude 6.15 north and longitude 23.30 west. The Oscrio had been unsafe to find and was sunk by gunfire from one which carried the missing passengers and crew members.

The statement would indicate that 11 rescued sailors had been adrift in an open boat for the unusual total sun for almost three weeks. Previously only four had been reported, but belief was expressed here they probably would be too weak for any further early detailed account of the Robin Moor's last days.

(The position given for the ship's sinking would place it 300 miles south of the Cape Verde Islands, midway between Brazil and the African Coast. Over the blocked picked up by the Oscrio was found almost 200 miles to the southeast of that point.)

Area indicated, it was said here, would be a likely hunting ground for German submarines on British shipping from South America, or northward from the Coast of Good Hope.

U. S. ARMY

Lt.-Col. Charles E. Branshaw, in charge of the entire plant, telephoned the 9,000 workers an invitation to resume work.

Previously, the possible safety and protection while they are on the job, and the right of picketing to and from work or while they are not working, had been set.

Bargain Only With Workers

Meanwhile, high officers of industrial organizations officers told the strikers "it is the instruction of the President" that they have elected negotiating committee that will bargain only with their places, following every instruction and regulation of the law.

Richard T. Frankenteen, C.I.O. National Director of Aviation, who negotiated the pact, yesterday termed the strike a "wildcat", said he was disgusted.

"We shall bargain for those who return to work. Those who do not return to work will be replaced".

Army officials said 1,581 employees ceased to work on the day shift yesterday and 964 for the night shift, representing a loss to the production line is 6,000 men daily and 4,000 at night.

A showdown appeared imminent between National State C.I.O. officials, as State President Phillip M. Connelly is supporting the strikers and the General Motors Corporation, who told them to stay out of the plant until they return to work. They ask a closed shop, an increase from 50 to 75 cents an hour, and a minimum wage and a general flat of 10 cents an hour.

Ensembles Insurrien tion

Attorney General Jackson in Washington said that the strikers and at the North American plant more nearly resembled an insurrection than a labor strike" and that certain leader have rollowed the Communist line to call the strike "both the government and their own loyal leaders to prevent a settlement".

"The draft board" in Inglewood, where most of the young strikers live, estimated that 2,000 aircraft employes are on its deferred list. A Board spokesman said that "all any men continue to defy the President and their own draft, they will reclassify them at once."

Some thirty persons crew injured, 11 seriously enough to require hospital treatment, before order during the army occupation of the North American plant.

Washington, June 10 (AP)—$196,000,000 in orders for bombing and fighter planes for the United States army and British, and training ships for the U.S. Army, Navy and Britain.

"You risked everything to save someone else," Father Flanagan (Spencer Tracy) tells Whitey Marsh (Mickey Rooney) in this touching scene from "Boys Town," which opens today at the Regent screen as a sequel to the memorable "Boys Town," which won Tracy and Rooney their Academy Awards.

Honeymoon Gold

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"It doesn't matter. They're to have it, whatever it is, and the very best," said Natalie in the tone of one accustomed to giving orders and having them obeyed. "And they are not to know that I'm paying the bill. They must think that it is due to the fact that they are emergency cases and that due provision is made for that sort of thing."

"I understand, Miss Schuyler—" began the nurse.

Brooks said, with a queer, harsh tone in his voice, "The lady happens to be Mrs. Marchbanks, even though it's a matter of trifling she's forgotten it."

Natalie turned sharply, startled by his tone. The look in his eyes told her that he was hurt and angry, out of all proportion, she felt, to the cause.

"Darling, I'm sorry—" she stammered.

"It's quite all right," said Brooks harshly. "It's only that the hospital will want the LEGAL name of the person who is playing Lady Bountiful."

Natalie caught her breath, for there was a not too carefully hidden taunt in the last that was like a small, but stinging, blow. Before she could manage an answer, Brooks said politely, "And now, hadn't you better be getting back to your pose? Your—er—er guest will be worrying about you."

Natalie couldn't explain, apologize—not there in front of that cruel, avid-eyed nurse. And as she walked beside Brooks along the corridor, Natalie's pride quailed a little; she HAD hurt and humiliated Brooks. Quite unnecessarily. Impulsively, that she hadn't deliberately meant to humiliate him, to flaunt her own wealth.

But there was no chance to explain. A doctor was coming toward them, straight from the emergency operating room, and he had news.

"The young man is very badly hurt," he explained in merciful briefness. "There is a brain concussion, and—internal injuries. Unfortunately for his recuperative powers, he is undernourished, badly run down. I'd say that he has a slightly better than fifty-fifty chance of pulling through, given every possible attention."

"He is to have that, Doctor," said Natalie promptly. "That is my husband and I wish to be responsible for all expenses. You are to go the best specialists and the best nurses. He will help him in the fight, I know."

The doctor looked from one to the other of these handsome, well-dressed young people, and he said politely, "They are the friends of your relatives, perhaps?"

We never saw them in our lives until we came upon their wrecked car a couple of hours ago," said Natalie. "My husband and I are on our honeymoon, and—well, we felt it unthinkable that anybody should be unhappy, while we are so very happy."

"That's very generous of you, Mrs.—"

"Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks," said Natalie, slipping her hand into Brooks' with a little coasting gesture. He was too courteous to refuse, but he simply ignored it.

THE DOCTOR'S eyes widened a little. It was obvious that a name so well known must have struck a responsive chord in his memory, and he said pleasantly, "Then our two young people were very fortunate to find your interest and to avail your aid. I can assure you that we shall do everything humanly possible to pull them through. The young woman, although her own physical resistance is about on a par with the young man's was not badly hurt. She was flung clear of the car, and has a couple of broken ribs and some painful bruises and lacerations. But I think she needs plenty of good, nourishing food and rest and peace of mind more than anything else."

Before Natalie could answer, the nurse came out of the girl's room and said quietly, "She's asking for you—if you have a moment to spare—"

"Yes, of course," said Natalie, scarcely. And to Brooks, "You'll wait for me, darling?"

Brooks' eyes were cold, but his manner was correctly polite and his tone was calm as he said, "Of course." As though he very much resented her question.

She looked at him swiftly, uneasily. He was so furious, they'd have to have a long talk, get all this straightened out. It was silly of him to be so outraged just because she had in the excitement of the moment forgotten that they were married.

The girl locked very young, with her black hair loose on the pillow, framing a small elfin face. She couldn't have been more than 18 at the outside—small and frail and childish looking.

"You're the lady who found us," she began.

"I'm Mrs. Brooks Marchbanks," said Natalie quickly, and gave the girl a friendly, encouraging smile. "I'm on my honeymoon—and I can't bear it that you should be unhappy or ill when I'm starting a new life."

"Johnny and I are on our honeymoon, too!" said the girl proudly. "And you couldn't possibly be any happier than we were——before the accident——"

Her small face darkened and there were tears in her eyes. Natalie bent over her lacing swiftly. "Now, you mustn't cry. He's going to get well. He's got a marvelous chance. My husband and I have been talking to the doctor and he says your Johnny's going to have the best of everything."

The girl's face lightened with a bitterness that twisted every atom of youth and warmth out of it.

"Yeah—he's going to have the best of everything! He's going to get kicked out of here as soon as they find out that we can't pay even for a day's room and board in this hospital. My kind and Johnny's, we don't ever get anything but the chance to starve to death. We ain't ever had a break in our whole lives so why should I think we are going to get one NOW?" she said through her teeth, her small face screwed up to check the tears that slid down her thin cheeks.

"Listen to me, child," said Natalie, and her voice shook a little with her earnestness, "I've promised you—"

"Sure, I know. You're swell. You're class. I knew that the minute I saw you," said the girl bitterly. "You think everything is swell because it's always Moks that wait to you, but I KNOW. Johnny and me are done for—a couple of fool kids that thought we could beat the game. Just because we had a chance for a honeymoon we'd been saving about all our lives—and Johnny's old jalopy and twenty bucks—he took a chance on getting married. And now—this! I might have known it wouldn't work. Swell things never do for kids like us."

Natalie's hand, warm and soft, with the magnificent old emerald that had been a betrothal ring in the Brooks family for five generations shimmering above the slim hoop of diamonds on her middle finger, closed convulsively over the other girl's thin, shaking hand. Natalie said firmly, "See here, my dear, I've given you my solemn word of honor that everything is going to be all right. You're not going to insult me or refusing to believe me?"

The girl's eyes dropped curiously and the two hands gripped so closely. She looked at her own hands, with their carefully painted nails that were rough and broken and stained. The soft, exquisitely kept hand of the other woman seemed to fascinate her.

After a moment she raised her eyes to Natalie's face and said huskily, "I'm sorry. But—well, of course I knew when you told me that the hospital wouldn't charge us anything because were were 'an emergency case,' that either you were lying or to make me feel better or else you didn't know much about hospitals. I've no account of I've got a tainer that's sick a lot, and we have to go to the charity hospital in our town. It's not much like this."

Natalie made a swift decision.

"Okay, you win," she said. "I might have known you'd have to have the truth. So here it is. The hospital is going to give your Johnny the best of everything—specialists, anything at all that will help him. And you, too. And they are going to send the bill to my husband and me. That's our honeymoon present to you and Johnny. NOW do you feel a little better?"

The girl stared at her, catching breathless. If, for a moment Natalie had been afraid she might refuse, she knew now that the girl had no such thought in mind. It was as though Natalie's offer had become as an answer to prayer—and you could see future years in her eyes.

"Gee!" she whispered very low, a note of awe and relief in her voice. "I don't know what to say."

"You've said it," Natalie smiled warmly at her. "After all, when two couples are honeymooning and one couple is in trouble, why shouldn't the other help out? Maybe that's why it happened to the Brooks and I who came along first after your accident— instead of someone else. Maybe it was all meant to happen like this."

"Yeah," said the other girl. "It's going to be a funny kind of honeymoon, if she won't be after a payment of sober thought. "Johnny and me, we've been going to be married for almost a year. But there's lots of others, and a couple of kid brothers to bring up. And they pay the salary I make, at home. Then this Halcyon Island thing comes along and we got nominated. We had twenty-two dollars and eighty cents saved up, and Johnny says, 'We'll never have a better chance, Coralie—what if we DO have to come back? We can borrow from your folks, or mine? At least we'll have a month that'll be something to remember as long as we live,' and our folks said it was all right—"

Natalie looked down at her, puzzled.

CHAPTER TWELVE

"WHAT DO you mean by 'this Halcyon Island thing,' Coralie?" Natalie asked. "Is that your name? It's a pretty name."

"Coralie Simpson," Coralie Simpson—Mrs. John Simpson," she said proudly, as though saying a sound of the words on her tongue. "Halcyon Island. It's a place—an island off the coast down souththat a rich old man bought and made what he calls a 'honeymoon retreat.' Folks that can't afford to spend any money can go there and stay a month, just being happy and resting and swimming and playing in the sun. Don't it sound grand?"

"It sounds marvelous, Coralie," Natalie said gravely. "And you can go later on, when you're both well."

"None, I guess not," said Coralie, almost grimly. "They've got a waiting list a hundred long. As soon as they find we can't come, somebody else will get the chance. And by the time Johnny is well and we're able to get down there, we'll have been married too long to be eligible."

"I never heard of anything so romantic," Natalie said frankly. "Tell me more about it, Coralie."

"Haven't you read about it in the papers?" demanded Coralie, as though shocked. "Where were you brought up, a Mam gosling?"

"Oh — Bermuda, the Caribbean, maybe out through the Gulf to California," said Natalie vaguely.

"Gosh! Then of course you haven't heard of the idea what Halcyon Island meant to Johnny and me," Coralie said frankly. "You see, I work in an overall factory and Johnny's an automobile mechanic. He could make a lot more money if he had his own tools, but it's been hard for him to be never has been able to buy any. And we've got a couple dollar of us sets any money saved up for anything, somebody gets sick or something. I've never seen the ocean. They say it's awful pretty."

Natalie was startled to find herself brushing swiftly to kiss the girl's cheek.

"It IS pretty, Coralie. And you're going to see it, and as soon as you and Johnny are able to travel," she said firmly, "you're to fill and get some sleep. Don't worry about a thing in the world. Everything's going to be just swell! You wait and see."

The nurse had come back and Natalie knew that Coralie shouldn't be allowed to talk any more. She went out, turning in the doorway to blow a kiss to the girl and the boy who smiled back at her from her pillows.

Brooks was waiting out in the corridor. Natalie went to him with a conciliatory swiftness that he apparently did not notice.

"Ready?" he said crisply. "We'd better get along if we have any hope of reaching Richmond in time for dinner."

Outside in the mid-afternoon sunlight, Natalie said impulsively, "It's rig, do you mind if we don't go on tonight? There must be a hotel of some here. I'd like to stay over tonight and see how those children are in the morning. Do you mind?"

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Turkish reports today say the Germans are withdrawing from the advance units—the men who lay the groundwork for and direct attacks—from Syria and Lebanon, thus following the Nazi policy of not attacking a situation until the full weight of German resources can be effectively applied.

As in Iraq last month, Britain has acted in Syria-Lebanon in time to forestall the enemy's attempt to get himself established under cover while preparations for open attack proceed. Provided the present bright outlook for the Allied conquering forces continues, the Germans will have to give up the idea of finding a short-cut route to the Middle East.

The German high command will not, want to launch the drive on the Nile Valley and the Suez Canal from one side alone. Germany's most conspicuous successes in the field have been achieved by the pincers plan, under which the prime objective has been snared in an envelopping movement.

The German Africa corps, poised on the western limits of Egypt, is known to have been heavily reinforced since its advance across Libya, was completed while the British army was busy in Greece. Nevertheless the strength the enemy can concentrate in North Africa is limited by the meagreness of his shipping resources and by the hazards of the Mediterranean crossing.

A Timely March

An advance by this force on Merdjo, on Alexandria, and Cairo, the Suez Canal itself, if it is to have a fair chance of success, has the need of a supplementary drive on the canal from the north, that is, from Palestine and Syria. With their nearest base 400 miles away, the Germans cannot hope to have sufficient forces for this purpose by air or sea. Britain's timely march into the Levant states will prevent that.

This brings Turkey back into the picture. As long as Vichy held on in Syria and Lebanon and allowed the German advance units to go about their work, the possibility existed that the enemy would secure a foothold from which he could not be dislodged. Then Turkey could be "by-passed."

The presence of British forces on the whole length of Turkey's southern frontier in Asia will do much to bolster the Anglo-Turkish alliance. The military staff talks which have gone on from time to time now will be speeded on a more practical basis, since the necessity of sea transport has been eliminated.

Turkey, if she is as intent on resisting the Germans as the Turkish press would have the world believe, can become an integral part of the Middle East military domain. Under Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's authority. And the notion that any of the German hordes to the east may find the Hellespont and Bosphorus barrier.

FREE FRENCH FORCES MAY ENTER DAMASCUS TODAY OR TOMORROW

Cairo, Egypt, June 10 (AP)—Free French headquarters announced tonight that its forces in Syria were near Damascus, capital of the Mandate, and other French sources here said they were expected to enter the city tonight or early tomorrow.

Relieved Pains in Limbs, and Back for This Grateful Man

Has High Praise for Syntona After Years of Suffering. Could Hardly Stand Erect, Joints were so Stiff and Sore. Now Walks Four Miles to Town. Often Due to Faulty Action of Stomach, Liver, Kidney or Bowels.

MR. HENRY W. THOMAS

"I am certainly pleased with the results I got by taking a treatment of Syntona," said Mr. Henry W. Thomas, West 3rd Street, Barrie Township, in a recent interview.

"About three years ago I began to suffer with acid stomach, indigestion, constipation and pains in my shoulders. I would get blinding headaches and dizzy bilious spells. Later, the pains set into my back and limbs and all through my legs and feet. So much so that I could hardly get around. The pains got worse and stiff that I could hardly bend my joints.

"I read and heard about how Syntona relieved others and got a prescription for it. I began taking it, too. After taking the first bottle I felt decidedly better, so I got some more, and it has given me grand results. I can walk four miles to town without getting winded any more, and all my troubles, I am free of those headaches and dizzy spells and my stomach doesn't trouble me like it used to."

The reason such good results are produced by a medicine that is compounded to act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels at the same time is simply this: The organs of digestion and of elimination are so closely related in their functions that when one becomes sick or often affects one or more of the others. Food that should supply energy and revitalize, only ferments in the stomach. Poisons from undigested and noxious waste matter are absorbed into the blood stream and soon the whole system is rundown.

Make up your mind to begin taking Syntona yourself. See how it will help you. On sale by Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

CAVALCADE OF FLOATS

Shown above is the leading float in the motor cavalcade which is escorting Ontario in connection with the Victory Loan Campaign. The entire story of Canada at war is told by the floats and the one above, donated by the Province of Ontario, signifies that we are in the front line along with the King and Queen. The story of Canada's war effort is combined with a stirring appeal for co-operation and aid to Great Britain by the purchase of Victory Bonds. The cavalcade is the most impressive ever to tour Ontario highways and is scheduled to visit Belleville, Friday June 13th.

District Convention of Ontario Horticultural Assoc. Convenes

Delegates Officially Welcomed by His Worship, Mayor Glencoe Thompson

ILLUSTRATED LECTURES

Amid an appropriate setting of flowers and greenery supplied by members of the Belleville Horticultural Society, the annual District Horticultural Association, District No. 2 convention was inaugurated here on the east map that the Hellespont and Bosphorus barrier.

FREE FRENCH FORCES MAY ENTER DAMASCUS TODAY OR TOMORROW

Cairo, Egypt, June 10 (AP)—Free French headquarters announced tonight that its forces in Syria were near Damascus, capital of the Mandate, and other French sources here said they were expected to enter the city tonight or early tomorrow.

The convention was officially opened with the singing of "O Canada" by His Worship, Mayor Glencoe Thompson, Belleville, and Archibald Duncan, District Director, being read by Mrs. Livingston in his absence. It was announced that there were 60 active societies in this district, while reports of directors' meeting in Gananoque, Kingston and Trenton were given. The view of rural school fairs being discontinued it had been thought advisable to start a rural school beautification project and suitable cups had been donated for competition. The report also stated that events of interest in the district societies be reported regularly to the association, so these could be carried at the provincial directors' meetings. An attendance of 60 was recorded for Belleville society, three from Brockville, two from Kingston, three from Stirling and four from Tweed, were shown by the roll call.

Interesting Lecture

Highlighting the morning's program was an illustrated lecture, "Insects of the Flower Garden and Their Control," by C. Maurice Jean, Asiatic Entomologist, Dominion Department of Agriculture, who gave a very instructive talk on the various types of garden insects and the various methods to be taken in their control.

Mr. Jean commenced stated that gas Mayor Thompson congratulated the Belleville Horticultural Society on their work in the city, and, in response to the mayor's proposed work .i Memorial Park on Station Street, Mrs. Livingston, Provincial Representative of Leeds County, pre-ent. Insects could be divided into two major groups—biting insects, and sucking insects. The first named bite actual pieces out of the foliage or stems, the latter being insects as beetles, grasshoppers and caterpillars. These could be poisoned quite easily, but the second named group of sucking insects such as the lice out of the plant and can not be killed with poison sprayed on the plants but must be killed with contact poison. Nicotine sulphite or arsenate of lead will attack a wide garden insects, but there are a few species which require special measures and these insects which were dealt with by Mr. Mathewman in his lecture.

Following the lecture Mr. Mathewman answered questions regarding the control of garden insects and on the various types of seeds to be found on plants and trees.

For Miller

Mrs. D. W. Boucher, of Kingston President of the Ontario Horticultural Association, addressed the gathering officially on the morning program, spoke a few words by way of convention in regard to the progress of the society, and how John F. Clarke, Official Lecturer, Ontario Horticultural Association stated that in view of the work which we men are doing for the society it was fitting that a medal should grace the chair of the association Mr. Clarke referred to the hardships which women residing in inhabiting towns in Northern Ontario are put it in order that they might enjoy a flower garden of their own. In many cases, he said, it was necessary to bring sail for miles to cover the rocks before gardening could be commenced. By contrast he pointed out, the women are ridiculously easy, he continued.

Mrs. Livingston referred to the rural school beautification program which had been undertaken by the association and stated the great strides had been made in this direction. He was greatly gratified at the response shown, he stated, as the work had expanded far beyond the bounds of last year.

Following Mr. Clarke's talk, the convention was adjourned for lunch to convene again at 2 p.m.

Hitler Adopts Hostile Attitude During Interview

Jersey City, N.J., June 10 —(CP)—John Cudahy, former United States ambassador to Belgium, said on his return from Europe Monday that his recent interview with Hitler, as published last Friday was "a very faithful account," written factually.

In the 1½ hour interview Hitler, he said, told him that any idea of a German invasion of the Western Hemisphere was "fantastic."

Returning on the American Export liner Brambton, Cudahy was asked whether he received the impression that Hitler was "sincere and was telling you the truth."

"Yes, I think he believes that," replied the former diplomat. "He believes the future of our continent and hemisphere is fantastic.

"His attitude was a very unfriendly one—one of hostility toward me. He gave me the idea that he didn't like me at all because I was an American."

Hitler, he went on to say, gave no impression that "he wanted peace or would negotiate for peace."

Apparently Believes U.S. May Enter War

He said he received from Hitler the impression that Hitler and the German people believed the United States would enter the war.

Cudahy's interview was written for the North American Newspaper Alliance and Life Magazine and was published Friday.

President Roosevelt at his press conference that day called attention to the story, and remarked that it was similar to utterances of the German propaganda ministry.

"This (the story) is a very faithful account," said Cudahy. "I have been trained for eight years in factual writing."

The former ambassador, stationed at Brussels when Belgium fell before the Nazis, said he arranged the interview through Foreign Minister Ribbentrop with whom he talked on May 8.

Asked if he intended to make his knowledge of Germany available to the U.S. government, Cudahy replied: "I have no connection with the government. If they ask me I will be glad to tell them what I know."

But this war isn't pushed to a military decision by October, I think we are going to have a very long war—something like the 30 Years War," Cudahy said.

RAF Bombers Make Widespread Attacks On Nazi Shipping

London, June 10—(CP)—Dodging through anti-aircraft fire and low clouds, Royal Air Force bombers made widespread attacks yesterday on Nazi shipping along the European coast from France to Norway and fought aerial battles with protecting Nazi fighters, the Air Ministry announced today.

A communique said four bombers were lost during these operations and at least one Nazi fighter was reported down by R.A.F. fighters damaged. Another German plane was reported own by R.A.F. fighters off the English coast this morning.

Visibility was a poor factor in reports of the bombing attacks on Nazi shipping could not be ascertained.

Odds With Allies In the Attack Against Syria

(By KERKE L. SIMPSON)
Washington, June 10 — (AP) — Tremendous stakes for Britain and her Axis foes alike are involved in the war in French-mandated Syria and Lebanon; but for some time to military odds are with the British troops and their free French allies.

In seizing the initiative the Allies have taken a leaf from Hitler's own book. London, not Berlin, struck first, with bright prospects of a quick victory which could powerfully strengthen British control of the Eastern Mediterranean.

Vichy reports Hitler resistance to the Allies by French colonial garrisons loyal to the Petain-Darlan regime. British and Free French accounts speak of half-hearted stands against the triple-fronted Allied attack, and of increasing native and French desertions to join the Free French standard.

Hitler's best opportunity to within two score miles or less of Beirut and Damascus, capitals of the two mandated territories, tends to bear out the Allied version of the fighting. Surrender or capture of Beirut would open both coastal and interior routes northward. It would permit the two Allied columns driving from Palestine and Transjordan to make an ultimate junction with the British army rushing westward from Iraq up the Valley of the Euphrates.

Navy Lies Off Coast

It appears probable that two other Allied thrusts westward from the Syrian-Iraq border and the Lebanon-Syria coast are also impending. The main route roads across the Syrian desert offer possibilities of a fire-pronged assault that could overrun all Syria and the Lebanon hinterland coastal range.

One road strikes north from the Iraq-Syrian border to the French airport town of Palmyra; then due west to the second northward road to the Beirut-Aleppo Railroad. The other, running due west, is dry mile south of the first. It strikes Damascus via Jebel Druse Hiar from the northeast.

Hitler's Mediterranean ships reported to be lying off both Beirut and Syria's Axis backs have been under action and thrilling romance than were created by the Scarlet Pimpernel.

Gagney plays the role of the fellow who is caught between two loves, Rita and Olivia, while Jack Carson is cast as the cowpoke who wins Cagney's first romance. Alan Hale and George Tobias also play prominent comedy roles.

Commission Directs Ten Cargo Vessels Be Delivered to Gov't

Washington, June 10 —(AP)—The United States Maritime Commission has directed the Southern Pacific Company to deliver to the entire fleet of 10 cargo vessels "for national defense purposes."

The vessels, the Commission said today in announcing the order, are being acquired pursuant to President Roosevelt's order calling for a "two ocean" navy and will be used in aid nations whose defense he deems vital to the United States. The fleet will be operated by the Southern Pacific Company formerly was operated by the Morgan Line in coastal service from New York to Texas ports, including Galveston and Houston. The deadweight tonnage of each:

Ki Almirante, 7,225; Ki Captian, 7,235; Ki Colon, 7,240; Ki Estero, 5,270; Ki Mar, 5,270; Ki Rio, 5,280; Ki Sud, 5,290; Ki Mundo, 6,850; Ki Occeano, 7,200 and Ki Oriente, 6,850.

AT THE BELLE

"Men of Boys Town"

The first motion picture to top "Boys Town" for dramatic, true-life drama, tremendous heart appeal and spiritual uplift, finally has arrived. It is that film's sequel, "Men of Boys Town," which is now on the Belle theatre screen.

It has Spencer Tracy in another characterization as Boys Town's famous director, Father Edward J. Flanagan, and Darryl Hickman in the role of Pip, a seven-year-old kid from the streets.

The story is even more compelling than that of "Boys Town," dealing as it does with Father Flanagan's two-fisted fighting attack against the brutality in correctional school treatment, and Tracy makes a speech in the picture calling for the public to arouse itself to the evils existing in all except that which teach youth to become good citizens, a speech that alone merits Academy Award consideration.

There are many dramatic highlights in the picture, including a financial problem when he goes $300,000 in debt for building because he cannot refuse a boy in need. Another is Whitey's adoption by two newsboys, who have to smuggle him away from Boys Town, and his subsequent return to it after a few he tries to help. A third is Father Flanagan's defense of a murderer who is placed in his custody. The latter provides the most manifold difficulties, the picture builds to a suspenseful, thrilling climax.

The entire cast is excellent, with Darryl Hickman giving a most particularly effective as the Maltlands who adopt Whitey, and Lee J. Cobb as Dave Morris, the kindly pawnbroker who helps Flanagan when he can found Boys Town, and is his financial wizard.

Bobs Belle brews of the Day and Little Mole," a clever fun cartoon preceds the feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Too Hot to Handle"

Clarke Gable and Myrna Loy in one of the most thrilling and exciting love stories ever unfolded on the silver screen, "Too Hot to Handle," gives theatre-goers "Test Pilots" days and nights in one breath-taking action and thrilling romance than has been seen in some time.

Starring happy-go-lucky Clarke Gable as his best, playing the part of a news-reel cameraman on duty in China during the initial stages of the Sino-Nazi war, the picture shows to what lengths a cameraman will go to get the scoops are not so good. During a fake fire Frenchwife's escapades, Myrna Loy, a round-the-world aviatrix, supposedly killed in action, an accidental crack-up ensues and Clarke's cronies/stars steal his film with the result that he loses his job.

Back in New York with Myrna Loy, who comes to America in an effort to get Clarke back for him, the two scoop the world in their efforts to get something hot on. They are forced to provide a duplicate film for their rival company. However, they are finally reunited with threatened exposure of the China episode.

Myrna is striving to raise money for a memorial to the late father of her Clarke scoops his rivals in getting a new picture of the thrilling rescue of Myrna's brother from the clutches of Jack Culaca is the climax of the picture.

As a second feature attraction the heart-touching story of "Andy Hardy Browsy Boy," is presented, together with last minute Movietone News.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Man Who Lost Himself"

English novelist H. Peyton Stanpole's famous story, "The Man Who Lost Himself," now in film form, is proving a hilarious bit of comedy in the unusual picture of the same name, starring Brian Aherne and Kay Francis, which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Entirely farcial in nature, the offering presents Brian Aherne in two roles. In one, Evans, he is a respectable business man; in the other he is Scott, a wealthy bachelor cenirie who sees, in the discovery of his exact double, a way out of his difficulties. He installs Evans in his own home, where Evans is not convince anyones, including Mrs. Scott, that he is Evans and Scott.

In supporting roles are Henry Stephenson, Nils Asther, E. E. Sakall and others.

"Dreaming Out Loud"

On the same programme Lum and Abner find their duties as keeper of the Jot-Em-Down Store taking a back seat to their duties as amateur detectives in their first starring roles in Vocs's "Dreaming Out Loud" for RKO Radio. Here the "old gentlemen" go on the trail of a murderous hit-and-run driver who has brought tragedy to Pine Ridge, and with Irving Bacon succeed in tracking them down. How a child's tiny bankerchief, a "confession" from little Bobs Watson and an emergency operation under adverse conditions combine to bring the killer to justice, forms a dramatic background to a picture filled with humor and a generous of Lum and Abner's famous radio sketches.

"Strawberry Blonde"

James Cagney is back in a new role! He plays the part of a gay blade of the nineties who falls in love with two honeys, played by Olivia de Havilland and Rita Hayworth, in the new comedy drama "Strawberry Blonde", which opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre.

It is a lively comedy packed with humor and romance of a boy who loses the girl he loves to a monosyllabic banker and marries another girl in his attempt to forget the first.

Cagney plays the role of the fellow who is caught between two loves, Rita and Olivia, while Jack Carson is cast as the cowpoke who wins Cagney's first romance. Alan Hale and George Tobias also play prominent comedy roles.

COUNTESS EN ROUTE TO CANADA

Countess Maria Patrilicka, whose home was in France before it was Germans took over, is shown as she arrived in New York with her dog, "Barry." The countess is en route to Canada.

American troops of the 16th Infantry, 1st Division, swarm over the beach at Falmouth, Mass., using the low type navy boats to land them from transport. The "invaders" penetrated inland to blow up bridges and set up machine-gun nests in practice that some day may turn into reality. TOP, the troops approach the shore en masse. BOTTOM, the boats are about touches than the soldiers are over and ready for the mythical enemy.

Church Greatest Barrier Hitler Had to Overcome to Gain Power
Rev. A. Chatreau Tells Rotary

Founded Creed to Supercede 'Sermon on Mount' Says Speaker

CHURCH STILL STRONG

The utter disregard of promises made not only by nations but by the church within Germany prior to and following the declaration of war; the persecution of religion and the foundation of the new religious order in Nazi Germany was the basis of a brilliant address before the Belleville Rotary Club yesterday by the Rev. D. A. Chatreau, minister of Emmanuel Church here.

The speaker drew an eloquent picture of what actually transpired in Germany both prior to and immediately following Hitler's rise to power and in punishing effects of broken promises had, not only on the church but on the people themselves.
